Resolved, That this House of Representatives notes with sorrow the death of one of the promising young citizens of the Commonwealth who was killed in action while fighting for the democratic ideals which he had grown to love; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Robert Riedy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Reidy, 828 Jackson Street, Allentown, Pennsylvania, and also that this resolution be duly entered upon the Journal of the House.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Mr. O'NEILL offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 23, 1942.

The House of Representatives has learned with sorrow of the death early Saturday, March 21, 1941, of Mrs. James W. Vail, mother of Brigadier-General Robert M. Vail, now Adjutant General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Vail had attained the unusual age of ninety-three years, more than sixty of which were spent as a resident of Scranton Pennsylvania. During her long and active life, she was devoted to her family, her church and her community. Until a few days before her death, she maintained a keen interest in current world affairs, reading books and newspapers extensively. As a result of her advanced years, she was enabled to encourage and follow the long and distinguished military career of her son, Brigadier-General Robert M. Vail, and to experience that great satisfaction that comes to a mother when her son attains a position of great honor and responsibility among his fellow-men, therefore be it

Resolved, That this House of Representatives mourns with sincere sympathy the passing of a great lady and an exemplary citizen of the Commonwealth, Mrs. James W. Vail; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the members of the bereaved family and that it be duly entered upon the Journal of the House.

RESOLUTIONS

Mr. POWERS offered a resolution which was laid over for printing under the Rules.

Mr. FALKENSTEIN offered a resolution which was laid over for printing under the Rules.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, last week the members of this House were kind enough to mark a period of service of myself in this House, and I am deeply grateful to them for that, but I feel that I would be lacking in courtesy and due regard for the feelings of a lot of other people if I did not call to the attention of this House that another Member of this House is terminating this year about forty years of public service.

Mr. Speaker, I refer to the gentleman from Lawrence, Mr. Weingartner. He was first elected to the House of Representatives in 1904 and served in the session of 1905 and 1906. The sessions of 1909 and 1911 he spent in the Senate. He did not run for any office again until 1919 when he was elected as a County Commissioner of Lawrence County. In 1923 he was reelected but resigned after eleven months of his second term to reenter the Senate. He served until 1932 in the Senate. Then in 1940 he was reelected to the House of Representatives. He has served in the Legislative Halls under Governors Pennypacker, Stewart, Tener, Pinchot, both terms, Fisher and now James.

In all the years he has been a candidate he has never been defeated. He was elected to every office for which he was a candidate. I think that is a fine record, and I wanted to take this opportunity of placing it in the Legislative Journal in order that his fine family and his friends in Lawrence County might have for all time a record of the fine public service of George T. Weingartner of Lawrence County.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. WEINGARTNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I confess I am somewhat in an embarrassing position. I had no intimation whatever that the minority floor leader proposed to make this statement. I am, however, grateful to him and grateful to this House for the many courtesies they have shown me.

Mr. Speaker, I might digress for just a moment to discuss a few things that happened before many of you came here. I was in Harrisburg attending a session of the Legislature the night the old theatre building burned down on the site where the Penn Harris Hotel now stands. In the Session of 1905, the new capitol was in course of construction, they were plastering the downstairs of the building. The only thing that was finished was a stairway. That was all. Governor Pennypacker's office was in what is now the old state museum. Matthew Stanley Quay and Boise Penrose were then the United States Senators. The whole scene has changed in all these years.

For your information I am not a candidate for re-election. I expect to devote a little of my time to my friends and my family. I have most certainly enjoyed these eighteen years of association. A great many of the associates I have known during that time have passed on to the other side.

Mr. Speaker, I recall in the Senate very distinctly Israel W. Durham, who was in the Senate with me; James McNichol, the elder Vares, Governor Sproul, John S. Fisher, and Willam E. Crow who was afterwards United States Senator. I want to say to you members of this House who are here, looking back over a period of a third of a century of public affairs that the friends you make here are worth while, that you will be able to go into practically any small community in Pennsylvania for years and years and find some colleague with whom you have served here in this House.

My service, while it may have been small, has to me been worth while. It has imbued in me confidence in the American people, confidence in the American system of government, that must prevail.

As I leave this Session after all of these years, I want to say to you gentlemen that the spirit of democracy and of free government, the right to govern ourselves and dictate our own policies and preserve our own institutions is still alive in this Commonwealth and must forever prevail.

The SPEAKER. The Chair wishes the gentleman from Lawrence many more years of happy life and good health.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. NAGEL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I certainly feel grateful to our good friend, the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, for saying the nice things he did about my good friend, Mr. Weingartner.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I come this evening to claim just a little honor. I well recall the time when Mr. Weingartner aspired to election to this House. It was in 1903, or possibly in 1904. Even though he was a registered Republican, I thought so much of him, he being a friend of mine and his people being friends of my mother's, that I hitched old dolly to the buck board, and in that campaign all over Perry Township and Clay Township introduced him to my friends and recommended him very highly. I do not know whether that recommendation was the cause of his election, but I do claim the honor of helping and supporting this great man, who has made such history in our state. I wish him a great future.

COMMITTEE MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Select Committee on Tuesday, March 24th at 12:00 noon in Room 327.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The following members are requested to meet in the New House Caucus Room on Tuesday, March 24th at 11:30 a. m.; Messrs. COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Extraordinary Session of 1942.

Vol. 26. HARRISBURG, PA., TUESDAY, MARCH 24, 1942. No. 17.

SENATE

TUESDAY, March 24, 1942

The Senate met at 2:00 o'clock, p. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE offered the following prayer:

To the only wise God, our Savior, be glory and majesty, dominion and power. These attributes of Thine are revealed to us in the works of creation. Nearer to us is Thy loving regard for Thy children, so manifest in the providences of our daily lives. May we be in awe of Thy majesty and in sincere gratitude for Thy love.

We thank Thee for our country, founded by our Fathers in faith in god and dedicated to the principles of religious freedom, equality of all before the law, and the brotherhood of man. Insofar as it is in our power to preserve these principles, give us, we pray Thee, the faith and the courage to do so.

For the President of the nation and the Governor of our state we pray Thy support and guidance.

Protect and bless with success all officers and men in the armed service of our country.

And to Thy name be all praise, world without end. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. MALLERY and Mr. GELTZ, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Thomas asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Dauphin, Mr. TAYLOR.

CONDOLENCE ON DEATH OF MOTHER-IN-LAW OF SENATOR McQUIDDY

Mr. STIEFEL offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, March 24, 1942.

Whereas, The members of the Senate of Pennsylvania have learned with sorrow of the death of the beloved mother-in-law of our colleague, Senator J. K. McQuiddy, at her home in New Castle, advanced in years and after a life exemplifying Christian virtues; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate extend to Senator McQuiddy its heartfelt sympathy in the great loss he has sustained and express the hope that he and his family may derive solace and comfort from the esteem in which she was held by her neighbors and many friends.

The Secretary of the Senate is directed to forward a copy of this resolution to Senator McQuiddy.

CALENDAR

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 37, entitled:

An Act relating to air raid precautions, including blackouts; conferring certain powers and duties upon the State Council of Defense, local and district Councils of Defense, political subdivisions, members of certain municipal and volunteer agencies and civilians necessary for the safety, defense and protection of civilians and property in the Commonwealth; providing for the mobilization, coordination and use of certain municipal agencies and volunteer agencies, including their personnel and equipment; providing for immunity from liability for injury or death to persons or damage to property under certain circumstances; and providing penalties.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I have just been requested by the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Cavalcante, who has been called to the telephone, to ask that Senate Bill No. 37 go over in order temporarily. I think that the Senator from Fayette feels a speech coming on.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, at the request of Mr. CAVALCANTE, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 37, on third reading go over in its order, temporarily.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

NAYS—0

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 48, as follows:

An Act to add section one thousand one hundred and nine to the Act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one (P. L. 872) entitled "An act to consolidate amend and revise the Penal Laws of the Commonwealth" as amended by prescribing additional penalties in the case of the commission of certain crimes during blackouts or air-raids and the confusion resulting thereafter

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Section eleven of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine (P. L. 872) entitled "An act to consolidate amend and revise the Penal Laws of the Commonwealth" as amended is hereby amended by adding thereto after section one thousand one hundred and eight a new section to read as follows

Section 1109 Whenever it shall be charged in any indictment charging the commission of any of the following crimes murder of the first and second degree voluntary manslaughter involuntary manslaughter robbery robbery by assault and force robbery with accomplice or while armed or by violence robbery of bank vaults train robbery assault and battery aggravated assault and battery assault with intent to kill attempts with intent to kill assault with intent to maim maiming by means of explosives explosives or corrosive substances with intent to maim mayhem rape assault with intent to ravish kidnapping for extortion aiding and abetting kidnappers kidnapping child from persons having custody larceny larceny of bank bills securities and documents larceny of horse larceny of motor vehicle larceny of growing property larceny of coal and iron ore burglary burglary with explosives burglary of railroad cars prison breach obstructing officer in the execution of process aiding prison breach aiding prisoner to escape aiding inmates of institutions to escape falsely impersonating an officer falsely impersonating persons and officers privately employed riots routs assemblies and affrays riotous destruction of property carrying deadly weapons carrying bombs and explosives tramps entering dwellings et cetera serenading with guns or explosives violation of Uniform Firearms Act commission of crime when armed with machine gun pollution of drinking water false fire alarm throwing articles on highway pointing deadly weapons larceny of electric equipment tampering with electrical apparatus illegally wearing insignia illegally wearing military insignia illegally wearing military uniform forcible entry disorderly conduct assault with intent to commit sodomy public indecency arson burning to defraud insurer firing personal property attempt to commit arson malicious mischief malicious injury to property malicious injury to railroads malicious interference with journal boxes and air appliances of railroad obstructing tracks interference with property of gas company injuring fire apparatus injury to fire alarm systems and malicious mischief to public grounds that such crime was committed during a blackout or air-raid or within twenty-four hours after the last past all-clear signal following an actual air-raid the court shall in imposing sentence for the aforementioned crime include therein a fine or term of imprisonment or both as the case may be in addition to the fine imprisonment or both that could have been imposed had no such blackout air-raid or confusion or destruction existed No such additional fine or term of imprisonment shall exceed the maximum fine or imprisonment fixed by law for the particular crime of which the accused shall have been convicted

And said bill having been read at length the third time.

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this bill gives the court the right to impose a double sentence, a sentence equivalent to the original sentence in addition to the sentence now fixed by law in the penal code, for the commission of enumerated crimes committed not only during a blackout but for twenty-four hours after the all clear signal.

First of all, there are a number of crimes, particularly the crime on page three, line four, which I never heard of being committed in broad daylight; I seldom heard of the crime on page two, line twelve, being committed in broad daylight; thirdly, on line twenty-five the crime is called tramps entering dwelling, et cetera. Fourthly, serenading is also a crime, provided you serenade with guns; throwing articles on the highway is a crime now under this act, for which you can get double punishment; that would include the distribution of newspapers or the throwing of a newspaper on the highway. What this has to do with blackouts I fail to understand, and if it is so important, why permit it to go on during the next few months? Why not now? Section 2 of this bill, which is the effective date section and which made it effective immediately upon passage, is now taken out. My recollection is that it will be June under the act, the construction act, when it will become effective. It seems to me, Mr. President, if we are going to permit the imposition of a double penalty by the bill, some of the crimes that are listed here have no place in this bill, some of them may be misinterpreted, and somebody may misuse this bill for their own purpose.

I do not know that assembling is a crime, but under this bill, on line twenty-three, anybody who is guilty of assembling during a blackout becomes subject to the imposition of a double sentence, and it seems to me this legislation ought to be corrected before we vote on it.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I do not claim to be an expert on criminal law, in fact I do not practice criminal law and know very little about it. However Mr. President, Section 2, providing for the effective date of this act, was eliminated because, as I understand it, under the statutory construction act, an act passed to amend another act at a Special Session goes into effect immediately anyhow, so that answers that question of the genleman from Philadelphia.

Relative to the crimes which are included in this bill the chairman of the Committee on Judiciary General wrote to practically every district attorney in the Commonwealth and practically all of the replies received from those district attorneys were unanimously in favor of such a bill as this, and suggested the inclusion of the crimes mentioned in this bill. Maybe some of those crimes are not defined in the bill but the reason for that is that they are defined in the penal code, to which this is an amendment, and if the Senator from Philadelphia will read the particular sections defining these crimes which are enumerated here, he will find out exactly what the crimes are. His objection should be leveled against that rather than at this bill amending an act to provide for double penalties.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, the mistake I find with this bill is that the "et cetera" is in the wrong place; it should have appeared after the word "manslaughter"—anybody guilty of manslaughter, et cetera—then you would have covered the subject more quickly.

I can understand the attitude of mind of district attorneys who will approve a bill with an "et cetera" in it so that if you enter a dwelling house, et cetera, you would be guilty of a crime.

I am quite sure the statement of my colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, shows that he does not practice criminal law, because there is nothing in the criminal code which can not be interpreted by a court. Assembling has been interpreted in various ways; riotous assembly is one thing, but this act makes assembling in a blackout a crime, but there is no other such crime in the criminal code. It has never been a crime to assemble, but now it is a crime to assemble in a blackout. That is the way I read the bill and for that reason I shall vote against it.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to say in confirmation of the statement made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, when this bill was referred to committee, I wrote to the district attorneys of sixty-seven districts in the Commonwealth and I received about fifty replies, and all but one or two of them were favorable towards the bill. However, I noticed that a lot of the letters suggested various amendments to the bill, and those letters were turned over to the sponsor of the bill for his information.

I might also say that the committee, in carrying out the grave responsibilities thrust upon it by the introduction of the bill, discussed the matter with quite a number of members of the bench, and a number of the judges were firmly of the opinion that if a crime were committed under the penal code and it happened to be committed during a blackout, that the judge sentencing a defendant found guilty could take care of the situation very ably under the present sentences set forth in the code, and that, as a rule, most of the crimes have a minimum and a maximum sentence, but in the vast majority of cases the judge sentencing the defendant, never, in the parlance, hits with the book, but gives him the minimum sentence, and the judge can take care of a defendant, if he were found guilty of committing a crime in a blackout, as compared with committing a crime just in the ordinary course of events.

Another suggestion, made by a number of judges with whom I discussed this bill, was that it might have the psychological effect of prohibiting crime during blackouts, if a criminal knew that the sentence would be much more severe if he were apprehended in the commission of a crime during such a blackout, yet judges also agree that they never have found any instance where the severity of the punishment for a crime had any influence on a prospective criminal.

I for one, Mr. President—and I make this statement rather hesitantly, due to the remarks we have had off the record regarding this bill—propose to vote against the bill because I am convinced, or rather these judges have convinced me, that they can very ably handle the situation themselves without the addition of this bill.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. What is the purpose of including the words "Such crime was committed within twenty-four hours after the last past all-clear signal?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, if the gentleman from Philadelphia will read further he will see it says "after the last past all clear signal following an actual air-raid."

Mr. SHAPIRO. That is right.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, during an air-raid it is assumed that bombs will be dropped and that there will be a great deal of confusion for at least twenty-four hours, and that is the reason that was put in, during that period of twenty-four hours crime could be very prevalent on account of that confusion.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia state whether it would make any difference whether sodomy were committed twenty-four hours after or twenty-four hours before an air-raid, as to punishment?

Mr. KEPHART. The crime is assault with intent to commit sodomy. It seems to me that there is more chance that such an assault might occur during a blackout, or during confusion when the police department have duties to clear up the confusion of an air-raid, than would occur in normal times.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 49, as follows:

An Act suspending for a limited time all laws of the Commonwealth requiring the registration of trailers insofar as they require the registration of certain wagons or agricultural machinery drawn by a motor driven vehicle for certain purposes

Section 1 In order to make more steel and other materials used in the manufacture of trailers available for war needs all laws of the Commonwealth requiring the registration of trailers and the payment of a registration fee therefor and the display thereon of a registration plate are hereby suspended during the continuance of the war in which the United States is now engaged insofar as such laws require that wagons or agricultural machinery drawn by a tractor truck or other motor driven vehicle for the purpose of hauling produce food fertilizer or other material to or from a farm be registered as trailers or that registration plates be displayed thereon

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this is the bill to which I called attention yesterday, where, in the interest of conserving metal the necessity for registering and paying a license fee for a trailer was removed from the provisions of the bill.

I had prepared amendments to this bill which I was going to offer, but in view of the fact that I found that Senate Bill No. 42, introduced by the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Edmonds and which passed this Senate on the 16th of March, was on the calendar today in the House, and I understand it passed the House finally, which provides for all automobiles in taking care of the situation from the point of view of defense, and that makes this bill entirely unnecessary.

In other words, Mr. President, the Edmonds bill provides that the law requiring the use of metal tags on all automobiles or trailers shall be suspended and they may use some other method to indicate that the automobile has been licensed or there may be used a smaller plate to show re-registration of the car. It seems to me that bill covers the whole situation. This bill has no place in the Senate nor in the Legislature insofar as registration is concerned, because registration of cars has nothing to do with the defense program. The metal tag proposition is correct, but it certainly does not seem to me to be correct that if cars were required to be registered before, they should not be registered now, because there is a war on; on the contrary, I think all of these registration acts should be complied with unless the compliance interferes with the progress of the war.

I see no reason for the passage of this bill and I shall vote against it.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL POSTPONED

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that further consideration of Senate Bill No. 52, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to aid in the prevention of sabotage by making the larceny of articles ratoined by the Federal Government and necessary in national defense, a felony and prescribing penalties.

be postponed for the present.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

SENATE BILL No. 37 ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE CALLED UP

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I now call up Senate Bill No. 37, on third reading and final passage, page one of the Calendar, which went over in its order temporarily.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 37, as follows:

An Act relating to air raid precautions including blackouts conferring certain powers and duties upon the State Council of Defense local and district Councils of Defense political subdivisions members of certain municipal and volunteer agencies and civilians necessary for the safety defense and protection of civilians and property in the Commonwealth providing for the mobilization coordination and use of certain municipal agencies and volunteer agencies including their personnel and equipment providing for immunity from liability for injury or death to persons or damage to property under certain circumstances and providing penalties

Whereas the supreme emergency of the world-wide war has resulted in conditions of eminent danger to the lives and property of the citizens of the United States and of this Commonwealth from air raids calling for a state of preparedness to meet such danger and

Whereas an adequate defense to air raids is vital to the protection and security of persons and property and the furtherance of the prosecution of the war and

Whereas an united and coordinated effort of civilians and state local and volunteer agencies and facilities is essential in formulating and complying with precautionary measures to meet the emergency.

Section 1 This act shall be known and may be cited as the "Air Raid Precautions Act"

Section 2 The following words and phrases shall have the meaning ascribed to them in this section

"Attack" shall mean all conditions of hostile air raid attack

"Drill" shall mean air raid drill and practice blackout

"During attack or drill" shall mean immediately prior to during and immediately subsequent to an air raid drill practice blackout or all actual conditions of hostile air raid attack

"Local and District Councils of Defense" shall mean such councils established under the provisions of the act approved the nineteenth day of March one thousand nine hundred and forty-one (P. L. 6)

"Municipal agencies" shall mean and include police fire sanitation sewer water engineering and all other regular municipal agencies manned by officers and employes of a political subdivision of the Commonwealth charged with duties and responsibilities in connection with civilian protection

"Political subdivision" shall mean any county city borough incorporated town and township

"State Council of Defense" shall mean such council established under the provisions of the act approved the nineteenth day of March one thousand nine hundred and forty-one (P. L. 6)

"Volunteer agencies" shall mean and include air raid wardens auxiliary police auxiliary firemen bomb squads rescue squads medical forces nurses' aides repair crews decontamination corps demolition crews and all other civilian protection forces and services charged with duties and responsibilities in connection with civilian protection

Section 3 (a) The State Council of Defense shall during the continuance of the existing state of war between the United States and any foreign country have the power and its duty shall be to take such precautionary measures as may be necessary for the safety defense and protection of the civilian population of the Commonwealth and property within the Commonwealth with respect to air raids In furtherance of this power and duty the State Council of Defense shall have power to adopt promulgate and enforce rules regulations and orders for this purpose The State Council of Defense shall cause such rules regulations and orders to be published and disseminated in the Commonwealth in such manner and to such extent as it shall deem necessary and advisable Such rules regulations and orders adopted by the State Council of Defense shall have the same force as if they formed a part of this act Subject to the provisions of this act and without limiting the general power conferred above the State Council of Defense shall have the power and its duty shall be to make rules regulations and orders regarding

(1) The organization recruiting training maintenance and operation of aircraft warning services observation and listening posts information and control centers including the location thereof and such other services and facilities as may be necessary for the prompt reception and transmission of air raid warnings and drills

(2) The formulation and execution of plans for the carrying out of practice blackouts air raid drills and warnings and of all precautionary measures under actual conditions of hostile air raids or enemy attack

(3) The organization recruiting training conduct and duties and powers of volunteer agencies

(4) The effective screening or extinguishment of all lights and lighting devices and appliances

(5) The conduct of civilians and the movement and cessation of pedestrian and vehicular traffic during attack or drill

(6) The evacuation of civilian populations from dangerous or damaged areas

(7) The mobilization and coordination of municipal and volunteer agencies and the use of the personnel and equipment of such agencies wherever needed in the Commonwealth

(b) Local and district Councils of Defense shall have the power to adopt promulgate and enforce rules regulations and orders not inconsistent with rules regulations and orders adopted by the State Council of Defense with respect to the foregoing matters Provided however That no rule regulation and order of any local or district council of defense shall become effective unless and until it shall have received the prior approval of the State Council of Defense

Section 4 It shall be the duty of every local and district Council of Defense to execute and enforce such plans rules regulations and orders as the State Council of Defense shall adopt and promulgate The State Council of Defense is hereby authorized to designate and require agencies to aid and assist the council in the discharge of one or more of its powers and duties under this act and to grant authority to such agencies as may be deemed necessary for the effective accomplishment of any of its functions powers and duties

Section 5 The State Council of Defense in providing for the mobilization and coordination of municipal and volunteer agencies shall have power to make the personnel and equipment of such agencies available for duty and use in any political subdivision other than the political subdivision in which such personnel and equipment are normally used employed or act Unless existing or future voluntary agreements between political subdivisions require otherwise the use of personnel and equipment of any municipal agencies in any political subdivision other than the political subdivision in which they normally are used employed or act shall be without charge or expense to such political subdivision Whenever any part of the regular personnel of any municipal agency of any political subdivision are engaged under the provisions of this act in rendering services in another political subdivision such personnel shall have the same powers duties rights privileges and immunities as if they were performing their duties in the political subdivision in which they are normally employed or act

Section 6 Whenever the United States or any agency of officer thereof shall offer equipment supplies materials or funds for or relating to air raid defense activities to the Commonwealth or to any political subdivision thereof the Commonwealth or political subdivision is hereby authorized to accept such offer and the State Council of Defense shall have power and its duties shall be to adopt promulgate and enforce rules regulations and orders for the use of such equipment supplies materials and funds subject to the terms of the offer and subject also to the rules and regulations of the Federal agency making the offer

Section 7 Neither the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof nor their agents or representatives nor any member of a municipal or volunteer agency nor any individual partnership association corporation trustee receiver or any of the agents thereof in good faith carrying out complying with or attempting to comply with any law or duly promulgated rule regulation or order relating to blackouts air raid drills or other activities connected with the protection of the civil population from air raids or enemy attack shall be liable for any injury or death to persons or damage to property as the result of such activity The foregoing shall not affect the right of any person to receive benefits to which he might otherwise be entitled under the Workmen's Compensation Law any pension law nor the right of any member of a volunteer agency to receive any benefits or compensation under any act of Congress

Section 8 The provisions of this act and rules regulations and orders adopted and promulgated under the provisions of this act shall be enforced by the State Council of Defense local and district councils of defense political subdivisions and municipal and volunteer agencies Subject to limitations contained in rules regulations and orders of the State Council of Defense members of volunteer agencies shall have the powers of peace officers for the purpose of enforcing rules regulations and orders adopted and promulgated for the purpose of enforcing this act provided however that such powers shall not be exercised or performed by them except while they are on active duty and displaying an authorized identifying badge or other insignia during an air raid drill or attack

Section 9 Any person violating any of the provisions of this act or any of the rules regulations and orders adopted and promulgated under this act by the State Council of Defense or any local or district council of defense or who shall fail to comply with any instructions lawfully given by any member of a municipal or volunteer agency or any person who shall without authority wear or display any official insignia authorized by the State Council of Defense or a local or district council of defense for use by members of any municipal or volunteer agency shall upon conviction thereof in a summary proceeding be sentenced to pay a fine of not exceeding two hundred dollars ($200) or imprisonment not exceeding ninety (90) days or both

Section 10 Whoever shall wilfully utter any false air raid alarm signal or warning or who shall wilfully simulate any official air raid signal or warning or shall wilfully break injure or remove any mechanical warning or signal device used therefor shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars ($1,000) or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two (2) years or both Provided however That any air raid alarm signal or warning uttered by any person in connection with any duly authorized air raid drill or practice black-out shall not be deemed to be a false air raid alarm signal or warning within the meaning of this section

Section 11 This act shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment and shall continue in full force and effect during the continuance of the existing state of war between the United States and any foreign country

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, it appears that this bill is one of the bills that deals with a very serious subject, the subject of air raids and blackouts. The bill, if it is studied very carefully, shows that Section one merely states the title of the act, Section two sets forth many definitions, and Section three is the real crux of the whole bill.

Section three, Mr. President, set this forth: "The State Council of Defense shall during the continuance of the existing state of war between the United States and any foreign country, have the power and its duty shall be to take such precautionary measures as may be necessary for the safety, defense and protection of the civilian population of the Commonwealth and properly within the Commonwealth with respect to air-raids."

"In furtherance of this power and duty the State Council of Defense shall have power to adopt, promulgate and enforce rules, and regulations and orders for this purpose.

"The State Council of Defense shall cause such rules, regulations and orders to be published and disseminated in the Commonwealth in such manner and to such extent as it shall deem necessary and advisable. Such rules, regulations and orders adopted by the State Council of Defense shall have the same force as if they formed a part of this act."

Now, Mr. President, the principle involved here is the conferring upon the State Council of Defense of unlimited power to legislate on any subject they deem necessary, for the carrying out of the precautions necessary in an air raid or a blackout but the bill does not specify any conduct that might be inhibited or permitted of a citizen in either an air raid or a blackout. The bill, Mr. President, is in substance a bill like the one that was condemned by our State Superior Court in the case of Kellerman vs. Philadelphia, which is found in 139 Pennsylvania, Superior Court Report at page 569.

In that case the Superior Court held that a statute could not confer upon a board or a department or a commission the power to make rules and regulations which had the the force of a statute but that the Legislature could specify the things that could be done, and then give the department or agency the power to make rules and regulations to enforce the provisions of the act. The court said in the case of O'Neill vs. Insurance Company: "We do not see how a case could be stated that would show a more complete and unconstitutional surrender of the legislative function to an appointee than that presented by the Act of 1891. By its provisions the legislature says in effect to its appointee, (which in this case is the State Council of Defense). Prepare just such a policy or contract as you please. We do not care to know what it is. The Governor shall have no opportunity to veto it. File it in your own office and we will compel its adoption whether it is right or wrong, by the punishment of every company officer or agent who hesitates to use it."

Now, Mr. President, if we paraphrase that language and apply it to this bill we could state that this bill tells the State Council of Defense the following: Prepare just whatever laws you please on this subject of air raids and blackouts; we do not care to know what they are; the Governor shall have no opportunity to veto them; disseminate that throughout the Commonwealth in such manner as you shall deem necessary, and we will compel their obedience, whether they are right or wrong, by the punishment of every citizen who might violate them.

Mr. President, I am satisfied some legislation is necessary to govern the conduct of the citizenry in case of an air raid or a blackout, but as willing as I am for the adoption of legislation of that character, I am not ready to set aside the Constitution in an irregular way, in order to accomplish that purpose. I am firmly of the opinion that a proper bill can be drawn up to cover the situation intended to be covered by this bill, without transgressing the constitutional limitations.

I could well ask the sponsor of this bill, suppose that a rule or regulation that the State Council of Defense adopts would be in opposition or contrary to an Act of Assembly? Since this bill says that the rules and regulations shall have the same force as though they were a part of this act, will it not mean then that an Act of Assembly that is contravened by a rule or regulation will be repealed by implication or expressly by the rules and regulations of the State Council of Defense. You will find, if you follow the law carefully and the decisions, that it would so operate. In other words, the power here conferred upon the State Council of Defense is so broad and unlimited that by their rules and regulations an Act of Assembly may be set aside and repealed not according to the provisions of the Constitution.

The Governor, on February 26, 1942, addressed a communication to every member of this General Assembly, dealing with powers such as are contained in this bill. We refer to them as war powers. In that communication the Governor made this statement: "For those who like venerable and established precedent, let me recommend that they refresh their minds on the act passed by the Pennsylvania General Assembly, on September 16, 1777, after the British Army had captured Philadelphia. That act established a Council of Defense setting forth that it had become necessary for a limited time to vest fit persons with summary and adequate powers to punish offenders and restrain abuses."

The Governor should also bear in mind, in connection with this statement, that when that Act of Assembly was passed, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania had declared itself independent from the political system of England, and the Commonwealth at that time possessed all of the sovereign powers of government—all the powers—and the Governor should remember that at that date, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, through its chosen representatives, entered into a pact which is known as the Constitution of the United States of America, in which the people of this Commonwealth surrendered certain of those sovereign powers, and one of those powers and kindred powers was the power to make war with foreign countries and to then make peace. I think that we ought to emphasize here the point, that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania does not have the power to make war against a foreign nation; that power was surrendered to the Federal Government.

Now, Mr. President, in this bill, as well as in many other bills, this Legislature has been dealing with the powers to suspend laws that would impede war and defense activities. Mr. President, there is absolutely no room for us to devote time upon that subject, because the power to make war and to defend the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania against foreign aggression is reposed in the Federal Government, and it would seem to me that logically it is the duty of the Federal Government to determine whether or not an Act of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania would impede war defense activites, and in the matter of these raids and blackouts, I really think that it deals with a subject that is under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government.

Be that as it may be, I am in accord with the adoption of some bill that would give the authorities, the executive department and the judicial department of this Commonwealth, the power to deal with crimes that are committed by individuals in the chaos of an air raid or a blackout, but we ought to do that with the view of preserving our constitutional form of government, and this bill is in direct opposition to our Constitution. It confers powers upon the State Council of Defense to make rules and regulations that will have the force of law, and if this bill is passed and approved by the Governor, there is not a citizen of the State of Pennsylvania who will know what he is going to be required not to do, or what to do, in an air raid or a blackout, until the State Council of Defense has determined that point.

Mr. President, I am sincere in this matter, as I know probably the sponsor of the bill and all of the members of this Senate are, but it is so plain here that this bill is unconstitutional, it is too broad, and I would not like to see the condition arise where we pass a bill of this kind to deal with this subject and then adjourn the Legislature, and when we are at home and the bill is brought before the Appellate Courts or any court of this Commonwealth for a test of its constitutionality and the bill declared unconstitutional, then we have accomplished nothing by the passage of a bill of this kind.

Mr. President, those members of this Senate who have legal training, who have studied and devoted time to constitutional learning and the construction of statutes, surely can see clearly that this bill is unconstitutional, and that we ought to settle down here and draw up this bill, amend it so that there can be no question of its constitutionality, so that when we go away from here, at least we can feel certain that we have done our duty, for we should not expect the Supreme Court of this Commonwealth to stand on its head and turn a flip-flop backwards to approve a bill of this kind, when they so plainly and so specifically have already established the rule or law that a bill of this kind is absolutely unconstitutional. We can amend this bill to make it constitutional, if the sponsor of the bill and the dominant leadership of this Senate is minded to do so.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I want to first say to the gentleman from Fayette that I deeply appreciate his interest in this bill. I know that he is in accord with what we are trying to do, although he disagrees with us slightly in the method in which we are doing it.

I for one am of the opinion that the bill is constitutional. I do not agree with the facts or the law as stated by the gentleman from Fayette. Of course, the members of the Senate are not the least bit interested in a couple of country lawyers arguing the constitutionality of a proposed statute.

I might suggest to the gentleman from Fayette that I am not the least bit perturbed about the Supreme Court bending over backwards or standing on its head in order to arrive at a legal conclusion, after what happened in the Dr. Heeney case, which, I think, should convince all of us that anything can come out of the Supreme Court. If this is once declared to be unconstitutional, there is nothing you and I can do about it, Senator, to change the opinion of that very august body.

I might suggest to the gentleman from Fayette that under the case which he cited, there are a number of similar citations that he might do well to read. I would like to refer him, if I may, to the case the Supreme Court decided in 310 Pennsylvania 480, Gima vs. Hudson Coal Company, which, I think, is more controlling in this particular instance than the case he cited. Neither one of us is going to convince the Senate or the press or the public as to the reasonableness of our cause here this afternoon. I think the bill is constitutional, and I think that if the gentleman from Fayette has continued serious doubts as to the constitutionality of the bill, he could discuss the matter with the Department of Justice, which has attempted to the best of their ability to draft this legislation. I would like to say at this time that this bill which is now before us, Senate Bill No. 37, is a statute that was adopted by the Office of Civilian Defense at Washington, was very carefully prepared by the Attorney General of the United States, and was submitted to the departments of justice of the various states of the Union, and this bill has been adopted in toto by quite a number of the states, whose Legislatures are in regular or in Special Session at this time, because they have similar responsibilities to meet, that is responsibilities similar to the ones we are faced with right now, and that this bill does, to the best of its ability, attempt to take care of all those responsibilities.

Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Fayette and I both understand and agree that it is impossible to include in this act all the contingencies that might arise during this national emergency, we can not take care of them all, and therefore we must grant to the State Council of Defense the right, under this bill, to promulgate certain rules and regulations. Now, the question as to whether or not, in the delegation of the power to promulgate rules and regulations, we delegate legislative authority, is one that the courts have played with in various cases. The gentleman from Fayette is convinced that it is unconstitutional. I might say that we have discussed this matter very carefully among ourselves and we tried to read some of the law. We are not as well versed in constitutional law or constitutional authority as the gentleman from Fayette, but we are convinced this is constitutional, and I therefore submit to the Senate that we pass this bill today and give the gentleman from Fayette a further opportunity to carry on the discussion and to file briefs, if I may put it that way, with the higher authorities.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am afraid in this war we are going to have to give up a lot of our constitutional rights, and I am not so much concerned with the constitutionality of this act, first, because as I say, ther are a number of things that we are going to be obliged to give up besides constitutional rights before we are much older.

This bill confines the activities, however, and the rules and regulations of this Defense Board to air raids. I do not know off hand of any law concerning air raids on our statute books today, so that, therefore, I doubt very much that any law would be effected by any regulations this Defense Council will adopt.

However, I do say it is important that we have a bill giving somebody authority to make and enforce regulations during air raids, because every community has a local defense council with no authority and no power to enforce the rules that they set up. I am told today there are about sixty local defense councils in Allegheny County, and certainly under their local laws they have no authority or no enforcing power. This bill gives them authority, gives them the enforcing power and fixes the penalty by a fine up to two hundred dollars and imprisonment of not more than ninety days for violation of the regulations.

Mr. President, what I do object to, however, is the use of this bill for the purpose of protecting insurance companies. As I called attention to yesterday, this bill on page 7, Section 7, deals with a subject which is unimportant and unnecessary to it. If you will read Section 7 and leave out the words to which I objected, you will find that the necessities of the situation are fully covered, and obviously those words were put in and can be taken out bodily, without doing any injury to the bill. There are too many possibilities in the way this bill is drawn to let it go through in that fashion, this bill not only exempts from liability voluntary agencies of the Commonwealth and the localities engaged in carrying out the provisions of the law and the efforts in connection with defense work, but it exempts individuals, partnerships, executors, trustees and receiverships from any liability for their own negligence during an air raid. It is totally unnecessary and certainly unwise, and it is too broad.

There is no reason why companies now carrying insurance against liability for negligence should be exempt from liability for their own negligence in an air raid, whether they are performing an act connected with an air raid or not, and certainly when it goes so far as to say these companies and receiverships and partnerships shall not be liable for any injuries or deathes to persons or damage to property as a result of not only such activities, but as a result of any activities in connection with the protection of civilian population from air raids during an enemy attack, then that goes pretty far, because anybody can use his own judgment in what he should do to protect us from an attack by the enemy, he can go around carrying a gun and handle it carelessly and say he was doing it in an effort to protect us from our enemy and still be free from liability. Many insurance companies have insurance policies which provide that the insurance company pays if the individual is liable. We now say by law that he is not liable, so the insurance companies do not pay. It seems to me a wholly unnecessary provision in a very important act, and for that reason I am going to vote against it.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, one of the most everlasting experiences that I have had in my four years in the Senate was serving on the Judiciary General Committee. There are twenty-one members of that committee, and I think nineteen of them are members of the bar. I have never had an opportunity to see those nineteen lawyers agree on much of anything, and to have lawyers disagree on twiddle-dee-dee and twiddle-dee-dum of a bill is nothing unusual.

Mr. President, I hate to disagree and differ with my learned colleague from Philadelphia, because I have a very high regard for his legal ability, but I would like to suggest to him that this bill does not destroy anybody's cause of action, it merely affirmatively states the defense he would have under the statute—of course, the gentleman from Philadelphia shakes his head in the negative, which shows that two lawyers can not agree.

I have listened during the time I have been a member of this Senate to speeches by the gentleman from Philadelphia with regard to insurance and insurance companies, and he has never had a kind word to say for either insurance or insurance companies. I would suggest that he has a psychological complex against insurance companies, which in effect amounts to a phobia, and he can read into all of these acts a sinister hidden meaning, whereby insurance companies, through adroit maneuvers have been able to remove themselves from any liability whatsoever.

Mr. President. I am not a member of the board of directors of any of these insurance companies—I merely hold policies and pay premiums—but I would like to again suggest to the gentleman from Philadelphia that this bill was drawn up by those in power in Washington, Mr. Biddle's department, at the direction of the Office of Civilian Defense. This is word for word as it has been adopted in half a dozen states, including the State of New York, and as I recall it, the acts of New York have been referred to very triumphantly by the gentleman from Philadelphia during prior sessions, which he thought showed how they pointed the finger at the insurance companies, and I think he is drumming up a ghost that does not exist in the act.

Mr. President, I have no hope of changing his mind or of getting his vote in favor of this bill, I am only sorry that he has read that implied suggestion into the act, because I know down in his heart he wants to vote against this bill, but this dormant phobia against insurance companies prohibits him.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, under the uniform statutory construction act of our Commonwealth, the courts of the Commonwealth are requested, if I may put it that way, to consult the Legislative Journal in order to ascertain what the intention of the Legislature might have been on any given legislation, and it is because of that I have asked permission to speak again.

I want to put another point on the record which tends to show that this bill is not needed at all, but in my opinion it is merely a reaching out for power or a concentration of power under the excuse of war and defense.

Mr. President, no matter how mediocre an attorney may be, he who sits here in this Senate knows that cities and boroughs have the power by resolution to makes rules and regulations for the governing of the citizens of their respective municipalities. There is not a city or a borough in the State of Pennsylvania that can not enact rules and regulations and impose penalties for their violation in relation to this subject of air raids and blackouts. There is very little need for rules and regulations if an air raid is conducted over a farm of some person out in the country; but the experience in the countries at war seems to show that where the regulation is needed in time of air raid and blackouts is in the congested, in the populated sections of the country, that it is the populated centers upon which the enemy looses its air attacks, and I would sooner trust the government of the City of Philadelphia and the power conferred upon it by the Constitution and Acts of Assembly to promulgate and set up rules and regulations for air raids and blackouts, than to concentrate that power in the Council of Defense, no member of which may know anything about the conditions in Philadelphia, and what might be a good rule and regulation in case of an air raid or blackout and what might not be. You pass this act and it means that the power of the City of Philadelphia and the broad power of this Commonwealth as to enacting rules and regulations to deal with the subject will be taken away from them, because the rules and regulations that may be adopted by the State Council of Defense may be in direct opposition to what the borough council or the people of the City of Philadelphia might think proper in their particular locality.

In my opinion, Mr. President, I think it is a whole lot better to leave this power diffused the way it is, in the hands of the boroughs, in the hands of the cities, rather than to concentrate it in the State Council of Defense, for what rules and regulations may be proper and just to meet a situation in Philadelphia may not be the proper rules and regulations to apply, let us say, to a county like Fayette, where we have coke ovens with fires burning all night as a beacon light to air raids and blackouts. We could not blackout the County of Fayette if we would want to, because we have thousands upon thousands of beehive coke ovens that shoot their flare up in the sky. The City of Pittsburgh has furnace after furnace that shoots its glare up into the heavens at every hour of the night, and they can not blackout the City of Pittsburgh. Rules and regulations passed by the State Council of Defense that might apply to a city like Lancaster or some city that does not have beehive ovens or blast furnaces may not be a proper rule for my county or the City of Philadelphia or the City of Pittsburgh.

It might be well, instead of passing this bill, to pass a bill conferring, if the cities and boroughs do not already have that power, the power upon them to make rules and regulations to control blackouts and air raids, and if the township supervisors do not have that power now, they can easily be given the power to adopt resolutions and regulations to govern the conduct of the citizenry in case of an air raid and blackout.

Mr. President, when we sum this thing all up, this bill is really a reaching out for power, a concentration of power in a local agency, something that is diametrically opposed to the principle of democracy, which our boys will be sent to the front to fight for, to make the world safe for democracy. It is not democracy to take the power away from the cities and the boroughs and the people and centralize it here at Harrisburg in a body such as the State Council of Defense.

I say to you, Mr. President, that if we are going to be consistent we should leave this power in the cities and in the boroughs, and if the townships do not have it, let us confer that power upon them, and then this subject of air raids and blackouts will be rightly covered and the powers to make rules and regulations will be left with the people down below who will be the sufferers in case of air raids and blackouts; they are the ones that are vitally concerned. They are not interested in reaching out for power, but they are interested in protecting their lives, their limbs, their properties and everything that is dear to them, so leave the power there; they will know what to do and when to do it.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—38

And said bill having been read at length the second time.

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I desire to offer amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 1, page 5, line 4, by striking out the dark-faced bracket before the word "not"; Amend Section 1, page 5, line 5, by inserting a dark-faced bracket before the word "and".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

Said act is hereby amended by adding thereto the following new sections."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

The third section was read and agreed to.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill as amended having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 64, entitled:

A Supplement to the act approved March eleventh, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, entitled "An act to provide for the expenses of the Extraordinary Session of the Legislature assembled February seventeenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two in pursuance of the proclamation of the Governor of the Commonwealth dated February tenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, and the supplement thereto."

And said bill having been read at length the second time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I desire to offer an amendment.

The Clerk read the amendment as follows:

Amend Section 1, page 2, line 12, by inserting after line 12, the following:

For the payment of the expenses of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate in examining and analyzing requests of the various departments boards and commissions of the Commonwealth for appropriations and for clerical assistance and other necessary expenses in connection with the work of said committee during and for the completition of the work of the session the sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000) to be paid on warrant of the Auditor General in favor of the chairman of said committee on the presentation of his requisition

And said bill as amended having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. BARTLETT, from the Committee on Public Health, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 65, entitled:

An Act to amend section twenty-one as amended, of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen (P. L. 900), entitled "An act to provide for the immediate registration of all births and deaths throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by means of certificates of births and deaths, and burial or removal permits; requiring prompt returns to the Central Bureau of Vital Statistics, as required to be established by the State Department of Health; and, in order to secure prompt and faithful registration of births, marriages, deaths, and diseases of practitioners of medicine, and surgery, or midwives, nurses, and undertakers, and of all persons whose occupation is deemed to be of importance in obtaining complete registration of births, deaths, marriages, and diseases throughout the State, as provided in section ten of an act, entitled 'An act creating the Department of Health and defining its powers and duties,' approved the twenty-seventh day of April, nineteen hundred and five, and providing penalties for violations of this act," by further regulating the giving of certified copies of birth certificates to soldiers, sailors and marines and war nurses.

NOMINATIONS BY THE GOVERNOR

NOTARIES PUBLIC

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, nominations for appointment as Notaries Public.

CONSIDERATION OF NOTARIES PUBLIC

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of nominations for appointment as Notaries Public, sent to the Senate March 24, 1942, by His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The nominations were read as follows:

Miss Mary G. Ferry, Allentown.

ARTHUR H. JAMES.

NOMINATIONS FOR NOTARIES PUBLIC

A motion was made by Mr. JAMES and Mr. MILLER,

That the Senate do advise and consent to said nominations.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—42

Bartlett,	Ealy,	Lanius,	Stiefel,
Becker,	Edmonds,	Letzler,	Tallman,
Carr,	Farrell,	Mallery,	Thomas,
Cavalcante,	Frey,	McCreesh,	Tyler,
Chapman,	Geltz,	McGinnis,	Wade,
Coleman,	Haluska,	Miller,	Walker,
Cox,	Heyburn,	Scarlett,	Watkins,
Crider,	Homsher,	Shapiro,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	James,	Snowden,	Wilson, T. B.,
Dent,	Jaspan,	Stevenson,	Ziesenheim,
DiSilvestro,	Kephart,

NAYS—0

Two-thirds of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Governor be informed accordingly.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I suggest to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, that he should examine Senate Bill No. 37, Printer's No. 33, which we just passed, the air raid and blackout bill, and he will find that on page 6, Section 6, line 18, there is an error which should be corrected, and which I thought I would call to his attention before the bill goes over to the House.

In Section 6, line 18, it says "whenever the United States or any agency of officer"; that word ought to be any agency or officer.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman from Fayette.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess for a half hour.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

HOUSE MESSAGE

SENATE BILL No. 42 RETURNED WITH AMENDMENTS

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, returned to the Senate, Senate Bill No. 42, entitled:

An Act to suspend and modify existing law providing for and requiring the use of plates or tags as evidence of the payment of any license or registration fee insofar as such laws require the use of plates or tags manufactured of metal and by authorizing the use of other material in whole or in part.

with the information that the House has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I move that Rule 21, which requires amended bills to be noted on the calendar, be in this case dispensed with, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the amendments made by the House of Representatives to the foregoing bill.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the amendments made by the House of Representatives?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I am glad to move that the Senate concur with the House on this amendment. This is the bill relating to the use of other substances than metal for licenses and tags and so on. It has been suggested that a broader phrase is necessary, where perhaps it might not be a license, but nevertheless it may be a tag that is required in some way, and the object of the House amendment is to make it apply to that series of cases.

The amendment to me seems to be good legislation and I therefore urge that the Senate concur in the House amendments.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate concur in the amendments made by the House?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—38

Bartlett,	Edmonds,	Letzler,	Tallman,
Becker,	Farrell,	Mallery,	Thomas,
Carr,	Geltz,	McGinnis,	Tyler,
Chapman,	Haluska,	Miller,	Wade,
Coleman,	Heyburn,	Scarlett,	Walker,
Cox,	Homsher,	Shapiro,	Watkins,
Crider,	James,	Snowden,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	Jaspan,	Stevenson,	Wilson, T. B.,
DiSilvestro,	Kephart,	Stiefel,	Ziesenheim,
Ealy,	Lanius,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. HOMSHER, from the Committee on Highways, reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 44, entitled:

An Act suspending, for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter, the provisions of article six of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims, registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerk thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," and its amendments, in so far as they require the renewal of operators licenses of and the payment of operator's license fees by, persons in the military or naval service of the United States so as to authorize the issuance of temporary licenses to such persons.

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CROWE, from the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 69, (House Bill No. 64), entitled:

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section two hundred fifty-one of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," and its amendments in so far as they authorize the Board of Fish Commissioners, when necessary to conserve the future fish supply, to close or open seasons and authorizeing the closing and opening of seasons by said board for any emergency during said period.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON, from the Committee on State Government, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 50, (House Bill No. 28), entitled:

An Act to further amend clause (g) as added to section one thousand one hundred and ten of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," suspending during the period of present hostilities and for one year thereafter, the requirement that all electrically operated traffic signals shall be made to conform with provisions of said act and the regulations of the Secretary of Highways.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. SHAPIRO, from the Committee on Finance, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 54, (House Bill No. 12), entitled:

An Act prescribing the rights of persons enlisting or being inducted or drafted into the military or naval service of the United States in time of war or preparation for national defense during a national emergency under licenses issued by the Department of Revenue to operate any motor vehicle and providing for the renewals after discharge from such service.

Mr. SNOWDEN, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. SNOWDEN, from the Committee on Highways reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 60, entitled:

An Act to suspend and modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limit the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways of the Commonwealth and authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of over-weight and over-length vehicles in certain cases.

MOTION TO READ BILLS THE FIRST TIME

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the first reading of all bills reported from committees for the first time at today's session.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Wednesday, March 25, 1942, at 12:00 o'clock, noon, Eastern War Time.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 4:46 o'clock, p. m., Eastern War Time until Wednesday, March 25, 1942, at 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern War Time.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

TUESDAY, March 24, 1942

The House met at 1 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall, offered the following prayer:

Dear God, we have been taught to ask as we pray, "Give us this day our daily bread;" today, we would beseech Thee to give us this day our daily job. Help each one of us to put his heart into the task he may be called upon to perform for Thee. May we remember those less fortunate than we. Give healing to the sick and comfort to the sorrowing. Save us, we pray Thee, from drifting into loveless ways.

Look with favor upon Thy children as they seek to do Thy will. As a nation may we not only say, "God is our refuge, a very present help in time of trouble," but may we look to Thee for guidance, for strength, and for the assurance of Thy blessing in all our undertakings. In Thy name we pray. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday, when, on motion of Mr. ELLIOTT, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. AUKER. HOUSE BILL No. 87.

An Act creating a Legislative War Committee and authorizing such committee, for a limited period of time, to suspend or modify the operation of laws either in whole or in part under certain circumstances during the existence of a war wherein the United States is engaged; imposing duties and conferring powers upon such committee; and making an appropriation.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. POWERS. RESOLUTION No. 34.

In the House of Representatives, March 23, 1942.

Whereas, Because of the war emergency, most industries and all government agencies have refused to employ anyone unless a birth certificate is produced; and

Whereas, By reason of this situation thousands of applications for birth certificates have been submitted to the Bureau of Vital Statistics, of the Department of Health; and

Whereas, The Bureau of Vital Statistics is not able to keep up with the aforesaid demand for certificates occasioning long delays, creating unnecessary unemployment, and causing a loss of many labor hours in vital defense industries; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of this House that whenever an application is made for a birth certificate, the Bureau of Vital Statistics shall issue a receipt therefor, which receipt shall be accepted in lieu of a birth certificate until the Bureau is able to make its search and either issues or refuses to issue its certificate, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be submitted to the Secretary of Health, all governmental agencies, and to the State Council of Defense for distribution to all defense industries in the Commonwealth.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

By Mr. FALKENSTEIN. RESOLUTION No. 35.

In the House of Representatives, March 23, 1942.

Whereas, For the past two years there has been brought to the attention of the residents of the City of Philadelphia, the fact that many of its fire plugs have deteriorated and cannot be properly utilized for fire fighting purposes; and

Whereas, Because of the possibility of air raids and conflagrations usually caused by such raids this condition becomes even more serious to the residents and the vital war industries in the City of Philadelphia; and

Whereas, The officials of the City of Philadelphia have either failed, neglected or refused to make the necessary additions and replacements which this situation warrants; and

Whereas, One of the duties of the State Council of Defense is to coordinate activities for fire protection and disaster relief; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby directs the State Council of Defense to confer with the officials of the City of Philadelphia and adopt such other measures as it may deem necessary to insure to the residents and the industries of the City of Philadelphia sufficient usable fire plugs for their protection in cases of fire; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk to the Director of the State Council of Defense.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

PETITIONS AND COMMUNICATIONS

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communications which were read by the Clerk.

EMERGENCY LANDING FIELDS

A communication from the American Zinc and Chemical Company, Langeloth;

A communication from the Langeloth Coal Company, Langeloth; and

A communication from the Climax Molybdenum Company of Pennsylvania, Langeloth, urging passage of House Bill No. 75, authorizing the Pennsylvania Game Commission to lease lands for emergency landing fields.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

PUBLIC OFFICERS

A communication from the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor protesting passage of Senate Bill No. 25, prohibiting extension of term or increase or decrease of salaries of public officers.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED—RESOLUTION No. 12

The SPEAKER. In accordance with the provisions of House Resolution No. 12, Printer's No. 19, adopted by the House of Representatives March 18, 1942, the Speaker appoints the following Select Committee: Messrs. REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. GERARD, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Bill No. 75, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, with the unanimous approval of the Commission and for a certain limited period of time, to lease lands to political subdivisions or to Federal agencies for use as aviation landing fields; conferring certain powers upon political subdivisions relative to the acceptance and development of such lands; and suspending certain inconsistent legislation.

Mr. BAUGHER, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Bill No. 76, entitled:

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section one of the act, approved the eighth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 737), entitled "A supplement to an act, entitled 'An act to establish a Board of Commissioners of Navigation for the River Delaware and its navigable tributaries; regulating their jurisdiction over ships, vessels, and boats, and wharves, piers, bulkheads, docks, slips, and basins; and exempting cities of the first class from certain of its provisions; and making an appropriation therefor,' approved the eighth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred seven; authorizing and directing the commissioners to provide and maintain a nautical school for the education and training of pupils from the various counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the science and practice of navigation; and making an appropriation for two years from the first day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, towards its maintenance," and its amendments, in so far as they require the furnishing of accommodations on board a proper vessel for the nautical school, when no such vessel is available and imposing upon the State Council of Defense the duty of furnishing other accommodations.

Mr. WOODRING, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Bill No. 55, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Secretary of Internal Affairs to issue patents for lands to be used by the United States for war purposes, upon the payment of the original purchase price without interest accrued thereon, and to temporarily suspend the law requiring the payment of said interest.

Mr. STARK, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Bill No. 43, (Senate Bill No. 31), entitled:

An Act making available the services of recipients of general assistance under certain conditions by permitting them to earn a limited amount of money in work essential to the prosecution of the existing war in which the United States of America is engaged without forfeiting their right to assistance or any part thereof.

Mr. LOVETT, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as amended, House Bill No. 57, entitled:

An Act authorizing the secretary of the board of health in the various cities of the third class throughout the Commonwealth, during the continuation of the present war and for six months thereafter, to search and issue certified copies of birth and death records maintained by such cities after the State-wide system for registering vital statistics was established; requiring that such birth and death records be made available to the secretary of the board of health for the purposes of this act; and authorizing the respective city councils to prescribe fees for such services.

WEST READING HIGH SCHOOL CLASS WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair welcomes to the House this afternoon the Senior Class of the West Reading High School who are the guests of the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Wolf.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 64, as follows:

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section two hundred fifty-one of the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (P. L. 448) entitled "An act relating to fish and amending revising and consolidating and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth" and its amendments in so far as they authorize the Board of Fish Commissioners when necessary to conserve the future fish supply to close or open seasons and authorizing the closing and opening of seasons by said board for any emergency during said period

Section 1 The provisions of section two hundred fifty-one of the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (P. L. 448) entitled "An act relating to fish and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth" and its amendments are hereby suspended and modified in so far as they authorize the Board of Fish Commissioners when in its judgment it becomes necessary to conserve the future fish supply to close or open seasons for the period of the duration of the present war and for six months after the conclusion of hostilities

Section 2 The Board of Fish Commissioners during said period may close or open seasons for any of the inland waters artificial or otherwise boundary lakes and boundary rivers of this Commonwealth as in its judgment it may deem necessary for any emergency and shall not solely be limited in the application of its judgment to the conservation of the future fish supply.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 61, (Senate Bill No. 42), as follows:

An Act to suspend and modify existing law providing for and requiring the use of plates or tags as evidence of (1) the payment of any license or registration fee or (2) in compliance with any other legal requirement insofar as such laws require the use of plates or tags manufactured of metal and by authorizing the use of other material in whole or in part

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 In order to make large quantities of metal available for use in the manufacture of materials and supplies for war use the provisions of any acts of assembly requiring the use or display of any plate or tag as evidence of the registration of (1) any vehicle or the payment of any registration fee or license fee or (2) in compliance with any other legal requirement by any person copartnership association or corporation are hereby suspended during the continuance of the war in which the United States is now engaged and for all subsequent registration or licensing years or periods commencing within six months after the termination of such war insofar as such acts require that such plates or tags shall be constructed or manufactured of metal and the department or agency of the State government issuing or requiring the use or display of such plates or tags or charged with the administration of any law requiring such use or display is hereby authorized to specify the use or display of plates or tags manufactured of material other than metal or to provide for the addition or attachment to plates or tags heretofore issued of some mark or substance clearly evidencing the renewal of such registration or licensing or compliance with any other legal requirement and the payment of the fee required therefor

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, is there some one in the House who can explain what this bill does?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, due to the metal shortage we learn that very likely during the coming year, where the law requires the displaying of metal license plates as the evidence of payment of a license fee, in instances like in the Game Commission, traps must carry metallic tags bearing the names of the owners of the traps, or perhaps where metal must be displayed or used in connection with meeting the requirements of the law, these various departments that have charge of the enforcement of the law learn that it is impossible to comply with the law because of metal shortage or because of priorities. Under this act they will have the right to substitute some other material instead of metal for the purpose of compliance with the law.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. BAKER, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Bill No. 59, entitled:

An Act to amend Section 18.1 of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred fifteen (P. L. 900), entitled "An act to provide for the immediate registration of all births and deaths throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by means of certificates of births and deaths, and burial or removal permits; requiring prompt returns to the Central Bureau of Vital Statistics, as required to be established by the State Department of Health; and, in order to secure prompt and faithful registration of births, marriages, deaths, and diseases, or practitioners of medicine and surgery, of midwives, nurses, and undertakers, and of all persons whose occupation is deemed to be of importance in obtaining complete registration of births, deaths, marriages, and diseases throughout the State, as provided in section ten of an act, entitled 'An act creating the Department of Health and defining its powers and duties,' approved the twenty-seventh day of April, nineteen hundred and five, and providing penalties for violation of this act," as added, by directing the Department of Health to extend the special birth record file provided for by said section, so as to include birth records of veterans of wars other than the World War and so as to include honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, and providing for the issuance of certified copies of such records without cost.

Mr. MELCHIORRE, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Bill No. 78, entitled:

An Act to amend section six of the act, approved the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand eight hundred ninety-five (P. L. 212), entitled "An act to establish an intermediate court of appeal; regulating its constitution, officers, jurisdiction, powers, practice, and its relation to the Supreme Court and the compensation of the judges and other officers and the practice and costs on appeals from its judgments," by making further provision as to the preparation, custody and disposition of plates used in the printing of Superior Court Reports.

Mr. MELCHIORRE, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Bill No. 79, entitled:

An Act to further amend section seven of the act, approved the twelfth day of June, one thousand eight hundred seventy-eight (P. L. 201), entitled "An act to provide for the publication of the decisions of the supreme court and the appointment of a state reporter," by making further provisions relative to the custody and disposition of plates used in the printing of supreme court reports and supreme court advance sheets.

Mr. WOODRING, from the Select Committee on Special

Session Legislation, reported as amended, House Bill No. 56, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Secretary of Revenue of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, with approval of the Secretary of Highways during a certain limited period of time, to adopt rules and regulations relative to the use of the highways by motor vehicles, tractors, trailers or other equipment which cannot be fitted with rubber tires or treads, because of the shortage of rubber and providing for the suspension of certain inconsistent legislation.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. CULLEN and RUSH.

(Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 36.

In the House of Representatives, March 24, 1942.

Whereas, It has recently been announced that the Pennsylvania Maritime Academy, the nautical school maintained for the Commonwealth by the Delaware River Navigation Commission, will cease operating on March 31, 1942, when its training ship will be withdrawn; and

Whereas, Said school has for many years been held in high esteem for its superb training of selected pupils in the science and practice of navigation, its graduates being the mainstay of the Merchant Marine of this country; and

Whereas, It has been announced by the Secretary of Forests and Waters that the cost of continued operation would be prohibitive to this great Commonwealth if it must furnish new accommodations for the pupils of the Academy; and

Whereas, It is agreed that the cost of continued operation would be insignificant, in view of the urgent necessity of nautical training particularly during the present defense emergency; and

Whereas, The State Council of Defense has been empowered by this Legislature to cooperate with other defense agencies engaged in defense activities, and to do all acts in furtherance of such defense activities; and

Whereas, The Governor of this Commonwealth has been empowered by this Legislature in its appropriation to the Department of Military Affairs, to allocate such funds as are needed to the State Council of Defense; now therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives, That it hereby recognized the vital necessity of the continued maintenance of the Pennsylvania Maritime Academy, and therefore directs the State Council of Defense and the Governor of the Commonwealth to take such steps and make such allocations as will prevent the closing of the Academy, in accordance with the provisions of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the Governor, the State Council of Defense, the Delaware River Navigation Commission, and the Secretary of Forests and Waters.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

BILL ON FIRST READING

Mr. WOODRING asked and obtained unanimous consent for House Bill No. 76 to be read for the first time.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 76, entitled:

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section one of the act, approved the eighth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 737), entitled "A supplement to an act, entitled 'An act to establish a Board of Commissioners of Navigation for the River Delaware and its navigable tributaries; regulating their jurisdiction over ships, vessels, and boats, and wharves, piers, bulkheads, docks, slips, and basins; and exempting cities of the first class from certain of its provisions; and making an appropriation therefor,' approved the eighth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven; authorizing and directing the commissioners to provide and maintain a nautical school for the education and training of pupils from the various counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the science and practice of navigation; and making an appropriation for two years from the first day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, towards its maintenance," and its amendments, in so far as they require, the furnishing of accommodations on board a proper vessel for the nautical school, when no such vessel is available and imposing upon the State Council of Defense the duty of furnishing other accommodations.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

RESOLUTION

Mr. FALKENSTEIN offered a resolution which was laid over for printing under the Rules.

REPORT OF SLATE COMMITTEE

Mr. LOVETT offered a report from the Slate Committee which was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

EMPLOYE OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

In the House of Representatives, March 24, 1942.

Resolved, That the following person be elected employe of the House of Representatives effective March, 16, 1942.

CHIEF PAGE

Joseph Keppick, 1121 Monroe Ave., Dunmore, Pa., vice John B. Dougherty, Resignation.

RESOLUTION

Mr. MORAN offered a resolution and asked unanimous consent to have it read for the information of the House.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent for the reading of the resolution for the information of the House? Is there objection?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears objection and consent is not granted.

The resolution will lie over for printing under the Rules.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I more than suspected that there would be objection by the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman got it.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Extraordinary Session of 1942.

Vol. 26. HARRISBURG, PA., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 25, 1942. No. 18,

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, March 25, 1942

The Senate met at 12:00 o'clock, noon.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE offered the following prayer:

O God, our Father, as the shepherd leads and guards his flock so dost Thou lead and guard Thy people who are the sheep of Thy pasture. By Thy leading and because as a nation we have followed that leadership, we have been protected and prospered. In the present testing times we shall continue to be protected and prosper if we follow our Divine Leader.

May each of us now in Thy presence have the faith and the confidence of the poet king of Israel who gave to the world its sweetest song.

"The Lord is my shepherd I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures.
He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul.
He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His Name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me,
Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me,
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies.
Thou anointest my head with oil, my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life,
And I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

We pray this in the name of the Good Shepherd. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. MILLER and Mr. GELTZ, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

RESOLUTION RECALLING SENATE BILL No. 28 FROM THE GOVERNOR

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to present a resolution at this time recalling a bill from the Governor, which is the bill permitting building and loan associations to sell defense bonds.

We understand that it is the purpose to now change the name of the new issue to war bonds or some other name and the proposed amendment to the bill will allow that change.

RESOLUTION RECALLING SENATE BILL No. 28 (PRINTER'S No. 25) FROM THE GOVERNOR

Mr. GELTZ offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, March 24, 1942.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), that Senate Bill No. 28, Printer's No. 25, entitled "An act to further amend Section 801 of the act approved the fifth day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one (P. L. 457) entitled 'An act relating to the business of building and loan associations providing for the organization and voluntary dissolution of such associations defining the rights powers duties liabilities and immunities of such associations and of their officers directors shareholders solicitors and other employes prohibiting the transaction of business in this Commonwealth by foreign building and loan associations conferring powers and imposing duties upon the courts recorders of deeds and certain State departments commissions and officers establishing limitations of actions imposing penalties and repealing certain acts and parts of acts' by authorizing building and loan associations to act as fiscal agents of the United States Government for the sale of United States Defense Bonds and Defense Stamps and permitting such associations to pledge their assets for the faithful performance of their duties as such agents" be recalled from the Governor for the purpose of amendment.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

Heavenly Father, help us to catch the true meaning of the words of Kipling—

"Now this is the law of the forest
As old and as true as the sky,
And the wolf that shall keep it may prosper,
But the wolf that shall break it will die.
As the creeper that girdles the tree trunk,
This law runneth forward and back—
The strength of the pack is the wolf,
The strength of the wolf is the pack."

Dear God, make us realize the importance of Unity within this great State and Nation. There being work to be done and a war to be won, may we hear Thee speak to each one of us of the nothingness of human aspirations when we travel this life without Thee, the one true and living God. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday, when, on motion of Mr. STOCKHAM, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. MELCHIORRE and CULLEN.

HOUSE BILL No. 88.

An Act to encourage war efforts and to fortify the morale of the people of this Commonwealth, by providing for the display of colors and standards of World War I, and making an apropriation therefor.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

By Mr. HEATHERINGTON. HOUSE BILL No. 89.

An Act to aid in the prevention of sabotage, by requiring the registration of the serial numbers of all rubber tires; imposing certain duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Pennsylvania Motor Police, and the district attorneys of the Commonwealth; and providing certain penalties.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. FALKENSTEIN. RESOLUTION No. 37.

In the House of Representatives, March 24, 1942.

Whereas, There are in South Philadelphia in the immediate vicinity of the Navy Yard, many defense industries, oil refineries and the War Department Quartermaster Depot; and

Whereas, These industries are operating twenty-four hours a day, employing tens of thousands of persons; and

Whereas, Transportation facilities and highways have been taxed to capacity because of the steady flow of employes coming from and going to said places of employment; and

Whereas, State Highway No. 191, which is located in this district is unable because of its size limitations to provide adequate means for the prompt ingress and egress of such employes, thereby creating serious "bottlenecks" and causing the loss of many hours of employment, which are so vital at this time; therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives that the Secretary of Highways is hereby requested to direct his attention to the inadequacy of State Highway No. 191 in the City of Philadelphia, to the end that a proper remedy may be applied to correct and alleviate the serious traffic situation which has recently developed on said highway, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the Secretary of Highways.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

By Mr. MORAN. RESOLUTION No. 38.

In the House of Representatives, March 24, 1942.

Whereas, The Civilian Conservation Corps were organized during the depths of the depression to abolish hatcheries of idleness, crime racketeering and gangsterism in the large centers of population and to provide useful, constructive, healthful employment to the thousands of "out of school youth" and

Whereas, Thousands of fathers and mothers throughout Pennsylvania accepted the CCC with open hearts and minds because the supervision of these camps were entrusted to the United States Army whose exemplary record for hygiene and sanitation has been unparalleled since the days of Teddy Roosevelt and Harvey Wylie and

Whereas, Civilian Conservation Corps have received bipartisan praise even during heated national elections and

Whereas, Little men in high places have sought to discredit the United States Army as supervisors of Civilian Conservation Camps by inuendo, distortion, posed pictures and falsehood based upon judgment of hill-billy mechanical experts and swine-feeding food experts and

Whereas, Faith in our armed forces must not be destroyed by carping partisan criticism of trivialities like "rotting of trucks" in a well-organized used car lot or the destruction of ptomaine infested meats and

Whereas, Criticism of our armed forces in times of war should be confined to untarnished truth or disasters like Pearl Harbor or the Normandie; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives this day assembled in the City of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, memorialize Congress to instruct those non-partisan Army Officers (like General Martin) to further protect the health and digestion of the young men of the nation, who have escaped crime gangsterism and racketeering, from infested, tainted, decayed and otherwise deteriorated or doubtful meat and consign and transport all such meat to the federal penitentiaries to be devoured by the criminals, gangsters and racketeers of pre-CCC days.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

SENATE MESSAGE

RESOLUTION CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives, as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 23, 1942.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That House Bill No. 10, Printer's No. 3, entitled "An act to further amend section six hundred twenty-eight and to amend section six hundred twenty-nine of the act approved the third day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (Pamphlet Laws 1333) entitled 'An act concerning elections including general municipal special and primary elections the nomination of candidates primary and election expenses and election contests creating and defining membership of county boards of elections imposing duties upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth courts county boards of elections county commissioners imposing penalties for violation of the act and codifying revising and consolidating the laws relating thereto and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to elections' extending the time within which writs of election may issue for holding special elections to fill vacancies occurring in either house of the General Assembly and the time within which nominations therefor may be filed,"

be recalled from the Governor for the purpose of amendment.

RESOLUTIONS

Mr. MONKS offered a resolution which was laid over for printing under the Rules.

GENERAL PULASKI MEMORIAL DAY

Messrs. KOLANKIEWICZ and PETROSKY offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 25, 1942.

Whereas, The 11th day of October, this year, will mark the 163rd anniversary of the death of Brigadier-General Casimir Pulaski, from wounds received at the siege of Savannah, Georgia; and

Whereas, In recognition of the heroic deeds of General Pulaski during that great war for independence, most of the states of the Nation have, by legislative enactment, designated October 11th of each year as "General Pulaski" memorial day; and

Whereas, This year particularly the Valley Forge Cathedral will dedicate a Bay in honor of the memory of General Pulaski; and

Whereas, It is fitting that the recurring anniversary of this day be commemorated with suitable patriotic and public exercises in observing and commemorating the heroic death of this great American hero of the Revolutionary War; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby requests the Governor of the Commonwealth, by virtue of the authority vested in him, to issue a proclamation designating October 11, 1942 as "General Pulaski Memorial Day," so the memory of this great man may be appropriately honored.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

LANCASTER BICENTENNIAL

Mr. TROUT offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate adoption.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 25, 1942.

Outstanding in industrial, agricultural and economic importance, rich in history and tradition and a center of culture and learning is the ancient community in Lancaster County, now celebrating the bicentennial of its incorporation as the Borough of Lancaster.

The first permanent white settlement in Lancaster was by the Mennonites, who arrived from Switzerland and the Palatinate in 1710. A few years later the Huguenots arrived; the English about the same time and within a few years the Scotch, Irish, the Quakers and the Germans.

What is now Lancaster City was first known as "Hickory Town." It was later renamed by its leading citizen, John Wright, after his own mother town in Lancashire, England. Lancaster was made a borough in 1742, was incorporated as a city in 1818, and on January 1, 1926, discarded its old charter and adopted the third class city commission form of government. The same two mile square plot originally laid out in 1730, still comprises the territory of the City of Lancaster.

In the old court house in Lancaster the Continental Congress met on September 27, 1777. From 1799 to 1812, Lancaster was the capitol of this Commonwealth. James Buchanan, only citizen of Pennsylvania to become President of the United States, practiced law at the local bar and retired from Washington to Wheatland, his handsome estate, within the City of Lancaster. In the cemetery of St. James Church, founded in 1744, and the present structure of which was built in 1820, are buried many famous persons, including General Hand of Revolutionary fame. Trinity Lutheran Church, built in 1736, and re-built in 1761-66, still retains the original artistic case of the pipe organ, by David Tannenberg, placed there in 1771. In the church is buried Thomas Wharton, Jr., president of Supreme Executive Council of Pennsylvania, 1776, and Thomas Mifflin, first Governor of the State of Pennsylvania. Lancaster's streets echo the tread of men who reached national and international fame—James Buchanan, Thaddeus Stevens, Robert Fulton, George Ross, Revolutionary Generals and Framers of the Constitution.

Lancaster recognizes the value of the new and modern, as is evidenced by its schools, churches, stores, factories and its public buildings and improvements. But Lancaster also holds due regard for its history and traditions. In Lancaster is to be found the oldest tobacco shop and cigar store in the United States, established in 1770 and still operated by a direct descendant of the original owner. Here, too, is not only the oldest hardware store in the United States, but, so far as can be learned, the oldest retail store of any type still remaining in business. It was established in 1744. Likewise in Lancaster is the oldest department store in the nation, continued on the original site by descendants of the founder, established in 1821. There are many other centenary establishments and quaint shops in this city of modern stores and industries.

Modern Lancaster and its immediate environs has a population of 112,897. It is a community of 16,000 homes and more than 200 manufacturing plants. The gross assessed valuation of city property alone exceeds a hundred million. It is a thriving commercial and industrial center rooted in one of the richest agricultural territories in the United States, justly known as "America's Garden Spot," having for fifty years led the 3,000 counties of the United States in the value of its farm products, and today ranking among the first ten, and second on a per acre production basis. The stock yards within the city comprise the largest cattle market east of Chicago. In its manufacturing plants are produced many commodities of national and world-wide renown. A few of their best known products are padlocks, nightlatches, watches, linoleum, (of which the output is double that of any other factory in the world), toys, ball-bearings, rivets, cotton and silk goods, cigars, candies and numerous others. In Lancaster, agriculture and industry divide in almost equal proportions the first place in importance, as is shown by the United States census figures for 1930, of $33,022,400, the income from farm crops and livestock products, and $33,178,631, the income from industrial wages and salaries.

As an educational center Lancaster is widely known, being the seat of Franklin and Marshall Academy, Franklin and Marshall College, Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church in the United States, Thaddeus Stevens Industrial School, the Lancaster Business College, the Shippen School for Girls, Sacred Heart Academy and the Bowman Technical School. Eight miles to the north at Lititz is the well-known Linden Hall Seminary for girls and three miles to the west at Millersville is the oldest State Teachers College in the Commonwealth. Six parochial schools, including a Catholic High School, together with nineteen public school buildings which include two Junior High Schools as well as a new $1,000,000 Co-educational High School, make a total of 25 school buildings within the city, having a total enrollment of 11,763 of which 1,969 attend the Catholic schools and 9,794 the public schools, therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby does reverence to the historic significance, gives praise to the agricultural and industrial achievements, and expresses its appreciation of the educational and intellectual standing of Lancaster, a typically wholesome community of our Keystone State, on this the occasion of completing the two hundredth year of her existence as an incorporated political entity; and the House of Representatives commends her industry and well-earned prosperity as a pattern that younger communities may well follow. We acknowledge her history, her civilian and soldier heroes, the things that she is and has accomplished, her culture and learning, as fountains of inspiration in these troubled months, as well as for all times, and be it further

Resolved, That the congratulations of this House to the City of Lancaster, and its best wishes for a long continued period of service, accomplishments and prosperity, be transmitted by the Chief Clerk, together with a duly certified copy of this resolution to the Honorable Dale E. Cory, Mayor of Lancaster, as the representative of all of its people.

MR. TURNER IN THE CHAIR

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

The SPEAKER for himself for the remainder of the session.

Mr. TROUT. Mr. Speaker, I wish to thank the Members of the House on behalf of the people of Lancaster for the courtesy extended this morning in adopting this resolution.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. CHUDOFF, HOUSE BILL No. 90.

SENATE MESSAGE

SENATE BILL FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence, bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 64. (HOUSE BILL No. 98).

A Supplement to the act approved March eleventh one thousand nine hundred forty-two entitled "An act to provide for the expenses of the extraordinary session of the Legislature assembled February seventeenth one thousand nine hundred forty-two in pursuance of the proclamation of the Governor of the Commonwealth dated February tenth one thousand nine hundred forty-two and the supplement thereto"

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. MONKS. RESOLUTION No. 39.

In the House of Representatives, March 25, 1942.

Whereas, Recent difficulty at the Eastern State Penitentiary at Philadelphia resulted in the death of one of its convicts; and

Whereas, The Coroner of the County of Philadelphia and his chief deputy are also President and Vice-President, respectively, of the Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary, and as such, responsible for the management of that institution; and

Whereas, As a result of the aforesaid death, the Coroner of the County of Philadelphia will be required to perform an autopsy, investigate the cause or causes of death and, by reason thereof, will investigate the operation of said penitentiary by its Board of Trustees, in connection with the reasons for said death; and

Whereas, Because of such occurrences, from time to time, the Coroner will be called upon in like matters indirectly to investigate the Board of Trustees of the penitentiary of which he and his chief deputy are officers and members, and it is recognized by this House that such investigations may be conducive to prejudice, creating disrespect for our democratic system of government; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Governor of the Commonwealth is hereby directed to request the resignation of the Coroner of the County of Philadelphia, Herbert M. Goddard, and his chief deputy, Matthew H. Roth, from the Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be submitted to the Governor of the Commonwealth, the Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary, and the Coroner of the County of Philadelphia.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The motion was agreed to, and (at 12:35 p. m.) the House adjourned.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Extraordinary Session of 1942.

Vol. 26. HARRISBURG, PA., MONDAY, MARCH 30, 1942. No. 19,

SENATE

MONDAY, March 30, 1942

The Senate met at 4:00 o'clock, p. m., E. W. T.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE offered the following prayer:

We are told, O God, that "Happy is that people whose God is the Lord." The history of our nation warrants that belief.

We pray Thee to remove any doubts in any mind as to the truth of this. It was God who brought our pioneer fathers and mothers across the stormy ocean. It was God who led them and their descendents through the wilderness and gave them faith and courage to conquer that wilderness and establish homes. It was God who brought them together as a nation of freemen, and has kept them so.

Keep us, O God, as Thou didst keep our fathers. The heritage they left us enable us to retain and defend against the assaults of all our enemies, to the end that we may continue to be a happy people.

Direct the Senate in its deliberations, and may its conclusions be in accord with Thy will.

Under Thy guidance may the President and those in authority with him bring the war to a successful termination.

In the Name that is above every name in heaven and earth. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. BECKER and Mr. GELTZ, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Carr asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Adams County, Mr. CRIDER.

Mr. Thomas asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Dauphin, Mr. TAYLOR.

Mr. Geltz asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Clearfield, Mr. LETZLER.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I voted "aye."

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to amend line 2, page 2, of the title by inserting after the word "Stamps" and before the word "and" the following: "or obligations of the United States Government of a similar character and purpose"; Amend section 1, clause 9, page 4, line 2, by inserting after the word "of" and before the word "United" the following: "what are commonly known as"; Amend section 1, clause 9, page 4, line 3, by inserting after the word "Stamps" and before the word "and" the following: "or obligations of the United States Government of a similar character and purpose, regardless of the name by which such obligations may hereafter be designated."

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The amendment was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading, as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended be printed for the use of the Senate.

BILLS INTRODUCED

Messrs. EDMONDS and HOMSHER read in their places and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 74, entitled:

An Act prescribing the procedure for the adoption and promulgation of rules and regulations to supply provisions of law which have been suspended because they interfer with the prosecution of any war in which the United States of America is engaged at the time of the final enactment of this act.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

Messrs. BARTLETT and RUTH read in their places and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 75, entitled:

An Act for the encouragement of carefulness in the operation of motor vehicles and the conservation thereof, by providing for the issuance, in connection with operator's licenses, of envelopes showing the operator's record for safe driving; providing for revocations and reissuances thereof; and prescribing penalties.

Which was committed to the Committee on Highways.

Mr. MALLERY read in his place and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 76, entitled:

An Act providing for the repayment to persons inducted into or enlisting in the army, navy or marine corps of the United States of a part of the cost of registering a motor vehicle before such induction or enlistment.

Which was committed to the Committee on Finance.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria may proceed.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I can not recall having risen to my feet previously to make a personal appeal, but this afternoon certain things have transpired in this Commonwealth that compel me to ask my colleagues to do me a personal favor.

It seems that throughout the last twelve or eighteen months, someone has traveled the length and breadth of Pennsylvania posing as a relative or brother of mine, and has gone to my colleagues and asked for money. It came to my attention from a number of my colleagues here, namely, Senator Bartlett, Senator Carr, Senator Cavalcante, Senator Dent and others, who have been contacted within the last several weeks.

It appears to me that this party, or parties, is now working in both the eastern and western part of the state. It is my intention this afternoon to notify the state police, and I am asking my colleagues if they should be contacted by any such person or persons to notify the police and wire me collect; I will bear all expenses regardless of cost, to bring this party before the bar of justice.

Whether these parties are inspired either personally or politically, I do not know, but when men of the type I have mentioned here come to me and tell me that within the last several weeks they have been contacted personally, I feel I owe it to myself and to my family to make this personal appeal, and I ask you gentlemen if you should be contacted by anyone posing as my brother or as a relative of mine, to wire me immediately and I will get there as soon as possible, and I ask you to kindly notify the police in your vicinity.

Thank you.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 60, entitled:

An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limit the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways of the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of overweight and over-length vehicles in certain cases.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL No. 60

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 60, passed second reading.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I voted "aye."

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I voted "aye."

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I desire to offer amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 1, page 1, line 3, by inserting after the word "of" and before the word "articles" the word "materials"; Amend Section 1, page 2, by inserting after line 11 the following: Section 2. The provisions of this act shall remain in force only during the continuance of any war in which the United States is now engaged and for a period of sixty days thereafter

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill as amended having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade, in connection with the amendment to Senate Bill No. 60.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Cumberland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WADE. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, is it the intention of the sponsor of this bill to exempt oversize or overweight vehicles from payment of a license fee.

Mr. WADE. No, it is not Mr. President. The bill does not so read.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I was wondering if the gentleman would not give some consideration to these words in the bill: Oversize and overweight vehicles may be permitted by the Secretary in his discretion without payment of any fee therefor.

As I understand it, at present no oversize or overweight vehicles are permitted, and therefore, if they are permitted and permitted without fee, it strikes me that it might be interpreted as permitting them to operate without a license.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, the statement just made by my colleague from Philadelphia embodies only a very short portion of this bill. If he is unable to read it himself, I will be glad to read the entire bill, which is short. He read just a part of one sentence, not the entire sentence, and not the entire bill. If he would like me to read the bill, I will be very glad to do so, either now or after the session.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I have read the whole bill, and it is my impression that these people will be permitted to operate their trucks without the payment of any fee, the way this bill is worded.

Mr. WADE. That is not the case, Mr. President, and I take issue with that statement.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Cumberland, Mr. Wade.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Cumberland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WADE. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, will the gentleman explain to the Senate the difference between this bill and the present standing of the law.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, this bill has to do only with overweights and overloads of trucks hauling materials, as now amended, articles and commodities as now in the bill, for defense purposes only, all these materials used in the prosecution of the war, and where it is necessary for them to take excessive loads. For instance, if a railroad, or a spur of a railroad, is bombed or destroyed, it might be necessary then to use trucks to convey the materials loaded on the railroad around until they could be reloaded, and in a case of that kind, in the event this bill should become a law, the Highway Commissioner could give a permit to take these materials, even though they exceed in weight the now existing limits, in order to be loaded.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, can not the Secretary of Highways at the present time issue a permit authorizing the owner of a vehicle to haul an oversized load over the highways of the Commonwealth?

Mr. WADE. Yes, he may.

Mr. REED. Then why the necessity of this bill, if it is not to abolish the fee which the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, inquired about.

Mr. WADE. That is right, Mr. President. This does give permission to the Secretary of Highways to issue these permits without a fee, because the materials are materials used in the defense of the United States during this war emergency.

Mr. REED. But, Mr. President, the law or regulations at the present time require a fee in such cases.

Mr. WADE. That is right, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. Presdent, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia may proceed.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Why should these people be permitted to haul without a fee? They get paid for hauling the material, and why should not they pay the fee? What is the purpose? How does this help defense, to take a private owner who gets "X" dollars for carrying a load? How does that help defense, to relieve him from paying a fee?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, in answer to that I would say, first, it would be a matter of saving of time, very decidedly so, and secondly, this is only for the transportation of defense materials.

Now, in further answer, I think it is soon time that many of us around here, especially in this body, realize that America now faces a crisis, a crisis the like of which it has never faced before. I do not like to go into flag waving, but this bill clearly states that this is only for the transportation of defense materials, materials used in the prosecution of this war.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I am very reluctant to get into this discussion because, as everybody knows, in my practice I do represent trucking companies, but I do not represent any railroads, and it is doubly embarrassing on a beautiful Monday afternoon such as this, because I am looking forward to having dinner with Mr. Ryder, of the railroad association, and it will be a good dinner, but in spite of that I would like to discuss this bill.

Mr. President, the purpose back of this bill is not so much the fee—I think the fee is secondary—but I think the reason for having it waived can be clearly understood if the gentleman from Philadelphia will permit me to explain just how this sometimes works out.

If you have what is called an overload and you are desirous of traveling over the highway with it, you can communicate with the department and they will grant you a permit and for that permit you pay so many dollars—it runs about a dollar per ton mile—and when you are hauling any appreciable distance the cost becomes almost prohibitive.

Now, Mr. President, the situation which is particularly interesting to those of us in the western part of the state is this: we have for example, a foundry within the trucking radii of Pittsburgh, which is making gun mounts for the Philadelphia Navy Yard and the shipbuilding concerns on the Atlantic seaboard, those gun mounts must be transported to the city of Philadelphia, and in order to have them transported, it is necessary to each time get a permit from the department.

You can not get permits in advance; you must make a separate application for each permit and to do that you must fill out this form and advise them as to the type of material, the weight and type of equipment you are going to use, and the route you propose to follow in transporting the material, and when that is done, that is filed with the department, and eventually you get a permit and you pay a permit fee and then you are allowed to operate. That is the theory.

The practical side of it, Mr. President, is this, that if you want to gamble, you put that gun mount on your truck and you start for Philadelphia, because, after all, the Navy is not the least bit interested in anything but getting that gun mount, and on the way through Harrisburg you make arrangements to get your permit, and if you do not happen to get it you are in a very serious predicament.

Some trucking companies are paying as high as twenty overload fines in thirty days, hauling gun mounts to the Philadelphia Navy Yard, and they are operating at a loss because the cost from that operation exceeds what profit the trucking company makes, because trucking, as is railroading and as is the practice of the law, is a competitive industry, and they can not operate those overloads and pay those excessive amounts unless there is some way they can absorb it in their tariff. They are only permitted to charge their tariff charge.

What this bill will do in my estimation is this—and if my understanding of it is incorrect the gentleman from Philadelphia can very quickly set me on the right track—this will permit trucking companies to obtain permits to haul overloads, but you cannot get that permission in advance, and you will be relieved of the necessity of paying an additional charge for the hauling, that is, you will be relieved of paying a permit fee, and that will permit those trucking companies to carry those loads without operating at a loss.

This is only for the duration of the war and in the firm opinion of quite a number of industrialists it will make some contribution to what we call the national emergency.

I might say in all seriousness, Mr. President, last year the box car bill received a lot of publicity and a lot of discussion on the floor of this Senate and none of us have any desire to have a repetition of those scenes, but in all fairness to an industry that is contributing something to the progress of the war, this bill should receive the very careful consideration of this Senate.

The railroads are doing a magnificent job of holding up their end on this preparedness program; they are offering a transportation system that has never been paralleled in the history of the world, but they are strained to the utmost and there are situations arising every day where they are finding it inconvenient, inexpedient and impossible to furnish the rolling equipment to take care of the things thrust upon them, but in spite of that, as I say, they are doing a magnificent job.

The trucking industry is making a very valuable contribution to this transportation picture and they should be given every opportunity to further continue that contribution. If there is anything we can do as members of this Senate to be of assistance to our transportation agencies, whether it be by rail, whether it be by water, or whether it be by motor vehicle or by air, we should be the first to jump in and do it. I say frankly I do not want repeated the scene we had here last year, when we had an opportunity to pave the way for just the thing that is happening today, which opportunity was lost because of the inability of some of us to appreciate a serious situation in a giant industry.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, if I understood my colleague from Philadelphia correctly, he was raising no question or no objection to this bill because of anything that is needed in connection with defense, but he raised a question which I think is a very good one, and that is in connection with whether, under the wording of this bill, these oversized or overweight trucks would have to pay any license fee whatsoever, and I think a study of the wording of that particular section of the bill on page two would lead one to agree with Senator Shapiro's question in connection with this bill.

Whether or not this is needed in connection with the defense industry, I think what should be done is that this bill should be corrected so that we have a proper bill passed in the Senate, and all the more so, if what my colleague from Allegheny, Senator Walker, says is correct, that this bill is so badly needed, then the correction should be made as quickly as possible, but as it reads now it seems to me that the bill provides that those oversized and overweight trucks would under no circumstances need to pay any fee, license or anything else and that certainly can not be what is intended.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I can not see now, Mr. President, either why the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, is in the Senate or represents truckers, which he did so very ably, but I would suggest to him that if the words "any fee for the excess weight privilege or excess weight permitted" were inserted, then I would not have raised any question, and my reason for raising a question today is that if this is an important bill it ought to be amended as quickly as possible.

All you need to do to clear my mind on the matter is to insert after the word fee, the words "any fee for such excess weight permitted."

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I think that a very salient point concerning this bill has been brought out, but I do not fully agree that those oversized loads should be permitted to go over the highways without any fee. I am not like the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, I do not own any trucks, I do not represent any truckers, I have no interest whatsoever in trucks or the trucking industry, and I have that much less in railroads; I own no railroad stock, I represent no railroads; I have no relations employed on railroads.

Mr. President, I have a concern only with the welfare of the nation and like everyone else I am interested in this war to see that it is successfully concluded, but, Mr. President, whenever you draw parallels between railroads and the trucking industry you find this, that if the Pennsylvania Railroad or any other railroad puts a heavy load on the railroad and hauls it from Philadelphia to Erie and tears up and impairs the railroad, they must repair that railroad with their own money, but the trucking industry wants the privilege of hauling oversized loads, the trucking industry wants the privilege of hauling any kind of loads, any size, over the highways, destroying the road bed, impairing the road bed, and who will pay for the repairing of that road bed? Not the truckers, who make the profit out of that haul; not the manufacturer who produces the things that are hauled on the trucks, but the taxpayer himself, the other motor vehicle owners, the owners of motor vehicles, who pay for these license tags and fees for everything else that goes into the motor fund, and out of that fund then we pay for the repairs to these highways.

With all due respect to the things that we ought to do towards the winning of the war, I say that it is very unpatriotic for any group of men, such as the truckers, to come in here and ask that they be permitted to use our highways for oversized loads without any pay, when every other citizen who is engaged in railroading or any other business would have to pay to maintain its own rights of way, railroads and so forth, to haul their loads over.

I think that these fellows who want to make a profit by hauling these overloads are not so much interested, I would say, in the winning of the war, because if they were interested in the winning of the war they would not object to paying some fee for hauling these oversized loads, so that they can contribute towards maintaining the highways so that everybody else can use them toward the end of winning the war.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 65, as follows:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

MONDAY, March 30, 1942.

The House met at 9 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall, offered the following prayer:

Our Heavenly Father, as we look to Thee tonight may we be conscious of that which took place nearly two thousand years ago when Jesus, the Christ, Thy Son, walked upon this earth. May we recall how on the Monday, after His Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem, He saw a fig tree, which although it had all the signs of bearing fruit, yielded none. This we are told, He cursed. From it we should learn a great lesson, "The Curse of Uselessness," for the tree withered away and died.

O God, help us to bear fruit for Thee at all times through the kind deeds we may perform and the cheerful words we might speak to our fellow-travelers on this great highway of life.

Bless, we pray Thee, every member of this House, the visiting friends and all who play a part in the conduct of the business of our beloved State. In Thy name we pray. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of Wednesday, March 25, 1942.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of Wednesday, March 25, 1942, when on motion of Mr. BOORSE unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

APPROVAL OF HOUSE BILL No. 11.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, March 26, 1942.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed House Bill No. 11, Printer's No. 4, entitled, "An act to further amend section eight hundred twenty-eight of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905) entitled 'An act for the protection of the public safety regulating the use of highways and the operation of vehicles tractors street cars trackless trolley omnibuses bicycles pedestrians and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth providing for the titling including liens encumbrances and legal claims registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof upon payment of prescribed fees prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue the Department of Highways peace officers mayors burgesses magistrates aldermen justices of the peace the courts and the clerks thereof owners of vehicles and garage keepers providing that records are admissible as evidence imposing upon owners counties cities boroughs incorporated towns townships within the Commonwealth liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles imposing penalties imposing certain costs upon counties providing for the disposition of fines forfeitures fees and miscellaneous receipts making an appropriation and providing for refunds' authorizing the Secretary of Revenue during the period of national emergency to suspend the operation of certain provisions of this act relating to school buses when such provisions conflict with priority claims for material."

In signing this bill I have appended the following statement:

"I am signing this bill with some reluctance, not because it is not necessary, but because it is a forerunner of a series of bills in the General Assembly which purport to deal with the present war emergency in piece-meal fashion instead of by some plan with proper safeguards which would enable the State Council of Defense, or any comparable agency, to recommend the suspension or modification in whole or in part of provisions of existing laws which interfere with the war effort.

Apparently the General Assembly is unwilling to adopt any such plan. Instead the General Assembly proposes to enact a series of bills like the present one in which authority is to be conferred to suspend certain provisions of existing laws which are now known to require a suspension because of the war effort. While this piece-meal treatment may possibly meet the situation as it exists today, it makes absolutely no provision whereby new emergencies which may arise in the near future may be met. While this piece-meal plan is far from adequate, nevertheless it meets the present emergency to a limited extent.

Under these circumstances I am signing this bill because it will at least afford some, although not adequate, relief during this emergency."

ARTHUR H. JAMES.

PETITION AND COMMUNICATION

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication which was read by the Clerk.

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

A communication from Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania protesting passage of Senate Bill No. 31.

VISITOR'S WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair welcomes to the House tonight a life long friend of the Chair's and his staff, Colonel C. E. Meyers, Corps of Engineers, former Director Department City Transit, Philadelphia, now President, Pennsylvania State Registration Board for professional engineers, from Pennsylvania. Major V. H. Maseka, Corps of Engineers, Executive Officer, from California; Major J. W. Quickmire, Ordnance Department, from New Jersey Captain R. W. Lerch, Corps of Engineers, from Pennsylvania; Lt. C.. D. Addington, Corps of Engineers, from Virginia, Lt. A. C. Nielsen, Corps of Engineers, from Illinois, and Lt. M. F. Moritz, Corps of Engineers from Ohio.

HERSHEY INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL CLASS WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair welcomes to the House this evening the Senior Class of the Hershey Industrial School who are the guests of the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Habbyshaw.

MASSACHUSETTS REPRESENTATIVE WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair welcomes to the House this evening a Member of the House of Representatives from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Hon. John R. Fausey.

The Chair requests the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, to escort the Honorable John R. Fausey to the rostrum, also to preside and introduce the gentleman to the House.

MR. TURNER IN THE CHAIR

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For some reason or other the Speaker felt that I should introduce the gentleman from Massachusetts. I had the pleasure of addressing his House and also had the pleasure of working with the Speaker of the House of Massachusetts, the Hon. Christian Herter, so it gives me much pleasure tonight to introduce him to you and to ask him to say a few words.

The Hon. John R. Fausey, of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

REMARKS BY HON. JOHN R. FAUSEY

Honorable JOHN R. FAUSEY: Mr. Speaker and members of the Assembly, it is a pleasure for me to bring to you the compliments and good wishes of the Members of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts.

Introducing myself, for which I will only take a word I will say I am a retired superintendent of schools, retired on age, and just recently elected to membership in the State House of Representatives of Massachusetts. Believe it or not.

One thing I would say that has impressed me in my association in the House of Representatives of Massachusetts is the spirit of fraternity that exists between the Members. I can assure you that my impression of the quality of that membership and the men who are engaged in that work, and the men who are engaged in your work, has been different from what I had suspected, and I can say that I could not have chosen an occupation when I retired that could have brought so much satisfaction. I will say this, that my sympathies are with legislative bodies rather than with the press. I thank you.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thanks the gentleman for addressing the House and assures him he is very welcome among us.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) IN THE CHAIR

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, for presiding.

RESOLUTION

SALARIES OF PER DIEM EMPLOYES

Mr. ACHTERMAN offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 30, 1942.

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That the State Treasurer be and hereby is authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each employe of the Senate and House of Representatives, the salary or per diem compensation to which they are entitled under law for an Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly by virtue of the provisions of the Acts of Assembly under which they are elected or appointed; this resolution to be effective until a supplement to the General Appropriation Law, approved March 11, 1942, Act No. 2, entitled "An act to provide for the expenses of the extraordinary session of the Legislature assembled February seventeen, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, in pursuance of the proclamation of the Governor of the Commonwealth, dated February tenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, and the supplement thereto," providing for additional appropriations for the payment of the salaries of the employes of the Senate and the House of Representatives for the extraordinary session of 1942, is enacted into law.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Messrs. POWERS and MIHM offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 30, 1942.

It is fitting that this body pause from its labors to pay respect to the memory of a veteran lawmaker and public servant, the Honorable John M. Morin, former Congressman from the 34th District of the City of Pittsburgh, who died March 3, 1942.

Mr. Morin was born in Philadelphia April 18, 1868, and removed to Pittsburgh when four years old. He commenced his public career at an early age and for more than a third of a century he won distinction in public service as well as in the service of fraternal organizations. The record of such service includes two years on the Council of the City of Pittsburgh, five years as Director of that city's Department of Public Safety, sixteen years as a Congressman from Pennsylvania, thirteen years as a member of the U. S. Employes Compensation Commission, and the office of State President and National President of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

During his term of office as National President of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, he was instrumental in securing the introduction and passage of a bill in the Pennsylvania Legislature of 1923 which provided for old age pensions in this Commonwealth.

In his private life Mr. Morin was a sympathetic and loyal friend, a devoted husband and the proud father of ten children.

His death is keenly felt by the public that he has served, his associates, his many friends, and especially by his children who survive him; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives record its regret over the passing of another able, honest and conscientious public servant, the Honorable John M Morin, and its sympathy for the members of his family; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the family of the deceased, to Mr. Maurice Splain, Jr., State President of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and to Aerie No. 76, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and to Fraternal Order of Eagles Aerie No. 827, Stockton and Sherman Avenue, N. S. Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Messrs. SCHWAB and MALLOY offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 30, 1942.

The House of Representatives has learned with sorrow of the recent death of the Honorable Benjamin R. Jones, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Luzerne County for more than twenty years. Judge Jones died at his home at Wilkes-Barre on March 22, after a long illness. Judge Jones was born in Wilkes-Barre on January 9, 1869.

After completing his preliminary education in public and private schools he studied law in the office of the late Judge S. J. Strauss, and also at the University of Pennsylvania. He was admitted to the bar in September, 1892, and his unusual ability in the legal profession was soon recognized.

In 1900 he was elected district attorney and served two terms in that office. In October of 1910, he was appointed common pleas judge by Governor Stuart to fill a vacancy. He was not elected for the succeeding full term and remained in private law practice until 1921 when he was elected common pleas judge. He was reelected in 1931, and continued his tenure as judge on January 5, of this year.

During his long and judicial career, Judge Jones presided at important trials in many other counties. He was known throughout the State as an able and impartial judge, and one who was diligent in protecting the rights of all who appealed before him; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives mourns the passing of one of her distinguished sons; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House shall send a copy of this resolution to the family of the deceased as a symbol of the House of Representatives' profound sympathy for them in their great bereavement.

REPORT ON CO-OPERATIVE RESEARCH PROGRAM ON ANTHRACITE AND BITUMINOUS COAL

Messrs. WILLIAMS and KENEHAN offered a report on the Co-operative Research Program on Anthracite and Bituminous Coal at the Pennsylvania School of Mineral Industries and Experiment Station, Pennsylvania State College, under the Supervision of the Department of Mines, pursuant to Act No. 77-A, Session of 1941.

The SPEAKER. The report will be noted in the Journal and printed in the Appendix to the Legislative Journal.

RESOLUTION

Mr. McFALL offered a resolution which was laid over for printing under the Rules.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Mr. STAMBAUGH offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 30, 1942.

On August 30, 1941, God, in his infinite wisdom, removed from our midst the Hon. Clark Milton Bower, a member of this House, from Perry County, during the Sessions of 1919 and 1921.

He was a real dirt farmer his entire life. He was the president of the New Bloomfield National Bank. He served two terms as a member of the board of county commissioners of his county, and for over fifty years was a very active member and worker in his church.

In his public career he served the people of his community and this Commonwealth ably, honestly and with distinction. In his private life he was a modest and kindly man whose home was always open to his many friends, and the hospitality of that household was famed throughout central Pennsylvania. His sincerity of purpose was outstanding. He was always considerate of his fellowman and will be missed by all who knew him; now therefore be it Resolved, That this house extend its profound sympathy to the family of the Hon. Clark Milton Bower, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the members of said family.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Mr. STAMBAUGH offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 30, 1942.

Death has claimed an old and honored former member of this House, namely, the Hon. J. G. Harry Rippman of Perry County, who died January 4, 1942.

Mr. Rippman was active in political affairs in his county, having served in the Legislature during the session of 1923 and on the council of his home borough, Millerstown, for several terms.

Mr. Rippman was very active in church activities, business affairs, and fraternal associations of his community, and was well known, liked and respected throughout his county; now be it

Resolved, That this House extends its deepest sympathy to the members of the family of the Hon. J. G. Harry Rippman; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House shall transmit a copy of this resolution to the family of the deceased.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. McFALL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I ask indulgence of the House that I might bring to you the story of one of the greatest catastrophes Northampton County has ever been made to suffer.

On the banks of the Delaware River five miles north of Easton, the county seat, stands the manufacturing plant of the Lehigh Portland Cement Company. On the side facing the river and Route 611 one may see large well kept lawns, beautiful one story homes for the employes, and one of the cleanest plants of its kind in the country; for from the beginning this plant installed a "No dust system." The care and welfare of the employes has always been its first consideration. Its policy of "safety first" was carried through for a period of 2,405 days. Each day a sign that showed conspicuously the number of safety days was changed to read one day more; but there will be no 2,406th day to be recorded.

Suddenly without warning came the terrible blow that not only brought death to thirty-one men, but brought agony, both mental and physical to hundreds of relatives and friends, to the officials, executives and clerical force of the company and to their fellow-workers.

The one outstanding feature of this terrible disaster is the fact that the company is in no way, by act or deed, or lack of care in its operation for safety, responsible for what happened.

On Thursday morning last, about 9:25, twenty tons of dynamite exploded, blowing thirty-one men into eternity. Eighteen of these men were blown to bits; only thirteen of them could be pieced together and identified.

I arrived on the scene several hours after the explosion to get first hand information and ascertain if I could learn what caused the accident and who was at fault. The bodies of the thirteen men that could be identified were placed in a row and covered with blankets while the pieces of the eighteen men who were blown to bits which had been gathered over a radius of several acres were placed in one large pile. Bits of flesh were hanging from the tree-tops one hundred yards away; it was a gruesome sight and too horrible to put into words.

Why twenty tons of dynamite? Why the sacrifice of thirty-one men in their daily toil for a livelihood? What manner of protection was afforded these men? What was the cause of the explosion?

I will try to answer these questions by giving a brief description of just how a huge blasting operation of this kind is supervised and carried out, also the protection to the men employed and the possible cause of the explosion.

First, there is a stripping by steam shovel of the top soil over several acres down to the bed rock three, four or five feet below the surface as the case may be. Next, there are a series of holes drilled five or six inches in diameter about twenty feet from the face of the quarry, these holes were drilled one hundred twenty feet deep, ten or fifteen feet apart. The holes ran in a straight line for a distance of three hundred or more feet. One newspaper said there were thirty-eight holes, another said forty-eight holes. To fill this number of drilled holes it would require the twenty tons of dynamite. Each hole has an electric wire with one or more caps attached making contact with explosives. Each wire is connected to an electric battery so that when the plunger is forced down the charges in each hole go off simultaneously, causing one great concussion that forces the great mass of rock to break away and to fall down the face of the quarry filling that section with thousands of tons of broken rock. This kind of an operation takes place every three or four months as the case may be depending on how long it takes to clean up.

When the operation for blasting has been perfected, and all is in readiness, the high explosives are shipped from manufacturing plants. In this case the shipment was made from Kenville, New Jersey. Three trucks arrived on the morning of March 26th, with the shipment packed in wooden boxes. The trucks unloaded and drove away. The story is that the last truck to unload was only about one-half mile away when the explosion occurred. The boxes were placed on a pile near the edge of the quarry. Some of them had been placed near holes ready to be filled. It was now 9:00 a. m. when the men take fifteen minutes out for what they call "piece time." It was about this time John Petty, Assistant Quarry Foreman took seven men away from the group, going down into the pit of the quarry to make that part clear and safe. These men have a picture in their minds as to conditions when they left the group of 31 men. What happened after, no one is living to tell, perhaps the real cause will never be known.

Yes, we can surmise, but that is all. The story of the airplane with a high power rifle shooting into the dynamite can be discredited. I had this story from one of the guards, who said, "a yellow airplane was flying over the quarry all morning." It had not come over since the explosion. The statement made by the company's officials and by men who over a long period of years worked with high explosives such as dynamite say it cannot be set off by concussion, jar or a rifle bullet; only by a spark, such as is caused by a cap made for that purpose. It was thought perhaps something had gone wrong in loading one of the holes and it had exploded, this is also discounted as three holes were discovered to be loaded and none had exploded even with the shock of the explosion.

One of the mysteries that cannot be explained is the fact that only one real shock was felt, yet the dynamite was not all in one pile, but separated. I want at this time to point out the need for vital legislation necessary that was brought out so forcefully in such a catastrophe—as this of the Lehigh Portland Cement Company. First, there is the telephone—hundreds—yes thousands—of calls started over all the lines in the county by people who had been shocked by the news and wanted to talk to some one or wanted information. This cut off families afflicted, and prevented the calls to hospitals, to doctors and nurses. These people thoughtlessly prevented necessary calls to go through.

I quote an editorial from the Easton Express:

> "The repeated entreaties to keep off the telephone in case of an explosion, fire or disaster which has been part of the civilian defense campaign were not observed in the Lehigh Portland Cement Company blast.
> "Telephone lines to the hospitals, the newspapers, the Court House and police and fire headquarters were jammed soon after the explosion was heard and felt in Easton.
> "The jamming of telephone lines in some cases held up officials and emergency calls which were necessary to aid in dispatching help to the scene.
> "Telephone calls to the Express office from people anxious to learn about the explosion averaged 40 a minute for more than two hours.
> "All lines on the Express switchboard were kept constantly busy handling these inquiries totaling more than 4,800 in the two hours and then decreasing for the next hour. Altogether, approximately 6,000 calls were handled."

Then there is the automobile which is a serious problem in times such as I am trying to describe. Automobiles by the hundreds began coming from all directions. Men and women and babies in arms all trying to get to the scene of the accident at the same time, making the roads impassable for those who came to assist. Route 611 was forced to close, south at Easton and north at Martin's Creek. These people innocently and with no intent of doing any harm came only to see. As guards and soldiers were placed all around the grounds they could see absolutely nothing as to what had taken place.

I will quote Dr. Frederick O. Zillessen's article in the Easton Express:

> "Dr. Frederick O. Zillessen, Easton physician, in a statement to an Express reporter pointed out how all rules governing civilians for air raids and disasters such as the Lehigh Cement explosion were completely ignored.
> "Dr. Zillessen heard the explosion at his home. After calling the Easton Hospital to determine the location, he left immediately for the quarry. He was the second doctor to arrive preceded only by Dr. Budd J. Reaser, of Martin's Creek.

"Dr. Zillessen said he saw the roads leading to the scene of the disaster clogged with civilian sightseers. Their cars were parked carelessly along all the roads. Hospital units and first aid cars were tragically delayed from getting to the vital location. In some cases, they were forced to stop while parked cars had to be pushed off the road.

"The State Police, and soldiers from the Armory had not yet arrived, Dr. Zillessen said. Upon their arrival, the roads were cleared and sightseers told to stay back. However, vital moments had been lost due to the neglectful attitude of civilians.

"Dr. Zillessen pointed out how classes had been held, literature distributed, and newspaper stories printed urging people to avoid rushing to a scene of disaster. Yet, Dr. Zillessen said, when the first test tragically arrived, all rules and warnings were completely ignored."

Now it seems to me, some form of education shoud be attempted to get people to stay at home where they can learn more from the radio and do no harm.

Another phase of this disaster is the thought of sabotage. As legislators we have spent much time here in the Capitol discussing sabotage, protection, safety and an all out program for national defense. So far we have accomplished little. I, for one, do not think we can prevent sabotage by passing an act any more than our laws prevent crime; but it seems to me that we can draw the lines closer and make it harder for enemies of our government to get employment where deeds of sabotage can be committed.

This accident has all the earmarks of being caused by some force not known or controlled by the experts sent out by the Hercules Powder Company. For no explosives are kept on the grounds and all blasts are directed and supervised by the experts sent out by these respective companies that supply the explosives.

The experts sent out by the Hercules Powder Company to direct and supervise this job were: George B. Hadesty, Jr., Allentown, Pennsylvania; Raymond E. Garnett of Wilmington, Delaware; William L. Lanahan of New York City. It does not seem possible all three of these men would make or allow to be made the one fatal mistake that could have caused this terrible accident. There is no proof of sabotage because all evidence is destroyed together with all knowledge that may have been the direct cause, for all the men taking part are dead—but all the powder men are skeptical, many say caps were placed in the boxes somehow—timed to go off—perhaps to blow up the plant of Kenville, New Jersey, and it just happened the boxes came out with the shipment to the Lehigh Portland Cement Company.

At the present time much is being said of General MacArthur and the boys at the front, and rightly so, but we say too little about the men behind the men behind the guns. Many there be who lose their lives not at the front fighting, but in the performance of these duties as workmen, at dangerous and hazardous jobs in supplying our soldiers with munitions and necessary implements of war. I therefore with a feeling of deep reverence, veneration and respect ask your indulgence as I read the names of these thirty-one men who met death so tragically in the performance of their duties as workmen in national defense.

Explosion victims were:

Joseph Ascani, Bangor;
Benjamin Ascani, Martin's Creek;
Alfred Bavaria, Martin's Creek;
Elwood E. Eberly, Bath;
Alfred Lee Frankenfield, Sandts Eddy;
Victor Grbich, Oxford, N. J.;

VISITOR WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair welcomes to the House this evening the Honorable W. Walter Brahm, President Judge of Lawrence County.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, we have all listened with a great deal of interest to the very fitting remarks of the gentleman from Northampton in reference to the great catastrophe that has occurred in his county and for which we all have sympathy. He has asked our sympathy and asked us to correct something that has caused sorrow and suffering to a great many people. But these people have gone and there is nothing that we can do for them. I would like to speak tonight, Mr. Speaker, for a short time in reference to living people for whom something should be done.

In these times when so much consideration is being given to the wages of employes in industry and business, and when the opportunity is being afforded so many men and women to earn high wages in industry, I am of the opinion that some thought should be given to the great group of people who are employed in business, much of which is not directly concerned with the production of war materials, but nevertheless essential to the maintenance of our economic structure if we are to successfully prosecute the war and if our lives are to be disrupted as little as possible.

Also, we should give thought to the great group of State employes who are in the low income brackets. Many of these wage scales were fixed during the last ten or fifteen years. They have had no opportunity to benefit by the increase in business unless they depart from the service of the State. To me it is as important to maintain the standard and efficiency of our State service in these times as to secure the ultimate in production from industry.

Modern warfare has taught us that all activities, whether they be connected with the armed forces, the production of war materials, business, government, or the everyday life of the individual, are a part of the chain, and that a weakness in any part has a detrimental effect upon the result to be achieved.

One can hardly blame governmental employes who leave their positions to find more lucrative fields in business and industry. The armed forces are taking many of our people. They will continue to do so in increasing numbers. The shortage in the labor market will tempt commercial enterprises to seek replacements among government employes.

This may well cause a very serious situation in the State.

But aside from the question of the loss of employes to business and industry, common justice dictates that we be as zealous in seeing that State employes be treated fairly insofar as adequate compensation is concerned, as we are to see that labor is protected in its rights.

According to the report for the year 1940 as made by the Joint State Government Commission, there were 9,623 employes receiving under $1200 a year; 5,782 between $1200 and $1499; 2,285 between $1500 and $1799; and 3,467 between $1800 and $2399. These figures are exclusive of per diem employes.

The annual payroll, as shown by the report of the Joint State Government Commission on the Organization and Administration of Pennsylvania's State Government for the year 1940, including governmental and institutional employes, as well as salaried employes of the Legislature and Judiciary, was $43,843,000 plus, which is approximately seven per cent of the present budget for the current biennium. It must be remembered, however, that we are only talking about the employes receiving less than $3,000 per year, so that the amount paid to these employes would be considerably less than the aforesaid $43,000,000 plus. Figures are not available at the moment to determine the amount paid these employes.

Living costs have increased from ten to fifteen per cent and State employes must now pay income taxes. When it is remembered that many of these people come from other parts of the State and, therefore, practically have to maintain two homes or board in Harrisburg, which amounts to the same thing, it can be seen that a very heavy burden is placed upon them by the war. Many of these men are married and have families to support.

The call for the present session does not offer an opportunity to increase budgets to meet an increased payroll, but it is not too early to make a study of this problem so that if the financial picture will warrant it, something may be done to give a just opportunity for our employes to receive compensation which will not only retain them in the State service, but will also enable them to meet their trying situation.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. LOVETT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I listened with very much interest to the statement made by my good friend Ellwood Turner, from Delaware County, on behalf of the state employes and the salaries which they receive.

I recall at the last regular session of the legislature that this House of Representatives passed legislation increasing the salaries of the state employes and especially those receiving less than twenty-five hundred dollars. That legislation was passed by this House and was either defeated in the Senate of Pennsylvania or vetoed by the Governor.

I realize that this is no time for politics, nevertheless I say to the Members of this House and to the Members of the Senate of Pennsylvania, that it is time that they take heed of the statements of Mr. Turner since they did not take heed at the last regular session of the legislature, and that they take home the lesson Mr. Turner is presenting tonight in behalf of these State employes who are receiving these salaries.

I noticed in the Governor's call for this Special Session of the legislature that he was very careful in the call that we could not enact legislation to increase the salary of these employes during the special session of the legislature.

I, like Mr. Turner, want to say that it is time the Members of the legislature take heed and do something for these employes. I thank you.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. FRENCH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, owing to the fact that I am not a public speaker, I find myself in a very embarrassing position in bringing before the members something that I have had in mind and which I think is worthy of your consideration.

Early in the month of January of this year I wrote a letter to the Governor of this Commonwealth asking him if he would not have incorporated in his call for the special session something that would help the farmer secure farm labor during the duration of the war. All I received was an answer from his chief clerk acknowledging receipt of my letter.

I have been sitting here during six weeks of this special session anxiously waiting for someone to introduce a bill, or make a movement of some kind in order to cover this situation, which I think has developed now into a very serious situation for the farmers.

The farmer finds himself at this time, more so than ever, in a position where he can no longer find labor to do the work that is necessary to be done on the farm. I think in this State of Pennsylvania, which is recognized as an industrial state, the situation is perhaps more acute than possibly in any other state in the Union because our farm families are in the midst of industries, and the farmers' boy to a large extent have been lured into industry by the higher wages that industry pays over and above what the home farm folks can afford to pay. Six or eight or ten or twelve dollars a day is enough to lure any farm boy away from the farm when you consider that he gets little more than his board and puts in fourteen to sixteen hours a day,—you can't blame him for that.

On the other hand until recently the farmer was able to pick up what you might call a transient man or transient help here and there for a couple days, a week or a few weeks at a time, men in the community who were more or less looking for jobs, but even that help has gone from him. Any person that is worth a tinker's dam is working in industry and are not available for working on the farm.

Tuesday of last week I had a talk with Dr. Haas, State Superintendent of Education and I laid my complaint before him. I found him very much in sympathy with the proposition. He said he would be very glad if somebody would introduce a bill or make some move that would give him the authority to remedy this situation. Neither one of us knew exactly what it should be or what form this bill should take. However, I came back and talked to some of the Members in the House here and they more or less promised that something would come up, that they would draft a bill of some kind that would possibly cover the situation. Now, we are swiftly coming to the closing days of this session of the legislature—thank the Lord. I am afraid we are going to adjourn without any recognition being given to the farmer. I am not mentally able, gentlemen, to draft a bill that would be satisfactory to everybody concerned, but I know there are men who are able to do it.

We have been handed an enormous food order by Uncle Sam to be filled. The farmers are very glad to fill that order if we have the things by which we can do it, but as I said a moment ago the means by which we can do that job has been taken away from us completely. There are farmers in my county and farmers in every county in the state who are left absolutely alone. A number of farms are going to remain idle because they cannot secure sufficient help. A farmer left alone can get up at four o'clock in the morning and get his cows milked and feed the cattle, and the government wants more milk, the government wants more beef, the government wants more eggs, more of this and more of that, but we cannot do that when a man is left alone getting up at four o'clock in the morning, feeding and attending to his herds of eighteen to twenty-five or thirty head of cows, then go out in the fields with the expectation of doing a day's work. It just simply cannot be done.

This is my proposition, gentlemen, there are many farmers in Pennsylvania who have sturdy boys and girls twelve years of age and over, who can do a man's or a woman's work on the farm today. Hundreds of boys twelve years of age can go out and do a day's work with a tractor. Lots of young girls twelve years of age and over can help their mothers raise a flock of six or eight or ten hundred chickens. That will only partly fill the order Uncle Sam has given, but our School Code will not permit that. There are certain conditions under which a man can keep his boy or girl at home, that is provided for at this time. The Code provides at present that they must be of a certain age and pass a certain grade before they can do that, but that does not fill the bill, Mr. Speaker. There should be some provision that would permit these boys and girls on the farm who are twelve years of age and over, to come out of school one month or six weeks earlier in the Spring and keep them out a month or six weeks later in the fall. That would still give them six months of schooling for the year. You don't necessarily need to shorten the school term. It does not need to apply to the city folks. There are very few girls or boys in the cities whom we could bring out to the farms who would be worth much more than their board. I do not blame them because they don't know what to do. By the time they are broken in they must go back to school again. But if I have two or three boys over twelve years of age and I only need one boy at home, I think the law should be amended at this session of the legislature that would permit me to hire my boy to my neighbor, who has no help of his own, and give him a chance to get his work done.

My fellow Members from the city, I am afraid that you do not realize what we farmers are up against. I am afraid that is the case, but I really wish and earnestly urge that we take up this matter before this session closes and enact some sort of law that will entail no hardship on the teachers in the schools. We do not necessarily have to shorten the term. They can go on. There are plenty of pupils in these different grades to permit the teacher to go on,—in the larger cities, especially.

I think by all means this is a most important proposition. Aside from the reapportionment bill which we have passed I think the proposition we are now talking about comes next in importance, and not one word has been said about it as yet.

The gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, spoke about the state employes. That is all right, I will vote for something like that, Mr. Speaker. He spoke also about the businessman, but up to the present time there has not been a solitary word said about the farmer who has been stripped, entirely stripped of all help to get his work done. I hope you will consider this very important matter and that some person, I care not who, will sponsor suitable legislation, get at it tomorrow morning and have some kind of a bill drafted, get it before this House before it closes to help the farmer in the very serious situation in which he finds himself in regard to farm labor at the present time.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

APPROVAL OF RESOLUTION RECALLING HOUSE BILL No. 10

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, March 25, 1942.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed a resolution of the House of Representatives and Senate recalling from the Governor House Bill No. 10, Printer's No. 3, for the purpose of amendment.

Accordingly, the original bill is herewith returned.

ARTHUR H. JAMES.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE

Mr. CHERVENAK. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote by which this bill passed finally be reconsidered.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The SPEAKER. How did the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Chervenak, vote on the final passage of this bill?

Mr. CHERVENAK. Mr. Speaker, I voted in the majority.

The SPEAKER. How did the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Owens, vote on the final passage of this bill?

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I voted in the majority.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

Mr. CHERVENAK. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote by which this bill passed third reading be reconsidered.

The motion was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. CHERVENAK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend section 2, page 3, line 26 by inserting after the word "papers" and before the word "shall" the following: "for the office of Representative in Congress."

Amend section 2, page 3, line 27 by striking out after the word "than" and before the word "ten", with bold face brackets, the following: "[]".

Amend section 2, page 3, line 28 by striking out after the word "of" and before the word "the", with bold face brackets, the following: "[]the twentieth day before the day]".

Amend section 2, page 3, line 29 by striking out at the beginning of the line the following: "[of election named in]".

Amend section 2, page 3, line 29 by inserting at the end of the line the following: "and said nomination certificates and nomination papers for the office of Senator and Representative in the General Assembly shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth not later than the twentieth day before the day of the election named in the writ of election".

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, that the bill as amended lie over for printing.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HUNTLEY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to support the statement made by the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, and the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Lovett, in reference to raising the salaries of state employes, or you might say, the pay of the different people who are employed by the state. I have supported heretofore every measure that would increase the wages of the state employes. I supported the law to raise the pay of school teachers and to raise the pay of liquor store employes, in fact every bill that has been offered to increase the pay of state employes.

I think you will remember that at the last session we spent much time in preparing bills, discussing bills, amending bills and voting on bills that directed the city of Philadelphia and the city of Pittsburgh to pay employes with whom we have nothing whatever to do. But in this case we are actually considering the employes of the state. I know it to be a fact that many of the employes in the different departments are thinking about leaving the employ of the state because they do not get sufficient remuneration. Taxes have been levied against them that were never levied before, and the cost of living has gone up, and it seems to be a hardship to ask the employes to take the old wages. More than that, I think it is the experience of everybody that when the employer is doing well he is willing to pay his employes more wages.

At the present time the state has a balanced budget, as I understand. It has something like fifty or sixty million dollars of a surplus. It looks to me that this is the proper time for these employes to receive some justice in the way of additional remuneration. This state spends several hundred millions of dollars to conduct its business. Yet it seems as if the employes are given less consideration than they are in any other business that I know of.

It seems that we believe the State can go on and run its business in a haphazard way, employing cheap help and paying low wages, because someone in the State might have some political debt to pay, and he might have what you might call a little extra on the side, but taking it as a whole the employes are not treated like they are in industry. If industry were run as the state is run I am sure it would not be a success.

I did not intend to speak so long, but at this time I think it is necessary to interest ourselves in the employes of the state, to make ourselves heard, because I do not think it takes a law to increase or to raise the wages of many of these employes. When the present administration came into power many of these employes had their wages cut, and now while we are in such a prosperous condition it seems to me that the wages ought to be restored to the former level; not only restored but be raised sufficiently high to meet the present conditions of living. I thank you.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. McMILLEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker it seems to me as though at this time of night when one fellow makes a speech another fellow wants to make a speech.

There seems to be a general feeling all around, like the traveling salesman, who discovered one time when he was traveling through the country selling his wares.

The SPEAKER. Be careful about the traveling salesman.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, this is not one of those stories. This is perfectly permissible. Night overtook this particular salesman as he was traveling through the country. He approached the next farmer about staying all night with him. You fellows take for granted this is the same old kind of a "traveling salesman" story, but that is not true.

The farmer permitted him to stay with him that evening and gave him a bedroom on the first floor of the farmhouse, which was situated beside a small gully. During the night a very heavy rain fell, all unbeknownst to the traveling salesman. He got up in the morning, looked out the window and there was a sea of water going down past his window. He became excited and called. Just about that time a young lady's voice answered him from the kitchen and asked him what he wanted.

He said, "Young lady when I came to your house last night I looked out the window and I thought I saw a lawn out there."

She said, "You did."

He said, "It looks to me like a sea of water out there now."

She said, "It is. During the night we had a terrible cloudburst."

He said, "I never heard it. Maybe I am still seeing things. Do you see that straw hat out there, which seems to be moving back and forth across the lawn?"

She said, "It is."

He said, "What in the world is that?"

She said, "I cannot tell you what it is, unless it may be grandpa's straw hat, because I heard him say last night that he was going to mow that lawn today in spite of H—— and high water."

I think sometimes many speeches break out, but I can not let one speech go by without replying very briefly. My good friend, Mr. French, has a very good case. I realize, coming from an agricultural county, he has a problem. We have ours. But, gentlemen, I will never, never be one as a citizen or as a Member of the Legislature, to supinely admit by passing legislation to lower the standards and the conditions of education in the state of Pennsylvania, that we as men are total failures, and must rely upon the boys and girls of the schools of Pennsylvania to fight a war that they have nothing to do with. I will never permit that or be a party to it. I think we have manpower enough to go through with this war. I know we have.

In going just a bit further in my remarks, I would like to make this statement, that the schools to my way of thinking are the very foundation, and one of the bases upon which this country will stand in the future, and upon that premise I would like to bring to your mind the fact that we must maintain at all costs the best trained personnel that we can in our schools. I ask you, how can we do that when we require four years of college training beyond high school in order to teach in the schools of Pennsylvania, on one thousand dollars a year, with a mere fifty dollar increment for the next two years.

Mr. Speaker, there is another side of the story to be argued as well as the case of the state employes here on Capitol Hill—and I am in favor of that, don't get me wrong—I am absolutely in favor of increasing the salaries of this group, but I wish to include and add as an amendment the fact that we must take into consideration the teaching field in the state of Pennsylvania. I thank you, gentlemen.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. GALLAGHER asked and obtained consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, after listening to some of the addresses made by the members of the House with regard to the employes of the state, I surely am one hundred per cent in accord with any increases that the state may give the employes.

However, at this time, Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the minority floor leader, the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TURNER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, last week the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, appeared on the floor of the House as an authority with respect to the Governor's call. I should like at this time for my own information to know whether or not the suggestion made by the gentleman from Delaware tonight comes within the call issued by the Governor for the extraordinary session of the legislature.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I was very careful to say in my remarks it was not within the call.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

Not being a candidate for re-election and not trying to confuse the issue in any way, as I said earlier, I am one hundred per cent for any increase in wages. Being a labor man naturally I would feel that way. I feel that any man getting up on the floor of this House at this particular time should take into consideration whether or not we as Members of the Legislature are in a position at this particular time to pass any legislation with reference to increases so far as the state employes are concerned. I might say that I have felt since the beginning of this extraordinary session, and I think many of my colleagues from the labor ranks have felt the same way, that we had intended to present to this legislature bills that would increase the salaries of those employes, but because we believed it did not come within the scope of the call of the Governor we felt that it would be useless to do this, and we felt we were more or less depriving the people that we represented, the school teachers and the employes of the state of Pennsylvania, of our honest and sincere vote. I thank you.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TARR asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I suppose I should start my remarks by saying that I did not intend to address the House at this late hour. However, my intention has been to get a little load off my chest ever since I came into the House, and my desire to do so was increased by the remarks of the gentleman from Mifflin, Mr. French, when he spoke about the problems of the farmers in Pennsylvania.

If you will allow me for a moment to go back two or three weeks before the calling of the special session, you will find that the Pennsylvania State Educational Association, comprising the organized teachers of Pennsylvania, addressed several communications to His Excellency the Governor, asking if he would include in the special session call the problem of Pennsylvania's education in the war emergency.

You will recall in the opening address of the Governor, —I am not quoting his remarks but I believe these are the words, he said, Pennsylvania's teachers, he knew would carry on, and they have his fullest sympathy.

It has so happened, Mr. Speaker, that since the beginning of the special session more than one thousand of Pennsylvania's teachers have been called into active service in the armed forces of the United States; almost two thousand teachers have taken jobs in industry.

This coming summer will find eight million dollars expended by Pennsylvania's State College in training persons for defense work. We know at the present time that some thousands of teachers in Pennsylvania are intending to take that course, with the result that when the school year rolls around in September without a doubt thousands of Pennsylvania teachers will remain in industry in Pennsylvania rather than go back to their teaching profession. Industry is offering five, six or seven thousand dollars, while the teacher in Pennsylvania is offered one thousand dollars.

The Pennsylvania State Educational Association has formed a committee called the "Victory for America Committee." At the present time these members are gladly serving on tire rationing boards, sugar rationing boards, civilian defense boards, and practically every board that can be thought of under the national emergency,—mind you, without pay. If you will stop and think for a moment just what the situation in Pennsylvania is going to be next September when the school term opens, we can not expect these persons to go back and work for one thousand dollars a year while industry on the other hand is offering them five or six thousand dollars a year. You might then have a picture of the chaotic situation that we are going to have unless something is done before we adjourn.

I am not taking these figures from thin air, but I have them from Dr. Studebaker, the Commissioner of Education for the United States, and from Dr. Haas, who told me this past Saturday that he has no idea what is going to happen in Pennsylvania if the trend away from the schools in Pennsylvania continues. Dean Walk of the School of Education of Temple University frankly told me that Pennsylvania, unless some adjustment is made in the teachers' wages, will be lacking eight to twelve thousand teachers when the school term opens next year.

I heard one of the members say that this was no job for the boys and girls, that he did not care to call upon the boys and girls to win this war. I know, Mr. Speaker, just what my good colleague from Mifflin meant. He meant that he does not care to cast any reflections upon their ability, but if Pennsylvania is to wake up if the gravity of the situation in the United States is to be firmly brought home, it is going to take the boys and girls of Pennsylvania to do the job, and if those boys and girls do not have the best teachers they can get in the emergency, then I fear for the future of our country after the war.

That is all, Mr. Speaker. I just wanted to have every Member of the House keep definitely in mind that regardless of rising prices, regardless of rising duties, the fourth class teachers in Pennsylvania next year must go ahead at one thousand dollars a year.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. MORAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have listened with a great deal of interest to the previous speakers, and the thought that came to my mind was: I wonder if those previous speakers are candidates for re-election?

I think they were all making very good campaign speeches, but I think that if you go back into the records you will find that some of those candidates who were talking on the floor of the House voted against the thing they are advocating at the present time,—if any of you care to go back into the records.

Mr. Speaker, the representatives of labor here in the House know how some of those candidates voted. We could go into the records and show them. Why take up the time of this House talking about raising the wages of the employes when it is absolutely in the hands of the Governor as to whether or not they will get raises? This legislative body was not called into special session to raise wages for anybody. That is absolutely in the hands of the administration. Why take up a lot of time of this House in making campaign speeches? Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Extraordinary Session of 1942.

Vol. 26. HARRISBURG, PA., TUESDAY, MARCH 31, 1942. No. 20.

SENATE

TUESDAY, March 31, 1942

The Senate met at 2:00 o'clock, p. m., E. W. T.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D. D., offered the following prayer:

To Thee, O God, the author of every good and perfect gift, we would voice our gratitude for the good gift of life, and its continuance to us through the years. Thou hast at no time forgotten us. Provision has been made for our continuance. Life has been sweet. We have dwelt in peace and security under the shadow of Thy protecting wing.

Remembering all this, may the remembrance call us to repentance for our failures in gratitude, and to a resolve to dedicate ourselves to the best service we can render to Thee and to our fellowmen.

May we, as a people, renew our faith in Thee, for in this way the best in our living will be preserved and our national life be established in righteousness.

Hear our prayer for our President and our Governor, and for all our men on the fighting fronts. Preserve them, O Lord, by Thy mighty power. For Thy name's sake. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. GELTZ, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

BILL SIGNED

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis)) announced that the Chief Clerk having reported that the following bill had passed both houses of the General Assembly and the same being correct, the title was publicly read as follows:

House Bill No. 28, entitled:

An Act to further amend clause (g) as added to section one thousand one hundred and ten of the act approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "Vehicle Code," suspending during the period of present hostilities and for one year thereafter, the requirement that all electrically operated traffic signals shall be made to conform with provisions of said act and the regulations of the Secretary of Highways.

Whereupon,

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the presence of the Senate signed the same.

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE BILLS FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced presented for concurrence bills of the House, as follows:

House Bill No 52, (Senate Bill No. 77), entitled:

An Act to further amend section twenty-one of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred fifteen (P. L. 900), entitled "Vital Statistics Law" by providing for the issuance of short form birth certificates by the Department of Health of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania during the continuance of the present war emergency and for six months thereafter.

Which was committed to the Committee on Public Health.

House Bill No. 59, (Senate Bill No. 78), entitled:

An Act to amend Section 18.1 of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred fifteen (P. L. 900), entitled "Vital Statistics Law" as added, by directing the Department of Health to extend the special birth record file provided for by said section, so as to include birth records of veterans of wars other than the World War and so as to include honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, and providing for the issuance of certified copies of such records without cost.

Which was committed to the Committee on Public Health.

House Bill No. 75, (Senate Bill No. 79), entitled:

An Act authorizing the Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, with the unanimous approval of the commission and for a certain limited period of time, to lease lands to political subdivisions or to Federal agencies for use as aviation landing fields; conferring certain powers upon political subdivisions relative to the acceptance and development of such lands; and suspending certain inconsistent legislation.

Which was committed to the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish.

House Bill No. 76, (Senate Bill No. 80), entitled:

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section one of the act, approved the eighth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 737), entitled "A supplement to an act, entitled 'An act to establish a Board of Commissioners of Navigation for the River Delaware and its navigable tributaries; regulating their jurisdiction over ships, vessels, and boats, and wharves, piers, bulkheads, docks, slips, and basins; and exempting cities of the first class from certain of its provisions; and making an appropriation therefor,' approved the eighth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven; authorizing and directing the commissioners to provide and maintain a nautical school for the education and training of pupils from the various counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the science and practice of navigation, and making an appropriation for two years from the first of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, towards its maintenance," and its amendments, in so far as they require, the furnishing of accommodations on board a proper vessel for the nautical school, when no such vessel is available and imposing upon the State Council of Defense the duty of furnishing other accommodations.

Which was committed to the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish.

House Bill No. 78, (Senate Bill No. 81), entitled:

An Act to amend section six of the act, approved the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand eight hundred ninety-five (P. L. 212), entitled "An act to establish an intermediate court of appeal; regulating its constitution, officers, jurisdiction, powers, practice, and its relation to the Supreme Court and other courts; providing for the reports of its decisions, the compensation of the judges and other officers and the practice and costs on appeals from its judgments," by making further provision as to the preparation, custody and disposition of plates used in the printing of Superior Court Reports.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

House Bill No 79, (Senate Bill No. 82), entitled:

An Act to further amend section seven of the act, approved the twelfth day of June, one thousand eight hundred seventy-eight (P. L. 201)), entitled "An act to provide for the publication of the decisions of the supreme court and the appointment of a state reporter," by making further provision relative to the custody and disposition of plates used in the printing of supreme court advance sheets.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

RESOLUTION URGING OCTOBER 11TH, 1942, AS "GENERAL PULASKI MEMORIAL DAY"

He also presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the House of Representatives, March 25, 1942.

Whereas, The 11th day of October, this year, will mark the 163rd anniversary of the death of Brigadier-General Casimir Pulaski, from wounds received at the siege of Savannah, Georgia; and

Whereas, In recognition of the heroic deeds of General Pulaski during that great war for independence, most of the states of the Nation have, by legislative enactment, designated October 11th of each year as "General Pulaski" memorial day; and

Whereas, This year particularly the Valley Forge Cathedral will dedicate a Bay in honor of the memory of General Pulaski; and

Whereas, It is fitting that the recurring anniversary of this day be commemorated with suitable patriotic and public exercises in observing and commemorating the heroic death of this great American hero of the Revolutionary War; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby requests the Governor of the Commonwealth, by virtue of the authority vested in him, to issue a proclamation designating October 11th, 1942, as "General Pulaski Memorial Day," so the memory of this great man may be appropriately honored.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

He also presented extract from the Journal of the House, which was twice read as follows, considered and agreed to:

In the House of Representatives, March 31, 1942.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the State Treasurer be and hereby is authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each employe, member of the Senate and House of Representatives, the salary or per diem compensation to which they are entitled under law for an Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly by virtue of the provisions of the Acts of Assembly under which they are elected or appointed; this resolution to be effective until a supplement to the General Appropriation Law, approved March 11, 1942, Act No. 2, entitled "An act to provide for the expenses of the Extraordinary Session of the Legislature assembled February seventeenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, in pursuance of the proclamation of the Governor of the Commonwealth, dated February tenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, and the supplement thereto," providing for additional appropriations for the payment of the salaries of the employes of the Senate and the House of Representatives for the Extraordinary Session of 1942, is enacted into law.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I desire to offer amendment.

The Clerk read the amendment.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

The Clerk read the resolution as amended:

In the House of Representatives, March 31, 1942.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the State Treasurer be and hereby is authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each member of the Senate and House of Representatives the mileage to which they are entitled and to each employe thereof, the salary or per diem compensation to which they are entitled under law for an Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly by virtue of the provisions of the Acts of Assembly under which they are elected or appointed; this resolution to be effective until a supplement to the General Appropriation Law, approved March 11, 1942, Act No. 2, entitled "An act to provide for the expenses of the Extraordinary Session of the Legislature assembled February seventeenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, in pursuance of the proclamation of the Governor of the Commonwealth, dated February tenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, and the supplement thereto," providing for additional appropriations for the payment of the mileage of the members and the salaries of the employes of the Senate and the House of Represntatives for the Extraordinary Session of 1942, is enacted into law.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

Mr. CARR offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, March 31, 1942.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday, April 6, 1942, at four o'clock p. m., and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday, April 6, 1942, at nine o'clock p. m.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

SINE DIE ADJOURNMENT

Mr. BECKER offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, March 31, 1942.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That this Special Session of the General Assembly adjourn sine die on Tuesday, April 7, 1942, at 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern War Time.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I desire permission to address the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland will proceed

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, on behalf of the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Heyburn, and myself, I am about to introduce a resolution, and although it is only a resolution memorializing Congress, there is behind it the purpose of trying to get congressional leaders to see the danger of not setting up some protection for industry in order that workmen's compensation funds may be protected all over the United States, in case of any bombing disasters. Under our present law, the workmen's compensation fund would have to stand the entire cost, and I think it is important that the Congress of the United States should know how Pennsylvania feels about it.

Messrs. DENT and HEYBURN offered the following resolution which was twice read:

In the Senate, March 31, 1942.

Whereas, every individual and every locality throughout the United States has a common responsibility for the prosecution of the present war, and because an attack on a coastal city or any other locality would constitute an attack upon the entire United States, and the resulting cost of injuries to civilians, whether or not gainfully employed, properly constitutes a part of the total cost of carrying the conflict to a successful conclusion; and

Whereas, it is recognized that a part of the cost of war is the obligation of support and maintenance of the economic status of civilians and their dependents deprived of their income or ability to maintain themselves by reason of injuries or death caused by enemy action; and

Whereas, various states, including Pennsylvania, have enacted workmen's compensation laws providing benefits to injured employees or, in case of death, to their dependents, and under such laws have provided methods of administration which, based on trial and long years of experience, meet the wishes of the people of such states as to the amount of benefits, the best methods of their determination and the proper procedure for their payment, and the amounts of such benefits established under the various state laws have been fixed by the legislature with due consideration to the economic loss arising from injury or death to employees in the particular state; and

Whereas, it is probable that should the attack resulting in the injury or death of civilians take place during their working hours and at their working places, claims under workmen's compensation laws may be filed, and the authorities charged with enforcing such laws may require that compensation be paid to those injured or the dependents of those killed at work; and such awards of compensation under liability may be assumed by contract by state funds, self-insurers and insurance companies, and must be paid at least to the extent of existing assets; and the losses resulting from an attack of great proportion might seriously impair their ability not only to pay such awards, but also might threaten the very security of the payment of compensation to hundreds of thousands of civilians injured or the dependents of those killed in industry, some of whose claims date back to the very inception of the law; and

Whereas, in the enactment of such workmen's compensation laws the various state legislatures did not and could not have had in contemplation the possibility of losses due to war hazards such as currently exist at this time; and

Whereas, insofar as such benefits may apply to civilians injured and killed in the course of their employment, the benefits shall be those that would be applicable under the workmen's compensation law in effect in the place at which they were employed; and

Whereas, such legislation shall provide, insofar as such persons may be compensated under existing workmen's compensation laws, that the employers, state funds or the insurance carriers directly responsible therefor, upon making such payments, shall be reimbursed by the United States; and

Whereas, such legislation shall provide that existing administrative agencies of the various states and of existing insurance organizations with their extensive service facilities may be utilized to the fullest extent in the administration of such law and the distribution of the benefits thereunder, thus avoiding the necessity of establishing agencies which may prove unnecessary and which would duplicate already existing facilities; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Senate of the State of Pennsylvania hereby urges the Congress of the United States to foster and support legislation providing benefits to civilians who may be injured or the dependents of civilians who may be killed by reason of enemy action, which benefits shall be a charge upon the whole people of the United States, equitable and proportionately distributed; and be it further

Resolved, that the Clerk of the Senate be directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the Secretary of the United States Senate, the Clerk of the House of Representatives and to each Senator and Member of Congress elected from the State of Pennsylvania.

RULE 39 SUSPENDED

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be suspended and the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution just read.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection, the Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution,

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DENT. With pleasure, Mr. President.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, under this resolution, which was just offered by the gentleman from Westmoreland and the gentleman from Delaware, I thought I heard in one of the whereas clauses that it is the opinion of the sponsors that the cost of the war is the responsibility of all citizens of the United States. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland state to this Senate whether he includes in that group the big truck owners also.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I imagine they are citizens of the United States, inasmuch as I understand they pay the greatest portion of state taxes into the highway fund of the State of Pennsylvania.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—46

Cavalcante,

PRESENT—1

Reed,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will state his point of order.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, one negative vote on this resolution, under the rules, necessitates that it be sent to committee. It is equivalent to an objection.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair, when the resolution was presented, inquired whether there was objection to immediate consideration of the resolution. There was no objection, and therefore it was proper to bring it up. The question is now on the adoption of the resolution.

HOUSE MESSAGE

HOUSE BILL FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced presented for concurrence a bill of the House, as follows:

House Bill No. 56, (Senate Bill No. 83), entitled:

An Act authorizing the Secretary of Revenue of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, after consultation with the Secretary of Highways and during a certain limited period of time, to adopt rules and regulations relative to the use of the highways by motor vehicles, tractors, trailers or other equipment which cannot be fitted with rubber tires or treads, because of the shortage of rubber and providing for the suspension of certain inconsistent legislation.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES ON EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

ARTHUR H. JAMES.

Mr. JAMES. I might state for the information of my colleagues that the list just read by the Clerk includes all the nominations on the schedule to be voted upon.

RULE 38 SUSPENDED

By unanimous consent, A motion was made by Mr. JAMES and Mr. MILLER,

That Rule 38, which requires nominations made by the Governor, to lie on the table one day be dispensed with, and the Senate do now resolve itself into Executive Session, for the purpose of acting collectively, upon all the nominations reported at today's session.

Which was agreed to.

Whereupon,

A motion was made by Mr. JAMES and Mr. MILLER,

That the Senate do advise and consent to the nominations reported.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—48

EXECUTIVE SESSION RISES

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I move that the Executive Session do now rise.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I desire permission to address the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Allegheny may proceed.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I do not want my remarks to be construed as anything personal against Mr. James Torrance, whose nomination we just confirmed, but I do want to remind the members of this Senate and the people of Pennsylvania that is just another James campaign promise broken, in which he said no state chairman would ever occupy a place on the state payroll, let alone an office in his cabinet.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. LETZLER, from the Committee on Finance, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 76, entitled:

An Act providing for the repayment to persons inducted into or enlisting in the army, navy or marine corps of the United States of a part of the cost of registering a motor vehicle before such induction or enlistment.

Mr. BARTLETT, from the Committee on Welfare, Public Assistance and Pensions, reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 70, (House Bill No. 68), entitled:

An Act to amend section two of the act, approved the tenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (Pamphlet Laws 645), entitled "An act imposing certain requirements on certain hospitals receiving State aid; authorizing the withholding of appropriations; and imposing duties on the Department of Welfare," by providing that, during the present war and six months thereafter, funds shall not be withheld from hospitals for violation of such act, if the Secretary of Welfare determines that the constant attendance of a licensed physician or resident interne cannot be secured by such hospitals because of the war emergency.

Mr. DEITRICK, from the Committee on Public Health reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 68, (House Bill No. 42), entitled:

An Act to further amend section eight of the act, approved the nineteenth day of March, one thousand nine hundred nine (P. L. 46), entitled "An Act to regulate the practice of osteopathy in the State of Pennsylvania; to provide for the establishment of a State Board of Osteopathic Examiners; to define the powers and duties of said Board of Osteopathy Examiners; to provide for the examining and licensing of osteopaths in this State; and to provide penalties for the violation of this act," by further regulating for a limited period the time necessary for graduation and for admission to practice as osteopathic physicians and surgeons in this State.

BILL ON THIRD READING RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 28, entitled:

An Act to further amend Section 801 of the act, approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 457), entitled "An act relating to the business of building and loan associations; providing for the organization and voluntary dissolution of such associations; defining the rights, powers, duties, liabilities, and immunities of such associations, and of their officers, directors, shareholders, solicitors, and other employes; prohibiting the transaction of business in this Commonwealth by foreign building and loan associations; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the courts, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; establishing limitations of actions; imposing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts," by authorizing building and loan associations to act as fiscal agents of the United States Government for the sale of United States Defense Bonds and Defense Stamps, or obligations of the United States Government of a similar character and purpose, and permitting such associations to pledge their assets for the faithful performance of their duties as such agents.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to amend Section 1, page 4, line 3, by striking out the word "and" following the word "stamps"; amend Section 1, page 4, line 6, by inserting after the word "designated" the word "and".

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I might say in that connection that the amendments are merely a change of a subjunctive in the bill from one position in the language of the bill to another.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The amendments were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading, as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That said bill as amended be printed for the use of the Senate.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 56, (House Bill No. 8) on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two of and to add Sections four and five to the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600), entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes, employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service, or by any department, bureau, commission, or office thereof, or by any county, municipality, township, or school district, shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment, enrollment, or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof, in time of war or contemplated war; prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy; directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives, children, or parents, and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum, be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents; authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes, respectively, and providing for the compensation of such substitutes," by more fully defining amounts payable limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment.

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 60, as follows:

An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limit the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways of the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of over weight and over length vehicles in certain cases

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 In order to facilitate and expedite the movement and transportation over the highways of the Commonwealth of materials articles and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war in which the United States is now engaged and to remove any legal impediment that might interfere therewith the Secretary of Highways in his discretion is hereby authorized to issue for such period as deemed advisable a permit or permits in writing to the owner or owners of vehicles or combinations of vehicles for the use and operation of the same on such routes on the highways of over weight or over size vehicles or combinations of vehicles without the payment of any fee for such over weight or oversize permit upon presentation of an application showing that the movement of such over weight or over size vehicles or combinations of vehicles on and over the highways as the Secretary of Highways may designate of the Commonwealth is necessary in the interests of national defense

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall remain in force only during the continuance of any war in which the United States is now engaged and for a period of sixty days thereafter

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, a lot of the boys here are going to be disappointed. I am not going to talk on the bill at all, the merits of the bill, I simply want to point out to the sponsor of the bill that the amendment that he made yesterday absolutely makes the bill confusing and does not at all carry out the objection that was made to it yesterday.

On page 2 of the bill there was inserted, commencing at the end of line 7 these words "for such overweight or oversize permit"

Now, Mr. President, there is no difference in a permit; no matter what the size of the permit may be it is a permit, and the wording there should have been the same as you find at the end of line 5 and the beginning of line 6 on page 2; it should be "overweight or oversize vehicles" instead of "permit." The word permit makes the whole amendment meaningless; it does not mean anything. A small little permit is just as good as an oversize permit.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I think my colleague from Fayette is entirely wrong in his interpretation of this amendment. I questioned whether the amendment was really necessary but with the amendment the bill certainly has not been hurt, because it merely clarifies the fact or the statement that the permit is to be issued to the truck owners or truck drivers who drive trucks that are overweight or oversize.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, that requires me to read the bill to the gentleman from Cumberland, Senator Wade. It just contains one material section and that is section 1, which reads as follows:

"In order to facilitate and expedite the movement and transportation over the highways of the Commonwealth of materials articles and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war in which the United States is now engaged and to remove any legal impediment that might interfere therewith the Secretary of Highways in his discretion is hereby authorized to issue for such period as deemed advisable a permit or permits in writing to the owner or owners of vehicles or combinations of vehicles for the use and operation of the same on such routes on the highways of over weight or over size vehicles or combinations of vehicles without the payment of any fee for such over weight or oversize permit upon presentation of an application," and so forth.

This section deals with overweight and oversize vehicles, not with overweight permits or oversize permits.

And, Mr. President, on the merits of the bill I wish to say something, since the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade, the sponsor of the bill, has taken the attitude that he has, that I do not understand the meaning of the words in English.

Mr. President, we had a little discussion here yesterday on this bill but we did not cover all the points that should be covered. This bill as introduced, as I have already stated, in the first section, states to facilitate and expedite the movement and transportation over the highway of materials, articles and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war.

I would like to hear from the sponsor of this bill and those who are in favor of it one instance of materials belonging to the United States Army or Navy or any of its armed forces that were not able to be transported through this state because of their weight.

It is the knowledge of the layman, a horn-book student of the law, as we put it in legal phraseology, that in case of war the government of the United States is supreme and if the Navy or if the Army of the United States has ordnance of excessive weight or extraordinary weight, and they must move that ordnance from the east coast to the west coast, the laws of Pennsylvania, can not stop the United States government, they can do that under their war powers anytime that they want.

Now, Mr. President, as I stated yesterday, we are all sincere in doing the thing that we think necessary to bring about a successful end to this war, but whenever the people use that patriotism or that attitude for the purpose of concealing other motives that they have, then I think it is time we say something about it, and I do trust that they do not accuse us of speaking the language of Hitler or Goebels or anybody else, but we speak here sincerely, because we are concerned with our democracy and we are concerned with the Commonwealth that we live in. This bill, Mr. President, pure and simple, accomplishes nothing but takes off of the heavy truck owners the fee that is now required by the law to transport heavy loads over the highways of this Commonwealth after they have obtained a permit from the Highway Department. The Secretary has that authority now. He can issue a permit and the only impediment here is that he can only issue a permit for a particular load, and that permit will only cover that load to be moved over the highways on the day that the application calls for.

Now, Mr. President, we could have been reasonable in this matter and used good judgment; we could have corrected that and amended the law so as to permit the Secretary of Highways to issue a general permit to permit the movement of one load or two loads or more than two loads over the highways, within a given period.

Then, Mr. President, the only other thing would have been the fee, whether or not the fee should have been paid. It is my opinion, and I feel just as sincerely as the sponsor of the bill in this matter, that whenever a big truck, a box car truck, is permitted to carry a heavy load, they are not going to lower the rates because they have a heavier load but they are going to charge the same rates, and that load is going to pay them more profit and they would have easily made sufficient profit if they would have been required to pay the fee that is now required to be paid by the owner when he moves an overload. We are not only making it possible for him to make greater profits by carrying a heavier load but we are going to permit him to make a take here out of somebody's pocket, and I am vitally interested into whose pocket they reach for this take. We hear about takes in the numbers racket, we hear about takes in the slot machine racket and we have heard about the Bioff take from the movie industry.

What is being done here by this bill under the cloak of national defense, under the cloak of patriotism, is nothing but a take, pure and simple, it is permitting these heavy truck owners to shake off a fee which was devised by those who have constructed and operated our highways for the purpose of financing the construction of and the maintenance of those highways. Those truck owners will haul loads and get a bigger price for their loads and they will not have to pay any fee. I think with that kind of patriotism, whether to an intense degree or a lukewarm degree, we should all agree that we should have laws for charging them a reasonable fee for carrying these overloads, so that the damage done to our highways by these overloads can be repaired, but as it is, we are reaching into the pockets of the people who own motor vehicles and who pay into the motor fund for the maintenance and reconstruction of these highways, after these tremendous loads have destroyed the roadbeds, and make it impossible for other vehicles to use them.

Now, Mr. President, there is no difference between this take and the take by Bioff or any other racketeer, and I say that sincerely, because we have been told by members of this Senate and by the lobbyists along the railings of this Senate, that this bill is a labor bill, and that it is intended to help the labor man. Well, it does not do that at all. Mr. President, I have just as many truck drivers in my county as anybody else has, but the truck drivers are distinct from the big truck owners, and a fraud has been perpetrated upon our fair minds here by those who own these big trucks, by telling us that this is for the benefit of labor, for the benefit of the truck drivers, and we have seen the audacity of a labor leader of this state who has compiled a record, as he says, a labor record of the members of this Senate, and he has there noted the Senators who voted against the trucking bill as being unfavorable to labor.

I say to you, Mr. President, that may be true as far as the truck owners are concerned and that part of the labor movement that is the racketeering part of labor, but it is not the opinion and the sentiment of the men by the hundreds who drive these trucks. It is easier for those laboring men to drive a truck of smaller weight, than to drive one of these monstrous big trucks with these heavy loads on them. We have labor unions in my county, we have the truck drivers union, the teamsters and the chauffers, and so forth. Ask them. Let those members of the Senate who voted for this labor bill go back to their labor unions and see what the rank and file says, and not take the word of one of these racketeer labor leaders that we have so many of right now in these United States. We want to purge that system.

Mr. President, I feel just as sincere as anybody in this matter, and I say that it is unfair and verges on unpatriotism for a group of men, like the big truck owners, to come here and ask us, under the guise of war and national defense, that we permit them to haul these heavy loads and at the same time take from them the nominal fee that they were rquired to pay for an overload.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I was not going to get up on this, because we all understood that the matter would be discussed by the gentleman from Fayette because it seems that the big truck owners are his pet peeve in this General Assembly, but when it comes to loading on them all the ills of the industry, I think it is only fair that somebody should stand up and try to defend one of the largest tax paying units in the entire state.

Last year when the bill was up I was in the unhappy predicament at the time of being connected with a rubber company, if you remember, and at that time when I spoke in favor of the truck bill, someone kind of thought, maybe, I was interested in selling tires but, you know, since the the government has taken care of this end of it for me and I do not have to worry about selling tires any more; I only wish I had some to sell.

I do not think that this bill calls for a general denunciation of labor leaders, in general, and that particular group of citizens who work in the trucking industry as drivers and helpers have a right to decide whether a certain type of legislation is favorable to them or whether it is not.

The railroad brotherhood members have a right to decide whether or not certain types of legislation is favorable to them, and every group of labor has its own particular field that it tries to protect. That is only natural and is perfectly in accordance with the system that has been built up over a period of years.

I wonder sometimes as I look around here in the Senate, whether all the persons who come here, come here just to sit and listen to our sweet and melodious voices, or whether they come here because they are interested in some particular industry they are trying to protect against the foolish actions of some members of the House and Senate, who may not know all there is to be known about that particular subject or industry.

As far as paying a fee is concerned, Mr. President, I can not see where the paying of a fee makes anything legal or makes it right or makes it just. By the mere payment of a $17.50 fee, you do not repair any damages that may occur to the roads because of overloads, and any person that does not know that the present truck equipment and the present tire equipment on present day motor vehicles can carry three times the load that was carried when the original truck bill was passed in the State of Pennsylvania, knows absolutely nothing about trucking, and absolutely nothing about road construction and absolutely nothing about the details of the mechanism of automobiles and trucks and the modernization of the same.

Why, Mr. President, the only thing this bill does is try to show to the members of the Senate that the arguments that were used by the Governor in vetoing this bill last year were not true. It was called to the attention of this Senate by myself, if you please, that if and when war comes there would have to be legislation to facilitate the movement of war goods, and I think it is unfair to say to any truck or transfer company or any industry that every time they want to move a truck with a five pound overload, they have to go to the Secretary of Highways, who may give them a permit by the payment of a $17.50 fee. Anybody who knows anything about our war effort knows that we have been trying to decentralize our war industries. Many of them are away from existing railroad facilities, for the express purpose of keeping them out of range of attacking bombers, and so forth, and the only way that they can reach those factories with the raw products needed in the production of war goods is by trucking, and when the War Department says to an individual, we want so many shells of a certain size, and that individual has to bring all the necessary components which go into the making of that shell to the factory that produces them, the government is not ordering the overloading of that truck, the War Department has nothing to do with his overloading his truck, or, rather, the carrying of a legitimate load, if you please; the War Department can not say to the State of Pennsylvania you must allow this trucker to haul this load and not charge him any fee.

Certainly we know that if a big gun has to be moved from coast to coast, the United States government can move it anywhere and no one can stop it, but the United States government does not move parts of that gun, the manufacturer moves parts of the gun. They are entitled to the right under this war effort, and without the war effort, to carry the load capacity the truck was built for, the same as the railroads are entitled to carry the load capacity their engines are built for.

The same men who now oppose trucking legislation which would allow a legitimate load to be carried were in the vanguard of the fight to permit railroads to use longer trains.

Anybody knows, Mr. President, that the oil industry is in a sad predicament today because of the sinking of tankers, and I would not be a bit surprised if one of the most vital industries that need this trucking legislation might be the oil industry, because they have to haul their crude to the cracking down plants in order that we can get gasoline, and if it is not a war effort for a man working in a defense industry to have gasoline for his automobile, then I do not know what war effort is, I do not know what defense or war efforts are, or what kind of an effort it is. Everything we do today has in some manner some connection with the war effort.

I say that this bill ought to pass, and I stand the same as I stood last year; greater loads should be given to the trucks, because their equipment can take it and the roads can take it, and any highway engineer that tells you that a truck equipped with present day tires can not carry the extra load that we allowed under our act of last year on the same highways that carried that load when the first bill was passed, or the original bill that is now in effect, that highway engineer knows nothing about highway construction.

This is a good bill and it is necessary to war defense.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Westmoreland.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DENT. With pleasure, Mr. President.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Westmoreland give us one instance of the movement of war materials being held up because of any law of Pennsylvania.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I think that is an unfair question, for the simple reason—

Mr. CAVALCANTE. No, it is not, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Well now, if you want to answer it go ahead; I thought the gentleman from Fayette was interrogating me. It is unfair for the simple reason that if you will go over to the Highway Department and find out how many permits have been issued you will get the many instances that you desire.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I can hedge like that too, but we are asked here to pass a bill because it impedes the movement of war materials and we are so much ingratiated with that that we are even willing to say groups are patriotic who want the right to move heavier loads and they do not want to pay anything for hauling them over the highway, but, in fact, want a reduction for that.

Now, Mr. President, if the gentleman from Westmoreland tells this Senate that this bill is necessary because the movement of war materials is impeded, he ought to be gentleman enough to state one instance that he knows of where any war material has been impeded or the movement of it has been impeded on the highways of Pennsylvania.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, if the gentleman from Fayette will allow me to answer that—

Mr. CAVALCANTE. I will not yield to the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. President, at this time. The gentleman from Westmoreland also stated that people who gather around these railings of ours do not come to hear our sweet, melodious voices—I do not want my voice to be sweet and melodious for the type of some men who come here or the motives for which they come here; I want my voice to be rough; I do not want it to be sweet; I want it to be sour.

Truly, Mr. President, we would get along better in this Senate, and better legislation would emanate from the halls of this Senate, if we were sincere and honest. If we supported a bill or introduced a bill, the bill would get much further if we were sincere and honest with our colleagues and stated the purpose of the bill, not holding anything back. The gentleman from Westmoreland in his defense of the bill had to admit—I did not ask him to admit it because I promised the fifty-first Senator, without portfolio, Mr. Davis, that I would not mention the oil industry or Mr. Pew, and I am not mentioning it now, and if it has been mentioned, he had better blame the gentleman from Westmoreland for the admission that probably the oil industry is the one that is interested in this bill mostly.

Now, Mr. President, that is what we need, sincerity and honesty. If the gentleman from Westmoreland or any other gentleman of this Senate last year or this year would have had honestly told us, now, this bill is necessary in order to permit the movement of large volumes of gasoline over our highways, then we would not have any grounds for argument, because we would understand each other's honesty and sincerity and then vote according to our consciences, but the thing that provokes the argument and the thing that throws shadows over a lot of these bills is that we try to conceal the real motive for their introduction and their enactment into law.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, personally I do not care what Mr. Davis or anybody else thinks about what I said about the oil industry. I do not make any promises to anybody around here to keep names out of the record. I do not think there is any question of sincerity; I do not question the sincerity or the motives of the gentleman from Fayette, and I do not care why he is against the bill. I am only telling you why I think the bill ought to be passed. As I remember, we are all allowed to have an opinion, and I understand that in this great body of the Senate of Pennsylvania, you are allowed to express that opinion.

It is my honest opinion, Mr. President and members of the Senate that the passage of the original bill, which went over to the Governor and was vetoed by the Governor, would have facilitated the movement of necessary war products during this period we are going through, and I believe that by removing some of the restrictions which are now contained in the law, by the passage of this bill, that we will aid and further the war effort in the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill, the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Cumberland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WADE. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. REED. Senator Wade, in the discussion, the question of fee has come up quite frequently.

Mr. WADE. That is right.

Mr. REED. Will you tell the Senate, by estimate, how much money the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will lose by elimination of the payment of the fee, under this bill, if passed.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, no one can anticipate the fees that the state would receive if this bill were not passed, but since the Senator from Washington, Mr. Reed, has asked for my estimate, I am perfectly willing to give him the figure of $4,512.20.

Mr. REED. Is that a year?

Mr. WADE. Yes, for twelve months.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, if those figures are true, then why all the argument about the importance of this bill. It is so trivial that we should not spend time on fooling with it. On the other hand, if the amount of money that is involved in this bill is of any size, then I say the bill should be defeated, Mr. President, because during this war period the people of Pennsylvania are going to be taxed along all lines for national defense, and here is a big industry that is going to be relieved of taxation under the plea of national defense. That is special privilege of the worst type imaginable.

If the trucking industry desires privileges from the Department of Highways, it ought to be patriotic enough to pay a fee, even though it is small or even though it is large; that is true patriotism and I disagree seriously with the gentleman from Westmoreland when he says this republic is a republic of groups; no republic can be a republic of groups; the only group under a republic is the group known as the people, and when you try to give special privilege to one group, you throw the republic out of balance and in time you will have no republic.

I say, the way this bill is drawn it is vicious, even though it is drawn under the guise of national defense. As was said once, "Oh, liberty, how many crimes are committed in thy name?"

This bill should be defeated.

Mr. DENT. As a matter of record, Mr. President, I just want to say when I say things I say them myself and nobody else says them for me; I did not say anything about this republic being a republic of groups; nor do I want the record to contain any such words.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

SENATE BILL No. 73 ON THIRD READING CALLED UP

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent to call up Senate Bill No. 73, on page 3 of the Calendar, on third reading.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL DROPPED FROM CALENDAR

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 73, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to suspend for the duration of the present war and for six months thereafter any law ordinance or regulation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or of any municipal subdivision thereof limiting the age of appointees to any civil service position in any municipal subdivision of the Commonwealth.

be dropped from the Calendar.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 72, as follows:

An Act to further amend section nine of the act approved the thirty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 1108) entitled "An act providing for the appointment promotion reduction removal and reinstatement of paid officers firemen and employes of fire departments and of fire alarm operators and fire box inspectors in the bureaus of electricity in cities of the second and third class defining the powers and duties of civil service commissions for such purposes and fixing penalties" by permitting applications to be made for such positions by persons forty-five years of age or under

Section 1 In order to make more men available for war work and remove interference with the prosecution of the war in which the United States is now engaged section nine of the act approved the thirty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 1108) entitled "An act providing for the appointment promotion reduction removal and reinstatement of paid officers firemen and employes of fire departments and of fire alarm operators and fire box inspectors in the bureaus of electricity in cities of the second and third class defining the powers and duties of civil service commissions for such purposes and fixing penalties" as last amended by the act approved the thirty-first day of March 1937 (P. L. 190) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 9 All applicants for any position in the fire department and as fire alarm operators and fire box inspectors in the bureau of electricity shall undergo a physical examination which shall be conducted under the supervision of the physician member of the civil service commission or if there be none then by a physician appointed by the civil service commission Said examiner shall certify that an applicant is free from any bodily or mental defects deformity or diseases that might incapacitate him from the performance of the duties of the position desired before said applicant shall be permitted to take further examinations No application will be received if the person applying is less the twenty-one years of age or more than [thirty-five] forty-five years of age at the date of his application Provided however That in event any applicant has formerly served in the fire department or as a fire alarm operator or fire box inspector in the bureau of electricity of the city to which he makes application for a period of more than six months and no charges of misconduct or other misfeasance were made against such applicant within a period of two years next preceding the date of his application and is a resident of the city then such person shall be eligible for reinstatement in the discretion of the civil service commission even though such applicant shall be over the age of [thirty-five] forty-five years Such applicant providing his former term of service so justifies may be reappointed to the fire department or as a fire alarm operator or fire box inspector in the bureau of electricity without examination other than a physical examination If such person is reinstated he shall be the lowest in rank in the department next above the probationers of the department

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

REQUEST THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. COLEMAN. I request that Senate Bill No. 72 go over in its order.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I ask that the Senate be at ease for a moment until I confer with my colleague from Lackawanna.

(The Senate was at ease.)

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I withdraw my request that Senate Bill No. 72 go over in its order.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I want to call attention to the fact that Senate Bill No. 72 does not apply in any manner to cities of the second class. By the Act of June 27, 1939, P. L. 1207, cities of the second class were taken out of the provisions of the Act of 1933, which this bill amends. Councils from cities of the third class have had the experience already of quite a number of firemen being called into the service. Under present civil service rules regulating fire departments of cities of the third class no one can be employed who is above the age of thirty-five. All that this bill does is raise the age limit to enable the employment of men up to the age of forty-five years.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 61, entitled:

An Act to add section one thousand one hundred and ten to the act, approved the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine (P. L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate, amend and revise the penal laws of the Commonwealth," by prescribing additional penalties in the case of the commission of larceny or robbery of things affected by priorities, rationing or other restrictions during time of war.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL DROPPED FROM CALENDAR

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 52, on third reading, postponed, entitled:

An Act to aid in the prevention of sabotage by making the larceny of articles rationed by the Federal Government and necessary in national defense, a felony and prescribing penalties.

be dropped from the Calendar.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CROWE, from the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 79, (House Bill No. 75), entitled:

An Act authorizing the President of the Pennsylvania Game Commission with the unanimous approval of the commission and for a certain limited period of time to lease lands to political subdivisions or to Federal agencies for use as aviation landing fields conferring certain powers upon political subdivisions relative to the acceptance and development of such lands and suspending certain inconsistent legislation.

He also, from the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 80, (House Bill No. 76), entitled:

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section one of the act approved the eighth day of July one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 737) entitled "A supplement to an act entitled 'An act to establish a Board of Commissioners of Navigation for the River Delaware and its navigable tributaries regulating their jurisdiction over ships vessels and boats and wharves piers bulkheads docks slips and basins and exempting cities of the first class from certain of its provisions and making an appropriation therefor' approved the eighth day of June Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven authorizing and directing the commissioners to provide and maintain a nautical school for the education and training of pupils from the various counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the science and practice of navigation and making an appropriation for two years from the first day of June Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and nineteen towards its maintenance" and its amendments in so far as they require the furnishing of accommodations on board a proper vessel for the nautical school when no such vessel is available and imposing upon the State Council of Defense the duty of furnishing other accommodations.

BILL INTRODUCED

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection The Chair hears none.

Mr. MILLER read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 84, entitled:

An Act to conserve metal by suspending the provisions of article five of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," and its amendments, in so far as they require the issuance and use of more than one registration plate.

Which was committed to the Committee on Highways.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess for thirty minutes.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

HOUSE MESSAGE

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced informed the Senate that the House has concurred in Resolution from the Senate as follows:

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. WADE, from the Committee on State Government reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 74, entitled:

An Act prescribing the procedure for the adoption and promulgation of rules and regulations to supply provisions of law which have been suspended because they interfere with the prosecution of any war in which the United States of America is engaged at the time of the final enactment of this act.

MOTION TO READ BILLS THE FIRST TIME

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the first reading of all bills reported from committees for the first time at today's session.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON FIRST READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 68, (House Bill No. 42), entitled:

An Act to further amend section eight of the act, approved the nineteenth day of March, one thousand nine hundred nine (P. L. 46), entitled "An act to regulate the practice of osteopathy in the State of Pennsylvania; to provide for the establishment of a State Board of Osteopathic Examiners; to define the powers and duties of said Board of Osteopathic Examiners to provide for the examining and licensing of osteopaths in this State; and to provide penalties for the violation of this act," by further regulating for a limited period the time necessary for graduation and for admission to practice as osteopathic physicians and surgeons in this State.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 70, (House Bill No. 68), entitled:

An Act to amend section two of the act, approved the tenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 645), entitled "An act imposing certain requirements on certain hospitals receiving state aid; authorizing the withholding of appropriations; and imposing duties on the Department of Welfare," by providing that, during the present war and six months thereafter, funds shall not be withheld from hospitals for violation of such act, if the Secretary of Welfare determines that the constant attendance of a licensed physician or resident interne cannot be secured by such hospitals because of the war emergency.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 74, entitled:

An Act prescribing the procedure for the adoption and promulgation of rules and regulations to supply provisions of law which have been suspended because they interfere with the prosecution of any war in which the United States of America is engaged at the time of the final enactment of this act.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 76, entitled:

An Act providing for the repayment to persons inducted into or enlisting in the army, navy or marine corps of the United States of a part of the cost of registering a motor vehicle before such induction or enlistment.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 79, (House Bill No. 75), entitled:

An Act authorizing the President of the Pennsylvania Game Commission with the unanimous approval of the commission and for a certain limited period of time to lease lands to political subdivisions or to Federal agencies for use as aviation landing fields conferring certain powers upon political subdivisions relative to the acceptance and development of such lands and suspending certain inconsistent legislation.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 80, (House Bill No. 76), entitled:

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section one of the act approved the eighth day of July one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 737) entitled "A supplement to an act entitled 'An act to establish a Board of Commissioners of Navigation for the River Delaware and its navigable tributaries regulating their jurisdiction over ships vessels and boats and wharves piers bulkheads docks slips and basins and exempting cities of the first class from certain of its provisions and making an appropriation therefor' approved the eighth day of June Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven authorizing and directing the commissioners to provide and maintain a nautical school for the education and training of pupils from the various counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the science and practice of navigation and making an appropriation for two years from the first day of June Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and nineteen towards its maintenance" and its amendments in so far as they require the furnishing of accommodations on board a proper vessel for the nautical school when no such vessel is available and imposing upon the State Council of Defense the duty of furnishing other accommodations.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Wednesday, April 1, 1942, at 11:00 o'clock, a. m., Eastern War Time.

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 5:07 o'clock, p. m., Eastern War Time until Wednesday, April 1, 1942, at 11:00 o'clock, a. m., Eastern War Time.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

TUESDAY, March 31, 1942

The House met at 1 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall, offered the following prayer:

Eternal God, as we walk with Thee and talk with Thee, and as we make contact with Thy children from time to time within this Commonwealth and Nation, may each one of us in our thoughts, show faith; in our words, speak wisdom; in our deeds, demonstrate courage; and in our daily life, endeavor to serve. Yea Lord, in all things may we be great, remembering at all times to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto Thee, our God, the things that are God's. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday, when, on motion of Mr. MARKS unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate, amend and revise the penal laws of the Commonwealth," prohibiting the stealing, taking or carrying away of explosives and certain devices used in connection therewith, from any structure used for their storage; and providing penalties.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

My Mr. McFALL. RESOLUTION No. 40.

In the House of Representatives, March 30, 1942.

Whereas, The General Assembly has in the past provided for the free transportation of pupils to and from schools in the public school districts of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, In most instances, and particularly in the consolidated school districts of the Commonwealth, such free transportation is provided for distances in excess of one and one-half miles; and

Whereas, Experience has indicated, and it is now commonly known, that this rigid distance limitation in many instances creates unfair and illogical situations wherein such transportation is afforded to certain pupils in a locality to the exclusion of others in the same locality; and

Whereas, It is likewise recognized that there must be some limitations in the distances for which such free transportation is provided, but that it would be more equitable if said limitation were reduced to one-half mile; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby directs the Department of Public Instruction to make an immediate study of the free transportation of pupils in the consolidated school districts of the Commonwealth, in order that it may recommend to the next General Session of the Legislature the advisability of amending the School Code by decreasing the distance limitation now provided for by law or by permitting the question to be determined at the discretion of the school directors of each such school district; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be submitted to the Superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

Mr. McDermott for Mr. RAUSCH for today's session.

Mr. HARMUTH for himself for the remainder of the week after today's session.

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 78, as follows:

An Act to amend section six of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand eight hundred ninety-five (P. L. 212) entitled "An act to establish an immediate court of appeal regulating its constitution officers jurisdiction powers practice and its relation to the Supreme Court and other courts providing for the reports of its decisions the compensation of the judges and other officers and the practice and costs on appeals from its judgments" by making further provision as to the preparation custody and disposition of plates used in the printing of Superior Court Reports

Whereas The involvement of the United States of America in the present crucial world war and the consequent necessity for all out war production on the part of our industries has resulted in shortages of many indispensable metals and

Whereas Any unnecessary or unused metals in the possession of the Commonwealth should be released immediately if necessary for war purposes therefore

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Section six of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand eight hundred ninety-five (P. L. 212) entitled "An act to establish an intermediate court of appeal regulating its constitution officers jurisdiction powers practice and its relation to the Supreme Court and other courts providing for the reports of its decisions the compensation of the judges and other officers and the practice and costs on appeals from its judgments" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 6 All the decisions of the said court shall be reported by the State reporter in volumes to be entitled "Pennsylvania Superior Court Reports" and for this service the present reporter and his successors shall be allowed to employ an assistant at a salary of not more than two thousand dollars per year

The said reports shall be printed on first class book paper and bound in good full law sheep in style not inferior to volume one of Harris' Reports and shall be in form and manner of execution similar thereto and shall contain not less than seven hundred pages of printed matter in each volume including an index and title of cases similar to those in said volume which shall be prepared and furnished by said reporter and there shall be printed on the back of said volume the words "Pennsylvania Superior Court Reports" the number of the volume in the series of said reports and the year of publication

The reporter shall have no pecuniary interest in such reports but the same shall be published under the supervision of the reporter by contract to be entered into by the reporter Secretary of the Commonwealth and Auditor General with the person or persons who in addition to furnishing the State Librarian for library and exchange fifty copies of each volume shall agree to publish and sell the said reports on terms most advantageous to the public and at the lowest price which contract shall be for a term of ten years and shall provide that every volume printed under such contract shall be stereotyped or electrotyped and the plates thereof preserved within the Commonwealth and be delivered to the Secretary of the Commonwealth as the property of the State within [three] five years after the expiration of the contract [and] Upon the receipt of such plates the Secretary of the Commonwealth may in his discretion dispose of them as unserviceable property in the manner provided by law Such contract shall provide that all volumes published under such contract shall be kept by the contractor at some convenient place within this Commonwealth to be designated by the said Secretary for the sale at the contract price to all citizens of the Commonwealth desiring the same during the term of his said contract and for five years thereafter

Before letting any contract as provided by this act the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall give notice of the time and place of awarding the contract by advertising in the newspaper having the greatest circulation in each of the cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh once a week for six consecutive weeks immediately preceding the letting of such contract and shall receive sealed proposals or bids and shall award the contract to the lowest bidder who can give the security required by the following clause of this act

The person to whom any contract shall be awarded under this act shall at the time of executing said contract give bond to the Commonwealth with at least three sureties to be approved by the Governor in the sum of twenty thousand dollars conditional for the faithful performance of said contract

It shall not be lawful for the reporter or any other person to secure or obtain any copyright of said reports but the copyright of said reports shall be taken in the name of the Secretary of the Commonwealth

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to,

RECESS

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair will declare a recess until 4 p. m. Is there objection? The Chair hears none and a recess is declared.

AFTER RECESS

The House reconvened at 4 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. HEATHERINGTON and HARE.

HOUSE BILL No. 103.

An Act providing that, for a certain limited period of time, registration plates shall not be issued to or required for certain vehicles and equipment owned by political subdivisions, volunteer fire departments, and the Pennsylvania Motor Police, and used exclusively in fire or police work; and requiring that such vehicles and equipment, operating without registration plates, shall be satisfactorily identified.

By Mr. ECKELS. HOUSE BILL No. 104.

An Act to authorize counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, school districts, poor districts, and county institution districts to file tax and municipal claims not filed within the time specified by law, and to file suggestions of nonpayment and averments of default, or to sue out writs of scire facias on certain tax or municipal claims, and to revive judgments where the liens of such claims or the judgments thereon have been lost; and providing for the reinstatement of the liens of such claims and judgments.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. BRETHERICK. RESOLUTION No. 41.

In the House of Representatives, March 31, 1942.

Whereas, The need for transportation, by reason of present war conditions, has become an acute problem; and

Whereas, Anything which tends to deprive operators of their driving privileges may seriously interfere with and hamper the present war effort; and

Whereas, The Department of Revenue has suspended operators' licenses of commercial drivers for violations of our speed laws to the detriment of the Nation in these crucial times; now therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, That the policy of suspending commercial operators' licenses should be abandoned for the duration of the war in all cases where a commercial vehicle operator has been found guilty for the first time of violating the speed laws of this Commonwealth; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of Revenue of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be furnished with a copy of this resolution.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

SENATE MESSAGES

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, March 31, 1942.

Resolved, (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday, April 6, 1942, at four o'clock p. m., and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday, April 6, 1942, at nine o'clock p. m.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was unanimously concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

AMENDED RESOLUTION RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced returned resolution from the House of Representatives as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 30, 1942.

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That the State Treasurer be and hereby is authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each employe of the Senate and House of Representatives, the salary or per diem compensation to which they are entitled under law for an Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly by virtue of the provisions of the Acts of Assembly under which they are elected or appointed; this resolution to be effective until a supplement to the General Appropriation Law, approved March 11, 1942, Act No. 2, entitled "An act to provide for the expenses of the extraordinary session of the Legislature assembled February seventeenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, in pursuance of the proclamation of the Governor of the Commonwealth, dated February tenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, and the supplement thereto." providing for additional appropriations for the payment of the salaries of the employes of the Senate and the House of Representatives for the extraordinary session of 1942, is enacted into law.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend line 3, by striking out after the word "each" the word "employe" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "member"; also in same line, by inserting after the word "Representatives", the following "the mileage to which they are entitled, and to each employe thereof"; also in line 15, by inserting after the word "the" and before the word "salaries" the words "mileage of the members and the".

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do concur in the amendments made by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. WOODRING asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, last evening my colleague, Mr. McFall, announced the tragic accident which occurred at Sandts Eddy, Northampton County, on the morning of Thursday, March 26. Mr. McFall graphically described the horror and the carnage which attended the explosion of twenty-one tons of dynamite at the quarry of the Lehigh Portland Cement Co. He told of the shocking death of thirty-one men engaged in defense work and of the public's disregard of civilian defense instructions with the resultant blocking of the highways against the orderly movement of fire fighting equipment, ambulances, and other vehicles for relief of the stricken.

I join with my colleague in paying tribute to the thirty-one men who lost their lives in this terrific explosion. I extend my deepest sympathy to the families and friends of these departed workers. The loss and grief which this accident occasioned can never be mitigated nor lessened. We as legislators of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania can and should do our utmost to prevent a recurrence of such a tragic explosion. We cannot conduct an orderly investigation and study of the laws and regulations pertaining to the transportation, storage, handling and use of explosives. We can and should inquire whether or not it is reasonable to collect twenty-one tons of dynamite at one place? We should ask the Secretary of Labor and Industry, and the Chairman of the Division of Mines and Quarries what regulations that Department has adopted and what further limitations should be imposed upon the handling of high explosives. Unless we take this simple action, we are condoning the brutal death meted out to thirty-one of our citizens and the harrowing shock to a schoolhouse-full of children, all of whom might have perished.

I am reliably informed by a member of the Safety Division of the Federal Government that until twenty years ago dynamite cases were opened with wooden chisels and wooden mallets; further, employes engaged in handling dynamite were not permitted to carry any metal upon their person nor even to wear clothing with metal fasteners. These regulations of course were designed to prevent the creation of sparks in and about the premises where dynamite was being handled. Sparks, incidentally are the detonating force and the cause of the explosions. Today speed and carelessness have given way to these reasonable precautions with the result that explosions occur with much greater frequency and with the needless death of men beloved in their homes and necessary in the man power of our nation.

For the protection of our citizens, my colleague, Mr. Longo and I therefore submit the following resolution and ask unanimous consent that it be read for the information of the House.

RESOLUTION

COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE SANDTS EDDY EXPLOSION

Messrs. WOODRING and LONGO offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent that it be read for the information of the House.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 31, 1942.

Whereas, The residents of the County of Northampton on March 26, 1942, experienced a horrible tragedy, resulting from a dynamite explosion in Sandts Eddy in that county, causing the death of 31 persons; and

Whereas, The explosion was heard and its force felt for a distance of approximately 72 miles, in which radius a schoolhouse was wrecked, and thousands of windows broken; and

Whereas, The operation of quarries is a major industry in the County of Northampton, and the continued use of explosives and dynamite is apparently important to the continued operation of said industries; and

Whereas, This House in noting with sorrow the tragic death of these men and the untold suffering occasioned to their families cannot and will not permit this disastrous incident to pass without exerting every effort to prevent and forestall a recurrence thereof, with its horrible consequence of loss of life, destruction of property, and constant threat to the safety and tranquility of persons employed in this industry; and

Whereas, For the future protection of these men and their families and for the well being and protection of all the residents of the County of Northampton and of the Commonwealth. legislation may be necessary to prevent other incidents of a similar nature; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker of this House, appoint a committee of nine members, whose duty it shall be to make a careful and thorough study of the laws of the Commonwealth and all regulations thereunder relating to the transportation, storage, handling and use of all types of explosives; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee shall have power to hold public hearings in order to become acquainted with the practices and usages in the matter of explosives in its investigation of this and other explosions, and after due consideration to make its report, together with recommendations to this House, the Secretary of Labor and Industry and to the Chief of the Division of Mines and Quarries.

The SPEAKER. The resolution lies over for printing under the Rules.

SENATE MESSAGES

ADJOURNMENT SINE DIE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, March 31, 1942.

Resolved, (if the House of Representatives concur), That this special session of the General Assembly adjourn sine die on Tuesday, April 7, 1942, at twelve o'clock noon, Eastern War Time.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

RESOLUTION CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives, as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 25, 1942.

Whereas, The 11th day of October, this year, will mark the 163rd anniversary of the death of Brigadier-General Casimir Pulaski, from wounds received at the siege of Savannah, Georgia; and

Whereas, In recognition of the heroic deeds of General Pulaski during that great war for independence, most of the states of the Nation have, by legislative enactment, designated October 11th of each year as "General Pulaski" memorial day; and

Whereas, This year particularly the Valley Forge Cathedral will dedicate a day in honor of the memory of General Pulaski; and

Whereas, It is fitting that the recurring anniversary of this day be commemorated with suitable patriotic and public exercises in observing and commemorating the heroic death of this great American hero of the Revolutionary War; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby requests the Governor of the Commonwealth, by virtue of the authority vested in him, to issue a proclamation designating October 11th, 1942 as "General Pulaski Memorial Day," so the memory of this great man may be appropriately honored.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. PRESLEY N. JONES asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House, last evening we heard the statement of the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, in which he called for increases in salaries for General State Employes in the lower brackets. This was really quite amusing for it comes from the Republican Minority Floor Leader just 4½ months after the Governor was asked to do the very same thing.

It was on November 17, 1941, that I directed a letter to the Governor requesting that he include in his call for a special session, should there be one, provisions necessary to provide for increases in salaries, commensurate to the increased cost of living. This letter was acknowledged by one of his secretaries, Mr. Leroy Greene, on November 18, 1941. Immediately upon its release to the press, Senator Harvey Taylor also aired himself by calling for the same provisions. However, the request that I made of the dear Governor has gone into a state of coma.

But, it's about time, in fact it's very propitious that the Governor take cognizance of the fact that this is total war. It is no fan dance and the morale, well being and health of the citizens at home is as necessary as the supply lines to the boys at the front.

True, the Governor has the power within the Administrative Code to increase certain salaries but he hasn't made the step forward as yet. And if he does take this step, it will be only after this special session has adjourned sine die and at that time I forecast that he will call in the press and, with great fanfare and publicity, will exclaim, "I, Little Arthur, am going to take care of our good people of the Commonwealth." But in doing so, he must remember that he will have to retract his ridiculous statement of a short while ago, in which he said "living costs have not increased since 1937." How utterly assinine. Yet, back in the session of 1941, after he had vetoed the Liquor Store Clerks' pay raise bill, he suddenly found cause to increase the salary of his Secretary, Mr. Paul Pedigo, from $7,500 to $9,000 annually. Boy, some catastrophe must have befallen secretarial duties to merit such an increase, and while we're at it, let's compare the secretary's former pay of $7,500 and his new pay of $9,000:

17 States pay their Governors more than $7,500.
10 States pay their Governors an even $7,500.
21 States pay their Governors less than $7,500.

On the $9,000 basis:

14 States pay their Governors more than $9,000.
0 States pay their Governor an even $9,000.
34 States pay their Governor less than $9,000.

If the Governor could find cause to increase Mr. Pedigo's salary last May when living cost increases were not so evident, then he can find an even greater necessity to increase the lowly paid workers now. The efficiency of the State's system is being sorely crippled. Just recently 13 employes left the Banking Department, walked four blocks and obtained new jobs at a splendid increase in salary. Many have left other departments and particular emphasis should be laid on the Bureau of Vital Statistics. Many green hands were hired there recently in order to cover up the lousy efficiency while the special session was on. Living conditions are high in Harrisburg and with very little effort, you will find many employes packed in apartments like sardines, living in sordid conditions, in order to maintain their self-respect and decency here, while trying to send the old folks at home a wee bit of sustenance. Sure, I introduced a bill in this session, No. 14, attempting to force the Governor's hand. But little Arthur, who seems to aspire to be little Caesar, has as yet to move. How nice it must be to fiddle while Rome burns. The real workers in this Capitol are not being paid what they so justly deserve. They want to buy Defense Stamps, the same as you and I, but they can't afford it. They are as patriotic as you and I, and desire to aid in ending this war as quickly as possible.

Let me quote from the State Government Magazine of April, 1942, as stated by the Council of State Government:

> "The rapidly rising spiral of living costs has called for the consideration of possible upward revision of salaries for state employes by the legislatures of a number of the States which are meeting in regular session this year. Massachusetts has temporarily increased the salaries of certain of the officers and employes in the service of the Commonwealth, to be effective as of February 1, 1942. In Maine, bills have been introduced which would raise the salaries of county officials, police, and the Attorney General, due to the increased work necessitated by the present war emergency. In New York State, increases in salaries for the state police have been proposed in one Assembly Bill, while a second bill provides for adjustments in the salaries of state civil service employes. This latter bill would automatically increase salaries by 10% for every 15% increase in living costs. A bill is also pending in Virginia which would provide for a temporary addition to the regular cash compensation of all state officers and employes. Research concerning the increased cost of living on a nation-wide basis is being carried on at the present time by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics and by the National Industrial Conference Board. The national index at which these agencies arrive is based of course on an average of figures taken in all of the large cities of the nation. Indicative of the rapidity with which the index shifts is the fact that the Bureau of Labor Statistics now publishes its report monthly, rather than quarterly."

The Commonwealth has a healthy surplus as does the Commonwealth of Virginia and here is what that good state is doing for the duration only: 10% increase of first $1,000 and 5% of the next $1,000 and any part thereof. Total not to exceed $2400 yearly. Estimated increases $3,600,000 for next two years to come out of State's $12,000,000 surplus for 1941.

New Jersey and New York now have under consideration increases for all.

In Michigan and Rhode Island, the pay levels have been revised upwards by State Civil Service Commission.

Massachusetts—permanent increase of $150.00 yearly on salaries up to $1500 and $100 yearly increases on salaries from $1500 to $2500. And this includes county employes also.

Maine—increase of 10% of weekly salaries not to exceed $30.00 for the duration.

But where, Oh where is Pennsylvania? Still playing politics in this administration and as the gentleman from Allegheny Mr. Moran so nobly put it last night, somebody is up for re-election.

In the words of our President, stated two years ago, we have rendezvous with Destiny. Let's keep that rendezvous even though the dear Governor dilly dallied on the purchase of metal for license plates and now wants his property and supplies to buy tin, so sorely lacking for Hunter's licenses.

Even though he wants $95,000 expended to beguile the tourist trade when tires and gas are rationed and the railroad coordinator, Mr. Eastman, requested a cessation of train travel when not necessary.

We must keep that rendezvous and bring home the fruits of victory. We must put more sweat into the mortar, if our democratic principle and structures are to withstand the mongrels of Hitler and Hirohito and the elements of the future. It's time for the Governor to move and help create a healthy morale and a healthy body for our workers.

If it were within my power, I'd demand a decent living wage for the people, but, to the Governor, I can only insist, and I do insist most vehemently.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, last evening I made a short address to the House on a subject on which I have been thinking for some time and on which I have been endeavoring to gather statistics but have not been as successful as I thought I would be. It was a very serious attempt to call to the attention of the House the problem which I thought ought to be called not only to the attention of the House but to the officials of the State generally. It must have been prety good; the boys are jumping on the train just as fast as they can jump on.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. DIX asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, last night I intended to say a few words with reference to taxes and salaries and so forth, but it was getting so late that I felt if I started out to say anything there would be a war of words and we would be here until midnight. But now I assure you I am not going to talk any longer than Mr. Jones or some of the former speakers.

The gentleman from Delaware says that he just noticed the boys were all jumping on the train. Mr. Speaker, I want to say that here is one who is not jumping on the train. About all I have heard of during this session is grabbing for something, grabbing for something that will take money out of the taxpayers' pocket, and I for one believe that the taxpayer should have more representation in the Hall of the House of Representatives.

We talk about giving the teachers more pay. Here is one group, Mr. Speaker, that is entitled to more pay, and if I recall correctly,—and I am not blowing any political bugles either,—if I recall correctly, I presented a bill here to pay the teachers One Hundred Dollars increment for two years which would bring the salary up to One Thousand Two Hundred Dollars a year. What did my Democratic friends do in the Polen and Pettit bill? According to the Democratic leadership that was too much money for the teachers; they cut it down fifty percent. In other words all the increment they allowed was Fifty Dollars for the coming year and another Fifty Dollars for the second year.

Now, that doesn't show a very good spirit of paying more money and a willingness to give the teachers more salary.

What I have to say, Mr. Speaker, is more in regard to what I would call the forgotten groups of Pennsylvania. Who are the forgotten groups of Pennsylvania? Certainly not the state employes; they were given a five per cent increase a short time ago. I think they are entitled to another five per cent increase. On the other hand, what about the forgotten groups?

Go into any small town, on Main street and go up and down Main street, and what will you find? You will find stenographers, you will find sales clerks, you will find sales people, you will find mechanics in small industries, you will find various classes of people who are earning only from five hundred to a thousand dollars a year, the great majority of them under a thousand dollars. And believe me, those people are just tickled to death to come down to Harrisburg and get a thousand dollars a year. I know it because I have had some of them come to me and to ask me to help them to get down here, and when anybody is so anxious to get down to Harrisburg for a thousand dollars a year or eleven hundred or twelve hundred dollars, why is it that we should raise their salaries and forget about the forgotten groups in our own towns?

I have a relative living in the northeastern section of Pennsylvania who just lost a very valuable girl, an employe that he had three and a half years. He was paying this girl all he could afford to pay her, yet she comes down here to Harrisburg and gets about twenty-five or thirty percent increase in salary and he has lost a valuable employe.

He tells me this is going on all over the State, that everybody is anxious to go to Washington or to Harrisburg, and I can't see any reason, when there is such a great demand to go to the state capital or to go to Washington—I can't see any reason for helping the people on Capitol Hill and forgetting the taxpayers, the forgotten group on Main street in the villages and towns.

I have noticed that big business is getting theirs and that big labor is getting theirs. I mean big organized business and big organized labor; they are getting what they ask for, they are getting plenty of profits and they are getting plenty of wages, but I want to tell you that little business and little labor is not getting a square deal in the state of Pennsylvania; little business and little labor are getting it in the neck.

In addition to that, they have to pay the taxes, they have to support the churches, they have to support the local organizations and they are called on for all kinds of contributions, while these people who go to Harrisburg or Washington escape all these extras that the local people are called upon to pay.

I believe that we should show more concern for the taxpayers, more concern for the forgotten group on Main street, the forgotten groups on our farms, and not worry our heads off about what is going on on Capitol Hill.

We come here and shed crocodile tears over ten thousand people and we forget that there are a million people in the State of Pennsylvania that are getting less than a thousand dollars a year. It is high time that we think in terms of the million people and not of the thousand. I propose if there is time, to present a resolution and have a committee appointed that will make a study of the low income groups in Pennsylvania that can be presented to the next session of the Legislature.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. STAMBAUGH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I hesitate after the barrage that we have heard concerning salaries to bring up the subject that I wish to mention, but in order to get back to normal and have every one feeling that we are really going some place, I shall at this time endeavor to get off my chest what I have to say.

Today I had the extreme satisfaction of having had passed in this House a bill on third reading, the so-called wooden tire bill, so dubbed by a member of the Press. I thought it was so fitting when it was mentioned in the paper that I accepted it as very complimentary, especially as I come from the county of Perry, where we have long been known as "hoop hole Perry" another wooden product. So I, with the tip concerning the wooden tire, which is not what the bill really meant at all—and it might be one of them—I went to my local planing mill and had them reproduce a tire in facsimile. I have that tire here now. It is just a nice little gadget made from gum wood, a native Perry County stock, and it will stand a lot of punishment.

Mr. Speaker, in recognition of the fact that I was one of the very few Republicans who was able to get a bill out on the floor of the House during this Special Session, I want to present to you, this little gadget that I have had made.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Perry, and requests the gentleman to ask the planing mill to make three more, so that we can then go places together. The Chair appreciates it very much.

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. COOPER. Since the Speaker has now gotten a tire there seems to be some confusion in the minds of the Members of both sides of the House as to the exact date of the Speaker's picnic.

The SPEAKER. Tomorrow will be the day, April first.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. LEONARD asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I am not getting on the train as referred to by Mr. Turner from Delaware, but I am forced to say a few words on a subject that was discussed here last night and today, due to the remarks of Mr. Turner, with which I am in accord one hundred percent.

One of the recent speakers this afternoon made reference to big business and labor getting theirs. I agree that big business has been getting its share of all the good things, due to what? Due to one hundred percent organization, which is what made big business big business. A lot of complaint is going around about the closed shop and the dues that members of labor organizations have to pay. None of them can compare with big business and its organization, and it is one hundred percent closed shop. When you talk about a closed shop, big business has that closed shop.

The working people of America woke up in 1932 and elected an administration of the affairs of this great country of ours that gave proper consideration to the people who labored, such as big business had enjoyed prior to that administration, and labor is gradually taking advantage of its privileges in accordance with the Bill of Rights, and labor organizations are gradually bringing in the wages that labor is rightfully entitled to receive.

To the little businessman and to the small worker, referred to, I say they too can do the same thing big business has done and which labor is now struggling so hard to do, with all the opposition that it is having to overcome.

I am not jumping on the train as Mr. Turner said, for the simple reason that I demonstrated my position in the regular session when I introduced a bill here, and this House, Democrats and Republicans alike, saw eye to eye with me and passed the bill to raise the wages of the liquor store employes, which do not come from taxes but from profits that the state makes on selling liquor. If there was anybody in the state entitled to financial consideration in wages it was that group, as I outlined and as the record shows at the time the bill was passed. The bill went over to the Senate and was passed there but the Governor saw fit to veto it. He since has made some effort to justify his position by giving them a raise.

It is to me, Mr. Speaker, quite embarrassing as a member of the legislature of this great State of Pennsylvania that we should permit our people to manage and run such a business and all the work that is connected therewith on such measly wages. The State of Pennsylvania, or in fact any municipal government, should lead the way as a guide to the employer, and you would not then have so many strikes and so much confusion if the state itself or the cities or the counties should take the lead. What difference does it make whether I am working in a steel mill or whether I am pushing a pencil here for the State of Pennsylvania? I have to live the same as the fellow who is making big wages. I believe in the principles of our democracy. Why shouldn't I receive a fair wage for the work I perform, regardless of the work that I am doing? That is the way I always look at this question. The last one who should pay low wages is this great state, and I hope and trust that by the time the next legislature meets a year hence they will give this matter proper consideration and pay the employes of this state the wages they are entitled to, somewhat in measurement with the salaries that are being paid to some of the executive officers of our state.

SENATE MESSAGE

SENATE BILLS FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence, bills numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 60. (HOUSE BILL No. 105).

An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limit the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways of the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of over weight and over length vehicles in certain cases.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

SENATE BILL No. 72. (HOUSE BILL No. 106).

An Act to further amend section nine of the act approved the thirty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 1108) entitled "An act providing for the appointment promotion reduction removal and reinstatement of paid officers firemen and employes of fire departments and of fire alarm operators and fire box inspectors in the bureaus of electricity in cities of the second and third class defining the powers and duties of civil service commissions for such purposes and fixing penalties" by permitting applications to be made for such positions by persons forty-five years of age or under.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

REPORT FROM SLATE COMMITTEE

Mr. LOVETT offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 31, 1942.

Resolved, that Joseph Boerio, R. D. 1, Latrobe, Pa., be appointed Custodian of the Committee Rooms in place of Charles J. Jim, resigned, and Cornelius Hays, Spokane Avenue, Pittsburgh as Clerk to Committee vice John Killeen, Pittsburgh, effective as of today.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The hearing between the Sanitary Water Board Members and the Stream Pollution Committee will be continued tomorrow (April 1) at 9:30 a. m. in the New House Caucus Room. Committee members are asked to be present.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. DIX asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to clarify my statement, inasmuch as some people might be under the impression that I am opposed to big business or big labor. I wish to say this, I am not opposed to big business, neither am I opposed to big labor, but I have observed in the Hall of the House that there is no voice for little business or little labor.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. DAVID P. REESE. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Wednesday, April 1, 1942, at 11 a. m.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 4:52 p. m.) the House adjourned.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Extraordinary Session of 1942.

Vol. 26. • HARRISBURG, PA., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1942. No. 21,

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, April 1, 1942

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock, a. m., E. W. T.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Great is Thy name, O God, and greatly to be praised. As is Thy name, so is Thy praise in all the earth. And as Thy name is holy may we take it on reverent lips, that we sin not with our tongues.

Help each of us to order his life in obedience to Thy law, for "The law of the Lord is perfect," and "the statutes of the Lord are right."

The individual or the nation that violates Thy law has no escape from its just penalties. Give grace to us as a people, O God, that in all our dealings, national and international, we may "do justice, love mercy and walk humbly with our God." Only by so doing can we hold our present exalted position among the nations of the earth and win the favor of God and man.

We pray Thy protection for all men in the armed service of our country. May they, with Thy assistance, and the support of a united nation, win a just and lasting peace.

We pray for our President and our Governor that wisdom and strength sufficient for the day be given them. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. SNOWDEN and Mr. HELTZ, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Thomas asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Dauphin, Mr. TAYLOR.

Mr. Edmonds asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Lancaster, Mr. HOMSHER, who has been detained on account of illness.

Mr. Reed asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Fayette, Mr. CAVALCANTE.

HOUSE MESSAGE

AMENDMENT TO HOUSE BILL No. 10 RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented for concurrence bill of the House of Representatives, as follows:

House Bill No. 10, entitled:

An Act to further amend section six hundred twenty-eight, and to amend section six hundred twenty-nine of the act approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1333), entitled "Pennsylvania Election Code," extending the time within which writs of election may issue for holding special elections to fill vacancies occurring in either house of the General Assembly, and the time within which nominations therefore may be filed.

Said bill having been recalled from the Governor for amendment, the votes had on final passage and third reading were reconsidered in the House and the bill amended, in which amendments the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the amendments?

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, as I understand it, this is a bill to amend the election code, which was a subject contained in the Governor's call. The bill was passed and sent to the governor, and has been recalled for amendment. The House has now placed an amendment in the bill which is satisfactory, I believe.

SENATE CONCURS IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS

Mr. EALY. Therefore, Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now concur in the House amendments.

Mr. EDMONDS. I second the motion, Mr. President.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, what is the printer's number of that bill.

The PRESIDENT. Printer's No. 41.

Mr. EALY. Before a vote is taken, Mr. President, the Senator from Montgomery wishes to look at the amendment. I therefore ask that the Senate be at ease for a moment.

(The Senate was at ease.)

Mr. EDMONDS. After looking at the amendment, Mr. President, I am satisfied.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate concur in the amendments?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—42

Barr,	Ealy,	Mallery,	Tallman,
Bartlett,	Edmonds,	McGinnis,	Thomas,
Becker,	Farrell,	McQuiddy,	Tyler,
Carr,	Geltz,	Miller,	Wade,

Crider,	Jaspan,	Snowden,	Wilson, T. B.,
Crowe,	Kephart,	Stevenson,	Woodward,
Deitrick,	Lanius,	Stiefel,	Ziesenheim,
Dent,	Letzler,

NAYS—0

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the House of Representatives to be notified accordingly.

RECALLING SENATE BIILL No. 42 FROM THE GOVERNOR

Mr. EDMONDS offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, April 1, 1942.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), that Senate Bill No. 42, Printer's No. 44, entitled "An act to suspend and modify existing law providing for and requiring the use of plates or tags as evidence of (1) the payment of any license or registration fee or (2) in compliance with any other legal requirement insofar as such laws require the use of plates or tags manufactured of metal and by authorizing the use of other material in whole or in part,"

be recalled from the Governor for the purpose of amendment.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

NOMINATIONS BY THE GOVERNOR

NOTARIES PUBLIC

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, nominations for appointment as Notaries Public.

CONSIDERATION OF NOTARIES PUBLIC

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of nominations for appointment as Notaries Public, sent to the Senate, April 1, 1942, by His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The nominations were read as follows:

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

The second section was read and agreed to.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill as amended having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, for the purpose of completing the record, I wish to state that Senate Bill No. 76, Printer's No. 55 is an act providing for repayment to persons inducted into or enlisting in the army, navy or marine corps of the United States of part of the cost of registering a motor vehicle before such induction or enlistment.

It has been called to my attention that possibly we left out the men who are in the air service. I do not think that we have, because I do not believe that we have a separate air corps or air service; such men are, to my mind, either members of the army, or of the navy or of the marine corps, so that we are, by this bill, taking care of the men who are in the air service.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 79, (House Bill No. 75), entitled:

An Act authorizing the President of the Pennsylvania Game Commission with the unanimous approval of the commission and for a certain limited period of time to lease lands to political subdivisions or to Federal agencies for use as aviation landing fields conferring certain powers upon political subdivisions relative to the acceptance and development of such lands and suspending certain inconsistent legislation.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 80, (House Bill No. 76), entitled:

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section one of the act approved the eighth day of July one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 737) entitled "A supplement to an act entitled 'An act to establish a Board of Commissioners of Navigation for the River Delaware and its navigable tributaries regulating their jurisdiction over ships vessels and boats and wharves piers bulkheads docks slips and basins and exempting cities of the first class from certain of its provisions and making an appropriation therefor' approved the eighth day of June Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven authorizing and directing the commissioners to provide and maintain a nautical school for the education and training of pupils from the various counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the science and practice of navigation and making an appropriation for two years from the first day of June Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and nineteen towards its maintenance" and its amendments in so far as they require the furnishing of accommodations on board a proper vessel for the nautical school when no such vessel is available and imposing upon the State Council of Defense the duty of furnishing other accommodations.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

SENATE BILL No. 56 (HOUSE BILL No. 8) CALLED UP ON THIRD READING

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, on page 2 of today's Calendar appears House Bill No. 8, Senate Bill No. 56, which went over by request. There are amendments that have been prepared, and inasmuch as the amendments themselves are inocuous, but which I think, clarify the bill, I would like at this time to call up Senate Bill No. 56, House Bill No. 8.

Mr. MALLERY. I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 56, (House Bill No. 8), entitled:

An Act to further amend section two of and to add Sections four and five to the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to amend Section 1 page 5 line 4 by striking out the words: "not including commutation;" amend Section 1 page 5 line 5 by inserting before the word "dependency" the following: "and,"

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The amendments were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading, as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That said bill as amended be printed for the use of the Senate.

MOTION TO READ BILLS THE FIRST TIME

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

WEDNESDAY, April 1, 1942

The House met at 11 a. m.
The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

O God, our Father, save us in these terrible days in which Thou hast called us to live. Help us to realize that Thou art a prayer hearing and a prayer answering God today, as in the days when Thou did'st lead Thy children of Israel out of a land of bondage into a land of freedom. Bless the men of this House who shall give thought to Israel's oldest holiday in observing the Feast of the Passover.

We beseech Thee that Thou wouldst not only breathe into us the breath of Life, but to give us the passion and desire to lift life out of the sordid up to the plane of high endeavor.

"Direct, control, suggest this day
All I design, or do, or say,
That all my powers, with all my might,
In Thy sole glory may unite." Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday, when, on motion of Mr. LESKO, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. WOODRING and LONGO.

RESOLUTION No. 42.

In the House of Representatives, March 31, 1942.

Whereas, The residents of the County of Northampton on March 26, 1942, experienced a horrible tragedy, resulting from a dynamite explosion in Sandts Eddy in that county, causing the death of 31 persons; and

Whereas, The explosion was heard and its force felt for a distance of approximately 72 miles, in which radius a schoolhouse was wrecked, and thousands of windows broken; and

Whereas, The operation of quarries is a major industry in the County of Northampton, and the continued use of explosives and dynamite is apparently important to the continued operation of said industries; and

Whereas, This House in noting with sorrow the tragic death of these men and the untold suffering occasioned to their families cannot and will not permit this disastrous incident to pass without exerting every effort to prevent and forestall a recurrance thereof, with its horrible consequence of loss of life, destruction of property, and constant threat to the safety and tranquility of persons employed in this industry; and

Whereas, For the future protection of these men and their families and for the well being and protection of all the residents of the County of Northampton and of the Commonwealth, legislation may be necessary to prevent other incidents of a similar nature; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker of this House, appoint a committee of nine members, whose duty it shall be to make a careful and thorough study of the laws of the Commonwealth and all regulations thereunder relating to the transportation, storage, handling and use of all types of explosives; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee shall have power to hold public hearings in order to become acquainted with the practices and usages in the matter of explosives in its investigation of this and other explosions, and after due consideration to make its report, together with recommendations to this House, the Secretary of Labor and Industry and to the Chief of the Division of Mines and Quarries.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

Mr. Simons for Mr. LEISEY for the remainder of the week.

Mr. WEINGARTNER for himself for the remainder of the week after today's session.

Mr. HIRSCH for himself for the remainder of the week after today's session.

MR. FOOR IN THE CHAIR

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

APPROVAL OF CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, April 1, 1942.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed House Concurrent Resolution authorizing the State Treasurer to pay, upon warrant of the Auditor General, to each member of the Senate and House of Representatives the mileage to which they are entitled, and to each employe thereof the salary or per diem compensation to which they are entitled under law for an Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly.

ARTHUR H. JAMES

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 57, entitled:

An Act authorizing the secretary of the board of health in the various cities of the third class throughout the Commonwealth during the continuation of the present war and for six months thereafter to search and issue certified copies of birth and death records maintained by such cities after the State-wide system for registering vital statistics was established requiring that such birth and death records be made available to the secretary of the board of health for the purposes of this act and authorizing the respective city councils to prescribe fees for such services

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 55, as follows:

An Act authorizing the Secretary of Internal Affairs to issue patents for lands to be used by the United States for war purposes upon the payment of the original purchase price without interest accrued thereon and to temporarily suspend the law requiring the payment of said interest

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Whenever during the continuance of any war in which this Nation is or may become engaged the United States Government or any agency thereof wishes to purchase lease or take over any land within this Commonwealth for any purpose which will aid in the prosecution of the war and a patent has never been issued by the Commonwealth for such land but an application for such patent has at some time prior thereto been made and under existing law a patent for such land may not be issued by the Commonwealth unless and until all interest accrued on the original agreed purchase price shall be paid in addition to the purchase price in such cases if the provisions of said law requiring the payment of such accrued interest is found by the Secretary of Internal Affairs to interfere with the prosecution of such war he shall have power as a temporary emergency war measure to issue a patent for such land upon the payment of the actual amount of the purchase price thereof without the payment of such accrued interst and to suspend or modify the operation of such law to the extent necessary therefor

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The motion was agreed to.

SENATE MESSAGE

RESOLUTION FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, April 1, 1942.

Resolved, (if the House of Representatives concur), That Senate Bill No. 42, Printer's No. 44, entitled: "An Act to suspend and modify existing law providing for and requiring the use of plates or tags as evidence of (1) the payment of any license or registration fee or (2) in compliance with any other legal requirement insofar as such laws require the use of plates or tags manufactured of metal and by authorizing the use of other material in whole or in part,"

be recalled from the Governor for the purpose of amendment.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

RESOLUTION

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY

Messrs. SHEPARD and BROWN offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent that it be read for the information of the House.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 1, 1942.

Lincoln University, located forty miles from Philadelphia, is a liberal arts college for Negro men, with an enrollment of 367. It is an old established institution which has carried on its work for more than eighty years. Among its graduates have been some of the most prominent leaders of the Negro race. Many of its alumni now occupy responsible positions in public life. It is the only liberal arts college for Negros in the northeastern area of the United States.

The University owns 275 acres in the most beautiful part of southeastern rural Pennsylvania. It is State aided, receiving biennial appropriations from the State of Pennsylvania. During the last war, Lincoln University had a student army training corps, which in 1918, received a high official rating; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania hereby respectfully petitions the War Department of the United States Government to install a Reserve Officers Training Corps at Lincoln University, in Chester County, Pennsylvania, for the training of students to become officers in the United States Army; and be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of War of the United States, and to each senator and member from this Commonwealth in the Congress of the United States.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will lie over for printing under the Rules.

DERRY TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL CLASS WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair welcomes to the House this afternoon the Senior Class of the Derry Township High School, who are the guests of the gentleman from Mifflin County, Mr. French.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, the past couple weeks I have been told by many members that one of the things holding up final adjournment of this House was the unemployment compensation bill.

Since that bill passed the House I have been laying aside all other business, both in Harrisburg and back home, attempting to work with the Members of the Senate in preparing a measure which could meet with almost full approval of both the Members of the House and the Senate of each political party. I have been told in the past couple weeks by Members of the House particularly that if the unemployment compensation squabble were ended we could pack up and go home.

Yesterday afternoon there was a resolution presented on this floor suggesting that we adjourn sine die next Tuesday. I am informed that the Senate yesterday took some action looking toward adjourning sine die next week, and we appear now at the end of this week, to have made no further progress on unemployment compensation than to have gone up a blind alley in the Senate and to find the obstinacy of the Republican committee in charge of the bill, just as blind, just as impossible to get over as the stone wall at the end of that blind alley.

When the bill was up for consideration in the House there was a serious question raised on the other side as to the wisdom of one of the provisions of the bill. There was some talk about its liberalized provisions insofar as benefits were concerned being so great as to possibly wreck the bill.

There was also talk that the so called provision for partial benefits was not based upon any scientific or practical facts and it was therefore another indication that the drain on the fund would be too great.

Since that time the evidence has mounted; since that time things have happened. I agreed in part with representatives of the Senate that the benefits could be decreased in House Bill 18 from ten dollars to twenty dollars to eight dollars to eighteen dollars, and I understand that the Secretary of Labor and Industry favors that amount, and I understand that even the Governor's office does.

I have also agreed, and so stated yesterday that I would be perfectly willing to cut out of House Bill 18, which is now in the Senate, any mention whatsoever of the partial plan of payments, which would then put that bill in the shape that the Republican Members of this House would have voted for this bill without any mental reservation, and for which they did vote with the explanation that they felt it proper to have those items deleted from the bill, so that the bill as finally agreed to was pretty much what the Republican Members of the House would like to have in the bill.

I am not complaining about getting a run around by the Senate, I am not complaining about the work that I did, because I have learned a lot. But I am complaining about the tactics of the Senate that is still playing the age-old game of the Senate of Pennsylvania of not doing anything and then blaming the House for not getting out.

I have been told that maybe they will do something next week, but I can't take any more promises. I am ready to ask for my leave of absence for the balance of the week or until such time as they say they are ready to work, and then I will be glad to come back and get to work, but the point I want to make very clear is that the Republican Members in this House took a position, and the Republican Members in the Senate disregarded that position, because when the proposition was finally offered to them to pass a bill which in its most important aspects was what the Republican members of the House wanted, they have refused again to talk, they have refused again to act.

I said before that the evidence in favor of an effective plan of partial payment was mounting. Since the debate between the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rose and myself in this House several weeks ago, the Governor of New York, which is one of the only three states in this nation which today does not have a partial payment plan in effect, recommended to the Legislature of New York that certain changes be made in the unemployment compensation laws of New York, and he has asked that the benefits be placed at eight dollars to eighteen dollars and the payment period to be thirteen weeks instead of our idea of sixteen. He has also suggested that a partial payment plan be put in effect.

That has been substantiated by the Senate Committee in New York. Senator Ivens happens to be the majority leader of the Senate in New York, a Republican, and his committee after a study since last year has recommended that the effective day plan and the partial payment plan should be enacted into law in New York.

I assume that they made a scientific and a careful inquiry, and it merely adds more substance and more foundation to my own thoughts and those who believe in the partial payment plan under the effective day theory. It merely gives more support to the feeling that the effective day plan could be put into effect in Pennsylvania.

However, the Senators in the Senate, the Republican Senators have refused to see that or have refused to see anything else. I have been talking around and I have been trying to understand what their attitude is, what it could be based upon.

I am told at one point that they found out that the Governor wants it and therefore they are against it. I was thinking maybe I should ask the Governor to be against it so they would be for it. Someone told me they wanted to use it as a campaign issue, so therefore do not enact any legislation.

I do not know what the reason is, all I know is that I have compromised to the point where I have come to the position of the eighty-four Republican members of the House, and the Republican Senators refuse to go along.

One thing that has happened; in the last week letters started to come to the Senators. Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade are sending out duplicate copies of letters which are signed by secretaries and executive secretaries, presidents and excutive vice-presidents saying that the bill is too expensive, and the dear Senators on the other side have been reading their mail again. They are afraid they are going to offend the Chambers of Commerce in this election year. I think someone ought to remind them that they are coming up for office before the electorate in an election year, and why don't they do something about it?

I have been thinking that maybe someone from this side might go over and explain to them, take them by the hand and tell them that Chambers of Commerce are not people, that Chambers of Commerce are organizations and are paid for by some people against the interests of a lot of other people, and if the Senators on the other side want to face an electorate this year, if they want to apologize or explain why we didn't pass more liberal unemployment compensation legislation when the Governor called for it not only once but twice, when this House can unanimously agree on it, let them explain, let them now know that our position is, at least mine is that we are giving them everything, that both parties on this side practically agreed on, but that they stubbornly refused to discuss the matter further other than to say "I have got a lot of letters and they are all against it."

I wonder when they will wake up to the fact that the average voter doesn't write letters, because the average voter doesn't follow legislation, but Chambers of Commerce can knock out letters on a mimeograph machine; Chambers of Commerce can send messages over to the telegraph office; Chambers of Commerce can get school kids to sit down and write letters to the legislators and to legislative bodies. We have had a remarkable example of that in Oklahoma. In Oklahoma they are sending them out by the bale and we know it is all propaganda, against the forty hour week.

But they are afraid of it in Pennsylvania, our dear Senators are. I think it is time that we went over to them and told them the hard facts of life, and if they will listen to nothing else, let them understand that this is an election year, in the hope that they will sit down with House Bill 18 and put in it actually what the Republican Members of the House have agreed upon, as sponsored by myself and Mr. O'Neill.

I hope the eighty-four Republican Members of the House and the Republican Senators will get somewhere. I can't get anywhere.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I listened with as much attention as I could because of a number of other conversations going on at the same time, to the gentleman from Philadelphia, and I think I understand fully the purport of what he is trying to say to the House.

I do not think this is a political question, however, nor have I ever conceived it to be my business to try to tell the Senate how to run their business—that is their responsibility as Senators of Pennsylvania. I do, however, want to say for myself that I agree with the gentleman from Philadelphia that this unemployment compensation problem is a very important one and that I have believed all along that we should not adjourn until we have disposed of this matter. We have had presented a new bill which amends our present statute in the manner in which the Members of the House, with the exceptions which the gentleman from Philadelphia has mentioned, have felt it should be amended.

I am pleased that the question of partials has been taken out. I think that those who have been vitally interested in the measure on both sides are pleased that it is out, because it needed more study, it needed more information than we had, and certainly the approach was a dangerous one, because after all our primary duty is to protect the working man and to protect the fund which they need in time of distress.

I have never felt that we should not measure our desire on legislation by the need to get out in a hurry. Unfortunately there has been prevalent in the Legislature of Pennsylvania the idea that the people of Pennsylvania wanted us to march right up here, rush through and get out. In the spirit of economy that is always advisable, and I think also in the spirit of good parliamentary procedure it is advisable when you have the facts, when you have an understanding of the problems and when you can act upon them intelligently. But whether there is a desire to get out early or whether the people of Pennsylvania think we ought to get out early, as far as I am concerned as a Member of the Legislature, that has no influence upon me unless I can feel that the work has been done and that we can expedite it in some way.

I do not think we ought to raise this as a political question; it's too big and too broad a question. I desire to compliment the gentleman from Philadelphia on the spirit in which he has approached the question, and I think my Republican colleagues on this side approached it in the same broad spirit when they said they were going to vote for the bill, despite the fact that they believed it had many dangerous elements in it. It had many good provisions which we believed were necessary, and we believed it would go into conference where the difficulties and the differences could be ironed out, and if the same broad spirit prevailed that prevailed in the House, we could do something for the people of Pennsylvania.

I have not had an opportunity to consult my colleagues on the Republican side since this measure has been in the Senate and since we took our stand on it in the House, but I am confident they will agree with me that we should pass the amendments to the unemployment compensation bill which are needed, but that we should eliminate the question of partials in this session, because I understand provisions are being made for a study of this question, and which can be taken up in the 1943 session which is now only nine months away.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ROSENFELD asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House: never before in the history of this Commonwealth, has the Chief Executive attempted to vitiate an act of this Legislature, in a manner so repugnant to democratic processes as the manner in which Governor James has refused to carry out the mandate of this Assembly, which required him to appoint the members of the Parole Board on or before October 1, 1941.

If, Mr. Speaker, the Governor maintains that a mandate of this Legislature can be deliberately ignored, particularly when its object is the protection of society, and the rehabilitation of maladjusted men, then, this is a stern indictment.

The issue before us at this time, is not the merits of the Parole Act already considered and approved by this House without a dissenting vote, but rather the merits of the Governor's proposal which is intended to defer until June 1, 1943, the deadline for appointment of the five-man Parole Board.

Gentlemen, the Governor has already ignored for almost six months the mandate of the Parole Law, so that, any attempt by us now to ratify such despotism would expose us as the willing instruments of a designing Executive rather than to a body devoted to legislative progress and achievement.

Governor James argues that the United States is at war; that, therefore the time is inopportune to set up the new system. My answer is the query—What is there about the emergency that makes it desirable to work under a parole law that has failed miserably?

I cannot agree with Governor James, that the new Parole Program, falls into the category of those projects our national leaders would have us postpone. We cannot arbitrarily refer to a substituted parole program as falling into the category mentioned.

An efficient parole system cannot be regarded as a frill or luxury but as a vital defense measure. We must avoid the error of curtailing such a program only to find that it is more essential than ever in a war period.

Let us examine further, what is the attitude of our national leaders with regard to parole. The President of the United States, a firm believer in parole and an intelligent critic of its operation, recently helped to chart the future course of parole by convening in Washington, D. C. in April 1939, the National Parole Conference. Six hundred delegates assembled in the East Room of the White House, heard the President of the United States say, I quote, "We know from experience that parole when it is honestly and expertly managed provides better protection for society than does any other method of release from prison" unquote.

Contrary to the argument that the the time is unpropitious to set up the new parole machinery, I contend that the war accentuates the necessity for adequate parole administration. Following the last war, crime increased about 250 per cent. It was attributable, according to Rodney H. Brandon, Illinois State Director of Public Welfare, to the destruction of life and property occasioned by the war, which resulted in complete disregard for law and order by civilians, especially by youths in their teens. At a conference of 3,000 welfare workers, psychiatrists and educators, called by the Institute for Juvenile Research recently at the University of Illinois, it was agreed that juvenile delinquency can be expected to increase during the war period.

Prisoners released on parole, are not accepted in the United States Army and to permit them to return to the community, under the present inadequate system is a danger to society, at a time when the war effort is exhausting all of our man power.

Answering the second reason advanced for postponement of the new law, the Governor would have us believe that suggestions designed to augment the efficiency of an already efficient system amounts to criticism of the act. Everyone recognizes as a universal proposition that perfection can not be achieved under any plan and that mistakes will be made under the best possible system administered in the wisest possible way. But we can, by adopting a progressive attitude, reduce such mistakes to a minimum.

Here is what a member of Governor James' cabinet thinks of the new Parole Act. In a letter directed to me under date of July 16, 1941, Commissioner Lynn G. Adams of the Pennsylvania Motor Police writes, I quote "This is an excellent piece of legislation and should go a long way toward correcting a situation that sorely needs attention" unquote.

The view held by Commissioner Adams is shared by such public-spirited citizens as: former Dean William E. Mikell of the University of Pennsylvania Law School; Superior Court Judge Chester H. Rhodes; Thomas R. Wickersham; Judge Ralph Smith of Pittsburgh; President Judge James Gay Gordon, Jr. of Philadelphia, and many others.

The Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania says of the new law, I quote "The Pennsylvania Parole Law is one of the outstanding advances in criminal justice, the immediate installation of which is most imperative. The present defense emergency cannot be advanced as a sound reason for the indefinite postponement and threatened repeal of the Parole Law. The defense emergency adds to the cogency of such a law and its operation now in order that it may effectively meet the inevitable, greater criminal problem in post war social reconstruction" unquote.

Let us observe what Governor James, himself, said of a similar measure vetoed by him in 1939, because of the failure of the Legislature to appropriate funds, I quote "This bill is the result of much study, consideration and labor by a commission of eminent and outstanding men, presided over by Judge James Gay Gordon, Jr., of the Court of Common Pleas No. 2 of Philadelphia County, who deserve public encomium for this perfectly coordinated piece of Legislation which represents a definite forward step toward solving the problem of rehabilitating persons convicted of violations of our criminal statutes," unquote.

Are these eulogies to be considered criticisms of the Act?

As to the suggestion that the proper men for the system are in the government defense services, my answer is that defense work has undoubtedly absorbed many able men who might be appointed, but there is nevertheless a resourceful field of competent men from which appointments may be made. I am sure, that you will not find in the government defense services Albert G. Fraser, secretary of the Pennsylvania Prison Society; nor Commander John D. Pennington, of the Pennsylvania Industrial School; nor, Dr. Kenneth E. Appel, widely known psychiatrist; nor, Stanley P. Ashe, warden of the Western Penitentiary; nor Leon T. Stern, secretary of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs; nor Dr. Philip Q. Loche, chairman of the Committee on Psychiatric Services to Criminal Courts; nor, Mrs. S. M. R. O'Hara, Secretary of the Commonwealth; nor, Richard P. Brown, former Secretary of Commerce. Why does the Governor avail himself of this argument in connection with the Parole Act and not with reference to the Civil Service Commission Act?

Why has the Governor refused to carry out the mandate of the Legislature which required the appointment of the board prior to October 1, 1941 at a time when no emergency existed? Was the Governor then concerned with the very persons in whom he now shows a sudden interest?

It is regrettable that the Chief Executive of this Commonwealth, to whom all citizens might reasonably look for example in law observance, should ignore the requirements of an act of the Legislature.

It is still more regrettable that the Governor would have us ratify his neglect of duty. No one will contend that the functions of State Government must now cease because of the war effort.

The Governor initially contended that because of the war effort, there is need for economy. This as a general proposition is undoubtedly true. But, should the question of economy stand in the way of efforts to rebuild men—should it stand in the way of an adequate parole administration affording better protection to the public?

The Governor would have us be parsimonious in making appropriations for parole. The same suspicion and misunderstanding of parole that has caused us to operate under a defective system will now be the reason for withholding appropriations for parole personnel and equipment without which parole cannot give to the public adequate protection. The Governor would have us make liberal appropriations for facilities to keep men in prison instead of having us appropriate money to keep them out of prison. And this in spite of the fact that even from a financial point of view, the advantages are all on the side of parole. The average cost of keeping a man in prison is probably between $300.00-$400.00 per year, while the average cost of efficient parole administration is less. It costs one-fourth as much to supervise a man on parole as to keep him behind prison walls. If it is wise from a pecuniary point of view to be liberal with appropriations for the building of prisons and for the safekeeping of prison inmates, it is unwise or parsimonious to provide proportionately less for a parole system that will keep him out of prison by reforming him?

The mind that would deliberately choose to continue a make-shift inadequate and part time parole administration in preference to what the Governor himself has described as "a perfectly co-ordinated" system must have a strange and devious process of reasoning or is secretly hostile to modern and enlightened conceptions of penology. What ulterior motives are behind such a bizarre attitude I cannot guess. But this I do know that the board of directors of any business concern would condemn a manager who gave such a reason for not putting into operation an improvement they had directed in the management of the company's affairs.

Says James V. Bennett, Director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons I quote "It costs in the neighborhood of $60,000,000.00 a year to guard, feed, and clothe the 162,000 men and women who are in prison, and yet we spend probably not more than $1,500,000.00 a year supervising and guiding the approximately 40,000 men and women on parole" unquote.

Governor Saltonstall of Massachusetts is authority for the statement that, I quote "It cost our commonwealth about $50.00 per year to provide parole supervision. But to maintain each inmate in prison costs about $450.00 per year. It is appalling to consider the increased expense for new buildings and personnel if the prisoners now paroled were to be kept to the end of their maximum sentences in confinement where prison cells cost about $6,000.000 for each complete unit" unquote.

I hope the day will soon be past when parole machinery can be kept pitifully inadequate because legislators are parsimonious in the matter of appropriations. The crime problem is too serious to let expense stand in the way of modern machinery.

In the light of these observations, why then the plea of economy particularly now that there is more than $20,000,000.00 in the State Treasury over and above budget estimates for the current period.

This disingenuous excuse is the fiddle-faddle which keeps some 3600 patients waiting for admission to State Hospitals while the model $3,000,000.00 Butler sanatorium stands empty.

Let us observe further how hollow is the argument of economy in the face of present expenditures for the maintenance of an antiquated deficient system.

(1) The estimated total cost of operation of the present State Parole System (1941-1942) is $180,000.00.

(2) The estimated cost of operation of the present county Parole System (based on figures for 1940) is $100,000.00. The latter figure does not include any expenditures for parole in 14 counties of the Commonwealth which have no parole or probation systems. The approximate total cost, therefore, for operating the present system is $280,000.00.

How will the new law remedy the faults that abound in our present system? The best answer is to be found in an examination of the 1941 Parole Act itself, which:

1. Sets up a full time independent board of parole, the members of which are to be experienced in this field.

2. Gives jurisdiction over all prisoners sentenced to a maximum sentence of two years or more, regardless of the types of crimes committed or the institutions involved.

3. Centralizes in the Board of Parole both selection and supervision.

4. Vests discretion in the Board of Parole as to the time when parole shall be granted after expiration of the minimum sentence and as to the maximum time for parole supervision.

5. Assures an adequate parole staff, including a sufficient number of qualified parole officers chosen by competitive examination not only for the work of supervision but for making pre-parole studies.

6. Prohibits political activity not only by the members of the board but by any of its agents or employes.

7. Vests broad powers to impose conditions and to revoke for violations thereof.

It is obvious that a repeal of the Parole Act would be effectuated by a postponement of its operation under Senate Bill No. 13. Section No. 2, which repeals Section No. 37 of the Parole Act, repeals the appropriation provision. This in effect would invalidate the Act and make it inoperative unless and until a future legislature enacted subsequent legislation appropriating monies for operation of the new system.

In this respect, the Governor himself has given us the best reason for declining his proposal. In his veto of a similar measure in 1939, the Governor states, I quote "It would be bad administrative practice to place a law on our statute books which cannot be put into effect because of the failure of the Legislature to appropriate the necessary funds" unquote.

No well informed person doubts that parole, when properly administered, is the most humane and efficient method available for the treatment of the criminal. When it fails, it does so either because the wrong individuals have been selected for parole, or the parole officers are inefficient, or the community has failed in its attitude toward the paroled prisoner. It cannot be applied to all prisoners, because there are some men who ought never to be released into society. It must be administered with discrimination, with a thorough understanding of the man to be paroled and an appreciation of all the influences which go to make or break a socially disabled individual.

The machinery upon which parole now depends in Pennsylvania consists in the main of judges granting parole from county prisons, the State Board of Pardons granting parole from a State prison on recommendation of the Board of Trustees, and the reformatory trustees granting parole from their institutions. A leading penologist refers to the existing system in Pennsylvania as being defective, with serious lack of centralization. Supervision of parolees is split up between State parole officers covering cases released by the State, and probation officers covering prisoners released from the County jails and other county penal institutions. It is interesting to note, that neither the probation officers who supervise parolees for the judges nor the State parole officers are appointed on the basis of their qualifications. The law authorizing the appointment of probation officers simply states that the judges may appoint discreet persons of respectable character to serve as probation officers.

This hybrid system, consisting of parole units, unconnected and uncoordinated in many cases causes flagrant injustice. This is because the individual units are concerned with particular groups of parolees, rather than with different types of prisoners. Persons committed for similar crimes are treated in one way by one institution and in another way by another institution. This system of paroling, therefore, does not depend on the type of crime perpetrated but rather on the institution to which the person is committed.

Another serious defect in the existing system, is in the fact that the various paroling authorities decide on our parole cases only as a spare time activity. It is significant that the four members of the State Board of Pardons are busy State executives whose time is fully occupied with other duties, and they act in an ex-officio capacity attending to parole only when the Pardon Board meets.

The meager time available to the Attorney General and Secretary of the Commonwealth to devote to their parole functions is obvious when it is realized they are members of other boards and agencies, and are now, in addition to the work of their offices, occupied with the numerous duties of the defense council.

The suggestion of Governor James that the County judges can adequately administer parole is without merit. This disorganized, unwieldy and decentralized system is exercised by the 145 judges of the 67 counties in this Commonwealth. The principal defect in this system is the chaos created in parole by a different system for each county and judge. To allow judges to grant paroles when they are burdened with trial work, the preparation of opinions, and duties which devolve upon them by reason of their membership on boards is lacking in wisdom. The expediency of placing power to grant paroles in the hands of judges has never proven satisfactory. This is not such a power as can be properly vested in a judge who is not chosen for his qualifications for the task and for his peculiar ability with respect to penalogical problems. Quite evident is the lack of preparation for parole hearings, the insufficient data available for study in reaching a decision and the consequent careless paroling of prisoners in the majority of cases.

An example of the liberal attitude that some courts take toward parole may be found in the decision of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia in Sims vs. Rives, 66 App. Cases 25 where in an opinion of Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens, the court upheld a parole statute and concluded that parole is not a judicial function.

The sad truth is that in almost every case under the present archaic system the judge indulges in guess work when he considers an application for parole. Without doubt, the parole practices of judges are being subjected to more and more criticism. Much of the criticism is deserved because the parole records of too many judges disclose arbitrary practices and a "hunch system" of paroling offenders. The existence of varying standards in the paroling of prisoners is fraught with serious consequences which does not promote public confidence in the administration of the criminal law.

This condition is not altogether the fault of the judges. They are performing their task with much fidelity. This disjunctive system of paroling prisoners by 145 individual judges is bad, not so much because of any delinquency on the part of the judges, as because the inherent evil of the system itself.

The outstanding weakness in this system of parole is the absence of adequate preparole studies. It is not only improper but dangerous to grant paroles without obtaining all possible data concerning the applicant and his background. In most of the counties, the only information available to the judge is the past record of the prisoner and such data (not usually worth much) as the prosecuting attorney can supply. To parole criminals without a careful investigation of their backgrounds and of their past criminal records is to gravely endanger the public safety.

With the dangerously inadequate supervision of our parolees, the judicial parole has proven a failure. Some paroled prisoners fail because there are relatively few parole officers or because the case load is too heavy. The parolee writes in at stated intervals and reports that he is doing well, or he may appear in person and have his card stamped. For all anybody knows, he may be regularly engaged in committing serious crimes since the time he was paroled.

The parole agent is the last representative of Justice with whom the offender usually has contact. His chief task under an efficient system, is to supervise the offender's transition from incarceration to freedom. Realistically interpreted, this means that the parole agent needs to know the parolee and his background thoroughly, to prepare the ex-prisoner's family for his return and to aid him in obtaining employment; that he needs to cope intelligently with emotional and conduct crises in the life of the parolee and to help him over the obstacles to reinstatement in the community; and finally, that he must have the firmness and courage to arrest the parolee who is flagrantly violating the conditions of his freedom.

These tasks require a parole agent adequately equipped as compared to the politically sponsored, unskilled, untrained and unimaginative variety employed in many counties of this Commonwealth.

The establishment of the State Parole Board is a pressing need for social defense in Pennsylvania. The present situation is dangerous to the safety of our communities and to the welfare of the State. We can not break faith with the citizens of Pennsylvania—we are opposed to any further postponement of the new Parole Law. In the words of the Philadelphia Record, I quote "The times cry out for the best that America has—in brains, in courage, in leadership. That's what we expect of the Pennsylvania Legislature," and that gentlemen is what the Democratic Party has displayed. We insist that the Governor stop flouting his oath of office and carry out the mandate of this Legislature without any further delay.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. WILLIAMS asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, today, April 1, 1942, of course, to many people is just April Fool's Day, but to us who come from the coal mining fields of Pennsylvania and also from all over the United States, it is something other than April Fool's Day; it is the day on which we celebrate the founding of the eight hour day in the coal mines in the United States, the day when the men of the mines assemble throughout the entire nation and take stock as to what has happened in the past and what the future might hold for them. Today as the men march down the streets of the small communities things are somewhat different than they were in the past. Our nation is at war and our men as they march in their demonstrations today looking at the ranks of the men in line, will see missing therefrom thousands of young men who a few months ago were working in the mines, bringing the minerals from the bowels of the earth which are used in the manufacture of steel, and other finished product, which a few months ago were used in our peace time efforts and which made luxuries for people, but which today are being used to grind out in the factories and mills the material that is going into our gigantic war efforts.

Yes, they are meeting today and they are listening to the addresses of people from throughout the nation who are aware of the dangers that exist. They are meeting today to pledge themselves to whatever effort this nation of ours calls upon them to perform to win this war.

Mr. Speaker, I have heard in this House many remarks against the laboring man since my tenure started in January of 1939. I have stood on this floor and defended the laboring man of Pennsylvania and of this nation while others have tried to state that we were trying to give them special privileges. We know from the remarks of many of our leaders and from their words of praise that this war must be won through the efforts of the working men and the working women in the United States of America.

For the information of the Members of the House I would like to read an article which appeared in the Philadelphia Inquirer, dated Wednesday morning, April 1, 1942. This cable comes from Australia and reads as follows:

"Washington, March 31. General Douglas MacArthur today cabled the C.I.O. Executive board that it is his firm conviction that labor will 'prove the indestructible backbone that will determine the present vital struggle.'

"MacArthur's message expressed appreciation for a pledge made to him by the C. I. O. for a 100 percent war production, and was accompanied by a cable from Albert Monk, president of the Australian Council of Trade Unions, who said a close bond has been established between workers of Australia and the United States."

That is the very statement I made here in the regular session of 1941 when we were trying to put the labor anti-injunction bill and labor relation bills back to the 1937 status, that regardless of the fact that some of the industries are willing to take from this government of ours as high as two hundred and sixteen percent profit on war orders, regardless of what obstruction they might make, the working man and working woman would eventually be the ones who would win this war.

I make this statement for the record because I know that there are six hundred thousand United Mine Workers assembled throughout the United States and Canada today who are pledging themselves, to make whatever sacrifices they are called upon to make in order that we might be successful from now on. I thank you.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. SHEPARD asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I want to bring to the attention of this House a matter of vital importance to the war effort of this Nation insofar as Pennsylvania is concerned. There have been brought to my attention many instances of persons who are engaged in our defense efforts who have misused the privileges afforded them because of their positions in the various defense agencies, to carry on political, partisan activities.

I think it ought to be said again and again and stated in no uncertain terms that this is not a Republican war or a Democratic war; it is not a white man's war or a black man's war, though I submit, Mr. Speaker and members of the House, if the black men were given a more equal opportunity in the prosecution of this war it would be over much sooner.

But I do want to state, Mr. Speaker, that many times it has been brought to my attention that the persons acting as air raid wardens and auxiliary policemen and firemen and even members of certain priority and tire rationing boards, have been accused of political favoritism. This ought not to be so. This is a war of all the people of this country for the preservation of certain freedoms and decencies in life without which life would not be worth while on this earth.

To this end, Mr. Speaker, in order to prevent such miscarriages of justice, such betrayals of trust, I offer and introduce a bill. This may not be the correct bill, insofar as lawyers are concerned, I will have to submit that to their judgment because I am not a lawyer. Thank God! I do say, Mr. Speaker, that if necessary this House should remain in session long enough to pass this bill. I have no pride of authorship—familiar words—but I do think this legislature ought to stay in session long enough to pass this bill or a similar bill or any bill that is designed and will serve to prohibit political activities on the part of those persons connected with our defense efforts, so that the all-out effort of America to win this war will be an all-out effort in every respect. I thank you.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be filed with the Clerk under the rules of the House.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia is accustomed to slinging barbs at the profession of which I happen to be a member, and of which I am very proud to be a member, because after all it always seemed to me that lawyers knew where they were going after this life, but ministers never knew just where they were going. Of course, there are some ministers about whom we have no doubt as to where they are going. You can take that either way.

I arise in defense of the men and women who are doing this great voluntary work in civilian defense. After all, politics pervades most everything we do in life. I see no difference between what happens in the local communities and what is happening in Washington. I take no umbrage at the fact that they are playing as much politics in Washington in the war effort as would be played at any other time. All the newspapers constantly recount, and those who are observers in Washington constantly recount the fact that there politics is being played with war efforts as far as the national efforts are concerned. Yet I raise no question about that because it seems to me that it is just human nature and you cannot do very much about it.

As the war effort intensifies, as our people become more concerned with the war, as I think they are today, as they redouble their efforts, tighten their belts, I think that will all be swept away. There are hundreds and thousands of men and women in Pennsylvania today who I know have no political interest in the work they are doing. They are not injecting any politics, they are just trying to do their part.

Last night I met my former colleague, the former majority and former minority leader on this side, now Judge Woodside, on the street, and he told me that the night before his wife and himself had taken a hitch at two o'clock in the morning as airplane spotters. It would not ordinarily be considered necessary that a judge on the bench partake in that activity, and yet in his desire to do his part he is doing his little bit in civilian defense.

There is no question about the fact that civilian defense was greatly retarded by the politics that were originally injected into its organization. I think if there is any reason for the confusion that exists in the minds of the people, if there is any reason why we do not make as great progress as we ought to make in civilian defense, it is because of the deplorable condition that existed in the leadership in civilian defense. However, after a period of some six or eight months the call of the American people was so loud that that condition was straightened out. I think we have in civilian defense today in Washington and throughout the nation a real desire to bring about order and to bring about efficiency and get the right kind of an organization to do the job.

Therefore, I do not feel it is fair for anyone today to stand here on the floor of the House and accuse a vast majority of able and patriotic men and women, who are actuated by no other desire than to do their duty and to have some opportunity to play some part in the great effort for civilian defense, of playing politics. If some irresponsible minority, if some few who do not realize the responsibility of their position, if some are not patriotic enough, whether it be in civilian defense locally or whether it be in Washington, that is matter that I think we can all condemn, but let us not condemn the great group of men and women, whether they be in Washington or whether they be in Harrisburg, or whether they be in any of the little villages and hamlets in the state of Pennsylvania.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. GATES asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, in my six years experience in this House I have never heard more sincere and honest expressions from the Members of this House than I have heard this morning in the speeches that have been made.

I am more particularly interested in the sincerity and efforts of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, and also in the sincerity and efforts of the minority floor leader, the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, in attempting to bring before this House and the Senate the compromise understanding on the unemployment compensation act. I was surprised when I listened to a resolution by the members of the Senate asking that we concur in the resolution to adjourn next Tuesday.

I met Ellwood Turner on the street last evening, and I remonstrated with him about the adjournment. May I say to you that he concurred and agreed with me that we had work to do before adjournment. Mr. Turner said it was not the place of the Members of the House of Representatives to dictate to the Senate what they should do or what they should not do, and I believe all of us concur in that opinion. But I also believe, men of this House, that the opposite is true, that the Senate of the state of Pennsylvania has no right to dictate to the Members of the House of Representatives what we should do. We have a form of government in which we are supposed to work in harmony, to try to iron out the problems of the state of Pennsylvania, and I believe maybe for the first time in the history of the state we should send word back to the honorable body of the Senate of the state of Pennsylvania that we will not concur in the resolution to adjourn until the full duty of this House has been accomplished.

SENATE MESSAGES

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 10.

An Act to further amend section six hundred twenty-eight and to amend section six hundred twenty-nine of the act approved the third day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1333), entitled "An act concerning elections including general municipal special and primary elections the nomination of candidates primary and election expenses and election contests creating and defining membership of county boards of elections imposing duties upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth courts county boards of elections county commissioners imposing penalties for violation of the act and codifying revising and consolidating the laws relating thereto and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to elections" extending the time within which writs of election may issue for holding special elections to fill vacancies occurring in either house of the General Assembly and the time within which nominations therefor may be filed.

Said bill having been recalled from the Governor for the purpose of amendment, the vote had on final passage and third reading reconsidered in the House and the bill amended, in amendments the Senate has concurred.

AMENDED SENATE BILL RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 28.

An Act to further amend Section 801 of the act, approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 457), entitled "An act relating to the business of building and loan associations, providing for the organization and voluntary dissolution of such associations; defining the rights, powers, duties, liabilities, and immunities of such associations, and of their officers, directors, shareholders, solicitors, and other employes; prohibiting the transaction of business in this Commonwealth by foreign building and loan associations; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the courts, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; establishing limitations of actions; imposing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts", by authorizing building and loan associations to act as fiscal agents of the United States Government for the sale of United States Defense Bonds and Defense Stamps, and permitting such associations to pledge their assets for the faithful performance of their duties as such agents.

Said bill having been recalled from the Governor for amendment, the vote had on final passage and third reading reconsidered in the Senate and the bill amended, in which amendments the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 1, page 4, line 3, by striking out after the word "Stamps" the word "and".

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. ACHTERMAN. HOUSE BILL No. 107.

An Act to prevent interference with the prosecution of the war in which this Nation is engaged, by suspending section three of the act, approved the twenty-second day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 414), entitled "An act to provide revenue for State purposes; imposing taxes upon certain classes of personal property; providing for the assessment, collection, and lien of the same, and the distribution of the proceeds thereof; imposing duties on executors, administrators, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, prothonotaries, and court clerks, and on persons, copartnerships, associations, banks, national banks, trust companies, and other corporations receiving deposits of money, and on certain corporations and limited partnerships; conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments; imposing penalties; and making an appropriation," as reenacted and amended, imposing a State tax on personal property.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

By Messrs. WEISS and MAXWELL.

HOUSE BILL No. 108.

An Act to amend section three of the act, approved the sixteenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 383), entitled "An act concerning the permanent recordation of certain births, birth certificates, the issuance of copies of such certificates, and prescribing the procedure therefor; enlarging the powers and duties of the Department of Health and the Bureau of Vital Statistics; providing for appeals from the action of the Bureau of Vital Statistics to the Orphans' Court, and imposing duties and powers on such Orphans' Court," by modifying provisions thereof in order to provide for immediate petition to the Orphans' Court under certain circumstances for a limited period of time, and imposing additional duties and powers on such Orphans' Court and the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the Department of Health.

By Mr. SHEPARD. HOUSE BILL No. 109.

An Act to prohibit, during a limited period, certain workers for State, local and district councils of defense, or for certain Federal boards, agencies or instrumentalities engaged in defense and war activities, from engaging in political activity; and providing penalties.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

SENATE MESSAGE

SENATE BILL FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence, bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 61. (HOUSE BILL No. 110).

An Act to add section one thousand one hundred and ten to the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine P. L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate amend and revise the penal laws of the Commonwealth" by prescribing additional penalties in the case of the commission of larceny or robbery of things affected by priorities rationing or other restrictions during time of war.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. SHEPARD and BROWN.

RESOLUTION No. 43.

In the House of Representatives, April 1, 1942.

Lincoln University, located forty miles from Philadelphia, is a liberal arts college for Negro men, with an enrollment of 367. It is an old established institution which has carried on its work for more than eighty years. Among its graduates have been some of the most prominent leaders of the Negro race. Many of its alumni now occupy responsible positions in public life. It is the only liberal arts college for Negroes in the northeastern area of the United States.

The University owns 275 acres in the most beautiful part of southeastern rural Pennsylvania. It is State aided, receiving biennial appropriations from the State of Pennsylvania. During the last war, Lincoln University had a student army training corps, which, in 1918, received a high official rating; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania hereby respectfully petitions the War Department of the United States Government to install a Reserve Officers Training Corps at Lincoln University, in Chester County, Pennsylvania, for the training of students to become officers in the United States Army; and be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of War of the United States, and to each senator and member from this Commonwealth in the Congress of the United States.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

By Mr. BRADLEY. RESOLUTION No. 44.

In the House of Representatives, April 1, 1942.

Whereas, The United States of America is now engaged in a life and death struggle against a coalition of foreign powers; and

Whereas, The efficient and successful conduct of modern mechanized warfare is as much or more an economic matter as it is a military problem; and

Whereas, One of the most vital elements in strengthening the economic front of the present war is an efficient and adequate transportation system within the boundaries of the United States; and

Whereas, The widespread use of motor trucks constitutes an essential link in such transportation system; and

Whereas, The existence of different weight limitations upon trucks while traveling throughout the various states comprising this Nation has served to impede materially the efficiency of the motor truck transportation system at a time when it is most needed; and

Whereas, The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania now imposes by statute a weight limitation upon motor trucks using the highways of the Commonwealth which is lower than that in effect in certain neighboring states; and

Whereas, The immediate necessity for the motor truck transportation system to operate at its highest possible efficiency requires that the weight limitations on such trucks be suspended during the continuation of the present war so as to permit trucks up to weights of 50,000 pounds to operate over Pennsylvania highways in the hauling of coal, iron, military supplies and other commodities vital to the war effort; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania favors relaxation of the weight limitation upon motor trucks in order that the prosecution of the war may be facilitated; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of Revenue be empowered to take whatever steps may be necessary to effectuate such relaxation of weight limitations.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

THURSDAY, April 2, 1942

The House met at 10 a. m.
The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

"I tell Him all my sorrows,
I tell Him all my joys,
I tell Him all that pleases me,
I tell Him what annoys;
He tells me what I ought to do,
He tells me how to try,
And so we talk together, My Lord and I."

Dear God, I covet these words of the poet for every member of this House of Representatives, especially as each man returns home to his family and friends. On the day he chooses to worship Thee may he find the message in Song and Word inspiring and challenging to his own heart and soul.

Today we give thanks to Thee for men in the past who because of a vision have made possible free schools within our beloved State. All that is good has been inspired through Thy love for mankind. Help us, our God, to be true to the principles of right which have as a stimulus, the factor of love—the love of God which passeth all understanding. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. LEVY. RESOLUTION No. 45.

In the House of Representatives, April 1, 1942.

Whereas, The United States of America is now engaged in a life and death struggle against a coalition of foreign nations; and

Whereas, Although this war has so far been fought in foreign lands, modern land, sea and air weapons are developing so swiftly that actual blows may be struck within the borders of our country and state; and

Whereas, In a nation such as ours, there is always strong possibility of sabotage by enemy aliens; and

Whereas, These possibilities of destruction and violence here at home necessitate that certain precautions be taken to safeguard the civilian population, particularly the children of school age; and

Whereas, It is of greatest importance that the numerous school buildings throughout the Commonwealth be placed and kept in such condition that the children using such buildings be safeguarded as completely as possible in case of air raids, sabotage, or other acts of violence and destruction; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the State Council of Education and the Superintendent of Public Instruction be requested to make a survey of the condition, equipment and safety of all school buildings throughout the State, to the end that such buildings be placed and kept in the state of greatest possible security and safety for school children who may happen to be therein during any of the disturbances which ay result from the present war; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the Superintendent of Public Instruction and to the State Council of Defense.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Messrs. PRESLEY N. JONES and CHARLES H. BRUNNER offered a resolution which was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 2, 1942.

The House of Representatives is grieved to learn of the death on Wednesday, March 25th, of J. Ambrose Weingartner, the only brother of the Hon. George T. Weingartner, popular and able Member of the House of Representatives.

J. Ambrose Weingartner was born in Lawrence County and became outstanding in the contracting field. He and his brother were raised together, attended school together, and remained very close throughout their lives. The passing of J. Ambrose Weingartner is a great loss to our fellow-member from Lawrence County, and the membership of the House of Representatives sympathizes with him in so great a bereavement, therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives notes with sorrow the passing of J. Ambrose Weingartner, and be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to his son and also to his brother the Hon. George T. Weingartner, by the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives.

SENATE

MONDAY, April 6, 1942

The Senate met at 4:00 o'clock, p. m., E. W. T.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Eternal God, whose kingdom is the universe, and whose subjects are the children of men, may we recognize Thy sovereignty and profess with fidelity our loyalty. There is no other ruler to whom we bow the knee. May we bow to Thee in all reverence and humility.

Since last we met many of us have rejoiced on the anniversary of the resurrection of our Lord. He who brought life and immortality to the world by His death and His victory over death gives to those who accept Him that "hope which maketh not ashamed."

When life's road becomes perplexing and the burdens heavy, and faith falters before the fact of death, may He who overcame the world cause the feeble flame on the altars of our hearts to glow again.

We ask Thy guidance and protection for our President, our Governor and for all in authority. Cover with Thy protecting care the officers and all soldiers of our country.

All we ask is in the name of our Lord. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

HOUSE MESSAGE

HOUSE CONCURS IN AMENDMENTS TO SENATE BILL No. 28, RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, informed the Senate that the House has concurred in amendments made by the Senate to Senate Bill No. 28, entitled:

An Act to further amend Section 801 of the act approved the fifth day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 457) entitled, "An act relating to the business of building and loan associations providing for the organization and voluntary dissolution of such associations defining the rights powers duties liabilities and immunities of such associations and of their officers directors shareholders solicitors and other employes prohibiting the transaction of business in this Commonwealth by foreign building and loan associations conferring powers and imposing duties upon the courts recorders of deeds and certain State departments commissions and officers establishing limitations of actions imposing penalties and repealing certain acts and parts of acts" by authorizing building and loan associations to act as fiscal agents of the United States Government for the sale of United State Defense Bonds and Defense Stamps or obligations of the United States Government of a similar character and purpose and permitting such associations to pledge their assets for the faithful performance of their duties as such agents.

Said bill having been recalled from the Governor for the purpose of amendment. The votes had on final passage and third reading were reconsidered in the Senate and the bill amended.

BILLS SIGNED

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) announced that the Chief Clerk having reported that the following bills had passed both houses of the General Assembly and the same being correct, the titles were publicly read as follows:

Senate Bill No. 28, entitled:

An Act to further amend Section 801 of the act approved the fifth day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 457) entitled "An act relating to the business of building and loan associations providing for the organization and voluntary dissolution of such associations defining the rights powers duties liabilities and immunities of such associations and of their officers directors shareholders solicitors and other employes prohibiting the transaction of business in this Commonwealth by foreign building and loan associations conferring powers and imposing duties upon the courts recorders of deeds and certain State departments commissions and officers establishing limitations of actions imposing penalties and repealing certain acts and parts of actst" by authorizing building and loan associations to act as fiscal agents of the United States Government for the sale of United States Defense Bonds and Defense Stamps or obligations of the United States Government of a similar character and purpose and permitting such associations to pledge their assets for the faithful performance of their duties as such agents.

House Bill No. 10, entitled:

An Act to further amend section six hundred twenty-eight and to amend section six hundred twenty-nine of the act approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1333), entitled "Pennsylvania Election Code," extending the time within which writs of election may issue for holding special elections to fill vacancies occurring in either house of the General Assembly, and the time within which nominations therefore may be filed.

Whereupon,

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the presence of the Senate signed the same.

COMMUNICATION FROM SECRETARY OF PROPERTY AND SUPPLIES

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is in receipt of a communication from the Secretary of Property and Supplies, which the Clerk will read.

The communication was read as follows:

REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE OF PENNSYLVANIA

April 2, 1942.

Hon. Samuel S. Lewis
The Lieutenant-Governor
Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
Harrisburg, Pa.

Dear Sam:

As Presiding Officer of the Senate, will you be good enough to express my sincere appreciation to all members of the Senate for the courtesy extended to me by their confirmation of my appointment as Secretary of Property and Supplies.

Cordially yours,

(Signed) JAMES F. TORRANCE.

The PRESIDENT. If there is no objection the communication will be spread upon the Journal.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. CRIDER, from the Committee on Constitutional Changes, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 59, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to Article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by adding thereto section eighteen.

Mr. SNOWDEN, from the Committee on Highways, reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 84, entitled:

An Act to conserve metal by suspending the provisions of article five of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," and its amendments, in so far as they require the issuance and use of more than one registration plate.

BILL INTRODUCED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, on behalf of the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, the Senator from Clearfield, Mr. Letzler, the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, and the leader of the Pension Party, Senator John J. Haluska, and myself, I introduce the following bill.

I might add, Mr. President, that the Democratic Floor Leader was offered a chance to pick a sponsor, and declined to do so.

Messrs. HEYBURN, WALKER, LETZLER, HALUSKA and GELTZ read in their places and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 87, entitled:

An Act creating a Joint Legislative Committee, for the purpose of investigating and studying plans, methods and systems for the liberalization of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide benefits for partial unemployment; providing for its appointment; authorizing the employment of necessary assistance and making an appropriation.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I just want to remind the majority of the Senate that there is now operating a Joint Legislative Committee doing exactly the same work that is prescribed in that bill, and it has an appropriation made by the last General Assembly.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, this bill was introduced in response to an urgent request by organized labor. The Republican Party, always having its ears open to the demands of labor, agreed to introduce this bill.

I know that the Senator from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, happens to be a member of the Joint State Government Commission; I do not know what objections these fellows have to that Commission, unless it be political. I do not know whether that is the objection or not, but they did insist on a special commission, and the Republican Caucus agreed to have introduced such a bill. It is rather late in the session, I know, but the Honorable Leo Achterman of the House of Representatives was requested to introduce such a bill last Thursday, and he having failed to do so, we are introducing it in the Senate today.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not want to get into any squabble over the thing. Go ahead and put the bill in and pass it if you want to, but I would like to state that a fifty thousand dollar appropriation was made to the Joint State Government Commission, with a wide range of activity that it can indulge in, and a committee was created by that Commission to study nothing but unemployment compensation, of which I am Chairman, and it has already held at least seventeen public hearings, in the Capitol here at Harrisburg. If you want to just go ahead and indulge in pleasing somebody in order to get political votes, that is perfectly all right with me, but anybody with any brains in Pennsylvania knows that the Republican Party always has its ears open for labor, but never has its mouth open to vote for them.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I do not want to carry this argument on any longer, but the fact remains that the committee of which the Senator from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, is chairman, has not produced any solution to the partial unemployment compensation problem, and I suppose that is the reason that organized labor and employers alike want a special study made of it.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I can keep up a dog fight as long as anybody else can. The only reason the committee has not produced anything to date is because the committee is not ready to make a report at this useless Session of the Legislature.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order.

The Senate resumed the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 56, (House Bill No. 8), entitled:

An Act to further amend section two of and to add Sections four and five to the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" by more fully defining amounts payable limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 83, (House Bill No. 56), on second reading, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Secretary of Revenue of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, with approval of the Secretary of Highways during a certain limited period of time, to adopt rules and regulations relative to the use of the highways by motor vehicles, tractors, trailers or other equipment which cannot be fitted with rubber tires or treads, because of the shortage of rubber and providing for the suspension of certain inconsistent legislation.

be recommitted to the Committee on Highways.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

REQUEST THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I ask that Senate Bill No. 85, on second reading, entitled:

An Act prescribing temporary emergency war provisions with respect to the administration of certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth relating to days for schools to be in session closing schools temporarily assignment and reassignment of teachers and temporary farm and domestic employment certificates for certain pupils and authorizing boards of school directors (or boards of public instruction) with approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to put such provisions into operation and to suspend the provisions of existing school laws inconsistent therewith upon findings by such boards and department and the State Council of Defense.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, with reference to the request of the Senator from Allegheny, it seems to me that the bill ought to pass second reading. There is to be a conference of parties that are interested in this bill, and if it passes second reading, then it will not lose a legislative day in coming up for third reading, and that is important at this stage.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I renew my request that the bill go over in order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. EDMONDS. I must object, Mr. President.

MOTION THAT SENATE BILL No. 85 GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 85 go over in order.

Mr. DENT. I second the motion, Mr. President.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Montgomery permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EDMONDS. With pleasure.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I understand that there is going to be a conference on this bill, a conference of interested parties. Does that include the minority members of this Senate, too?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, it includes anybody that may be interested, and I will be particularly glad if the gentleman from Berks, Dr. Ruth, will come. I understand there are several teachers groups here today, and consequently, a little bit later, we are going to ask for a recess of the Senate for a few minutes, to meet in one of the corner rooms, and I hope all minority members interested in this bill will come, by all means.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I have not heard an invitation prior to this time, and may I ask the gentleman from Montgomery whether the convention, or whatever he is calling, is a committee meeting or whether it is an ex parte convention of some kind.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, inasmuch as I have asked Dr. Ruth, unless Dr. Ruth has joined our side, I would say that it is not an ex parte meeting, and I also wish to say that any of the Senators who are interested in this bill will be welcome at that meeting.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, without impugning the ability of the gentleman from Berks, Dr. Ruth, I am speaking for myself. I am a member of the Senate, and I would rather have the bill discussed on the floor of the Senate where we will all have a chance to contribute our comments, whether good or bad.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, the mere fact of the proposal of the gentleman from Montgomery that there is going to be meeting on the provisions of this bill, ought to give weight to the suggestion of the gentleman from Allegheny that it go over in order. Do you intend to have a packed committee? Suppose there are suggestions that are made there that may lead to amendments to the bill and if it has passed second reading, then, of course, you will have to reconsider the vote by which it passed second reading and put your amendments in. If you are going to have any kind of an open hearing, I think the fair thing to do is to allow the bill to go over in order, so that any amendments which may be suggested can be added to the bill at the proper reading.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I will be glad to accept a suggestion made by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Geltz, to have this bill go over temporarily, until after recess. At that time we will know whether there is anything to the suggestion or the suspicion which my friend from Westmoreland has stated.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I did not think that chivalry was so long dead that we could not be decent to one another. It seems if we make a suggestion it is no good, it has to come from their own members.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—17

Cavalcante,	Farrell,	Lanius,	Reed,
Coleman,	Frey,	McCreesh,	Stiefel,
Cox,	Haluska,	McGinnis,	Walker,
Deitrick,	Jaspan,	McQuiddy,	Ziesenheim,
Dent,

NAYS—23

Bartlett,	Ealy,	Miller,	Thomas,
Becker,	Edmonds,	Ruth,	Tyler,
Carr,	Geltz,	Snowden,	Wade,
Chapman,	Homsher,	Stevenson,	Watkins,
Crider,	Letzler,	Tallman,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	Mallery,	Taylor,

Less than a majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the negative.

SENATE BILL No. 85 OVER IN ORDER TEMPORARILY

Mr. GELTZ. I ask that Senate Bill No. 85 go over in its order temporarily, until after the meeting which has been talked of.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

It is so ordered.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I just want to call attention of the Senate to the fact that when a motion is made that a bill go over in order, it does not carry any particular length of time that the order may extend, it may be for fifteen minutes, twenty minutes, or until after recess or anything else, but since that motion was made by a Democrat, I guess this new motion is perfectly in order.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, if what my colleague from Westmoreland, Senator Dent, says is true, he should have no objection.

Mr. DENT. I have no objection.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 5:30 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE, Charles H. Ealy. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

BILL INTRODUCED

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. WALKER read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 88, entitled:

An Act requiring the Secretary of Health to purchase and install adequate equipment and hire sufficient employes to enable the Bureau of Vital statistics to speedily record birth records and issue birth certificates; authorizing the said secretary to temporarily suspend certain existing laws, and making an appropriation.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, in presenting this bill I would like to state that this is an exact duplicate of House Bill No. 80, Printer's No. 68, which was introduced by Messrs. Hare and Stambaugh in the House.

Mr. President, this bill is directed to the problem of trying to relieve the bottleneck in the Bureau of Vital Statistics with reference to birth certificates. It is the thought of the original sponsors of the bill, and with that thought I heartily concur, that perhaps this method might be of assistance in procuring birth certificates. I might say, Mr. President, the reason is so important in the County of Allegheny, as it is in the other sixty-six counties of the State, but particularly in our tremendous industrial area, is that most of the defense plants, and practically all of the plants in Allegheny County are engaged in defense work, are issuing strict orders that every employe must procure a birth certificate, and the hardship and the heartache that has been created is absolutely beyond description.

We all know the valiant effort the Bureau of Vital Statistics is making to meet this tremendous demand that has been placed on them, and they have our heartfelt sympathy, and by way of assisting them and not in the light of criticism, this bill is introduced.

Mr. President, the bill calls for an appropriation, and therefore in hope, fear and trembling, I would suggest the Committee on Appropriations.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The bill is referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. STIEFEL, from the Committee on Appropriations reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 87, entitled:

An Act creating a Joint Legislative Committee, for the purpose of investigating and studying plans, methods and systems for liberalization of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide benefits for partial unemployment; providing for its appointment; authorizing the employment of necessary assistance and making an appropriation.

SENATE BILL No. 85 ON SECOND READING CALLED UP

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I now call up Senate Bill No. 85, on second reading, page 4 of the Calendar, which went over in its order, temporarily while we had a conference with those who are interested in the bill.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 85, entitled:

An Act prescribing temporary emergency war provisions with respect to the administration of certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth relating to days for schools to be in session closing schools temporarily assignment and reassignment of teachers, and temporary farm and domestic employment certificates for certain pupils and authorizing boards of school directors (or boards of public instruction) with the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to put such provisions into operation and to suspend the provisions of existing school laws inconsistent therewith upon findings by such boards and department and the State Council of Defense.

And said bill having been read at length the second time.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—35

Barr,	Ealy,	Letzler,	Taylor,
Bartlett,	Edmonds,	Mallery,	Thomas,
Becker,	Farrell,	McGinnis,	Tyler,
Carr,	Geltz,	Miller,	Wade,
Chapman,	Heyburn,	Reed,	Walker,
Coleman,	Homsher,	Ruth,	Watkins,
Crider,	Jaspan,	Snowden,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	Kephart,	Stevenson,	Ziesenheim,
DiSilvestro,	Lanius,	Stiefel,

NAYS—3

Cox,	McCreesh,	McQuiddy,

PRESENT—1

Dent,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

And said bill having been read at length the second time, and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

MOTION TO READ BILLS THE FIRST TIME

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the first reading of all bills reported from committees for the first time at today's session.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON FIRST READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 59, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to Article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by adding thereto section eighteen.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 84, entitled:

An Act to conserve metal by suspending the provisions of article five of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," and its amendments, in so far as they require the issuance and use of more than one registration plate.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 87, entitled:

An Act creating a Joint Legislative Committee, for the purpose of investigating and studying plans, methods and systems for liberalization of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide benefits for partial unemployment; providing for its appointment; authorizing the employment of necessary assistance and making an appropriation.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Tuesday, April 7, 1942, at 2:00 o'clock, p. m. Eastern War Time.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 5:59 o'clock, p. m. Eastern War Time until Tuesday, April 7, 1942, at 2:00 o'clock, p. m. Eastern War Time.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

MONDAY, April 6, 1942

The House met at 9 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, open Thou our hearts and minds to a greater understanding of Thy limitless love, as is found in the breath of Spring with the opening of the buds and the singing of the birds. All around us there is beauty. Make us sensitive to Thy leadings and alert to heed Thy merciful warnings when we are in danger of marring our lives by going astray.

Bless all who are assembled in this House of Representatives tonight. We pray Thee to look with favor upon all men in service. Truly, God, may the sacrifices made by our boys not be made in vain. Forgive us, our Heavenly Father, for every disloyal thought and each moment when we doubt. Make us conscious of the fact that the way to achieve good is the way to God, from whom all blessings flow. We realize that then, and only then, as a nation and as individuals we may be certain of victory over the enemies that confront us. Give us courage and a will to follow Thee whither so ever Thou dost lead. In Thy name we pray. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of Thursday, April 2, 1942.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of Thursday, April 2, 1942, when, on Motion of Mr. HEWITT unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 8.

An Act to further amend section two of and to add Sections four and five to the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" by more fully defining amounts payable limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment

With the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 2, page 5, line 5, by inserting before the word "dependency" the word "and"; also in line 12, by inserting after the word "service" the following: "and Provided further That no benefits under this act shall be paid to any dependent or dependents as herein defined in excess of such sum or sums as such dependent or dependents have been customarily receiving from such officer or employe or in excess of such sum or sums as such officer or employe has been paying such dependent or dependents under order of a court of competent jurisdiction"; also in line 16, by inserting after the word "said" the following: "Section 2 Said act is hereby amended by adding the following new sections".

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do non-concur in the amendments made by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

BILLS SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bills numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor, and the same being correct, the titles were publicly read as follows:

RECESS

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair will declare a recess for ten minutes. Is there objection? The Chair hears none and a recess is declared.

AFTER RECESS

The time of recess having expired the House was called to order.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 57, as follows:

An Act authorizing the secretary of the board of health in the various cities of the third class throughout the Commonwealth during the continuation of the present war and for six months thereafter to search and issue certified copies of birth and death records maintained by such cities after the State-wide system for registering vital statistics was established requiring that such birth and death records be made available to the secretary of the board of health for the purposes of this act and authorizing the respective city councils to prescribe fees for such services

Section 1 In any city of third class where the recordation of births and deaths was continued after the State-wide system for registering vital statistics provided for by the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred five (P. L. 330) became effective the secretary of the board of health is authorized to make and supply searches of such birth and death records and to furnish certified copies thereof upon the payment of such fee as may be prescribed by the city council Any birth and death records so maintained shall be made available to the secretary of the board of health in order that he may comply with the provisions of this act The secretary of the board of health is hereby authorized to make corrections in such birth or death records whenever upon the submission of satisfactory evidence and affidavits such corrections are found to be necessary and proper

Any certified copy of a birth or death record furnished under the provisions of this act shall be afforded the same recognition as a birth or death certificate duly issued by the Department of Health of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania it shall be prima facie evidence of all matters therein contained and shall be admissible in all judicial proceedings

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment and shall continue in operation during the period in which the United States of America is at war with any foreign country and for six months thereafter

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.
On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, this is one of several attempts being made in this session to do something to correct the very deplorable condition which has existed in the Bureau of Vital Statistics, occasioned because of the tremendous increase in the volume of applications for birth certificates that have arisen out of this war.

I think, Mr. Speaker, this is one of the most important questions for this legislature, and I hope that we do not adjourn until we have done the very best we can to solve this question. I do not believe that this bill, much as I have sympathy for the attempts of the gentlemen on the other side to correct this situation, I do not believe this is a proper way to correct it. I am confident that it will not meet the requirements of the Federal government and I am confident it will not pass the approval of the Department nor of the Governor.

The reason for that is this, Mr. Speaker: The registration of births and deaths is in the hands of registrars of vital statistics who are appointed by the Department of Health under the Bureau of Vital Statistics. In a great many municipalities, in a great many communities, there have been spasmodic attempts since 1906 to keep these records in shape.

An inquiry made by the gentleman from Erie, Mr. VanAllsburg, revealed that there are not more than a half-dozen cities of the third class in Pennsylvania whose records are in such shape that you could use them as a basis for issuing certificates. What the Federal Government requires, what the Army and Navy are requiring and what the Air Service is requiring, and what they are requiring in our plants is that the men and women, who work there shall present a certificate showing that they are native born Americans. That is a pre-requisite to employment, and in some instances we know that people have been dismissed because they have not been able to get certificates, or they have been threatened with dismissal because of delay.

I saw an article in one of the papers that they are something like sixty thousand applications behind over at the Bureau. Undoubtedly the difficulty there is not only due to the fact that the volume has increased but that the equipment necessary to carry that volume does not exist in the department, and it will take some time and cost a considerable amount of money to put sufficient equipment into effect.

I personally think no matter what it costs we ought to put in the necessary machinery, if that is the only way we can relieve this tremendous amount of delay and get our applications down to date. But you must remember on the other hand that you must safeguard the certificates. It is not proper to have careless records or a careless office issue certificates that are so important in this war effort.

This bill says that the third class cities may setup in the Department of Health a Bureau that can secure the records. It provides that the records must be given to them and that when they have them they can issue certificates of birth and that if there are any deficiencies in the records and the registrations they have, or if there is anything lacking in the records which they have on a particular birth then they may correct them.

What does this do? It means it takes away from the Bureau of Vital Statistics and the Department of Health all control over the issuance of those certificates. That would be pretty dangerous. I understand from other newspaper articles that the FBI has said that will not do at all, it is dangerous. In the second place, it permits the creation of a new bureau in cities of the third class where it seems to me there is no necessity for it because if you are going to give it to anyone it ought to be given to the Registrars of Vital Statistics. In the third place it permits anyone in a city bureau, without any control from the Department that has charge and receives its appropriation from the Federal Government to correct these records, and that is extremely dangerous.

In the next place it says that the city should set the amount of the fee. There is no control over the amount of the fee; there is no provision by which there is a ceiling placed on it. It permits them to set the fee. Therefore I think this bill will bring confusion, it is dangerous, it is out of line with the function of the Department or Bureau of Vital Statistics, and therefore, this bill should not be passed.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. YESTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of information.

Mr. YESTER Mr Speaker, is the gentleman from Delaware, Mr Turner, speaking on House Bill No. 57?

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. YESTER. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman misunderstands the bill. At the present time the city of McKeesport is issuing birth certificates from 1892 to 1906.

This bill provides that any city that has records of its own, not the registrars be allowed to issue birth certificates. The city of McKeesport has over eighteen thousand records which at the present time they cannot use because of the law. If this bill becomes a law it does not affect the registrars at all; it does not take any records from them. It only affects those cities that have kept up their records after 1905, and it will take a load from the Bureau of Vital Statistics, if they are allowed to do that. . I believe if the gentleman will study the bill further he will find that that is what the bill provides.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—0

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 71, as follows:

A Supplement to the act approved the eighteenth day of July one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 1043) entitled "An act establishing a public school employes' retirement system and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonwealth and contributing employes defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner of payments therefrom and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds imposing powers and duties upon boards having the employment of public school employes exempting annuities allowances returns benefits and rights from taxation and judicial process and providing penalties" defining the rights and obligations of certain members of the School Employes' Retirement Association engaged in active military service

Section 1 Definitions The following words and phrases as used in this act unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context shall have the following meanings

(1) "The act to which this is a supplement" shall mean the act approved the eighteenth day of July one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 1043) entitled "An act establishing a public school employes' retirement system and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonwealth and contributing employes defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner of payments therefrom and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds imposing powers and duties upon boards having the employment of public school employes exempting annuities allowances returns benefits and rights from taxation and judicial process and providing penalties" and all amendments thereto passed finally before the effective date of this act

(2) "Employe" shall mean any person who is an employe as defined in the act to which this is a supplement and whose salary or compensation is paid directly by the Commonwealth

(3) "Salary deductions" shall mean the amount certified by the Public School Employes' Retirement Board and either (a) deducted from the salary of a contributor to the School Employes' Retirement Fund and paid by the treasurer of each employer into the fund created by the act to which this is a supplement through the Department of Revenue under the provisions of section seven of said act or (b) deducted from any grant-in-aid subsidy or benefit payable or paid by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to an employe or his dependent or dependents while in active military service as defined in this act and paid into the Retirement Fund by the State Treasurer through the Department of Revenue

(4) "Board" shall mean the Public School Employes' Retirement Board created by the act to which this is a supplement

(5) "Active military service" shall mean full time service in the armed forces of the United States under a requisition from or by executive order of the President of the United States or in the armed forces organized for the defense of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by the authority of this Commonwealth

Section 2 An employe who enters into active military service may elect to continue to pay into the School Employes' Retirement Fund his salary deductions on the basis of his salary on the date of his entry into such active military service Such election shall be in writing on the form prescribed by the board and it shall be filed with the board within thirty (30) days after the effective date of this act or within thirty (30) days after the member's induction into active military service By such election an employe shall authorize and direct the State Treasurer to pay into the School Employes' Retirement Fund an amount certified to the State Treasurer by the board as the member's salary deduction The State Treasurer shall deduct such amount from any monies payable to such employe or his dependent or dependents under the provisions of the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" or under any act of assembly extending the benefits of said act to employes or providing for the payment of grant-in-aid or subsidies to an employe while in active military service or under any law now in force or hereafter enacted and the State Treasurer shall pay the amount so deducted into the fund created by the act to which this is a supplement

Section 3 An employe who does not elect to pay into the School Employes' Retirement Fund during the period of his active military service an amount equal to his salary deductions may during the period of such active military service and for a further period of forty (40) days after completion of such active military service pay into the School Employes' Retirement fund an amount which shall be equal to the salary deductions multiplied by the number of the semi-monthly periods during which he or she was absent from State employment or State service in active military service to the credit of the annuity savings account in such manner as may be agreed upon by the employe and the board but in no event shall such payments be made in installments less than sufficient to pay such amount by the time the member attains superannuation retirement age

Section 4 An employe who complies with the provisions of section two or section three of this act shall after such election be classified by the board as an employe in active military service and shall thereafter during such active military service and for a period of forty (40) days after the completion of such active military service be entitled to all benefits to which he or she may be entitled upon the date of entry into active military service under the provisions of the act to which this is a supplement as fully as though such employe continued to be in the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania at the salary such employe had been receiving on the date of his or her entry into active military service Provided however That such employe shall not have the right to retire upon disability under the provisions of section thirteen of the act to which this is a supplement except as hereinafter provided If such member returns to the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth within a period of forty (40) days after such active military service the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall certify such member as an employe with active military service

Section 5 An employe who does not file with the board an election to pay his salary deductions into the School Employes' Retirement Fund as provided in section two of this act shall be classified as a nonpaying member in active military service of the School Employes' Retirement Association until he shall return to the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth or until such member complies with section three of this act in the manner provided or for the period of such active military service and for forty (40) days after the completion of such active military service Such member shall enjoy all the benefits to which the member was entitled on the date of entry into active military service under any law of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating to the School Employes' Retirement Association and the School Employes' Retirement Fund Provided however That such member shall not have the right to retire upon disability under the provisions of section thirteen of the act to which this is a supplement except as hereinafter provided If such member returns to the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth within a period of forty (40) days after such active military service the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall certify such member as an employe with active military service

Section 6 An employe who shall have withdrawn from actual State employment or actual State service for active military service may after his or her return to actual State employment or actual State service but not later than forty (40) days after the completion of such active military service request the board for a physical and medical examination At a time and place within the Commonwealth and by an examiner or examiners to be designated by the board the applicant shall appear for and submit to such examination If the examiner or examiners shall find as a fact that such employe is free from physical or mental incapacity which renders him or is likely to render him incapable of performing the duties of his employment the examiner or examiners shall so certify to the board whereupon the board shall classify the applicant as a member free from active military service disability and thereupon such member shall become entitled to enjoy all the benefits to which the member was entitled under the act to which this is a supplement on the date of entry into active military service If the examiner or examiners shall find as a fact that such employe is physically or mentally incapacitated for the performance of the duties of the employment which he had when last in the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth the examiner or examiners shall certify to the board the nature and degree of such physical or mental incapacity or disability whereupon the board shall classify the applicant as a member with active military service disability and thereupon such member may elect to accept the benefit of the provisions of section twelve of the act to which this is a supplement or the benefit of section eight of this act or the benefits of the act to which this is a supplement without disability rights and shall be classified by the board as employe without disability rights Such employe shall enjoy all the rights incident to membership in the Retirement System except the right to retire for disability or upon disability and to receive a disability retirement allowance Such member's salary deduction shall be reduced accordingly Such election shall be in writing in form prescribed by the board and shall be filed with the board not later than fifty (50) days after the completion of such active military service

Section 7 The form and content of the examination and certificate required by section six of this act shall be prescribed by the board with the advice of the board's actuary and a physician or psychiatrist to be by the board employed for that purpose

Section 8 All employes who shall have been engaged in active military service and who shall have returned to State employment or service without examination or certification as required by sections six and seven of this act shall be classified by the board as employes without disability rights Such employe shall enjoy all the rights incident to membership in the Retirement System except the right to retire for disability or upon disability and to receive a disability retirement allowance Such member's salary deduction shall be reduced accordingly.

Section 9 The amount by which the salary deduction of an employe without disability rights to be paid into the fund shall be reduced shall be determined by the board in accordance with tables to be prepared and certified by the actuary

Section 10 The provisions and benefits of this act shall be applied and extended to all employes who were members of the School Employes' Retirement System on October fifteenth one thousand nine hundred forty

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

NAYS—0

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 85, (Senate Bill No. 58), as follows:

An Act to further amend section seven hundred two to amend section seven hundred nineteen and to further amend section eight hundred and six of the act approved the third day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 1225) entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating thereto" by vesting in the Pennsylvania Game Commission the power to adjust hours for hunting training of dogs and carrying certain firearms and ammunition

Whereas A recently enacted Federal law advances Standard Time one hour daily for the duration of the war in which our Nation is engaged and for a period of six months thereafter and

Whereas Said time change adversely affects the safety and health of the many thousands of our citizens in this Commonwealth who enjoy the sport of hunting for recreation and pleasure by allowing an hour of hazardous hunting in the morning and denying the right to hunt during an hour of daylight at the end of the day contrary to the intent of the General Assembly as established in the Game Law and otherwise adversely affects privileges granted to the lovers of the chase by our statutes and

Whereas Since our Federal authorities deem it essential to the successful prosecution of the war to bolster and maintain the morale and health of our citizens by providing maximum recreational opportunities therefore

In order to vest in the Pennsylvania Game Commission the proper authority to make such time adjustments in our Game Law as may be found necessary to cope with the foregoing situation

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Section seven hundred two of the act approved the third day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 1225) entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating thereto" as amended by the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine (P. L. 810) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 702 Hunting on Sunday and at Night It is unlawful for any person to hunt for shoot at chase catch or kill or attempt to shoot at chase catch or kill with or without dogs any game except in defense of person or property upon the first day of the week commonly called Sunday except for dog training or trial purposes as hereinafter provided or to hunt for shoot at catch or kill or attempt to hunt for shoot at catch or kill any game between five o'clock post meridian of one day and seven o'clock antemeridian eastern standard time of the day following [or during such hours as shall be further restricted by resolution of the commission on the first day of any open season for game of any kind] except that raccoons may be hunted for and killed any time during the open season day or night and that woodchucks or other game then in season may be hunted for and killed between July first and September thirtieth between the hours of six o'clock antemeridian and seven-thirty o'clock postmeridian eastern standard time Sunday excepted Provided however (a) That the commission may by resolution further restrict the hours hereinbefore set forth on the first day of any open season for hunting and (b) the commission may by resolution change the daily hours stipulated in this section to make adjustment for time changes or time designations established by Federal law or by any regulations promulgated under Federal law This section shall not prohibit the removal of raccoons or fur-bearing animals from traps or deadfalls on Sunday when lawfully caught

Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be liable to the fine hereinafter provided

Section 2 Section seven hundred nineteen of said act is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 719 Training of Dogs on Certain Game Exception for Fox Hunting Except as otherwise provided in this act or in defense of person or property it is unlawful for the owner of any dog or a dog under his control to permit such dog to chase pursue or follow upon the track of any wild bird or wild animal either day or night between the first day of April and the nineteenth day of August next following Provided however That the commission upon receipt of a petition signed by two hundred and fifty (250) or more residents of a county who held hunting licenses of the previous year or who are farmers or sheep raisers whether licensed to hunt or not shall by resolution notice of which shall be published as required by this act designate any county or part thereof in which hunting foxes with dogs at any time either day or night shall be lawful throughout the entire year except for such sixty-day period as the commission may designate when complying with the provisions of this act relative to hunting licenses or permits

During the hours from sunrise to nine o'clock postmeridian eastern standard time dogs when accompanied by and under control of their owner or handler may be trained upon any game in this Commonwealth except elk deer or bear or wild turkey from the twentieth day of August to the thirty-first day of March next following unless said period be further restricted by resolution of the commission so long as no firearms usually raised at arm's length and fired from the shoulder are carried and no injury is inflicted upon said animals or birds except that during the foregoing period and under the conditions stipulated it shall be lawful to train dogs upon racoons from sunrise to midnight eastern standard time Provided however (a) That it shall be unlawful to train dogs on Sunday unless the consent of the owner of the land where such training is being done has first been secured but no such consent shall be required in the case of State and National forest lands and (b) that the commission may by resolution change the daily hours designated in this section to make adjustment for time changes or time designations established by Federal law or any regulations promulgated under Federal law

"Under control" is hereby defined to mean within call except when actually on a trail or track of legal game

Any person who shall train a dog or dogs or permit a dog or dogs under his control to pursue or follow upon the track of any small game or other bird or animal except elk deer or bear contrary to the foregoing provisions shall upon conviction be sentenced to pay a fine of ten dollars and costs of prosecution for each offense

Section 3 Section eight hundred six of said act as amended by the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine (Pamphlet Laws 810) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 806 Possession of Loaded Firearms and Certain Ammuntion Restricted (a) Except as otherwise provided by law it is unlawful for any person to have in his possession a loaded rifle or loaded shotgun or a rifle or shotgun from the magazine of which all shells and cartridges have not been removed in or on any vehicle conveyance or its attachments while standing upon or along or being driven upon or along any public highway or a highway open to use or used by the public within this Commonwealth Provided however That except as hereafter provided between five o'clock postmeridian of one day and seven o'clock antemeridian eastern standard time of the day following any unloaded rifle being lawfully carried in accordance with the foregoing provisions which is capable of discharging a cartridge larger than a .22 calibre long rifle shall be so carried only when in a case or taken apart and securely wrapped but this requirement relative to carrying certain rifles in cases or securely wrapped shall not apply during the period extending from the day before to the second day following any open season for big game

(b) Except during the open season for big game it is unlawful for any person to have in possession in or on any vehicle conveyance or its attachments while standing upon or along or being driven upon or along any public highway or a highway open to use by the public within this Commonwealth except as hereinafter provided between five o'clock postmeridian of one day and seven o'clock antemeridian eastern standard time of the day following any rifle cartridge larger than a .22 calibre long rifle or any shotgun shell containing either a single bullet or pellets larger than a B B unless all such cartridges or shells are carried in unbroken original cartons or securely wrapped

(c) Provided however (a) that during the period from July first to September thirtieth inclusive of each year the foregoing requirements relative to carrying certain unloaded firearms and ammunition shall be applicable only from eight-thirty o'clock postmeridian to five o'clock antemeridian eastern standard time and (b) that the commission may by resolution change the daily hours stipulated in subsections (a) (b) and (c) of this section to make adjustment for time changes or time designations established by Federal law or by any regulations promulgated under Federal law

(d) The provisions of this section shall not be construed to apply to a public police officer engaged in the performance of his official duty or to an officer whose duty it is to enforce the game law and engaged in the performance of his official duty

(e) Any person violating any of the provisions of this section while the vehicle is in motion or is being used as a blind from which to kill or attempt to kill game while the vehicle is not in motion shall upon conviction be sentenced to pay a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs of prosecution Any other violation of the provisions of this section shall upon conviction subject the person responsible therefor to a fine of ten dollars and costs of prosecution

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, will the sponsor of this bill please explain it?

The SPEAKER. The sponsor is in the Senate.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, will someone in the House please explain the bill?

The SPEAKER. Is there any member in the House who can explain the bill?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I think a casual reading of the bill will indicate that it gives to the Game Commission the right to change the hours of hunting so that they will comply with the new war time set up by the Federal Government.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection House Bill No. 109, Printer's No. 55, was passed over at the request of Mr. SHEPARD.

INTERROGATION

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shepard.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SHEPARD. I shall, Mr. Speaker, with certain provisions and reservations.

The SPEAKER. With certain provisions and reservations the gentleman from Delaware will proceed.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I do not like to agree to any provisions or reservations without knowing what they are but this time I will take a chance. Is the gentleman from Philadelphia willing to let it go over until after the session?

Mr. SHEPARD. I do not know, Mr. Speaker.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 95, as follows:

An Act authorizing temporary emergency war time increases in salaries of district superintendents assistant district superintendents and other professional employes of school districts and the discontinuance of such increases without the consent of such employe or a hearing before the board of school directors (or board of public education) or any right of appeal and suspending inconsistent laws

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Whenever because of increasing cost of living or competition with temporary higher paid employment during the continuance of any war in which this Nation is or may become engaged it is necessary to increase the salary of any district superintendent assistant district superintendent or other professional employe in any of the schools districts of the Commonwealth the board of school directors (or board of public education) may grant a temporary emergency war time increase in salary which increase in salary may when change in conditions so warrant be discontinued without the consent of the employe and without hearing before the board of school directors (or board of public education) and without any right of appeal All increases granted under the provisions of this act shall be specifically designated as temporary emergency war time increases This act shall not be construed so as to authorize any demotion of any professional employe either in salary or in type of position except only as to increases in salary hereby authorized and specifically granted as temporary emergency war time increases nor shall this act in any way interfere with the granting of minimum increments required by law which shall be granted when due in spite of the existence of any temporary emergency war time increase

Section 2 The provisions of section one thousand two hundred five A of the act approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred eleven (P. L. 309) entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith" as last amended by section three of the act approved the six day of April one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 213) are hereby suspended in so far as they are inconsistent herewith during the period of any war in which this Nation is or may become engaged and for the period of one year thereafter.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

NAYS—0

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 107, as follows:

An Act to prevent interference with the prosecution of the war in which this Nation is engaged by suspending section three of the act approved the twenty-second day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 414) entitled "An act to provide revenue for State purposes imposing taxes upon certain classes of personal property providing for the assessment collection and lien of the same and the distribution of the proceeds thereof imposing duties on executors administrators registers of wills recorders of deeds prothonotaries and court clerks and on persons copartnerships associations banks national banks trust companies and other corporations receiving deposits of money and on certain corporations and limited partnerships conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments imposing penalties and making an appropriation" as reenacted and amended imposing a State tax on personal property

Whereas The State personal property tax was imposed for the purpose of meeting appropriations for public assistance for which purpose the same is no longer needed and

Whereas Since the enactment of the legislation by which said tax was imposed the United States has become involved in the most costly war of all time a war in which she is required to produce arms ships airplanes tanks and all manner of military and naval supplies and equipment not only for her own armed forces but for those of all of her allies as well and

Whereas This prodigious task as well as the maintenance of many armies on all of the innumerable battle fronts the world over and the duty of patrolling and transporting men and equipment over every ocean and waterway require the expenditure of sums of money heretofore unheard of which sums of money must be obtained from the people of the United States by means of Federal taxation and the sale of defense savings stamps and bonds and

Whereas Payment of the State personal property tax interferes with the prosecution of the war in which this Nation is engaged by reducing the incomes of those who are required to pay the same making it unduly difficult for them to pay their Federal taxes and rendering it impossible for them to purchase stamps and bonds to help swell the national war chest for the diligent and energetic prosecution of this war in defense of free governments therefore

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 The provisions of section three of the act approved the twenty-second day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 414) entitled "An act to provide revenue for State purposes imposing taxes upon certain classes of personal property providing for the assessment collection and lien of the same and the distribution of the proceeds thereof imposing duties on executors administrators registers of wills recorders of deeds prothonotaries and court clerks and on persons copartnerships associations banks national banks trust companies and other corporations receiving deposits of money and on certain corporations and limited partnerships conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments imposing penalties and making an appropriation" as last reenacted and amended by the act approved the eleventh day of July one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 361) imposing a State tax on personal property are hereby suspended during the continuance of the war in which this Nation is now engaged and for the period of two years thereafter

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

CONSTITUTIONAL POINT OF ORDER

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to raise the constitutional point of order that this bill is unconstitutional, because it violates Section 17 of Article I of the Constitution, which is to the effect that no bill shall be passed impairing a contract.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, raises the Constitutional point of order that House Bill 107, Printer's No. 54, is unconstitutional in that it violates Article I, Section 17 of the Constitution. The Speaker under Rule 4 is required to submit questions affecting the constitutionality of bills to the House for decision, which the Chair now does.

On the question,

Will the House sustain the Constitutional point of order?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, in the session of 1941 we passed a bill which became Act 147, found on Page 381 of the Pamphlet Laws for that session. That act pledged all of the receipts accruing to the General Fund. The act specifically says that "Any loans negotiated under the provisions of this act shall be secured by the current revenues levied and assessed for revenue purposes of every kind or character accruing to the General Fund of the State Treasury during the two fiscal years beginning June 1, 1941, and shall be paid out of such revenues."

On that basis the state borrowed money on tax anticipation notes. If we were to suspend the provisions of that act, we would be taking away part of the security which we have already pledged for those notes, and that would be in violation of the Constitution.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me rather odd that that particular question should be raised. I recall back in November I suggested in an open letter to the Governor of Pennsylvania that in calling the special session I felt that one of the essential things should be tax reduction, so that the citizens of Pennsylvania could better cooperate in winning the war by releasing the frozen assets now in the treasury or coming into the treasury, so that the citziens of Pennsylvania could play their full and complete part in the war effort of the United States.

I sought, Mr. Speaker, and asked that we do the same thing that the State of New York has done this year, and many of the other states of the Union have been doing, and that is reduce our expenditures and pass that reduction on to the citizens of our state so that that money may be available for Federal tax payments and for the purchase of defense bonds.

I have not forgotten, Mr. Speaker, that then I was told, "Oh, just wait a while, wait a while; wait and see what we do in the first year, the complete year. It is true we are running way ahead, but let us wait." You will recall the words of the Governor to the Press, "I will call the session after the year to reduce taxes." The Governor would do it without hesitancy. But we are confronted with a problem now wherein the minority leader of this House says, "You cannot do it under the Constitution."

We cannot do it under the Constitution? Mr. Speaker, that is the question. We cannot reduce taxes when we have ample money and will have ample money in the treasury to pay every penny of the obligations that he is speaking of. We are not going to default in one penny of it. The money will be there. It is unconstitutional then to suspend a tax that is not needed for the expenditures of this Commonwealth nor for its obligations?

That is the question before this House. Can we give to the people of Pennsylvania relief? Can we place the people of Pennsylvania in a position so that they can cooperate one hundred percent with the war effort? Those are the questions, Mr. Speaker, that the minority leader would have you vote on, bearing always in mind that we are not defaulting on one penny of the obligations of this Commonwealth. Every penny will be there at the end of the biennium and before the biennium is over to meet the obligations to the bankers of Pennsylvania.

I am saying, Mr. Speaker, we are not violating the Constitution in any manner and I am adding that we are coming clearly within the call of the Governor in his supplement, paragraph one, which provides that we may suspend laws that we find are in any manner interfering with the proper operation of the war or our cooperation in it.

I submit, Mr. Speaker, to the membership of this House that we are definitely within the call and that we are not violating the Constitution in any manner.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I am sure the gentleman from Monroe has gone far afield in his effort to justify the introduction of this bill. If the gentleman from Monroe got into a controversy or a letter writing contest with the Governor of Pennsylvania, then much as I dislike to do so—however, I have been in that same position many times before—I will have to differ with two such eminent lawyers as the majority leader and the Governor of Pennsylvania.

I think both of them have a desire to reduce taxes. I am sure that both the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman and myself, in the position in which we find ourselves this spring, would be most delighted to go out before the people of Pennsylvania as the men who have reduced taxes. And nothing, Mr. Speaker, is as popular as a reduction of taxes, nothing is as unpopular as the imposition of taxes. We all know that, and every Member of this House would like to go on record, if it would be possible, to reduce taxes to the lowest possible degree. The mounting Federal tax burden placed upon everyone of us by the war, the staggering load, and not the rich people alone are bearing it, but it is getting down to the brackets where the little man is contributing a very large share, and a share that is very difficult many times for him to contribute to the income of the Commonwealth and the Federal Government.

However, much as we would like to waive taxes and get rid of them, we have an obligation. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania under our direction and under the act passed by us has pledged security for loans which have been made upon taxes to be collected and placed in the general fund during these two years. For us to take away part of this tax would be just the same as if you had pledged your automobile for a loan and then you took off the four wheels and went out and sold them. You would be stealing from the man who had loaned you the money a part of the security you had pledged. That is dishonest and dishonorable. Certainly the legislature of Pennsylvania should not be a party to any transaction that in the first place impairs the obligation of the Commonwealth, and in the second place places us in a position at least of doing a dishonorable and a dishonest act.

I do not think for a moment that the gentleman from Monroe had ever thought of that angle of this matter. I thought when he said it was clearly within the call, he had thought that question out and was prepared to debate it. I am sure I do not agree with him again. I do not think it is within the call, but it seemed to me and it seemed to my Republican colleagues we did not want to raise that question in this instance. We believed that there was a greater problem here, a more vital problem, a problem affecting the entire Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and that is, we having pledged our revenue as security should at no time take away that security by repealing a tax measure and taking away a part of the security. I do not think anyone under such circumstances would want to loan us a penny in the future, and certainly that is not the kind of reputation we want to put behind the obligations of Pennsylvania, that have had such a marvelous standing that we have borrowed money at almost unprecedented rates, rates that it is almost unbelievable that anyone would buy the notes of this Commonwealth. It has been because this legislature has repeatedly, although it may have temporarily borrowed from funds, and although it may have taken action to transfer money from one fund to another, this legislature has constantly and persistently met its obligations throughout the years of depression, this legislature has never defaulted, this legislature, no matter whether it was by resolution or by an act, has always been willing to back up the securities of this Commonwealth, at least insofar as the borrowings are concerned, to keep them absolutely secure and true to the terms of the contract that we made. Therefore, much as I and my colleagues and you men on the other side would like to go back to the people in your communities and tell them that you feel you ought to take some of the tax burden from them, much as we would like to do that, much as that may be helpful to you personally in the months to come, I am sure that having taken the oath as a Member of this legislature, we have a higher responsibility and a higher duty to perform, and that we have to perform that duty here by declaring this bill unconstitutional.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, the minority leader of course says that a tax reduction is desirable. Of course I agree with him. But not only that, Mr. Speaker, but I say to the Members of this House that a tax reduction now is feasible and practical and that we are not moving one iota away from the standard that was set up.

May I point out to the gentleman that while we passed the tax anticipation note act intended to raise a certain number of millions of dollars, under the present financial condition of this Commonwealth it will not be necessary to sell the entire amount of the notes provided for. So that when the gentleman from Delaware says to you, "I borrowed money on my automobile; then can I take off the tires"? May I say that after all we have not borrowed all this money. There is a tremendously large sum of money that we have not borrowed on the tax anticipation notes, which the gentleman seems so zealous to protect, although the money is there and will be there to pay it.

Can you imagine a situation, because we put down in the bill that we intend sometime in the future to borrow money, some time within a two year period, if the need arises, and because of it we pledge all the revenues of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, then we find ourselves in the position that we need not borrow all that money, nor any tremendous percentage of it, but that our income is sufficient to carry us on, that nevertheless all that money must remain frozen in the treasury of Pennsylvania? Does that sound sensible? Does that sound real?

I am saying, Mr. Speaker, that we have the power to suspend those taxes which we find are not necessary or needed to pay our obligations, so long as we protect, so long as we keep sound the financial status of Pennsylvania, safely guarding our assets so that we meet the obligations. Then certainly when we find ourselves in the position where we can give relief to the people of Pennsylvania and still keep our word, we are not doing anything that is in violation of the constitution.

I am saying that all the gentleman wants us to do is to freeze all the money derived from these taxes in the treasury. For what purpose? Not to pay off obligations, because you won't have the obligations mentioned in the tax anticipation notes. Just to keep it there to go and look at it, to have the satisfaction of taxing the people beyond the measure that we should. That is the question before this House.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Monroe has made as good an argument as he could under the circumstances in attempting to defend his position, which is indefensible and which cannot meet the legal requirements, as I feel confident the gentleman from Monroe must know, as he reads the Constitution and reads this bill.

The question, Mr. Speaker, is not whether we want to keep the money over there, the question is not whether we want to freeze the money, but the question is not whether we want to do something about it. The pure and simple question is that we made a contract. Whether it was a good contract or a bad contract is now water over the dam. We passed the bill in 1941, we all voted for it, we all voted for that measure. We wrote a contract. On the basis of that contract, the Commonwealth borrowed money. Now, we cannot come in because it hurts us and because it irks us, because it pinches us and because we do not like it, and say, "Well, we want to waive that because this hurts us, and we want to help the people by some means, we want to waive that aside."

The very fundamentals of our Federal constitution, the very fundamentals of our State constitution are based to a great degree on this great question of the sanctity of contracts. Without sanctity of contracts, you cannot hope to carry on business; you cannot do anything in this world. If we now are going to say in this legislature that we will write contracts and when they suit us we will keep them, and when they do not suit us, we will disregard them, then we have entered upon a pretty sad day. You need not then bother going out and fighting for democracy because democracy has failed in its effort.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, may I compliment the minority flood leader on a very fine speech for Shylock and his pound of flesh, but may I say that the Constitution under which the people live, and of which instrument they are a living part, is sufficiently flexible and plays a sufficient part in our life, that so long as we do not violate our sacred promise, so long as we pay the pound of flesh that the gentleman is so much interested in, then certainly life can go on freely and happily so long as we pay that pound of flesh. But I am saying, Mr. Speaker, that it should not be the excess poundage, that the gentleman is advocating, a poundage that we never have had and will never have any part of, that poundage that we do not use, so long as we give to him and his party the pound that they want, and the bankers that he espouses, then we have complied with everything that we should morally comply with, and we have done everything legally that we should do.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TURNER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, if it is not a fact that the act allowing the Commonwealth to issue tax anticipation notes was an act looking forward to the future, borrowing in the future after the passage of the act?

Mr. TURNER. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. May I ask the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Speaker, whether or not today we have borrowed the money, all of the money for the biennium?

Mr. TURNER. With that I am not familiar, Mr. Speaker, but my recollection is that we borrowed a large part of it; whether we borrowed the full one hundred seventy five million or not I do not know.

Mr. BROWN. May I ask the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, whether or not it is true if we have not borrowed the money then no one could be hurt and the constitutional question would not be a matter for the courts on the question of the violation of the contract.

Mr. TURNER. The gentleman asks me, as I understand, Mr. Speaker, if we had borrowed the money. We have borrowed money; whether we have borrowed all of it or not I cannot say, but to me that does not make any difference.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman answer me this question, are we in position now to pay back the money that we borrowed?

Mr. TURNER. That I cannot answer, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. If the gentleman cannot answer that question, Mr. Speaker, then how can the gentleman raise the question that the bill is or is not constitutional?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the question is not a question of whether or not you can pay it. The question is whether we have paid it.

As to the second question the gentleman asked I would say that we are not in a position to pay this money back at this time because the borrowing is always in the very first part of the biennium, and the accumulation of funds generally does not occur until towards the end of the biennium.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman state whether or not there are any contracts now existing between this Commonwealth under the tax anticipation notes act and any bankers or companies that we cannot today with the amount of money in the treasury pay off?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would say that with the amount of money in the treasury, taking into consideration the fact that there is necessity for operating the affairs of the Commonwealth, there is money borrowed that we cannot pay back.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman state how much that is?

Mr. TURNER. I cannot, Mr. Speaker, but I do not see that it would make any difference whether you had borrowed ten million or one hundred and fifty million.

Mr. BROWN. May I ask the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, presupposing we do have the funds to pay off any existing contracts that we have made, then what contract would be violated by the passage of this act?

Mr. TURNER. The contract would be violated, Mr. Speaker, by action either under authority of the Legislature or under authority of the fiscal officers under the statutes.

Mr. BROWN. May I ask the gentleman the question again, Mr. Speaker; I did not get his answer? My question is this: presuming that there are no contracts now existing that we cannot meet.

Mr. TURNER. And my answer to that is, Mr. Speaker, that I believe we cannot meet the present contracts because we have not the money in hand with which to pay them.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know that to be a fact, or is the gentleman presuming that?

Mr. TURNER. I am saying that, Mr. Speaker, to the best of my knowledge and my information, on the supposition that this loan was made in the early part of the year, shortly after the first of June, and this is now about nine months later, knowing the fiscal affairs of the Commonwealth as I do, that there is not money with which to repay these loans and to maintain the ordinary operations of the Commonwealth.

Secondly these loans are made with the anticipation that they shall be paid at the end of the biennium. Sometimes they have been reduced in the Spring or the last quarter of the biennium, but usually the collections begin to accrue as you get towards the end of the biennium, which is practically a year away—the early part of the quarter.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I am not asking the gentleman from Delaware about the operation of tax anticipation notes unless they have been effectuated. That is not my question. The question is this: whether there are any contracts—I do not mean any acts of the General Assembly allowing us to enter into contracts, but I am asking, are there any contracts now existing whereby we have borrowed money and we are not able to pay that money back?

Mr. TURNER. I would say to Mr. Brown, Mr. Speaker, that my recollection is that we possibly borrowed something like one hundred or one hundred and twenty-five million dollars and the Commonwealth does not, after nine months of operation, have that one hundred or one hundred and twenty-five million dollars to pay back in the first place.

But I think that is a very specious argument for the purpose of avoiding the question. Perhaps the gentleman from Allegheny has not had the experience of borrowing money that I have had and therefore he does not understand.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, and I feel that his last answer shows the utter facetiousness of raising the question of this Act's violating the contract clause of the Constitution. I know and the gentleman knows, astute lawyer that he is, that in order that to have a contract violated, first of all there must be a contract; secondly there must be a default on that particular contract. Now, unless the gentleman can show me that we have entered into contracts and that we cannot repay the money, unless we continue this Act, surely this house cannot vote this particular tax measure as being unconstitutional.

I know and the gentleman knows that in order to raise the question of a violation of a contract there must be, as I said before, first of all a presently existing contract and there must be a violation of that contract, not something that would give the fiscal officers the right to set up the machinery, but we must have a contract in presente, and we must have a defalcation in presente, and I am calling on the gentleman now to tell us what contracts are now existing that will be in default if and when this particular piece of legislation becomes law.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I am sure that the gentleman from Allegheny, as he usually is, is right on his law, but in this instance is wrong on the premises and the facts in the case. In the first place, there are existing contracts. We borrowed money and it doesn't make any difference whether we have the money in bank to pay it all or not.

If I borrowed from my banker the sum of—we will say a thousand dollars to get it down to my class of borrowing—if I should borrow a thousand dollars from a bank and deposit five thousand dollars in bonds in the bank as security, the fact that I have one thousand dollars in my bank account or two thousand dollars in my bank account would not permit me to withdraw the five thousand dollars collateral that I have put up, nor would it permit me or entitle me, under my version of the law, to take away any part of it. I do not have to be in default; my interest may be paid up; I may have agreed to pay at the rate of one hundred dollars a month, and I may be up to date on those payments, and it may be in full force and effect, but that is not the question. You do not have to have a default. The question is I made a contract, I pledged as part of the security for that contract bonds to the amount of five thousand dollars. As long as that loan remains I cannot remove the five thousand dollars in bonds.

In the early part of this biennium, after June 1941, we borrowed money on tax anticipation notes for which we pledged our revenues. The revenues are what? Included in those revenues is the four mills personal property tax collected by the state, and no matter whether we have the money, no matter whether we could pay it off tomorrow, we have no right to take that security away. The proper thing for you to do is first to repay the loan. Then you can do what you please with it, but you are violating the contract, and no matter what kind of an argument you put up, you cannot answer that.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman indicates that perhaps we have not paid anything on the tax anticipation notes. I have just been advised that in February we paid twenty-three million nine hundred thousand dollars on account of the notes. In March we paid thirty-two million four hundred thousand dollars. We have in the treasury and will pay in April twenty-two million two hundred thousand dollars and we will pay in May twenty-four million five hundred thousand dollars, making a total of some one hundred three million dollars that we will then have repaid. That is just how seriously we are going to violate our word in Pennsylvania. It gives you some idea what the revenues of Pennsylvania have been and exactly where we have been driving, Mr. Speaker. It shows that there is no necessity, no need for fear or alarm as expressed by the gentleman, that we are violating a particular contract with the creditors or bankers of Pennsylvania. As a matter of fact we will be out of the woods so quickly that what I requested in November should have very definitely been the main subject instead of having to approach it by the back door, but whether we approach it by the back door or the front door, it is our duty to take care of the people of Pennsylvania and in doing so we will also take care of the bankers.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the gentleman from Monroe is trying to justify his position on the constitutional question on whether this is a big or a little violation. As far as I can see, it doesn't matter whether it is big or little; the question in the first place is, are we violating our contract; we put up collateral for a loan and we are now trying to steal some of it back, and that is in violation of the Constitution.

On the question recurring,

Will the House sustain the Constitutional point of order?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. TURNER and Mr. WINNER and were as follows:

REASON FOR VOTE

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE offered the following reason for his vote:

Mr. Speaker, because of my firm conviction that this bill H. B. 107, Printers No. 54, would be in violation of the Constitution for the reasons set forth in the debate, I am voting in the negative.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 58, as follows:

An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies with the approval of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings as a temporary emergency war measure for a limited period of time to adopt certain rules and regulations governing purchases and contracts of the Department of Property and Supplies on behalf of the Commonwealth and with like approval to make and alter purchases and contracts pursuant thereto and suspending certain statutory provisions inconsistent with such rules and regulations

Whereas The existence of a state of war between the United States of America and various foreign countries has necessitated the rationing of many materials or the establishment of priority ratings on such materials and

Whereas The economic disruption resulting from the speedy turnover of a large portion of American industries to war production has required and will further require the fixing of prices in many fields and

Whereas Unexpected and unforseeable labor and material shortages are hampering the activities of many corporations and individuals upon which the Commonwealth must rely for supplies materials or services and

Whereas The foregoing and other circumstances arising out of our prosecution of the present war frequently operate to render the present statutory procedure which must be followed in supplying the State Government with materials and facilities unduly slow and inefficient or even completely inadequate therefore

Section 1 During the period the United States of America is at war with any foreign country and for six months thereafter but in no event longer than three months after the General Assembly convenes in regular session in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-three the Department of Property and Supplies after first securing the approval of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings may adopt appropriate rules and regulations governing the letting and performance of public contracts entered into by it eliminating the requirement for advertising and competitive bidding in the purchase of property and materials changing or modifying any specifications or schedules relative to the performance of such contracts or otherwise governing the activities of that department in furnishing materials supplies or facilities to the Commonwealth or any of the departments boards and commissions thereof

Section 2 It shall be the duty of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings in passing upon proposed rules and regulations submitted by the Department of Property and Supplies relative to the letting and performance of public contracts entered into by that department to take whatever action with respect thereto as may be deemed necessary to continue the efficient operation of the State Government and best protect the interest of the Commonwealth

The Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings in approving any such rules and regulations shall fix the periods for which such rules and regulations may continue and shall of its own motion discontinue any rules or regulations previously allowed if it appears that the need therefor has ceased

Section 3 No contract shall be entered into by the department and no purchase of any property or materials shall be made by it nor shall the department change or modify any specifications or schedules relative to the performance of any contract nor furnish any materials supplies or facilities to the Commonwealth or any of the departments boards and commissions thereof under or pursuant to any rule or regulation adopted under the provisions of this act unless and until the same shall have been approved by the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings

Section 4 All the provisions of the act approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 177), entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments boards commissions and officers thereof including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools or Teachers Colleges abolishing creating reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments boards and commissions defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers and of the several administrative departments boards commissions and officers fixing the salaries of the Governor Lieutenant Governor and certain other executive and administrative officers providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers and of all deputies and other assistants and employes in certain departments boards and commissions and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employes of certain departments boards and commissions shall be determined" and all provisions of any other act of Assembly shall be deemed suspended in so far as and so long as they are inconsistent with any rules and regulations adopted under the authority of this act

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. READINGER, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed House Bill No. 112, entitled:

An Act to amend subsection (a) and to further amend subsection (b) of section nine of the act, approved the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168), entitled "An act to protect the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, officers of the State government, and courts; providing for the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively; declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair; further providing that representatives of a majority of the employes be the exclusive representatives of all the employes; authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections, and certify as to representatives of employes for purposes of collective bargaining; empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice, and providing for a procedure for such cases, including the issuance of a complaint, the conducting of a hearing, and the making of an order; empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order, and providing a procedure for such cases; providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order, and establishing a procedure for such cases; providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court; providing the board with investigatory powers, including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court; providing for service of papers and process of the board; prescribing certain penalties," fixing the rights and standing of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board as a party and as appellant in the courts in matters originating before the board; and defining the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court on appeal.

Mr. EDWIN A. LEE from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation reported as committed, House Bill No. 113, entitled:

An Act creating a joint legislative committee to study partial unemployment as related to unemployment compensation; defining its powers and duties; authorizing the employment of counsel and employes; and making an appropriation.

Mr. O'BRIEN from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation reported as committed, House Bill No. 98 (Senate Bill No. 64) entitled:

A Supplement to the act approved March eleventh, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, entitled "An act to provide for the expenses of the Extraordinary Session of the Legislature assembled February seventeenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two in pursuance of the proclamation of the Governor of the Commonwealth dated February tenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, and the supplement thereto."

Mr. SHEPARD, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Bill No. 83, (Senate Bill No. 41), entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the fifth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six (P. L. 2897, 1937), entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies, with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis, requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide monies for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons, providing procedure and administrative details for the determination, payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation, providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies, creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties," changing the provisions thereof and the rights, obligations and procedure thereunder.

Mr. BROWN, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Bill No. 34, (Senate Bill No. 26), entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article eight section eleven of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. TATE from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation reported as committed, House Resolution No. 39.

BILLS ON FIRST READING

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that all bills reported from Committee as committed be read for the first time.

The motion was unanimously agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 112, entitled:

An Act to amend subsection (a) and to further amend subsection (b) of section nine of the act, approved the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168), entitled "An act to protect the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, officers of the State government, and courts; providing for the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively; declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair; further providing that representatives of a majority of the employes be the exclusive representatives of all the employes; authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections, and certify as to representatives of employes for purposes of collective bargaining; empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice, and providing for a procedure for such cases, including the issuance of a complaint, the conducting of a hearing, and the making of an order; empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order, and providing a procedure for such cases; providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order, and establishing a procedure for such cases; providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court; providing the board with investigatory powers, including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court; providing for service of papers and process of the board; prescribing certain penalties," fixing the rights and standing of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board as a party and as appellant in the courts in matters originating before the board; and defining the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court on appeal.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor which was read as follows:

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, April 6, 1942.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I take this means of asking that the House of Representatives reconsider its action in sidetracking Senate Bill No. 13, postponing the effective date of the new Parole Act. I believe this bill of sufficiently great importance to warrant its being passed upon by a record vote in the House of Representatives.

In this connection there is a matter of much significance to which I wish to call to your attention. Section 33 of Article III of the Constitution of Pennsylvania reads as follows:

"A member who has a personal or private interest in any measure or bill proposed or pending before the General Assembly shall disclose the fact to the House of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon."

Because the membership of both branches of the General Assembly have prided themselves about being punctilious in observing this obligation, I wish to point out what appears to be an instance of noncompliance.

On the pages of the Journal of the House for April 1st will be found the remarks of Representative Samuel M. Rosenfeld, the original sponsor of the Parole Act, speaking against the bill to postpone its effective date.

Mr. Rosenfeld extolled, in the most glowing terms, the merits of the Act, which earlier he asked my cooperation to change radically before it went into effect. He roundly criticized those who have maintained that these war times are not the proper occasion to start this new undertaking.

Mr. Rosenfeld is fully entitled to his views. He, however, has a very obvious personal interest in this measure, and in its going into effect this year, because he has applied to me for appointment to the Parole Board, and is so eager for that appointment that he expresses a willingness to serve without compensation, in an apparent hope of evading another constitutional restriction, that of section 6 of Article II, which reads:

"No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he shall have been elected, be appointed to any civil office under this Commonwealth, and no member of Congress or other person holding any office (except of attorney-at-law or in the militia) under the United States or this Commonwealth shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office."

In view of his letter to me, copy of which I am attaching, I believe Mr. Rosenfeld should have revealed to the membership of the House of Representatives his interest in obtaining for himself an appointment to the proposed Parole Board, so that his hearers might themselves judge whether his ambitions in this matter had any effect on his opinions concerning the matter under discussion.

The bill as transmitted to the House of Representatives by the Senate deserves the open and complete consideration of the House, with full knowledge of all the facts and background.

House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Pa., October 11, 1941.

Honorable Arthur H. James Capital, Harrisburg Pennsylvania

Honorable Sir:

With the creation of the Pennsylvania Board of Parole, you have introduced humanitarian ideals of reform and correction to the administration of justice in our great Commonwealth.

Considered as the commencement of social melioration it is worthy of all praise. More and more, are the inquiring minds recognizing that both humanitarian and scientific considerations should play a role of prominence in the coping with acts that involve social derelictions as well as human weaknesses.

As one profoundly interested in the administration of parole, and one who sponsored and labored unceasingly for passage of the Parole Act, may I have your consideration for appointment to the Board of Parole.

I realize that by reason of my membership in the General Assembly, there may be constitutional limitations to any such appointment.

In such event, I shall comply with any request in the end of removing this disability as well as serve without compensation until my disqualification shall be completely removed.

In appreciation of your consideration, I remain

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) SAMUEL M. ROSENFELD

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ACHTERMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that the Governor's communication in relation to Senate Bill No. 13 is an effort to muddy the waters a bit.

May I point out to the Members of the House that it is quite obvious the interpretation of this House on many occasions as to whether any person does or does not have a personal or private interest in a measure, has been definitely determined I think as a matter of fact we determined that question not later than in the 1941 general session, in which it was frankly admitted that a Member of this House might benefit by an act if passed, but if it was passed for a general class then he did not have a personal interest. It was only in the event that he and he alone would gain benefit from the act that he had a personal interest. May I point out as a matter of fact that anyone may aspire to an appointment so long as the act does not do the appointing, and so long as he is not definitely benefitted by the act and there is an intermediate agency operating before any benefit or profit can accrue to that individual, then he does not have a personal interest in the particular act?

I say, therefore, Mr. Speaker, that Mr. Rosenfeld was not under any specific obligation to notify this House that he had written to the Governor indicating his willingness to accept an appointment, if the Governor so saw fit. That did not amount to a personal interest as indicated by the Governor. I am saying quite frankly that the Democratic party in arriving at its conclusion that Senate Bill 13 should not pass was not motivated by Mr. Rosenfeld's personal aspirations. As a matter of fact, at that time I doubt if our party, I know that I did not, had any knowledge that Mr. Rosenfeld aspired to such an appointment. We arrived at our conclusions from the reasons we stated. As a matter of fact, I selected Mr. Rosenfeld to make the statement solely because he had in the first instance sponsored the bill, that is the bill that Senate Bill 13 seeks to postpone. We felt it was just and proper for Mr. Rosenfeld to make that statement for the reason that he had sponsored the bill in the first instance and carried the measure for the Democratic party. I am saying that there is nothing that I can see, nothing that the Governor has disclosed to us that would indicate for one lone second any reason why we should change our course from that we have chartered.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. MELCHIORRE and D'ORTONA.
RESOLUTION No. 46.

In the House of Representatives, April 6, 1942.

Whereas, The probability of serious damage to gas and water facilities in the City of Philadelphia because of sabotage and air raids, creates a menace to the health, morals and welfare of the residents thereof; and

Whereas, It is a matter of common knowledge that many of the gas and water mains and connections in said city are many years old and are even presently in defective and dangerous condition; and

Whereas, Failure to properly inspect and repair said mains and connections have resulted in main leaks, breaks and explosions, causing death to innocent residents and serious property damage; and

Whereas, Notwithstanding such occurrences, no systematic effort has been made by the city officials or the lessees of its public works to investigate complaints immediately, or to properly repair or replace such defects; and

Whereas, Constant and systematic inspection, replacement and repair of said facilities will minimize the danger and the damage that may be caused, particularly by reason of sabotage or as a result of air raids; therefore be it

Resolved, That, by this resolution, the House of Representatives, in its considered judgment, declares it to be for the public good and the general welfare of the residents of the City of Philadelphia to request the Department of Public Works of said city and the lessees of any of its public utilities to make immediate inspections, repairs or replacements as may be required, and to continue such work systematically, to the end that any damage thereto will minimize the resulting danger to the residents of said city; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Acting Mayor of the City of Philadelphia and to the Director of Public Works of said city.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 68.

An Act to amend section two of the act approved the tenth day of July one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 645) entitled "An act imposing certain requirements on certain hospitals receiving State aid authorizing the withholding of appropriations and imposing duties on the Department of Welfare" by providing that during the present war and six months thereafter funds shall not be withheld from hospitals for violation of such act if the Secretary of Welfare determines that the constant attendance of a licensed physician or resident interne cannot be secured by such hospitals because of the war emergency.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 2, page 2, line 16, by inserting after the word "emergency" the following: "and the operation of any such hospital will not be seriously impaired by reason thereof."

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do non-concur in the amendments made by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. MELCHIORRE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. MELCHIORRE. Mr. Speaker, in checking the record of the session of Tuesday, March 31st, I find that I am not recorded on several measures which passed this House finally, namely House Bill 10, Printer's No. 41; House Bill 52, Printer's No. 22; House Bill 59, Printer's No. 34; House Bill 78, Printer's No. 37; House Bill 79, Printer's No. 38; House Bill 56, Printer's No. 32, and House Bill 75, Printer's No. 42. I was present on that date, Mr. Speaker, and voted in the affirmative, and I desire to be so recorded in the Journal of the House.

RESOLUTION

ARMY DAY

Mr. LOVETT offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 6, 1942.

To each average citizen of today the military has taken on a significance which a peace time standing army can never enjoy. It is today composed of our sons and our brothers, our more distant kindred and the friends and acquaintances of our every day life. To many it holds the prospect for service on the part of ourselves.

Around it centers the united efforts of a nation. It is entitled to and receives, without stint, the unlimited use of materials, equipment and labor. Science and the learned professions acknowledge it as all important. No interest or activity has not willingly taken a place of secondary importance.

Historically, from the first Continental Army, suffering privation and hardships in its first struggle for independence and liberty and a government in which representation of the governed was assured, to the defenders of Wake Island and Bataan, the Army of the United States has built up for itself a record outstanding in heroism, strategy and accomplishments, a record worthy of recognition and the acclaim of every local American; be it therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, on the occasion of Army Day, which is today being observed throughout the land, extends its heartiest congratulations to the United States Army for what it is and what it stands for, and for the standing it has gained for itself among world powers.

Resolved, That the House of Representatives takes advantage of this opportunity to express its confidence in the ultimate complete success of the armed forces of our country and their allies in dealing with the ruthless warring forces committed to the forceful expansion of totalitarian forms of government and the complete subjugation of all free peoples. We further pledge our support and loyalty to our soldiers in the field and to their leaders both in the field and in responsible positions at the national capitol, and to all those engaged in industry and every effort vital to the winning of this war.

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be transmitted to the President of the United States, as Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United States, and to the Secretary of War.

REPORT OF SLATE COMMITTEE

Mr. LOVETT offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 6, 1942.

Resolved, That the following change in the personnel of the House of Representatives be made:

Joseph Pribula, 1297 Wyoming Avenue, Exeter, Pa. as Assistant Custodian of the House vice Joseph Leonard, resigned.

RESOLUTION

BIRTHDAY CONGRATULATIONS

Messrs. O'MULLEN, O'BRIEN and DiGENOVA offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and adopted:

In the House of Representatives, April 6, 1942.

This day marks the 50th anniversary of the birth of the Honorable Leon J. Kolankiewicz, a Member of this House, from the City of Philadelphia.

Born in the Richmond section of the City of Philadelphia, Doc attended school there and is now engaged in the practice of optometry. He has for many years been a leader in Polish-American affairs and a student of the historical development of this great country, particularly with relation to the contributions made by heroic Polish-Americans of the past.

In recognition of these efforts he was appointed a member of the Polish Citizens of America Committee for the re-interment of the remains of the Civil War General Wlodzimier Krzyzanowski who was the first American Governor of Alaska. As a result of the efforts of this committee, re-interment was accomplished from an obscure grave in Brooklyn to Arlington Cemetery. Likewise he has served on the many committees celebrating and commemorating the illustrious deeds of that great Revolutionary War hero, General Casimar Pulaski.

With this rich heritage, Doc joined the colors of his native land in the last World War, is a member of the Legion of the Purple Heart and actively engaged in the affairs of the American Legion.

His leadership, his sincerity of effort and his ability of organization demanded his appointment as Chairman of the Polish Relief Committee in Philadelphia, for which he raised the sum of $100,000.

Since the attack on Pearl Harbor, he has been appointed Chief Observer of one of the four observation posts under the jurisdiction of the United States Army. This Observation Post has been functioning twenty-four hours a day with great success.

He is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, an honorary member of the Military Order of Pulaski, and a member of the 315th Infantry Association, 79th Division.

It is fitting and proper that this House signalize this career of devotion to the historic deeds and principles upon which this government was founded; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives congratulates the Honorable Leon J. Kolankiewicz on this his 50th birthday, on his brilliant career, and by this resolution wishes him continued success in his many activities.

Mr. KOLANKIEWICZ. Mr. Speaker, I am happy that this extraordinary special session affords me the opportunity to express my sincere thanks to the Members of this House.

The SPEAKER. For the information of the Members of the House I have known the gentleman all his life. We were born and raised together.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, do you admit to the fact that you are fifty years of age?

The SPEAKER. Not quite, but over the hill.

COMMITTEE MEETING

The Select Committee on Special Session Legislation will meet on Tuesday, April 7th at 12 noon in Room 327.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. LLOYD H. WOOD. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Tuesday, April 7, 1942, at 2 p. m.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 11:17 p. m.) the House adjourned.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Extraordinary Session of 1942.

Vol. 26. HARRISBURG, PA., TUESDAY, APRIL 7, 1942. No. 24.

SENATE

TUESDAY, April 7, 1942

The Senate met at 2:00 o'clock, p. m., E.W.T.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D. D., offered the following prayer:

O Thou in whose hands are all our affairs, from whom cometh all our blessings and to whom belongeth all our praise, accept the sacrifice of thanksgiving which we now offer.

We thank Thee for the preserving care which has kept us since our last meeting. We thank Thee for health and the common blessings of each day. We thank Thee for our homes and loved ones; may they be precious in Thy sight. We thank Thee for our country and for its achievements under Thy leadership. Still be our Leader and show us how wise it will be for us to follow Thee closely, for by so doing the freedom we enjoy and the liberties we love will be continued to us and to our children.

We pray for our President and for our Governor. May their hearts be encouraged and their hands upheld by a united nation, praying and working for victory over all our enemies.

Hear our prayer, we beseech Thee in the name of Christ, our Lord. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. TALLMAN and Mr. MILLER, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

Whereupon,

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the presence of the Senate signed the same.

HOUSE NON-CONCURS IN AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILL No. 8

He also presented communication from the House of Representatives informing the Senate that the House has non-concurred in amendments made by the Senate to House Bill No. 8, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600), entitled "Status of Public Officers and Employes in Military Service in Time of War or Contemplated War Act," by more fully defining amounts payable.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, House Bill No. 8 and House Bill No. 68, which will follow, have failed to secure House concurrence in Senate amendments. As I understand it, however, there are some corrections to be made in these bills and it will be necessary to appoint conference committees.

SENATE INSISTS UPON ITS AMENDMENTS NON-CONCURRED IN BY THE HOUSE TO HOUSE BILL No. 8

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I move that the Senate insists upon its amendments non-concurred in by the House to the foregoing bill.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

HOUSE NON-CONCURS IN AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILL No. 68

He also presented communication from the House of Representatives informing the Senate that the House has non-concurred in amendments made by the Senate to House Bill No. 68, entitled:

An Act to amend section two of the act, approved the tenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 645), entitled "An act imposing certain requirements on certain hospitals receiving state aid; authorizing the withholding of appropriations; and imposing duties on the Department of Welfare," by providing that, during the present war and six months thereafter, funds shall not be withheld from hospitals for violation of such act, if the Secretary of Welfare determines that the constant attendance of a licensed physician or resident interne cannot be secured by such hospitals because of the war emergency.

SENATE INSISTS UPON ITS AMENDMENTS NON-CONCURRED IN BY THE HOUSE TO HOUSE BILL No. 68

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I move that the Senate insists upon its amendments non-concurred in by the House to the foregoing bill.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I ask permission to address the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Washington will proceed.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I am about to introduce a resolution and I want to build up a little background for it before I present it.

This Assembly has been in session for many weeks aimlessly trying to do something under the name of national defense. We have failed: we have accomplished little or nothing; we should have gone home after the passage of the reapportionment bill. This is not hateful criticism, it is not our fault. We had no program. We did not know exactly what we should do.

Now, the subject of my resolution will deal with this problem. A great war rolls on and each day brings us nearer to bloody reality. The strong arm of our nation has reached out and drawn into its service thousands of the best young men of the Republic and the process has barely begun. They go to the call of their country with a resolve to give all, parental care, home ties, loved ones, personal liberty, personal freedom, yea, and life itself, in the pride and duty of their strength. You have seen them go but you shall not see them all return. Mothers will mourn, wives will weep and sweethearts will wait, but their departed will be in many cases seen no more. Far from home, under foreign skies, in unknown and unmarked graves, many will find eternal rest. This is a sad and solemn picture. Let us contemplate it well. They have gone forth for the purpose of liberty and freedom, they have gone forth to save the Republic, they have gone forth to give all, and the question comes to each of us, can they, fighting on foreign soil, ready to sacrifice everything they have, win this war by their own individual efforts? History furnishes us the answer. It can not be done. They can not win the war alone. The war must be won by those at the front, cooperating with those at home.

Rome, the great nation that it was, fell, not because it did not have good armies—its armies were strong, her armies were successful—but Rome collapsed from within. Rome became rotten in its society, Rome became listless at home, and as a result the Roman empire went to pieces.

Let us heed this solemn warning, let us today resolve that we at home will cooperate with those at the front in winning this war and in preserving the Republic.

How can it be done? They have offered everything that they have and yet at home I see little difference in the general makeup of our present day society. I believe there is little sacrifice being made at home. We have evidence of it here. We have been buzzing around like a wheel going around without any friction, and certainly, as a result, we have accomplished little, and that is the way with American society today.

Now, our government has said from high places and from low places that we must have sacrifices, we must have economy. Certainly that is true, and the American people as individuals are responding nobly; many people have put their cars away because of the rubber situation, many have started to sacrifice in many other ways, solely along the lines of patriotism.

But I wonder what government is doing in the way of sacrifices, what is government doing in the way of economy? I can see no difference. I see governmental expenses mounting every day both at Washington and elsewhere.

Many people whom the press and others have criticized along this line are still following the same political courses.

We have, I am told, thousands of people on our political payrolls solely for the reason that they may control some votes. Those are the things that have ruined many nations in the past. How can be expect those at the front to sacrifice when we at home fail to do likewise.

Now, there are many things we can do in this particular. Every man who holds a political position today ought to ask himself whether I am doing everything in my power to help save the Republic. If there are those on the payrolls who are doing nothing to assist in this great effort, then, as true patriots, they ought to resign, they ought to go into some other line of activity where they can do something for the nation in this great emergency.

I have read that on our payrolls there are thousands of parasites. That is true all over the nation. Is it possible that this condition will continue or should we have those in political offices who have the courage to eliminate all such drones, to root out all such indolents and destroy all positions that are not needed in this emergency?

Government economy, that is highly essential today, even more so than personal economy, because in a Republic, one of the foundation stones is thrift. That is the way the Republic was born and that is the way it shall be preserved.

Now, where can we commence? I would say we can commence with the W.P.A. and the relief rolls. Back in my district we have many farmers and they are all wanting to know where the farm labor is coming from. Their boys have been called into the service, the farms are there idle, no one to man them, and yet relief and W.P.A. go on just the same.

Will we have men in public office who will be courageous and patrotic enough to root out these unnecessary evils, these unnecessary things, these many governmental evils which are present today?

Every one who belongs to any group should ask himself the question whether this group is necessary in the war program today. One of the troubles, as I see it, in the state at this time is that we have laws based on group strength, the stronger the group the easier it is for that group to get what it wants. That is not true democratic law making, because if you give one strong group the power, then the weak groups will suffer, and I say if there ever was a time in our state government when we should curb group legislation, it is now, and those who control those groups ought to be patriotic enough to lead the way. I know it is hard for any one who seeks public office to attack any group, but if we are to save the Republic, if we are to cooperate and sacrifice, then it seems to me that that is our real personal American duty.

General Hershey recently issued a statement to the effect that we are going to have even to use children in industry; it will be necessary to have children in industry; it will be necessary to have women in industry; and at the same time we have thousands of people walking our streets, thousands of people holding down unnecessary political jobs, who could be used to great advantage in many of those vacant places, made so by good young men going into the United States Service. That is patriotism in the real sense of the term.

Now, we could say, what could some groups do in order to help this war effort. I was told last night by a man in high authority in labor activities in the state, that after pay days, in many places, as high as twenty per cent of the working men do not go back to work for two or three days. Why? Because, he said, they go into places where intoxicating liquor is sold and stay in there until two, three or four o'clock in the morning, and then they are not able to go to work.

Now, my friends, if any of those groups that know of conditions like that want to do their patriotic duty they should start a movement in order to eliminate those problems because in the first place, as Mr. McNutt said recently in a public utterance along patriotic lines, one of the things we should do is to see that our working people get ample rest, so that they will be efficient at the wheel and in the mines the next day.

How can a man get sufficient rest if he works all day and then is out half the night in places of the nature I have enumerated? Let those groups decide for themselves whether they are operating in cooperation with this great United States in this movement to win the war.

My friends, the resolution that I am about to introduce will give you an opportunity to deal with all of those problems between now and the commencement of the regular session of 1943. I know that if the resolution is adopted, the President Pro Tempore of this Senate will appoint men who are fearless and courageous in this task, because such men will be necessary and I feel that the House will likewise appoint men who will be fearless in this great movement, in this great task. These are serious times and nothing should be put in the way of any man in his effort to cooperate in winning this important war.

Now, my friends, let us then do our duty in this respect, because if we do not do our duty at home, I can readily see how discouraging it will be for those at the front.

One of the worst things I heard when I came back at the end of the last World War was a statement from a brother attorney, and this was the substance of it: You missed everything while you were away; I made a fortune during the war. If we have conditions like that in America today, how can you expect the boys at the front to be imbued with the courage that our kind of liberty must inspire?

We need today in America men just as courageous as those at the front, men just as ready to sacrifice as those at the front, and America has them and America will use them, and it is our duty to see that these things are done.

If those at the front and we at home do not cooperate, then no one knows what the final result will be. This is a terrible war. Very few realize its real consequences, and we must not only sacrifice in those particulars that I have enumerated, but we must save every dollar during this war in order to help win it. I think it was one of the local papers, perhaps it was the Evening News, that made a statement along this line recently: "It is time all Americans realize that dollars will help win the war; that wasted dollars bring Japanese victory."

Wild spending that we have seen in years past must cease, and it is our duty to help curb this wild spending of money, because, if we do not, later we will have the same conditions that prevailed in Germany after the World War, inflation, when it took a bushel basket of money to buy a small meal.

These are things that face us today, they are serious, they are terrific, and it will require the greatest courage to overcome and conquer them, and who will do it? It will be strong Americans, good men at home, good women at home, those who are willing to sacrifice, as no American has ever been called upon at home to sacrifice before, and in the words of the poet, today we want men:

Wanted men!
Men of vision,
Men of skill,
Men of purpose,
Men of will.
Men of valor,
Men of steel,
Men to serve
The public weal,
Wanted men!

Wanted men!
Men of wisdom,
Men of power,
Men of faith
Who never cower.
Men of battle,
Men to do,
Men to lead,
Our country through,
Wanted men!

Mr. President, my resolution aims to set up a joint concurrent committee, three members of the Senate and three members of the House, to make a study of this problem during the interim from now on until the regular session, and that time will soon roll around, to make a careful study of all the problems of the nature I have discussed, and then at the regular session make recommendations either for their control or their elimination.

Mr. REED offered the following resolution which was twice read:

In the Senate, April 7, 1942.

Whereas, the United States is now engaged in what would appear to be a long and devastating world war; and

Whereas, to save the Republic is the solemn desire and sincere purpose of every true American; and

Whereas, the American people are being admonished daily to sacrifice and constantly urged by those in authority to return to the practice of strict economy; and

Whereas, economy in government is vitally essential to its preservation and should at all times be practiced and particularly during periods of national stress and war; and

Whereas, waste, inefficiency, indolence, and disintegration are in existence, in various forms and degrees, in almost every branch and department of our government; and

Whereas, to locate and eliminate these evils is the patriotic duty of every loyal citizen, especially those paid servants of the people employed as law makers in these legislative halls; Therefore, To that end, Be it

Resolved, that, if the House of Representatives concurs, a Committee, consisting of three Senators, appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, and three Members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, be created, to investigate and explore, impartially and fearlessly, all departments, boards, and agencies of the Commonwealth, including, if advisable, Counties, Cities, Boroughs, Townships, and School Districts, for the purpose of ascertaining whether waste, inefficiency, indolence or disintegration are present, and if so, to study ways and means of eradicating and/or correcting the same, and to make report to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth at its regular meeting in January 1943, with its recommendations.

Such Committee shall have the power to compel the appearance of witnesses and the production of books, papers and records, and to issue proper subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, records, and any and all other writings deemed necessary for the fulfillment of the duties prescribed by this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I object to the immediate consideration of this resolution. It is quite a long resolution, with all its whereas clauses, and it applies, if I understand it correctly, to local subdivisions of government as well as the state government.

We have two commissions at the present time, the Joint State Government Commission, and also the Local Government Commission which, I believe, have complete authority to cover the matters set forth in this resolution.

For that reason, Mr. President, I would like to have more time for consideration of this resolution, and therefore I object to its immediate consideration.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I understand that the Senate is contemplating adjourning on Friday, so I would like the gentleman from Allegheny to give this resolution consideration today and tonight, so that we can call it up tomorrow.

MOTION TO LAY RESOLUTION ON THE TABLE

Mr. REED. Therefore, Mr. President, I move that this resolution be laid on the table until tomorrow.

Mr. HALUSKA. I second that motion, Mr. President.

It was agreed to.

NOMINATIONS BY THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented communications in writing from His Excellency the Governor of the Commonwealth, which were read as follows, and referred to the Committee on Executive Nominations.

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same without amendments.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 85, as follows:

An Act prescribing temporary emergency war provisions with respect to the administration of certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth relating to days for schools to be in session closing schools temporarily assignment and reassignment of teachers and temporary farm and domestic employment certificates for certain pupils and authorizing boards of school directors (or boards of public instruction) with the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to put such provisions into operation and to suspend the provisions of existing school laws inconsistent therewith upon findings by such boards and department and the State Council of Defense

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Whenever during the continuance of any war in which this Nation is or may become engaged it shall be found as a fact by the board of school directors (or board of public education) of any school district by the Superintendent of Public Instruction and by the State Council of Defense and so recorded on the minutes of a regular or special meeting of such board and in the Department of Public Instruction that the provisions of the school laws of the Commonwealth in respect to any of the matters hereinafter set forth shall interfere with the prosecution of such war such board of school directors (or board of public education) shall have power subject to the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to put into operation in such school district any one or more temporary emergency war provisions authorized by this act and to suspend all provisions of the existing school laws inconsistent therewith until the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall in like manner find that the same are no longer necessary, but in no event longer than one year after the cessation of the hostilities of such war

Section 2 Any board of school directors (or board of public education) having exercised the power conferred upon it by the foregoing section of this act shall have power subject to the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to

(a) Keep the schools of the district in session such days and number of days per week as they shall deem necessary or desirable

(b) Close temporarily any school or all the schools of the district when the board of school directors deem it advisable as an emergency measure or when the Governor or the Superintendent of Public Instruction by proclamation so directs The days on which the schools are so closed shall be recorded and credited as if they were days taught

(c) Adjust the assignment and reassignment of teachers in such fields subjects schedules and semesters or other periods of work and in such schools as their preparation experience and certification may qualify them to perform No such temporary emergency assignment or reassignment shall reduce the rate of compensation the employe now receives nor shall the return to the original type of assignment which shall be made when the emergency has ended be deemed to be a demotion under the tenure provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth

(d) Grant farm and domestic employment permits to pupils who have attained the age of fourteen years

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I would like to read to the members of the Senate a letter which I just received, which relates to this bill No. 85, which is the school bill.

The letter is from the Pennsylvania State Education Association, which is an association that contains, I think, about ninety per cent of the total teachership of this state. The letter reads as follows:

PENNSYLVANIA STATE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

Harrisburg, Pa., April 7, 1942.

Hon. Franklin Spencer Edmonds
State Capitol
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

My dear Mr. Edmonds:

In order that there may be no misunderstanding with reference to the position of the Pennsylvania State Education Association on S. B. 85, I should like to take this means to inform you that at a meeting of a subcommittee of our Legislative Committee held yesterday afternoon they gave favorable endorsement to S. B. 85.

Our association recognizes the emergency which confronts our nation and is of the opinion that the immediate future may require unforeseen modifications of normal activities both with reference to individuals and school programs.

As an organization we should like to pledge our united effort to whatever sacrifices may be necessary to bring to a speedy and successful conclusion the war effort in which our nation is engaged. To this end we endorse S. B. 85.

Very sincerely yours,

(signed) H. E. GAYMAN,
Executive Secretary

I have read this letter, Mr. President, because there was originally some criticism of the bill from teachers whom I think did not understand its provisions, and while, in a large measure, that criticism disappeared at the hearing yesterday, nevertheless, I think it is worth while to have in the record this formal statement from the strongest organization of professional workers in education in the State.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, by way of explanation, I just want to say that if the word "domestic" had been stricken from the bill, and in lieu thereof the words "temporary positions to be filled because of temporary vacancies created by the emergency," were inserted, I would have voted for the bill. I do not think there is any situation existing or may exist that would demand taking children in the eighth grade at the age of fourteen, and sending them into homes to do work for women who could probably do the work themselves.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 59, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to Article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by adding thereto section eighteen.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 84, entitled:

An Act to conserve metal by suspending the provisions of article five of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," and its amendments, in so far as they require the issuance and use of more than one registration plate.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 87, entitled:

An Act creating a Joint Legislative Committee, for the purpose of investigating and studying plans, methods and systems for liberalization of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide benefits for partial unemployment; providing for its appointment; authorizing the employment of necessary assistance and making an appropriation.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I desire permission to address the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Somerset will proceed.

Mr. EALY. I should like to say a few words which will be somewhat supplementary to the address by the gentleman from Washington, Senator Reed. His resolution, I am afraid, places an almost superhuman task upon any committee, unless there is a bill to provide some money to carry along the work of this proposed committee, the committee will not be effective.

It seems to me though, that there are certain things this Legislature should keep in mind. We are almost at the point of adjournment and if I were entirely sure that I should be back here again at the next session, perhaps I would defer these remarks, but the uncertainties of the present situation move me to reiterate some of the things which I have been trying to say with respect to our government and our relation to it.

The prophets of old did not so much predict future events through divine inspiration as they declared what history and experience pointed out would follow certain courses of conduct in individuals and nations just as surely as winter follows autumn or night follows day.

Human nature has not changed during the period of recorded history and history has taught that follies in government or private business bring the same results in all ages of time. The tragedy is that we are willing to learn but little from the plain lessons of experience.

Now we are engaged in the greatest of all wars. Unfortunately we have squandered such vast sums of money in wasteful projects which have demoralized our people and have left us with a most severe handicap for war financing. We forgot that mathematics is the "first of the sciences and the mother of safety." We have passed on to our children and children's children for many generations a great debt unless a financial collapse results with all its dire and horrible developments.

I, for one, am glad to see a growing appreciation of the dangers we face and I can look with less bitterness on the heavy taxes being imposed, because it seems to me only in this way and by reducing unnecessary expenditures can we hope to save our nation.

We, as members of the Senate of Pennsylvania, should concern ourselves to maintain a sound policy for our Commonwealth that when the war is over and we struggle back to saner ways of life and government our State may take a leading part in the reconstruction for peaceful pursuits.

When Benjamin Franklin was asked what basic form of Government was adopted by the Constitutional Convention he replied "A republic, if we can keep it." The coming years will determine whether or not we have the desire and the will to keep our democratic way of life.

Our constitution will not preserve our government. A constitution in itself is only a piece of parchment. It is not the rock of Gibraltar which stands firm against all the storms which rage. It is rather as a sand dune along the coasts of Holland which the waves of hysteria and self-interest and indifference wash away, unless the people stoutly maintain the dikes which our fathers have set.

I have called attention to certain Acts of Assembly which have been passed at times for purposes of supposed expediency and which are really evasions of our Constitution.

One of these Acts was that authorizing the formation of the so-called General State Authority. Here is a debt-creating body which has placed a sizeable obligation upon the people of the Commonwealth by devious methods not approved by the people as the Constitution provides.

Granted that many of the projects undertaken were needed. That does not justify the means used. A Constitutional Amendment adopted in proper manner would have assured a sufficient sum of money which could then have been expended more properly by the regular agencies of government—and more economically.

Let me call attention to one source of demands upon the General State Authority—namely, the building of historical monuments or the restoration of places of historical interest. Some of these places should be restored—partly by public funds, but largely by voluntary subscriptions from a public whose interest has been aroused.

To our children and grandchildren it seems to me the value of a monument or historical building rebuilt for their benefit will seem much less when they learn that it is covered by a mortgage which they will be taxed for a period of thirty years to pay.

I referred in the last session to our issuance of large amounts of tax anticipation notes to finance our appropriations. I hope we can get away from such expensive methods of keeping the Ship of State sailing.

Some efforts have been made in this session to cut down very materially the reserve in the Unemployment Compensation Fund and to reduce taxation—But why efforts at this time to destroy the insurance funds built up against the time of need. A few dark days of financial depression and reserves will melt away as the snow under a summer's sun. And when the war is over and the soldiers return to refit themselves into society again any available money to start anew the work necessary for honest toil or to permit tax reduction will be a blessing of untold value.

There is always much criticism of the Legislature and part of it is, of course, deserved. But service here is difficult. The members are torn between the demands, often unreasonable, of their constitutents and the things which their better judgment urges them to do. If it were possible to receive the disinterested advice of the wise men of the State rather than the continual urging of pressure groups, who are seeking only their own selfish ends, legislation would be better.

It may matter little to the Commonwealth what individuals are elected to sit in this Senate, but it is all imporant to our future that the General Assembly maintain its authority as a co-ordinate branch of our government and that its acts be in accord with this general principle—the best interests of the State.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 4:00 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

TUESDAY, April 7, 1942

The House met at 2 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

Dear God, as Representatives of the people may we remember that he who would be greatest of them all must be a servant. May we build in order to make a life and not simply to make a living. Indeed Our Father, we would say, "Give us men, for a time like this demands strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands. Give us men who possess opinions and a will. Men whom the desire for office does not kill. Men who have honor. Men who do not lie. Yes, God, give us Men whom the spoil of office cannot buy. Give us tall men, small men, sun-crowned, furrowed-browed, all who can live above the fog in public duty, and in private thinking, with Thee, O God." Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday, when, on motion of Mr. VOLDOW, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 83, (Senate Bill No. 41), entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the fifth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six (P. L. 2897, 1937), entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies, with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis, requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons, providing procedure and administrative details for the determination, payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation, providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies, creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties," changing the provisions thereof and the rights, obligations and procedure thereunder.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 6, line 5, by inserting a light-faced bracket before the word "twenty" and after the figure "(20)".

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 6, line 5, by inserting after the figure "(20)" the following: "two (2)".

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 6, line 7, by inserting after the word "week" the following: "in covered employment".

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 7, line 14, by striking out the following: "twenty (20)" and inserting in lieu thereof: "two (2)".

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, in looking over the amendments in full I find that for the most part I am in agreement with them, and would urge the approval of the Republican side of the amendments.

However, I want to point out one thing concerning the amendments, and that is they raise the question of throwing this bill into conference, and that is something we must be very careful of, particularly if the changes are of more than minor importance. We have before us the question of adjournment possibly this week, and we must be very careful that we do not get ourselves into a position where we will permit an adjournment without getting through the necessary liberalization of unemployment compensation.

I will refer to several amendments later, Mr. Speaker, when they are brought up, but I will say at this time for the amendments to Section 1, I urge the support of the Republican members of the sponsor on the amendments to this section.

On the question recurring

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

The second and third sections were separately read and agreed to.

The fourth section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 303), page 30, lines 6 to 9, by striking out the following: "[he has not]" in line 6, and all of lines 7, 8 and 9, and inserting in lieu thereof: "he has not during the previous calendar year".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 303), page 30, line 12, by inserting a light-faced bracket before and after the word "twenty".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 303), page 30, line 12, by inserting after the word "twenty" the following: "two (2)".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 303), page 30, line 14, by inserting after the word "consecutive" the following: "and that he has not, during the part of the current calendar year preceding the filing of his application, employed any employe (whether or not the same employe) in employment subject to this act for some portion of each of some two (2) days, each day being in a different week, whether or not such weeks are consecutive. An employer shall be relieved of the payment of contributions for any calendar year in which the department, upon application by such employer or upon its own motion, shall find that such employer has failed to employ any employe (whether or not the same employe) in employment subject to this act for some portion of each of some two (2) days, each day being in a different week, whether or not such weeks are consecutive.

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 308.1), page 34, lines 16, 17 and 18, by striking out the following: "provided however that the lien" in line 16, all of line 17, and the words "corded real estate mortgages" in line 18.

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 308.1), page 34, line 19, by inserting after the word "hereof" the following: "Provided, That the lien hereby created shall not be prior to pre-existing duly recorded real estate mortgages".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 309.1), page 35, line 22, by inserting after the word "compromise" the following: "any delinquent contribution and".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 309.1), page 35, lines 24 to 27, both inclusive, by striking out all of said lines.

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 401), page 40, line 20, by striking out the light-faced bracket before the word "from" and inserting in lieu thereof: "in employment as defined in this act".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 401), page 40, line 21, by inserting a light-faced bracket before the word "thirteen".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 401), page 40, lines 22 and 23, by striking out the following: "of fifty dollars in each of two sepa-" in line 22, and all of line 23, and inserting in lieu thereof: "one hundred dollars ($100) except for casual labor".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 401), page 42, by inserting between lines 19 and 20, the following: "(f) In claiming benefits hereunder, an employe shall correctly report any days of employment, including employment not subject to this act, and the days on which he was totally unemployed, and shall make such reports in accordance with such regulations as the department shall prescribe".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 402), page 44, lines 13, 14 and 15, by striking out the following: "without good cause [except] Provided That" in line 13, all of line 14, and the word "section" in line 15, and inserting in lieu thereof: "except".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 402), page 44, line 16, by striking out the following: "[the] such" and inserting in lieu thereof: "the".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 402), page 44, line 22, by inserting after the word "conditions" the following: "or without other good cause".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 403), page 45, lines 8 and 9, by striking out the following: "[Rate and] Payment of [Weekly] Compensation to Heirs of Deceased Claimants [" and inserting in lieu thereof: "Rate and Payment of Weekly Compensation—"

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 403), page 45, line 10, by inserting a light-faced bracket before and after the word "fifty".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 403), page 45, line 10, by inserting after the word "fifty" the following: "sixty".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 403), page 45, line 12, by inserting a light-faced bracket before and after the word "fifteen"

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 403), page 45, line 12, by inserting after the word "fifteen" the following: "eighteen".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 403), page 45, lines 12 and 13, by inserting a light-faced bracket before the word "seven" in line 12, and after the word "cents" in line 13.

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 403), page 45, line 13, by inserting after the word "cents" the following: "eight dollars".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 403), page 45, line 17, by inserting a light-faced bracket before and after the word "five".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 403), page 45, line 17, by inserting after the word "five" the following: "fifty".

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 404), page 46, line 3, by inserting after the word "thirteen" the following: "sixteen".

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Cambria will state his question of information.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know whether the sponsor will agree to a division of the question on the amendments at this point, in order that we can consider the later amendments separately. In other words, consider the amendments read by the clerk to this time, and vote on them now.

The SPEAKER. What is the desire of the gentleman?

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, the amendments so far read by the clerk are those on which we are in agreement and I request that we vote on them now. This for the purpose of debating the later amendments to this same section.

The SPEAKER. There will be an opportunity for debate on the amendments in their entirety after the amendments to section four have been read.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, my point in making this request is that we would like to divide our vote on the amendments. The amendments read so far are the amendments on which we are in accord. However, if we are forced to debate all of the amendments to section four there are some amendments on which we are in accord and some on which we are not, and I would request therefore that we vote on the amendments read so far.

The SPEAKER. It is the privilege of the gentleman to ask for a division of the question.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, the last amendment was "by inserting after the word 'thirteen' the word 'sixteen' ". That is the point at which I would like a division of the question.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments as read?

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I should like to say with reference to these amendments that it is my understanding that these are all amendments on which the sponsor has had agreement with the Members of the Senate. We of course will have no trouble in supporting these amendments because we have already indicated our intention by voting for a bill which was even more liberal in some instances than this one. We therefo agree with the efforts of the gentleman from Philad phia to reach a compromise on this controversial qu tion, and I ask the Members on this side to support t amendments so far read.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will continue to read t amendments to Section 4.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 404), page 46, lines 12 to 29, striking out the following: "] Compensation shall be p with" in line 12, and all of lines 13 to 29, both inclusi

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 404), page 47, lines 1 to 29, b inclusive, by striking out all of said lines.

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 404), page 48, lines 1 to 10, b inclusive, by striking out all of said lines.

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 404), page 49, by striking out of said page.

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 407), page 52, lines 13 to 28, striking out the following: "The Secretary is hereby e powered" in line 13, and all of lines 14 to 28, both clusive, and inserting in lieu thereof: "Notwithstandi any provision of this act to the contrary, the compens tion rights of any employe who enters the military naval service of the United States, during any period war or preparation for defense, and is honorably d charged from such service, shall become fixed as of t time he enters such service, and shall remain in sta quo for and during the period of such service, a upon being honorably discharged from such service, su employe shall be entitled to the same benefit righ under the act to which this is an amendment, as he v at the time he entered the service. In calculating t base year, the base period, the benefit year, or a period of time under said act, all time so spent in t military or naval service of the United States shall excluded from computation therein.

The legislature hereby declares the intent of this s tion to be that the benefit rights of an employe enteri the military or naval service herein described, and su sequently receiving an honorable discharge therefro shall, during the period of such service, be and rema as they were at the time of entry into service, and th upon the termination of such service by honorable d charge, the benefit rights of such employe shall be a continue as though uninterrupted by the period of su service.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, in consideri the amendments which have just now been read by t clerk, I find that there are points of disagreement, w the exception of the last amendment concerning t military service. We are in agreement with that pr vision. The change is not severe from the original ter of the bill. However, there are two other importa features which I cannot agree to as an amendment. T first is the striking out of the safety feature which in the Senate bill.

The Senate bill in its unamended terms provides f two different rates of compensation. One is the libera ized rate so long as the fund is in as healthy shape it is now. The second schedule on payments is bas on a more strict set of figures, and is to be applied on if the full amount of the fund falls below the sum of one hundred million dollars. Now, I agree it is not likely that the fund will fall below one hundred million dollars before we come back again in a regular session. However, it could happen, and if it does not happen we haven't lost anything.

Otherwise, Mr. Speaker, the provisions of the bill in its present form acts as safety valve, a kind of insurance, so that if anything happens to the fund at any time, or whether it is discussed at a later session or not, there is always that safety feature in there, that if the amount of the fund falls below one hundred million dollars the rate of payment shall be decreased in order to preserve the fund for the benefit of those who will need the proceeds thereafter.

I think we are making a mistake and that the amendment is destructive in that respect, in that it cuts out a very good and constructive step in providing this safety feature.

The second point on which we take issue with the gentleman from Philadelphia is on the amendment which would strike out the tables. As I remember the debate of the gentleman in the discussion of his own House bill, I recall that he objected to these figures and these tables as being complicated. I have gone over them carefully and believe, if anything, they simplify it a great deal. To find out now what compensation a man is to get, it is only necessary to go through three simple mathematical calculations, under which it is only necessary to show how much a man has earned, what his rate is, and then look over the schedule and find out the amount of money he is to receive as his unemployment compensation.

It is not only the ease of computation which is important, it is the fact that this schedule of tables is far more liberal, particularly in the lower brackets. Under the bill as amended, it would be possible for a man to receive as little as twelve dollars and fifty cents or one eighth of one hundred dollars. If we allow these tables to stay in, we not only make it easier to determine how much a man is to get but to raise his benefits to a minimum of twenty-four dollars. Under these tables there is no payment less than twenty-four dollars, and under the other method it can be as low as twelve dollars and fifty cents, and that is from the bottom of the scale all the way up to the higher brackets. In no case do I find that these tables cut down the payment. Therefore, because of the fact that these present amendments under consideration would not only take out the safety feature, but would as well take out the added benefits of these tables, I ask the Membership of this House to oppose these particular amendments, and Mr. Speaker, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, the problem of the tables that appear in Senate Bill 41 is not a very vexatious problem, except I still feel, as I felt a couple of weeks ago, talking about the tables, I hope sometime we will be able to write a law that will be readily understandable to the people and will not need the guidance of a lawyer or a legal mind to unravel complicated matters.

The tables in the bill represent seventeen columns of figures with a sort of cost index from section A over to Section B, and from schedule 1 to Schedule 2 depending upon many factors. If the gentleman is pleading for somebody's pride of authorship, I can understand the plea, because the making up of these tables represents a great deal of work and possibly a great deal of ingenuity.

However, since this bill was passed in the Senate I have been visited by people who came to me pleading for simplification of the tables in the bill. If the tables were that simple I doubt whether the association of certified public accountants would come to us pleading to please make it four columns instead of seventeen and to make the computations more simple. I do not know that the tables represent any help to the people in the lower brackets. I know full well that my friends in the Senate might send another raiding party over here after my scalp, but I still feel that the Senate is not so awfully worried about the people in the lower brackets, because if they were they would give us a ten dollar minimum and not put it down to eight dollars, and they would not worry so much about the people in the lower brackets—

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia, he is completely out of order in criticizing the Senate. It is against our Rules for the gentleman to do that.

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN. I apologize to the Speaker for having transgressed the Rules of the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will confine his remarks to the question on the amendment.

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, may I say that the tables represent a complicated approach to the calculation of benefits. The gentleman in pleading for the people in the low brackets who may be cut to a minimum of twelve dollars and fifty cents is merely using an extreme case, and not the average case, and I believe that the force of workers in the bureau who now compute the benefits almost automatically, mentally, do not need any artificial aid in the form of a bill, which would to my mind make the whole problem very complex and not understandable to the layman.

So far as the so-called safety valve is concerned, it is my understanding that this safety valve is more or less tied up with the tables. It seems that the gentlemen on the other side of this legislative body, not meaning this House, who drew the bill could not themselves agree as to what was a safety valve. At one point they inserted an amount of less than one hundred million dollars, and at another time they changed it to one and one half times the highest amount paid for compensation in two consecutive months. My thought is that we in this session should not attempt now to legislate for the future. After all we are the ones who are to determine how much benefits are to be paid, we are the ones who are to determine when the benefits shall be paid, and we are the ones to say today that we agree that the liberalization of the benefits in this Bill will not wreck the fund, that is our mature and that is our considered judgment. If we do not think we are right, and if we think we are apt to wreck the fund, I think we would have to be somewhat of a prophet in order to be able to tell that today, and we should not enact the bill.

I think that if we agree that eighteen dollars is sound, we must agree that the fund will not be in any way endangered, and if we believe that eventually there is no chance or danger that the fund will be hurt, then

I think a future legislature can sit down and go over the facts and figures again and apply a safety valve or some safety measure.

The point is, the thing we ought to understand is that we are not dealing with the money of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, we are not dealing with the taxpayers' money which is used for the purpose of the improvement of the government or for the use of the government of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, but as I have reminded you many times before, we are dealing with the peoples' money. We are the peoples' court. If in the future the people say to us that the fund is in danger, let them come to us and tell us and we can then legislate in such manner as we deem advisable and proper, either by raising or lowering taxes whereby in some way we as thustees can see that the fund is properly managed.

I urge, Mr. Speaker, that we keep these amendments in the bill. As the gentleman from Cambria has said, all the amendments in this bill represent practically a unanimous accord that was reached by myself and other conferees two weeks ago. Why there should be any difficulty or any disagreement I do not know but at least the agreement which was reached was an all around agreement. I gave in on some of the amendments and someone else gave in on others. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I urge that we take all of the amendments or none of the amendments, and I urge that these amendments be supported.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I am surprised at one of the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia that we should not legislate for the future. In the Constitution that is just about the limit of our legislative power, for the future. Only in very rare circumstances can we make laws retroactive.

I appreciate the gentleman's effort to reach a compromise. I appreciate the fact that somebody else has given up its insistence on these particular provisions, at the insistence or request of the gentleman from Philadelphia. However, my point and my plea to the gentleman now is not to insist on these changes because they are not actually an improvement over the present system. Those tables are not complicated. All you have to do, if the gentleman will refer to the seventeen sections, and that is because it runs up to that number of weeks—all you have to do is find out how much money you have earned during the past two years, follow out the column until you come to the bracket where that figure fits in and that determines the number of weeks of compensation you receive.

It is true, Mr. Speaker, as the gentleman has said, that the difference is most notable in the lowest income brackets. That is where it should be most noticeable. I picked out a number of instances at random and in every case the man got a dollar or two or four or five more than he would under the present complicated system of computation.

In answer to the gentleman's reference to the certified public accountant association, maybe the gentlemen referred to do not want something so simple, I don't know, but the thought occurs to me that if anybody would spend five minutes on these tables, they will decide they are easy and simple.

In regard to the safety feature, our experiences in the 1941 session and in this special session is a very good indication of the reason why we should provide a safety valve. We might come back here in 1943 or 1945 or some other time in the future, when the fund is in danger and find that the money was so tied up with controversial features that we could not legislate a safety valve at that time. We would be far better off to include it at this time as a precaution to the future when it might be absolutely necessary for the preservation of the fund.

I am informed by one of my colleagues that the shop workers in his district have gone over the bill and they are in favor of the safety valve. The men I have talked to at home have been in favor of it, and while I would not vote in any way to destroy the bill, I do think we should at this time record ourselves as being in favor of inclusion of the safety valve and the inclusion of the simplification of the tables as to the amount of benefits.

I therefore again urge the membership not to support these amendments and to protect the fund by the inclusion of the provisions as they now stand, and I, therefore, repeat my request for a roll call.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 34, (Senate Bill No. 26), entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article eight, section eleven, of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 109, entitled:

An Act to prohibit during a limited period certain workers for State local and district councils of defense or for certain Federal boards agencies or instrumentalities engaged in defense and war activities from engaging in political activity and providing penalties

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. EDWIN F. THOMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, line 2, by inserting after the word "as" the following: "chief".

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, line 2, by inserting after the word "warden" the following: "chief".

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, line 2, by inserting after the word "policemen" the following: "chief".

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, line 3, by striking out the words "air raid spotter".

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, lines 4, 5, and 6, by striking out the words "or in any other capacity having def-" in line 4, all of line 5, and the words "defense activities" in line 6.

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, line 8, by striking out the words "or instrumentalities".

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, that the bill as amended lie over for printing.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 92, (Senate Bill No. 46), as follows:

An Act to suspend for a limited time the operation of laws regulating or relating to the movement loading lightering docking and anchorage of vessels carrying or having on board certain explosives insofar as the same relate to the handling or stowing of small arms ammunition or ammunition which contains the projectile and the explosive in one container or shell to from or in such vessels docking or anchoring in the Delaware River and its navigable tributaries

Section 1 In order to facilitate the movement and transportation of certain explosives during the continuance of the war in which the United States is now engaged and for six months thereafter any laws or parts of laws of the Commonwealth and any regulations thereunder regulating or relating to the movement loading lightering docking or anchorage of vessels in the Delaware River and its navigable tributaries carrying or having on board gunpowder guncotton or other explosive insofar as the same regulates or relates to the movement loading lightering handling or storing of small arms ammunition which contains the projectile and the explosive in one container or shell to from or in such vessels are hereby suspended

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—1

Auker,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return it to the Senate with information that the House has passed it with amendments in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 33, (Senate Bill No. 19), as follows:

An Act to protect property and prevent sabotage by prohibiting for a limited period of time certain intentional injuries to and interferences with real and personal property prohibiting certain intentional defects in workmanship limiting the privileges of certain witnesses and providing penalties

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Destroying or Injuring Real and Personal Property Whoever with intent to injure interfere with or obstruct the United States any associate nation this State or any other state in defense or in preparing for or carrying on war or whoever with reason to believe that his act may injure interfere with or obstruct the United States any associate nation this State or any other state in defense or in preparing for or carrying on war shall wilfully injure or destroy or shall attempt to so injure or destroy any real or personal property within this State is guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding ten thousand dollars ($10,000) or to undergo imprisonment not exceeding ten (10) years or both

Section 2 Making or Causing Articles to be Made in Defective Manner Whoever with intent to injure interfere with or obstruct the United States any associate nation this State or any other state in defense or in preparing for or carrying on war or whoever with reason to believe that his act may injure interfere with or obstruct the United States any associate nation this State or any other state in defense or in preparing for or carrying on war shall wilfully make or cause to be made in a defective manner or attempt to make or cause to be made in a defective manner any article or thing which he has reasonable grounds to believe is intended to be used in connection with defense or with the prosecution of war is guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding ten thousand dollars ($10,000) or to undergo imprisonment not exceeding ten (10) years or both

Section 3 Witnesses' Privileges No person shall be excused from attending and testifying or producing any books papers or other documents before any court magistrate referee or grand jury upon any investigation proceeding or trial for or relating to or concerned with a violation of any section of this act or attempt to commit such violation upon the ground or for the reason that the testimony or evidence documentary or otherwise required of him by the state may tend to convict him of a crime or to subject him to a penalty or forfeiture but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction matter or thing concerning which he may so testify or produce evidence documentary or otherwise and no testimony so given or produced shall be received against him upon any criminal investigation proceeding or trial except upon a prosecution for perjury or contempt of court based upon the giving or producing of such testimony

Section 4 Effective Period This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment and shall remain in effect so long as a state of war exists between the United States and any foreign country and six months after such state of war ceases to exist

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Readinger.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Berks permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. READINGER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman from Berks as a member of the majority party of this House, who is responsible for the preparation of the amendments which are now inserted in Senate Bill 19, Printer's No. 61.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I procured the drafting of these amendments.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, did the gentleman likewise supervise them, and by that I do not mean personally, but on behalf of the majority party of this House, did he supervise the deletion of those secctions which were in the bill when it entered this House?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, my answer to the question of the gentleman is, as a result of conferences with the members of the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation and members of the majority party of the House, these amendments were drafted.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman in a position to state therefore whether these amendments represent the position of the majority party of this House?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the question of the gentleman I can say that these amendments are in accord with the majority opinion of the members of the Select Committee, from which the bill has been reported out as amended.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Berks. Is the gentleman from Berks familiar with the provisions of the federal act of 1918 dealing with sabotage?

Mr. READINGER. I believe I am, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman also familiar with the so-called peace time sabotage act enacted by Congress in 1940?

Mr. READINGER. I believe I am, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that in both these measures the word "materials" which I take it means personal property, the word "premises" which I likewise take to mean real property, and the word "utilities" are defined at great length in those two measures?

Mr. READINGER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. It is my understanding that Senate Bill 19, Printer's No. 61, in its present form resembles and closely follows the federal sabotage act of 1918 and 1940?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, it closely resembles the war time sabotage act of the federal government of 1918.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman why then did he not include in this bill the various definitions as set forth in the federal act, if the gentleman is in a position to answer the question.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, the words "personal and real property were inserted in the present bill and it was believed that description adequately covered all the property we desired to protect against sabotage. The federal government back in 1918 and also in 1940 saw fit to define in great detail all the particular materials to which the act was related. It was not thought to be necessary in this particular act.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I understand the gentleman to say that Senate Bill 19, Printer's No. 61, in its present form closely resembles the federal war time sabotage law of 1918.

Mr. READINGER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman please answer for the information of the Members of this House why this bill carries the penal provisions of the so-called peace time sabotage bill, mainly, as I understand it, a penalty not to exceed a fine of ten thousand dollars or ten years imprisonment, or both, instead of the war time penalty inserted in the federal act, a fine not exceeding ten thousand dollars and imprisonment not exceeding thirty years or both? Does the gentleman not believe that we should have a more strict sentencing provision in the act in view of the fact we are presently at war?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman's question I would say that the study of penology seems to indicate and the study of the operation of the application of criminal statutes indicates that where very long sentences are provided they are very rarely imposed. In other words, a criminal statute which provides for a sentence of ten to twenty years or one that provides imprisonment for fifty years is very seldom imposed on a person. The courts seem to lean towards shorter periods, and in my opinion and I believe in the opinion of many of the Members of this House, the maximum fine and imprisonment provided in this bill is adequate even in war time.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, in other words, the gentleman from Berks does not believe that a greater penalty would act more as a deterrent than the present penalty?

Mr. READINGER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman from Berks follow that to the conclusion, if he believed it to be logical, and say where the penal provision for murder would be reduced to that of simple assault and battery that fewer people would commit murder?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe that by reducing the penalty it would lead to fewer people committing murder.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman likewise then explain why he thinks the cutting down of the penal provision of the federal sabotage law for our state purposes will help to deter sabotage in Pennsylvania?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I think the penalty provision of this bill is adequate as a deterrent. I do not believe it would deter any person from committing sabotage if you raised the penalty to seventy-five years.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman familiar with section eight and section nine of the bill as it passed the Senate?

Mr. READINGER. I believe I am, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, is it true that these sections make it a crime to trespass upon streams, ponds, reservoirs and dams where the same have been posted under the authority of the Water and Power Resources Board of Pennsylvania?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I believe that to be correct.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, does Senate Bill 19 in its present form cover this situation, in the opinion of the gentleman from Berks?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, if the person who is trespassing is committing an act of sabotage on such property this present bill does cover it. If he is simply trespassing and committing no act of sabotage then this bill does not cover it.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. In other words, Mr. Speaker, under the present bill which we are discussing, it is not possible to prevent sabotage by patrolling the waters of this state and we would have to wait until the act of sabotage had been committed and then punished, is that correct?

Mr. READINGER. That is not correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman please answer me whether there is any law in Pennsylvania which will permit such waters to be posted, any criminal law which can be used against the trespassers, if the gentleman from Berks knows?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that there is now on the statute books of Pennsylvania a statute which makes such trespassing a penal offense. I believe it is a summary conviction and the fine is small. I also understand the law of Pennsylvania to include provisions allowing persons to guard their lands against trespassers and to forcibly remove persons who have no legal right to be on private premises.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, provided the lands are posted?

Mr. READINGER. Whether the lands are posted or not, Mr. Speaker. If the owner of a piece of real estate finds someone on his premises without permission I understand the law is that he can remove him. There are certain statutes on the books of Pennsylvania relative to utility properties, providing against trespassing on utility properties such as railroads and electric companies, and I believe imposing rather stiff penalties.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that so far as the trespassing of real estate in this State is concerned that it is necessary for the real estate to be posted and for the man to be arrested for having trespassed?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, in some instances I would say yes, and in others I would say no.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman agree to this, that Section 255 of the fish laws of this State, so far as the closing of streams is concerned, as I am reliably informed, is the only law which we have on the books of this State which can possibly deal with this situation, and the only reason, the only authority given to the Fish Commission to close any of the waters of this State is to have them declared a nursery, and that this does not apply to any one who does not come on the premises for the sake of fishing, but who in fact happens to be a casual trespasser. Nor do I believe that it applies to navigable streams,—Will the gentleman please answer that question?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman to repeat the title of that Act, the citation?

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, it is Section 255 as amended by Act No. 121, approved June 5, 1935, Act No. 368, approved July 17, 1935 and Act No. 364, approved June 24, 1939, entitled "Nursery Waters," in which it states:

"The Board is authorized to set aside at its discretion or upon petition of one hundred and fifty residents who shall be holders of fishing licenses such streams, lakes, dams, ponds or parts thereof as it may judge best, as nursery waters in which fishing shall be prohibited for such periods of time as the board may prescribe."

It then goes on to provide as follows:

"Before setting aside such waters the board through the Commissioner shall give public notice of closing such waters by publishing the prohibition and the duration thereof in such manner as the Board may prescribe. Notice of such closing shall also be posted along the banks of such waters. Any person fishing, catching or killing any fish from any stream or water so closed shall on conviction in the manner provided by chapter fourteen be sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars."

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman I will say that I am not familiar with the act he just cited, but I have before me House Bill 64, Printer's No. 24, introduced by Mr. Baugher and Mr. Breth on March 16, 1942 in this House. This bill amends the Act of 1925 relating to fishing and authorizes the Board of Fish Commissioners during the emergency war time to close or open seasons for any of the inland waters, artificial or otherwise, and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth as in its judgment it may deem necessary for any emergency, and the Board shall not be solely limited in the application of its judgment to the conservation of the future fish supply. The first part of this bill suspends the present law of 1925 and its amendments relating to the present power of the Board of Fish Commissioners, to conserve the future fish supply, and then adds the section which I have just read.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, under the circumstances there would seem at best to be some dispute as to whether there is any authority to post these waters. May I say, that I do not believe such authority exists despite the bill which was passed here and has gone over to the Senate. But for the sake of clarification, for the sake of giving aid to power plants and the manufacturing interests of this State, which are doing such a good job of production, I feel that it would be better to amend the sabotage law rather than have some serious disaster fall upon us by our failing to meet the proposition now. Is the gentleman in a position now to say on behalf of the majority party whether he thinks that is the case?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman I will say that I am not in a position to state what is in the minds of the majority members of the House, but in my own personal opinion, I think there is at the present time sufficient law on the books to allow the postings of such premises and the enforcement and removal of trespassers from the premises. In my opinion, may I add, it seems to me that no amount of law we might pass here will stop sabotage; the enforcement and the vigilance of persons who are hired to guard the premises against saboteurs is far more important.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Readinger.

Mr. Speaker. It is with somewhat mixed emotions that I appear before this House today in behalf of this sabotage bill. I think you all realize that Pennsylvania needs a sabotage law, and for that we are very grateful —that we are at last obtaining one—we hope. But it is a shame that this law which allegedly copies and follows the Federal law has not been made more elastic to adjust itself to a state which is as industrial as ours and bears such a tremendous share of the burden of the national production scheme.

During the 1941 session I sponsored an anti-sabotage bill. It was kept in the House committee here with the same Democratic majority. It never enjoyed any readings, it was never reported out and no public hearing was held. After waiting many weeks we finally gave up the ghost here and submitted a similar bill to one of our own Senators, at which time it was introduced in the State Senate, and the Republican Senate passed the measure over to this House, but that bill died here just like the one I introduced. It never received any public hearing, it never received any consideration. The federal sabotage law which this bill copies has been in existence in this country for twenty-four years, but they did not seek to amend the bill last year as they do now. I don't know what the reason is exactly and I would hesitate to give what I think the real reason may be. However, I would like to read to you what one writer has said about sabotage legislation.

It may not get any votes for this measure but I would like to see it put into the record. I wish it would serve as information to those members who at one time opposed any sabotage law in this state, that there are other people besides we Pennsylvanians who have long been impressed with the idea that sabotage legislation was necessary, both in the federal government and in the respective states.

This writer states as follows:

"The prevention of sabotage is a vital cog in the machinery of national defense. Sabotage is far more dangerous now than it has ever been in the past, because in the mechanized war of today the products of the factory are essential to the success of the army. In the First World War, armies required quite some mechanical equipment, but today the need not only for guns but for airplanes, tanks and trucks as well is many times as great. If our country is to prepare for a possible modern war and is actively to pursue its now openly-avowed policy to assist England in defeating the Axis powers, every available factory must work at top speed. Destruction of machinery, factories and utilities will spell defeat just as surely as rout in the field.".

The writer then goes on to state as follows:

"Our criminal law, both statutory and judge-made, has grown out of the dangers that have confronted us in the past. Sabotage is a comparatively new instrument of national aggression; its threat was not generally recognized in this country during the First World War and very few states enacted statutes punishing it. Today, therefore, if Nazi and Fascist saboteurs are to be punished by existing state laws, in most states it must be, strangely enough, because their acts constitute some crime other than sabotage. Whether this will be the case depends on the method of sabotage used, the intent of the saboteur, and the nature of the property attacked."

Now, Mr. Speaker, we Republicans over here are going to be consistent. That is one of our many virtues. We would like to have included in Senate Bill 19 provisions regarding the posting of waters, because we feel that plants which are surrounded by waters are entitled to the same protection as those plants which are on land and which are able to build fences, to withhold trespassers. We realize, that the sabotage law will tend to prevent and deter sabotage, and by doing this our war effort will be advanced more.

This was our stand in 1941, for seven long months, and it is our stand now. Further, Mr. Speaker, we want no measure on the statute books of this state which interferes with the rights of the citizens of this state, be they members of any church, race or union, and we want a unity of effort which will win this war.

We do believe that our privileges may suffer somewhat in order to advance production. We likewise believe that if we are successful in deterring sabotage, we will continue the flow of essential supplies.

God knows it is the least we can do. We at home have a relatively easy task. The men for whom we are producing have the risk and no one here can debate or minimize the seriousness. A private who assumes these risks does so for us, for our nation's existence and for the munificient pay of less than three cents an hour. Should we quibble on our responsibility?

Mr. Speaker, in urging the Republican members to abide by their stand of 1941 and support this measure by voting for it, I fear that I would be remiss if I did not take this final opportunity to thank the Democratic membership for finally seeing the light and going along. I thank you.

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the bill, not so much because I believe we need a bill of this kind, but because I want to go down the line one hundred per cent with the administration that is responsible for the successful prosecution of this war.

We have at the head of the Government our Commander-in-Chief, a practical man, a man who knows his business in war, and it would be folly for me to attempt to try to advise him how to proceed. If the Federal Act is good enough for those in charge of that responsibility, then it should be good enough for Pennsylvania. Who are we in Pennsylvania? Are we greater, Mr. Speaker, more important than the Federal Government? We are just a part of the Federal Government, ten million American citizens, loyal American citizens, and I am going to try to demonstrate to you here now that it was not necessary in the first place to have a bill.

Governor James in his address to the Special Session said the only reason for calling this session was the necessity of enacting a reapportionment bill, so he was not thinking that Pennsylvania was not properly protected from the standpoint of sabotage. He must have felt perfectly satisfied at that time.

I would like to read for the record what has recently taken place in Pennsylvania further to prove the stand I am taking. This is a quotation from the Philadelphia Record:

"Scranton, Pa., March 17—An arms plant foreman was accused by the Government today of trying to maim and kill Army gun crews by "doctoring" 81-millimeter trench mortar shells."

"Only the keen eyes of Army ordinance inspectors blocked the attempt, the Government charged."

"On trial in Federal District Court here is Walter C. Dietrick, 40, for 19 years an employe of the Kennedy Van Saun Manfacturing & Engineering Corporation, at Danville, Pa. The company holds a large shell contract."

"Possible Penalty. The indictment was based on two sections of Title 50, U. S. Code Annotated, as amended November 30, 1940. Section 101 defines war material. Section 103 states that a person is guilty of violating the statute if, during wartime, he "shall willfully make or cause to be made in a defective manner, any war material, as defined herein." Conviction carries a $10,000 fine, 30 years in prison, or both."

"Dietrick was arrested two months ago. A resident of Danville, and a native American, he was indicted by the Federal Grand Jury at Lewisburg."

Now, how could we pass any kind of law that would catch up with this fellow? He had had nineteen years of work with this company, was perfectly trusted. The Federal Government did catch up with him. We could enact all kinds of law but we would never have caught up with him until he was caught redhanded in the act, and that goes for anyone. We can pass laws as high as this ceiling, gentlemen, and still we have got to catch the fellow in the act; still he is not guilty until he is proven guilty.

I look upon the citizens of Pennsylvania as being loyal Americans until such time as they are caught in the act of doing something detrimental to the country in its war effort. I am in favor of the bill as it now stands, because the people of Pennsylvania and the people of the United States that are mostly affected by bills of this kind are satisfied with it because it is in line with the judgment of those in charge and having the responsibility of prosecuting the war.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, realizing that probably all of the Members of this House will vote for this bill I am not going to prolong the debate on it, but I do want to make a few observations.

First I wish to thank the gentleman from Montgomery for his support, his interest in this matter, just as all Members of this House should be interested in this subject.

I wish to take issue with the gentleman from Allegheny who just spoke when he says that what is good enough for the Federal government is good enough for Pennsylvania. In my opinion that is not necessarily so, and, if I did not believe that other laws in Pennsylvania today covered sections of the original Senate bill which have been deleted, I would not be supporting this bill in its present form.

Pennsylvania is entitled to have a sabotage act which will be effective and which will supplement and help the Federal act and its enforcement. That is the least we can do for our boys who are across the seas fighting, and for those thousands who are going to go shortly.

I believe the bill in its present form will adequately protect Pennsylvanians against sabotage to the extent that any law can protect us. It will facilitate enforcement by having a state act, and I believe that every Member of this House should support this bill.

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make just a brief statement for the record.

The gentleman from Montgomery made reference a while ago—this is strictly for the record and no personal reflection meant, but the gentleman spoke about a bill on anti-sabotage in the past session. Since I was Chairman of the Committee that handled that legislation I think the Members of this House would like to have an explanation,—I think the record deserves an explanation.

The bill was introduced in the early part of the last session, and during the entire term, the entire six and one-half months that we were here, if my memory is correct, I received but one letter to have the bill reported out, whereas I received numerous protests against its being reported out.

When the Senate passed the identical bill and it came over to the House I received no requests to get the bill out until the last week of the session, when a request came from certain persons who were interested in certain particular kinds of property being protected. I might say that I worked very hard with those people in an attempt to affect some legislation that would help certain types of property, but we came to the conclusion that we had neither the time nor the ingenuity to get such a bill.

The gentleman from Montgomery knows as well as I do, both having been members of the Committee on Judiciary Special for the past two terms, both having handled a great deal of criminal law legislation, that there is no act on our books which will stop crime. The passage of an anti-sabotage bill is not going to stop sabotage if the saboteur is going to do a particular piece of work.

The point I wanted to make is that the best way to stop sabotage is to prevent sabotage, and that must be done by an intelligent program of prevention rather than the mere chasing after saboteurs. In that connection may I refer the gentleman from Montgomery to one of the congressional exponents of the problem? The gentleman from Montgomery well knows the Republican Congressman from Montgomery County who nine or ten months ago, together with two other gentlemen of the Naval Affairs Committee, were given an appropriation bill as a sub-committee of the Naval Affairs Committee,—they were given a request to study the advisability of spending one million dollars to be given to the F.B.I. for the purpose of setting up a sabotage prevention system. The thought was to set up ways and means either by an increase of the personnel of the force or by some more scientific methods or what not to try to stop sabotage.

If the gentleman from Montgomery will only ask the congressman from Montgomery, whom I believe he knows well, and knows personally, he could find out why that gentleman up until about a month ago, of that I am certain, refused, together with two other isolationist members of Congress, to work on that appropriation or to request an appropriation or to attempt in any way to put that one million dollars into the hands of the FBI for attempting to work out a sabotage control or a sabotage prevention system.

A saboteur is not interested in the penalty in a sabotage bill. You may make your bill to provide for capital punishment and you are not going to stop that person, representing a foreign nation, from committing sabotage. But if you want to approach the sabotage question you have got to prevent it, and maybe the Congressman from Montgomery can tell us why they did not think it advisable to give one million dollars, or report favorable at all on the effort to get one million dollars for the FBI to set up a sabotage control or a sabotage prevention system.

Mr. Speaker, I think we ought to have that in the record, inasmuch as there has been some implication of some dirty work at the crossroads.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, about a month ago, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, accosted me on the sidewalk in front of the library or rather in front of the museum and told me about this story. He did not refer to notes, he does not refer to notes today. I would like to recite to the gentleman, because I anticipated that, even though this had nothing to do with sabotage, if an opportunity were afforded the gentleman to launch an attack upon the gentleman from Montgomery County, he would take the opportunity to do so.

I, in turn, Mr. Speaker, want to read, not from memory, but from an issue of the Congressional Record of May 26th, Page 4430, in which it states that this measure was introduced for the Secretary of the Navy for the purpose of putting three hundred and thirty men into a force on an appropriation of three million dollars to protect navy yards and plants in the United States. The idea as I understand it, was to create a separate FBI for the Navy, without giving the FBI the benefit of the fund, and the gentleman from Montgomery, it is my understanding, told Congress in no uncertain terms, and he happens to have been eloquent enough to have two Democratic colleagues on the sub-committee to agree with him, that if any money is to be given, it should be given to the FBI, because J. Edgar Hoover could use the three million dollars for the purpose of getting three hundred and thirty men in a national training setup.

Mr. Speaker, if I may be allowed a few minutes more time, I may be able to quote to the gentleman directly what he said on this measure. I quote from Page 4432. Incidentally, I have the Congressmen's word that as a result of these remarks he received a personal letter of thanks from Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, and I hope that before the session is over to be able to read that into the record for the benefit of the gentleman from Philadelphia.

I read now from the Congressional Record under date of May 22, page 4432, as follows:

"They now want to appoint a new agency to cost $3,000,000. The work that has to be done could be done by the FBI just as well as this newly created agency could do it; in fact, my own impression is the FBI could do it better."

I read further from the Congressional Record of that date as follows:

"I challenge any man here on the floor of the House to say the FBI is not a capable, trustworthy, proven agency of investigation. They are skilled men. They are men who have stood the acid test. At the head of that agency is a man who has rendered the best of service in the tasks that have been assigned to him. If this be so, and I hardly believe any man will challenge the statement, why not let the FBI take over? Give them 200 additional men or 300 additional men, or whatever may be necessary to carry out this work, and root out the enemies in the places where there are difficulties."

"What I am opposed to is not the appointment of investigators. I am opposed to the army of patronage seekers that would come as a result of this measure. You are going to get so many more stenographers, and you are going to get so many more clerks, and you are going to get another agency building itself up for successive $3,000,000 grabs, and then you say you want economy. If we want economy, if we want to make the dollars do all the work that they should be doing, these dollars ought to be applied to the doing of some serious things right now. If you want the dollars to be doing the things they should be doing, then for goodness sake let us get away from this policy of trying to find every excuse to establish a new agency of government, to set up another establishment, to create some more jobs, to give a new administrator $7,500 and get a lot more clerks and a lot more stenographers and a lot more of other employes somebody will have to pay for. Your people and my people will have to pay the bills."

Mr. Speaker, I am heartily in accord with that statement and I believe it is a good old fashioned American doctrine.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I just wish to take a few minutes of the time of the House members, possibly at the risk of again being called a "squawker" by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Brien. But I might say, Mr. Speaker, that because of such a remark it is my own personal opinion that if more of us did a little squawking in the halls of the Legislature we possibly would not be subject to so much criticism by the Press and the people of Pennsylvania.

I merely wish to square myself with my constitutents back home, Mr. Speaker, on this Bill. They were heartily in accord that I should offer amendments on second reading of the bill in this House to make the penalty a death penalty.

To my mind a man who blows up a defense industry or in any way interferes with defense work is just as much a murderer as if he had stood up and shot our men in the back in the front ranks in the army, and if that is true, and I individually believe it is true, and my constituents back home agree with me,—and I might say that a large percentage of that constituency is made up of the Railroad Shop Craft of America, not affiliated with the A. F. of L. nor with the C. I. O., but a good loyal bunch of Pennsylvanians,—if that is true, the penalty for sabotage should be the same as for murder or attempted murder. Certainly in my mind any person who attempts to interfere with war work or with any industry, transportation or otherwise is just as guilty of murder as if he stood up and shot our men in the front ranks in the back.

I am going to support the bill, Mr. Speaker, because it is the only thing we have, I just wanted to square myself with my people back home.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

SENATE MESSAGE

HOUSE BILL CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bills from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 79.

An Act to further amend section seven of the act, approved the twelfth day of June, one thousand eight hundred seventy-eight (P. L. 201), entitled "An act to provide for the publication of the decisions of the Supreme Court and the appointment of a state reporter," by making further provision relative to the custody and disposition of plates used in the printing of Supreme Court reports and Supreme Court advance sheets.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

BILLS SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bills numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor, and the same being correct, the titles were publicly read as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 58.

An Act to further amend section seven hundred two to amend section seven hundred nineteen and to further amend section eight hundred and six of the act approved the third day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 1225) entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating thereto" by vesting in the Pennsylvania Game Commission the power to adjust hours for hunting training of dogs and carrying certain firearms and ammunition

SENATE BILL No. 28.

An Act to further amend Section 801 of the act, approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 457), entitled "An act relating to the business of building and loan associations; providing for the organization and voluntary dissolution of such associations; defining the rights, powers, duties, liabilities, and immunities of such associations, and of their officers, directors, shareholders, solicitors, and other employes; prohibiting the transaction of business in this Commonwealth by foreign building and loan associations; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the courts, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; establishing limitations of actions; imposing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts," by authorizing building and loan associations to act as fiscal agents of the United States Government for the sale of United States Defense Bonds and Defense Stamps, or obligations of the United States Government of a similar character and purpose and permitting such associations to pledge their assets for the faithful performance of their duties as such agents.

Whereupon,

The SPEAKER, in the presence of the House, signed the same.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. MALLOY from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation reported as committed House Resolution No. 3.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ROSENFELD asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and Members of the House: When the Governor of this Commonwealth, in addressing the opening session of the House, had the temerity to indicate that it has been a cause of sincere regret to him that this body last year failed to enact more liberal grants in unemployment compensation, most of us thought that the all-time political low had been reached by our Chief Executive. For, of course, it was common knowledge to all of us that this House had long fought for liberalization of unemployment compensation payments and that it was the Administration, and the Administration only, which balked every effort at such liberalization. This obviously, therefore, was an attempt on the part of the Governor to mislead the thousands of radio listeners since the Chief Executive knew that the House was well aware of this record.

But even this act of chicanery has been exceeded.

For last evening Governor James sent a message to the House in which he made certain vague accusations.

I have risen from a sick bed to come here to answer this libelous slander directed at me personally. I believe that I can state without fear of successful contradiction that a new low has been achieved, even for Arthur H. James, in this attack on my personal and legislative integrity.

It is a cause of some regret to me that I cannot stoop so low as to reveal all the things that have been said to me by the Governor in numerous discussions that I have had with him after the passage of the Parole Bill. It is a matter of sheer self-defense, however, for me to reveal portions of conversations which I felt were confidential and which I did not believe it would ever become necessary to reveal.

Let me open by saying that, far from seeking appointment on the projected Parole Commission, the possibility of appointment was suggested to me by the Chief Executive some time after the enactment of the act. It was at that time that I first called the attention of the Governor to the fact that constitutional limitations made this appointment impossible. It was then suggested that I serve without pay in setting up the Board and that I keep the record clear by offering to do so without pay formally in writing. To now produce this letter as evidence of my seeking office is an act so despicable as to shake all faith in our Chief Executive as a public official or individual.

But perhaps an even more significant portion of the story is a subsequent meeting in October, 1941, when I went to the Governor's Office at his request. For nearly two hours, he attempted to persuade me to back him up in his request to postpone the effective date of the Parole Act intimating in consideration for such postponement that I could be appointed to the Parole Board after the constitutional limitation shall have expired. Far from making it a matter of personal interest therefore to oppose the postponement of the Parole Act, the Governor intimated that it would be to my personal interest to favor the postponement of the act.

So deep-seated, however, has been my desire to see this liberal legislation of ours go into effect that I firmly refused to back his request and promised to fight postponement to the utmost of my ability. The Governor then called me—asked me to write my views in a letter, wanted me to reconsider. I refused. I have fought postponement in a full measure.

Those of you who will recall my address of last week, in which I castigated our Chief Executive for his failure to put the Act into effect, will certainly remember that I pulled no punches in doing so. Was this attack on the Governor compatible with desire for appointment which must come from him and from him alone? If personal interest and a desire for appointment were in my mind, would I not rather have used the weasel words of a supplicant for office?

Actually, his intention was to sow the seed of suspicion among the Democratic members that I would personally benefit from the passage of the Parole Act.

You will recall, Mr. Speaker, that Governor James used his high office on a previous occasion to vent his intemperate displeasure on another member of this House for daring to oppose him. I refer to the incident of last May, when the Democrats submitted their budget to the Legislature.

The Governor must think us naive-minded indeed if he believed that his present story, so dramatically presented last night, will convince any one, let alone a majority, of this House that it was to my personal interest to attack him so that he should appoint me to office.

I am sure that Governor James does not speak for the Republican Party. It is inconceivable to me that a political party should be so lacking in principle and so devoid of policy that it must avail itself of this form of political chicanery.

Governor James acts with the honesty of a European peace pact and the sportsmanship of a Jap. He has taken a lesson from Pearl Harbor and improved on its treachery.

He has once more indulged in the hit-run tactics that have characterized his assault on individuals and causes from the moment that he started his campaign for the high office he now holds. In a clear and flagrant violation of the canons of ethics of the American Bar, Arthur James carried on a vigorous campaign for the most political office in the State while a Judge of the Superior Court of this Commonwealth, and in additiob took full pay while doing so. The campaign was perhaps unprecedented in its vulgar appeals to bigotry and prejudice and its vicious attacks on personalities and principles, later proven without foundation. The administration was begun by the sleight-of-hand trick of the left hand passing to the right hand the resignation of Judge James to Governor James and has continued with trickery of equal calibre. Campaign pledges have been broken in such numbers that to recount them would postpone adjournment indefinitely. Flagrant violation of solemn pledges and breach of faith are now followed by our Chief Executive's even more flagrant refusal to abide by the legislative mandate to establish a Parole Board.

When clearly indicted of this violation of the law, the best that the Governor produces is this personal libel so contradictory to the facts and to common sense as to make it ludicrous were it not for the tragedy of observing the Chief Executive of the Commonwealth stooping to such methods.

It is a cause of sincere regret to me that our Parole Act has become a subject of acrimonious discussion on personalities. I will say no more now, only because in my respect for the objectives of the Act, I do not wish to drag it any further through the mire of personal recriminations.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE ON RULES

Mr. ACHTERMAN from the Committee on Rules reported with amendments Senate Concurrent Resolution Serial No. 107.

SENATE MESSAGE

ADJOURNMENT SINE DIE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, March 31, 1942.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend resolution, by striking out the following: "Tuesday, April 7, 1942, at 12:00 o'clock noon" and inserting in lieu thereof: Friday, April 10, 1942, at 4:00 p. m.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution as amended?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

SENATE MESSAGE

SENATE BILLS FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence, bills numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 74. (HOUSE BILL No. 118).

An Act presecribing the procedure for the adoption and promulgation of rules and regulations to supply provisions of law which have ben suspended because they interfere with the prosecution of any war in which the United States of America is engaged at the time of the final enactment of this act.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

SENATE BILL No. 85. (HOUSE BILL No. 119).

An Act prescribing temporary emergency war provisions with respect to the administration of certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth relating to days for schools to be in session closing schools temporarily assignment and reassignment of teachers and temporary farm and domestic employment certificates for certain pupils and authorizing boards of school directors (or boards of public instruction) with the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to put such provisions into operation and to suspend the provisions of existing school laws inconsistent therewith upon findings by such boards and department and the State Council of Defense.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

BILL SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bill numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor, and the same being correct, the title was publicly read as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 79:

An Act to further amend section seven of the act approved the twelfth day of June, one thousand eight hundred seventy-eight (P. L. 201), entitled "An act to provide for the publication of the decisions of the supreme court and the appointment of a state reporter," by making further provision relative to the custody and disposition of plates used in the printing of Supreme Court Reports and Supreme Court Advance Sheets.

Whereupon,

The SPEAKER, in the presence of the House, signed the same.

RESOLUTIONS

INVESTIGATION OF LICENSURE BOARDS

Mr. BAUGHER offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for it to be read for the information of the House.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 7, 1942.

Whereas, One of the vitally important governmental functions of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is the examination, registration and licensure of persons seeking to engage in certain professions and occupations; and

Whereas, The respective boards and commissions, charged by Acts of Assembly with the duty of conducting and supervising such examination, registration and licensure, occupy a position of the highest responsibility and trust in protecting both the members of the general public and also those persons engaged in the professions and occupations concerned; and

Whereas, In certain instances, bribes have been solicited and accepted by employes of such boards, for the purpose of registering or licensing persons who had taken examinations and were waiting qualification under the law to engage in the profession or occupation involved; and

Whereas, Any such corrupt and illegal evasion of the legal safeguards and restrictions governing the practice of certain professions and occupations, seriously endangers the general public health, safety and welfare, as well as destroys the public confidence in the ability of those engaging in these professions and occupations; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker of this House of Representatives appoint a committee, composed of seven members thereof, whose duty it shall be to make a careful, thorough and impartial investigation of the activities of the respective boards and commissions charged by law with the duty of examining, registering and licensing persons desiring to engage in certain professions and occupations, for the purpose of discovering and eliminating any bribery or other illegality in such examination, registration and licensure. It shall be the duty of such committee to make its report to this House of Representatives as soon as possible, and to take any other proper action which it may deem advisable in view of its findings. The investigations and deliberations of such committee may be continued after the end of the present Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly; and be it further

Resolved, That the said committee shall have power to issue subpoenas under the hand and seal of its chairman, requesting and commanding any person or persons to appear before them and to answer such questions touching matters properly being inquired into by the committee, and to produce such books, papers, records and documents as the committee may deem necessary. Such subpoenas may be served upon any person, and shall have the force and effect of subpoenas issued out of the courts of this Commonwealth. Each member of said committee shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the committee. Any person who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to testify before said committee or to produce any books, papers, records or documents shall be subject to the penalties provided by the laws of the Commonwealth in such cases.

The SPEAKER. The resolution lies over for printing under the Rules.

STATE ATHLETIC COMMISSION

Messrs. BENTZEL and MARSHALL M. COHEN offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 7, 1942.

Whereas, The State Athletic Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in connection with its duties of supervising amateur boxing bouts and exhibitions staged by certain clubs and organizations within the Commonwealth, has adopted certain rules and regulations; and

Whereas, Among such rules and regulations is a requirement that participants in amateur events be members of the Amateur Athletic Union (A. A. U.); and

Whereas, Although ordinarily such requirement might be proper and advisable, it nevertheless works a hardship upon young men attached to the various armed forces of the United States who may wish to participate in amateur events held within the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, It does not appear necessary that such young men should be required to expend the money necessary for membership in the A. A. U. before they should be permitted to participate in amateur boxing activities in Pennsylvania; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives favors a relaxation of the aforesaid rule on the part of the State Athletic Commission; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded by the Chief Clerk of the House to the State Athletic Commission.

Mr. SARRAF offered a resolution which was laid over for printing under the Rules.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 15

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker I desire to call up House Resolution No. 15, Printer's No. 46.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1942.

Whereas, The Pennsylvania Motor Police, working under trying conditions, have and continue to perform their obligations to the citizens of this Commonwealth in a manner that ranks with the best in the Nation; and

Whereas, Members of this Legislature recognizing their needs and conditions introduced House Bill No. 1956 at the 1941 Regular Session, which provides for automatic wage increases for all such motor police who had been on active duty for three years; and

Whereas, While said bill failed to receive the Legislatures consideration, the result was that examinations were held in July, 1941, enabling such motor police to attain the rank of private first class; and

Whereas, Eight months have now elapsed since said examinations and no official results have been published, preventing many motor policemen from acquiring the rank and pay to which they are entitled; and

Whereas, Because of the lack of opportunity provided to said motor police to keep up with the increased cost of living many are leaving or about to leave the service to the detriment of the bureau and the citizens of this Commonwealth; and

Whereas, Notwithstanding this threat to the bureau, the Commissioner and other State officials have not made the slightest effort to remedy this situation; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Commissioner of Motor Police be required to inform this House immediately of the status of the examinations given to members of the Motor Police in July, 1941, noting those who passed the examination and such information indicating when raises in rank and pay have or will be made.

On the question,
Will the House adopt the resolution?
It was adopted.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 9

Mr. EDWIN F. THOMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 9, Printer's No. 47.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 25, 1942.

Whereas, At the last session of the General Assembly, a State Council of Defense was created, one of its purposes being to coordinate the defense activities of the Commonwealth with those of the entire Nation; and

Whereas, Almost a year has passed and industry in its all out effort for defense production is still handicapped because of the lack of skilled labor; and

Whereas, Nothwithstanding prior resolutions, public statements and demands that all discrimination against the employment of Negroes in defense industries cease, it is well known that the policies of such discrimination still exist; and

Whereas, The neglect to remedy the intolerable conditions caused by such discriminatory policies is a serious deterrent to the success of our defense program; and

Whereas, The failure to fully utilize the services of available and competent Negro workers, who are thus denied the right of all patriotic citizens to live and work and die in the service of their country is a serious menace to the welfare and morals of all citizens of our Commonwealth and Nation, and directly opposed to the great traditions of the true democratic ideals and principles upon which this Nation was founded; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby requests the Governor of this Commonwealth and the State Council of Defense to request and demand the elimination of all discrimination in the employment of negroes in industry; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House submit a copy of this resolution to the Governor of the Commonwealth and to the State Council of Defense so that appropriate action hereunder may immediately be instituted.

On the question,
Will the House adopt the resolution?
It was adopted.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 39

Mr. MONKS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 39, Printer's No. 59.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 25, 1942.

Whereas, Recent difficulty at the Eastern State Penitentiary at Philadelphia resulted in the death of one of its convicts; and

Whereas, The Coroner of the County of Philadelphia and his chief deputy are also President and Vice-President, respectively, of the Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary, and as such, responsible for the management of that institution; and

Whereas, As a result of the aforesaid death, the Coroner of the County of Philadelphia will be required to perform an autopsy, investigate the cause or causes of death and, by reason thereof, will investigate the operation of said penitentiary by its Board of Trustees, in connection with the reasons for said death; and

Whereas, Because of such occurrences, from time to time, the Coroner will be called upon in like matters indirectly to investigate the Board of Trustees of the penitentiary of which he and his chief deputy are officers and members, and it is recognized by this House that such investigations may be conducive to prejudice, creating disrespect for our democratic system of government; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Governor of the Commonwealth is hereby directed to request the resignation of the Coroner of the County of Philadelphia, Herbert M. Goddard, and his chief deputy, Matthew H. Roth, from the Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be submitted to the Governor of the Commonwealth, the Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary, and the Coroner of the County of Philadelphia.

On the question,
Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I think it is highly improper to ask the membership of this House to vote on such a resolution, because it is in the form of an indictment of an official of a city. The members of this House have no knowledge of the circumstances, nor has the official charged an opportunity to appear to answer any charges that may be made.

If the official has been guilty of misconduct, malfeasance in office, misfeasance in office or nonfeasance in office, we have powers of impeachment. Outside of that we have no right, it seems to me, to indict an official by practically directing the Governor of the Commonwealth to dismiss that official. That is a part of the executive branch of the government. There are methods by which officials can be tried; there are grand jury proceedings and other methods, and with only the allegations made in the resolution to indict an official, it seems to me to be beyond the propriety and beyond the rights of this House, and I, therefore, ask that the resolution be voted down.

Mr. MONKS. Mr. Speaker, the only reason the resolution was introduced was the possibility of a man sitting in judgment on himself. There isn't anything to show that the man has committed any wrong in any thing that he has done. I think Dr. Goddard, as far as I know, bears an excellent reputation. I don't know anything against him, but I do think a case might come up in the future where they might favor themselves if they had to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

The SPEAKER declared the ayes appeared to have it.

Whereupon a division was called for seventy-seven members voting in the affirmative and forty-four in the negative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the resolution was adopted.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 24

Mr. TARR. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 24, Printer's No. 45.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 10, 1942.

It has been a custom in the United States and in other countries throughout the world to observe the first day of May as May Day, and to mark such observances by various kinds of celebrations.

A decade ago the American Legion organization in Fayette County inaugurated a new and more appropriate observance of the first day of May, by staging a parade and celebration in the name of Americanism.

The first day of May has since been annually observed and celebrated as Americanism Day by patriotic societies, veterans' organizations and other groups, both in Fayette County and throughout the Commonwealth, and it has been the custom of the Governor of the Commonwealth to issue his proclamation signifying the observance of Americanism Day.

The present world crisis constitutes a serious threat to those American principles of life and government, which were established with such great sacrifice and which have since been maintained and protected so valiantly, thus making particularly significant and appropriate the observance of May first as Americanism Day in the year of 1942; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Governor of the Commonwealth is hereby urged to issue his proclamation signifying May 1, 1942, as Americanism Day, and calling upon all patriotic, veteran, fraternal and civic organizations to hold celebrations of this day in such a manner as will bring to the people of the Commonwealth the full realization of the benefits, privileges and blessings that come to them through the continuance of our American form of government; and be it further

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania further urges all persons in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to join in a real American celebration of May 1, 1942, as Americanism Day.

On the question,
Will the House adopt the resolution?
It was adopted.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 30

Mr. STANK. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 30, Printer's No. 44.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 17, 1942.

Whereas, The existing coal purchase plan evolved by the Anthracite Emergency Committee and carried out by the legitimate anthracite coal operators and the free-lance coal miners of this Commonwealth, has been very successful in reducing the evils arising from bootleg coal mining, and restoring to legitimate employment, many miners in the anthracite coal fields; and

Whereas, The time limit on said coal purchase plan is about to expire; and

Whereas, The said evils arising from the bootleg coal operations have not been entirely eliminated, due to the insufficiency of time; be it therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives congratulates the Anthracite Emergency Committee, the legitimate coal operators, and the free-lance coal miners of Pennsylvania for their sincere efforts, their conciliatory and earnest attitude and the successful results achieved by their mutual cooperation; and be it further

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby memorializes the Anthracite Emergency Committee, the legitimate coal operators, and the free-lance coal miners, to continue the said coal purchase plan with whatever modifications seem desirable for a further period of time; and be it also

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Governor of Pennsylvania, and a copy to the Anthracite Emergency Committee.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from the postponed calendar by Mr. Turner,

The House resumed the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 43, (Senate Bill No. 31), as follows:

An Act making available the services of recipients of general assistance under certain conditions by permitting them to earn a limited amount of money in work essential to the prosecution of the existing war in which the United States of America is engaged without forfeiting their right to assistance or any part thereof

Section 1 In order to make available the services of persons receiving general assistance no person now or hereafter receiving such assistance shall be denied the same or any part thereof by reason of the fact that he or she earns in any capacity or in any form of effort essential to the prosecution of the existing war in which the United States of America is engaged an amount not exceeding fifteen dollars ($15) in any one calendar month nor exceeding a total of one hundred fifty dollars ($150) in any one calendar year in addition to all work expenses connected with the job and any such amount shall not be deductible from any such grant now or hereafter payable Provided however That if such person shall have earned in excess of one hundred fifty dollars ($150) in any calendar year such excess shall be deductible from his general assistance grant Provided further That if such earnings are of such amount as to disqualify such person from receiving any grant according to the standards fixed by the Department of Public Assistance he shall be restored to general assistance immediately upon the termination of said employment if he is otherwise eligible to receive same The Department of Public Assistance is hereby authorized to prescribe by rules and regulations the types of work deemed essential to the prosecution of the aforesaid war for the purposes of this act

Section 2 The provisions of this Act shall continue in effect only during the continuance of the war in which the United States of America is now engaged and for a period of three months thereafter

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, April 8, 1942

The Senate met at 2:00 o'clock, p. m., E. W. T.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The PRESIDENT. We have a distinct honor this morning. The Reverend Doctor Daniel A. Poling, Pastor of the Grace Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, successor to Doctor Russell Conwell, President of the International Association of Christian Endeavor, and one of my co-workers on the State Council of Defense, will offer prayer. My friend, Doctor Poling.

Doctor POLING. Let us all unite in prayer. Our Father, Who art in heaven, we hallow Thy name. We thank Thee for the faith that has made us a nation, alive still in spite of dungeon, fire and sword. We thank Thee that we have a sense of Thy presence; we thank Thee that Thou art justice and freedom, that in Thee there is no shadow of turning, that when we are afraid and inadequate, we may turn to Thee for wisdom and for power.

We pray Thy blessing upon America, upon this Republic, upon our Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, upon the President of the United States and the Governor of this state, and this great legislative body. We do not ask to be delivered from burdens and from sacrifice. We seek to know Thy will and Thy way in these times of tragic responsibility and world crisis. We pray that each in his own place may be about the business of democracy, that we shall pay the price now of freedom, yet remember our sons and the sons of the state who bear the battle hardness; may we not fail them ever; may they be sustained in their bodies and in their spirits.

We offered to Thee the supplication of our hearts. We come not in pride of achievement; we would know true and sacrificial humility; oh, give the victory to righteousness.

The Lord bless thee and keep thee; the Lord make this goal that we seek for ourselves be vouchsafed unto all men and women and little children everywhere.

The Lord bless thee and keep thee; the Lord may His face shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up his countenance upon thee and give thee peace. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. MALLERY and Mr. GELTZ, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

ARTHUR H. JAMES

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I desire permission to address the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland will proceed.

Mr. DENT. Under the heading of resolutions, Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Chairman of the State Government Committee, the honorable Mr. Tallman.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TALLMAN. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Lehigh advise me whether or not the Committee on State Government has in its possession House Bill No. 107, Senate Bill No. 95?

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, it has.

Mr. DENT. Will the chairman of that Committee advise the Senate whether or not that bill has been acted upon by the Committee.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, House Bill No. 107 was discussed by the Committee on State Government and by reason of that discussion the bill was referred to a sub-committee.

Mr. DENT. I thank the gentleman from Lehigh.

Mr. President, in view of the action of the committee in referring this bill to a sub-committee, and knowing full well that a resolution to adjourn sine die has been passed, the adjourning date is Friday, April 10, 1942 at four o'clock—I believe that unless we act upon this bill today it will die a natural—I might say an unnatural —death in the sub-committee.

Therefore, Mr. President, because of the fact that this is a very important piece of legislation at this time and knowing the rules of the Senate, I intend to offer a resolution asking that Rule No. 42, of the rules adopted for this Session, be suspended in order that a motion may be presented to the floor for a discharge resolution, in order that the Senate members may have an opportunity to vote one way or another upon this important legislation.

This is done without any reflection whatsoever upon the honor or the integrity or the honesty of purpose of the members of that committee, but we, as members of the Senate, as a whole, believe that we would like to have some expression of our own on the record books in order that the people of Pennsylvania shall know how the majority or the minority, or a greater number of the members of the Senate, feel about tax reduction at this time.

Mr. DENT. Therefore, Mr. President, I shall now move, and present to the Chair, a resolution, that Senate Rule No. 42 be suspended.

RESOLUTION TO SUSPEND RULE 42 OF THE SENATE

Mr. DENT offered the following resolution which was twice read:

Resolved, That Rule 42 of the Senate Rules adopted for this Special Session be suspended.

MOTION TO SUSPEND RULE 39

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be suspended and that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution just read.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I move the immediate adoption of the resolution.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, in connection with the motion just presented by the gentleman from Westmoreland, I should like to make a few remarks to this effect, that if this piece of legislation is as important as has been indicated, then certainly it would seem that the membership in the House and the sponsor of the bill should have acted upon it at an earlier date. The bill first came to this Senate yesterday, was committed to the Committee on State Government, and that Commitee met within about three hours after the time that it received the bill, to consider it.

I merely want to say further at this time that the action of that Committee in referring House Bill No. 107 to the sub-committee was done in complete good faith, because the gentlemen on the other side know very well that bill raises important questions at this time, not only as to the merits of the bill, but questions as to whether it can properly be considered at this time.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, whatever the House does, as I understand it, is purely the matter and concern of the House; what the Senate does is our own concern. To those of us who have been here through various sessions this argument of not having enough time to do the job is ridiculous and entirely out of order and place.

We sat in this Senate less than three weeks ago, when one of the most important bills ever to hit the floor of this Senate was introduced at ten minutes to four and at ten minutes after four the bil was out of committee and read for the first time, without copies being on the desks of the Senators, without the members knowing what was in the bill. Monday of this week another bill was introduced, and before we left, in the early twilight hours, the bill was read for the first time, before there were copies of it on the desks of the Senators.

Every person in Pennsylvania knows the contents or the purposes of House Bill No. 107, Senate Bill No. 95, but in order to inform the members of the Senate, those who have not paid attention to their Calendars or have not read the History of this Session, Senate Bill No. 95 proposes to remove the emergency tax that was applied by the Democrats under an emergency in the State of Pennsylvania when we needed money to feed the unemployed. Today that money is no longer needed for that specific purpose.

The promise of the Democratic then majority and of the Republican candidate for Governor, who is now Governor, was made in all good faith to the people of Pennsylvania that at the first opportunity, when the money was no longer needed for the specific purpose that it was called up for, that that obnoxious piece of legislation would be removed from the books.

Anybody acquainted with the fiscal problems of this state knows that the relief load has dropped in the State of Pennsylvania from an all time high of $229,000,000 to less than $106,000,000. The relief load has become in Pennsylvania almost a constant figure, because the relief rolls are weighted down by unemployables, who at no time rightfully belonged on the direct relief rolls, by blind assistance, mother's assistance and aid to dependent children. Those categories belong in the Department of Welfare and have been transferred from there to the Department of Public Assistance in order that the load on the direct assistance budget of the state could be removed and placed upon the so-called emergency tax burden.

The people of Pennsylvania are entitled to a tax reduction at this time, if for no other reason than because a different kind of emergency exists today, an emergency in which the money that is now being applied to paying the personal property tax can be put into Defense Bonds and into the war effort channels. If for no other reason, this Senate owes it to the people of Pennsylvania to pass this piece of legislation.

Any person that is a student of Pennsylvania politics knows that if we were to pass the number one item of the Governor's call for this Session, that he, a few weeks before the election, would have, by executive order, removed from the books this obnoxious tax measure, but because we have the courage to put in a bill to remove it by legislative action, arguments have been raised pro and con to the effect that it is a political gesture. A political gesture is something that is done without the sincerity of purpose that we profess to have in this measure.

In 1939, the Democratic minority in the Senate of Pennsylvania voted against the reenactment of this law, and it was pointed out upon the floor of this Senate that the reenactment of this law would create an undue and dishonest burden upon those people in Pennsylvania who must live from the few accumulated stocks and bonds or the few dollars that had been saved from real estate and so forth.

We said then, and we repeat now, that this money is in excess of the amount that is needed for the carrying on of the specific purposes that the tax laws were passed for in 1935 and 1937 by a courageous Democratic administration, an administration that was defeated and run out of the Capitol by the false promises of the Republican platform speakers, who claimed that we had created taxes in the State of Pennsylvania that were unfair, that were dishonest, and were not needed.

We are now in the dying days of the James administration, an administration I beg to remind you, that will not be long lamented, and to this date the obnoxious taxes, as they were called by this man who is now Governor, have not been removed from the books, nor have they been reduced by the Republican majority in the Senate or the Republican majority in the House and Senate in 1939.

If this is a political move then it is so because the Republican party has made it a political move. There is no legitimate reason for keeping this legislation on the books today. The amounts needed for emergency relief are far below the amounts raised by direct taxes, applied solely for the purpose of creating funds for emergency relief.

A rough resume of the amount of money that has been taken in to the State Treasury by these emergency taxes may give you some idea as to the fiscal picture that we face now and can hope to face until the end of this biennium.

In 1935 and 1937, when we were faced in the State of Pennsylvania with a great load of relief recipients and an empty cupboard that was left by a former Governor, Mr. Pinchot, who believed in paying by borrowing from Peter to pay Paul, the Democratic majority in the House, with a combination in the Senate of a Democratic minority and liberal Republicans, passed a tax burden that totaled $127,582,000, which was applied against a relief load of $154,610,000.

In 1937, when the Democrats had control of both the House and the Senate, the picture was even blacker. We were faced with a greater relief load, with no new source of income to tap, and so we continued the tax, but because of a slight upsurge in national recovery in 1937, before the so-called recession set in, we received from the same tax $156,425,000, and that was applied against a relief load of $208,650,000.

The next biennium, 1939-1941, the Republicans came into power and found that they too had a very black picture in the matter of relief, and by continuing the same tax burden, they received $167,235,000. During all these years we found that the relief load was greater than the amount taken in from the emergency taxes.

However, in 1941, because of the war the picture changed, and now we find that our appropriation for relief is $106,000,000. Every week, when you receive your reports from the Department of Public Assistance, if you will study them and analyze them, you will find that the relief load, insofar as the employables are concerned, is on the way out of the picture. Your Federal Government is threatening to mobilize all employable persons all over the United States, because of shortages of labor in certain industries. Well, then we would be up against a relief load which is purely an unemployable problem, and the estimated cost of handling that is between $90,000,000 and $95,000,000. Taken against that figure, if it is the figure or amount that has been appropriated, we find that the emergency tax will bring in to the state $188,075,000, or $82,000,000 more than the relief load can possibly be at the end of this biennium.

Now, gentlemen, when the first four mills personal property tax was passed, it was generally considered, and especially so by the then Republican Floor Leader, Mason Owlett, whose words on the floor of this Senate concerning the badness and the unsoundness of this particular law ought to be read and studied by every member of the Republican membership of the Senate—I never thought I would live to see the day when any Republican Senator would vote to continue any of the Earle taxes, let alone this particular obnoxious tax. Your own flag bearing, standard bearing paper, the Philadelphia Inquirer, has this to say about your inactivity in the matter of the personal property tax:

"No form of tax is popular but some are less burdensome and less resented than others, because they are based on fair principles. The personal property levy is not one of these. It was originally imposed as one of the so-called emergency taxes adopted by the State Government to meet the unusual demands of unemployment relief and other depression charges. So long as critical conditions made such taxation seem imperative, there was little disposition to quarrel with it, but that emergency is nearing extinction. Relief costs continue to dwindle and the state revenues continue to climb. The financial picture at Harrisburg is so bright that tax reduction is generally regarded as positively on the way. The only disagreement is with reference to the date of the reduction."

That, Mr. President, sums up the opinion of the Philadelphia Record—I mean, the Philadelphia Inquirer—because if I read what the Record said about you it probably would not get into the record.

Predictions have openly been made on this floor and on the floor of the House and in the newspapers that we would have a surplus at the end of this biennium of anywhere from $60,000,000 to $150,000,000. The least we can do is to show the people of Pennsylvania that we are at least as honest in our intentions as the General Assembly or State Legislature of the State of New York; the State of New York has called for a flat reduction of twenty-five per cent on all state taxes.

I know that Governor James has effected some economies in government, but what good are they to the people of Pennsylvania if in the same way he does not reduce the tax burden? He can save five million dollars in the operation of one department but if he does not reduce taxes in the same amount, the economies mean nothing to the people of the State of Pennsylvania.

I assure you of this, and I say this believing that I know what I am talking about, that if you go ahead and fill the till with all this money that ought to go into the new and present war emergency, into bonds and stamps and so forth, you fill that till and I will guarantee all of you here today that when the Democrats take charge next year we will reduce taxes in the State of Pennsylvania to a bare minimum. I believe the majority members of this Senate ought to give each and every man here the privilege of voting one way or another upon this particular measure.

Therefore, Mr. President, I would like to ask for a roll call on the motion to set aside Rule No. 42.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, assuming that we are going to continue to discuss this motion, I deeply appreciate the sincerity that is back of the illuminating remarks made by the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent.

I also am a candidate for office. It is so easy when you are a candidate for office to be against sin and to be for God and mother and the fireside, and to be for all appropriations and against all tax measures, and do your baby kissing in public, because that is one way to get votes.

The situation that we have created here is very obvious. We have a motion now to discharge the committee that has a bill requiring the reduction or elimination of the personal property tax.

Mr. DENT. We do not have that at all.

Mr. WALKER. To suspend Rule No. 42.

Mr. DENT. Then when we suspend Rule No. 42, we are going to discharge the Committee—we hope.

Mr. WALKER. That situation becomes apparent when you suspend the rule, and then, if you vote against this motion, you will be listed all over this great Commonwealth as being in favor of a personal property tax, and the asininity of such a situation will be apparent to those who think, but the gravity of the situation becomes apparent when we realize that in the heat of a campaign sometimes our constituents, who love us so much, do not stop to reason the thing out, and you are automatically listed throughout your district as being in favor of the tax because you would not take this obnoxious burden off the backs of the taxpayer.

Now, Mr. President, there are a lot of folks back in my district who have to pay this personal property tax, and I say this with a great deal of pride, that I have folks in my district who are very wealthy. I represent a section of Pennsylvania where names mean dynasties, where people have fortunes that have been passed down from generation to generation, the personal property tax means something to them, and I am very much in favor of having it eliminated, because it would make me the hero and the idol of the people in my district, but I do not propose, Mr. President, to vote to discharge this bill from this committee, or vote to suspend a rule to pave the way to discharge the committee.

Let us analyze the situation that confronts this Senate. In the first place we are supposed to be a serious, dignified body and to look upon these things calmly; we are supposed to analyze the situation as it actually exists, and try to pass some legislation which will be good for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the ten million people residing therein.

I could suggest that this bill that would eliminate the personal property tax is unconstitutional, but repeatedly in the short time I have been a member of this august and dignified body I have pointed out that the question of the constitutionality of a bill is somewhat of a legal or court gamble, and therefore I would not advance that as a reason for voting against the bill, the question of its unconstitutionality.

I might also raise the question with the gentleman from Westmoreland as to whether or not the bill, which is the subject of this adroit resolution, is within the Governor's call. There again we enter into a legal discussion on which there probably could be no meeting of minds, because sometimes that question might be clear cut and sometimes it might have a shadow under it, as to the decision, whichever way it might fall, but I would like to point out an actual fact, and that is this: in the first place, as I understand the situation, the personal property taxes are due and payable on the fifteenth of February and the taxes for this current year have already been paid. There may be a few of us who could not scrape the money together to pay them and have not paid all of them, but the vast majority of the personal property taxes have been paid, and there is nothing in this bill regarding refunding the money paid prior to February of 1942, so there will be no relief for the people in my district who have already paid the personal property tax.

In 1943, there will be a regular session of this Legislature and then might be a good time to enter into a very careful and analytical study of the tax structure in Pennsylvania, because I have been advised that taxes in Pennsylvania must be uniform, and if we eliminate the personal property tax, as is adroitly suggested through this resolution, and the motion to discharge a committee, and then finally arrive at the Achterman Bill, you have other taxes that are correlated thereto, the national banks tax and the corporate loans tax, which must be also taken care of or taxes in Pennsylvania will not be uniform.

How can we here in the dying moments of a session, which was called primarily to consider congressional reapportionment, how can we on the spur of the moment spasmodically rebuild the tax structure of Pennsylvania, and then turn to the people of Pennsylvania, who, after all, are thinking people, and say we did a good job?

We tried to study this thing, too, during 1941, predicated upon the experience we had at that time, and then, with some of the finest tax minds in Pennsylvania—and I will say in the United States—sitting right here in this body, we were firmly of the opinion in the dying moments of the 1941 session that the time was not yet ripe for us to say to the people of Pennsylvania that now we should rebuild and reconstruct the tax structure of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, there is another angle I would like to direct to the attention of the gentleman from Westmoreland and that is the thought as to whether or not the income from this personal property tax is not already pledged by this Commonwealth to cover the tax anticipation notes that are outstanding. If this money is pledged, the honor and the integrity of the Commonwealth is pledged, and by what right do we now turn our backs on our pledged word and take all of that money which we have pledged to our creditors and say we will take it back, we were only kidding in 1941?

I do not think, and I say this from the bottom of my heart, I do not think that the sponsors of this revolutionary political maneuver for one minute ever believed that they would be able to get that bill through the Senate, and this motion merely paves the way—and I say this without the least bit of personal criticism of the maker of the motion—this merely paves the way to what in the parlance of my district—I do not know what they call it in Germantown, but in the parlance of my district, it is an attempt to put us on the spot politically.

I for one propose to vote against the motion to discharge this committee, and in this session I would vote against any bill attempting to tear down the tax structure of Pennsylvania when I do not know whether or not that would be a catastrophe.

I think we should seriously study this problem, and say to the people back home that the Republican party is always in favor of tax reduction, but we are not going to be swept over the falls by an adroit political maneuver, we are not going to permit our judgment to be carried away by the enthusiasm of a political bonfire.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I have listened to this discussion with a great deal of interest and I want to congratulate the maker of this motion for having reached the conclusion that the personal property tax imposed in this state is unjust and iniquitous. As a matter of fact, some of us reached that conclusion a great many years ago, that the personal property tax imposed by the counties was also unjust and iniquitous, and I am heartily glad that gospel, which is a healthy gospel, has at last reached the gentlemen on the other side.

Now, Mr. President, the argument today involves a motion which is to dispense with a rule. Personally, I am opposed to that motion because it seems to me to be a disorderly way of doing the thing. We adopted these rules with care, they were all considered in their application, and the rules themselves intend that a committee shall give thorough consideration to a bill before it shall be discharged.

A motion to dispense with a rule, which is intended to pave the way for the discharge of a committee, would in my judgment be an exceedingly unfortunate parliamentary tactic for the Pennsylvania State Senate to adopt.

Now we come down to the bill itself. I confess I have only read the bill since this debate arose on Bill No. 107 of the House, but I am familiar, I think, with the point of view that actuates the sponsor of the bill in the House and, possibly, the gentleman from Westmoreland in the Senate.

This is a step to suspend certain provisions of the law relating to the state personal property tax. Now, as my friend from Allegheny has said, in order to justify your position in supporting that bill in this Senate, you must first show that it comes under the Governor's call. Personally I can not see that it does, and therefore it seems to me to be unconstitutional from the beginning.

In the second place you must show that as a tax measure, what you propose fits into the articulated structure of taxation in Pennsylvania, and there you are terribly wrong. As my friend from Allegheny has already demonstrated, you can not change the personal property tax in the state without at the same time considering its effect upon the national bank shares tax, because, under Section 5219 of the Federal Revised Statutes, you must tax other capital in the state at the same rate that you tax the bank shares. Therefore, if you propose to reduce the bank shares tax, you can reduce the personal property tax, but you can not reduce one without the other, and in the second place, you must consider its relation to the corporate loans tax, which is a supplement to the personal property tax in Pennsylvania, and under our scheme of law, we have a corporate loans tax paid by the corporations of the state on the same assets which are paid by individuals also to the state under this four mills tax, and to the county.

The relationship of these forms of taxation must be considered. It is not a question for a surbstone opinion, it is a question that has to be considered with care, and all the details of the situation must be worked out with a knowledge of the taxing system of Pennsylvania.

Now, for my own part, Mr. President, I am glad to state what I understand to be the position of this side in this matter. We are heartily in favor of a reduction in taxes, we are heartily in favor of the policy which enables us in this state to gradually build up a sufficient surplus to take care of the deficits left by preceding administrations, and which enables us to be in a square position financially. When that has been done, we will reduce taxes, but until that is done we will not reduce taxes, because it would not be honest to do it. The money is needed for the pledges that have been made against it, the tax anticipation notes which have been issued on the security of these taxes, and the money itself is needed in order to balance the budget. Certainly until we have had one year's experience with this budget, it would be folly to take out some of the taxes and then expect the budget to balance itself at the end of two years, as we hope it will do.

Under the policy of the present administration, I am very glad to state, in my judgment, there has been an encouragement of business in Pennsylvania, and that encouragement of business has resulted in a tremendous increase in employment, and that has resulted in a decrease in the cost of general assistance. All of that is a good thing, and I think the people of Pennsylvania appreciate that it is a good thing, but being a good thing we must wait until some of the results are accomplished before we can proceed to do away with or to meddle with the tax structure of the state, in which event you will probably find yourselves, if this bill were to be passed, with half a dozen constitutional attacks, which would put the whole state into confusion, put us in chaos, and might eventually leave us without any money for old age assistance for those properly on relief.

Mr. President, all of those questions must be considered in determining a general question of this kind. For my own part, I take my stand, first, on the proposition that Rule No. 42 is a good rule and ought not to be suspended, and I take my stand, secondly, upon the proposition that while a reduction in taxes is something which is dear to every one of us here, it ought not to proceed until it can proceed in an orderly manner, showing exactly how much taxes are to be reduced or adjusted, and particularly we must pay our debts before we reduce taxes, so that we may eventually become clear with the balance sheet. I think, Mr. President, that will happen in 1943, and I congratulate the next administration that it will have an opportunity to build upon the excellent foundation which Governor James has made.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I think it is about time we looked under the disguise and tried to find out what is happening here.

All of this discussion is, or is supposed to be, in connection with the resolution which was introduced to suspend Rule No. 42. Rule No. 42 is one of a number of rules which were adopted for the purpose of regulating the business and conduct of this body. They were adopted, after study and deliberation, as the best method of properly conducting the business of the Senate. That rule, Mr. President, which they want now to suspend, provides that no committee shall be discharged from consideration of any measure within ten calendar days of its reference. The ten day period, Mr. President, was put in there for a very good purpose, and that was so that a committee could do its duty in the proper way and not be hurried or forced into taking action, which later might show up as the wrong kind of action.

If there is such an urgency about action, Mr. President, if the Democrats are as sincere as they would have us believe they are in connection with the repeal of these taxes, I wonder why it is that no bill was introduced before the first of April, that after some six or seven weeks of this Special Session, Mr. President, now our colleague from Westmoreland endeavors to answer what appears to be criticism of the House for not acting sooner, by the statement that what the House does is none of our business, and I think possibly that is correct, but there was nothing to have prevented our colleague from Westmoreland County, or any other of our colleagues on the other side of the House, from having introduced the same or a similar bill long before the first of April.

I wonder what it is that is underneath their apparent aim and desire in connection with this bill. Has anything happened within the last couple of weeks which might change the picture? Well, I think we all know, Mr. President, that something has happened. There have been slates drawn up by each of the major political parties and, of course, even though not sincere, it might be good political talk on the part of some individuals to be able to go around this state and say, you know, I introduced a bill in the last session to relieve the poor heavily burdened taxpayers of this state of all those obnoxious personal property taxes, and I think, Mr. President, that those who had the idea in mind were quite correct, it undoubtedly would appeal to some people, and it would undoubtedly secure some votes for those individuals but, gracious, that is no reason why a body of this kind should take action which it knows is unconstitutional, which it knows is not according to the rules of the game which were adopted before this game started, and which also, Mr. President, it knows would do a thing which if done by an individual in this state would bring about his indictment, if not conviction, for a violation of the criminal laws of this Commonwealth.

As I study this matter, Mr. President, it seems to me that we go back to a point several years ago when we heard a lot of talk throughout this state, when we read a lot of newspaper articles in this state, concerning some gag laws in connection with an idea which the Democratic Party had at that time, that members of the Legislature and members of the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania should be permitted much greater latitude and should be allowed to do things, which if done by some individual citizen of the Commonwealth, would bring him face to face with a prosecutor in our criminal courts.

Mr. President, at this time there are $135,000,000 of tax anticipation notes outstanding, $45,000,000 of which do not come due until the end of this year, $90,000,000 of which do not come due until the end of next year, and against that, Mr. President, there is only $20,000,000 as against $135,000,000 in the sinking fund which is being accumulated for the purpose of paying off tax anticipation notes.

In other words, Mr. President, the receipts which would come in from these taxes were pledged by the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for a greater amount than $135,000,000, but the amount still outstanding is $135,000,000, and now we are asked to vote for a resolution which would suspend a rule which would permit the discharge of a committee, which then might bring up for vote the attempted passage of not only an unconstitutional act, because it is not within the call of the Special Session, but also of doing a deed by this Legislature which in my opinion amounts to the crime of fraudulent conversion. In other words, by the passage of this act, we in effect take certain personal property and we convert that personal property to some other use than that for which it was intended, and if my recollection of the definition of fraudulent conversion is correct, that is substantially what fraudulent conversion is.

I want to say for one, Mr. President, that I think a little bit too much of my reputation, and I certainly think too much of the reputation of this body to be drawn into, to go along with, or to join with any group that wants to commit a crime of that kind, purely for political purposes, purely to deceive a lot of people of this Commonwealth who possibly do not have a proper understanding and who possibly will never be able to get the facts to show the real intent behind this movement, one of gross deception, and one in which I will not join.

I will therefore ask my colleagues to vote against this resolution.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, as I understand House Bill No. 107, it is a bill to suspend that portion of the tax law enacted some years ago dealing with the four mills personal property tax, and the end of House Bill No. 107 reads—I do not want to read it all, I just want to give you the gist of it—suspend the law as last enacted and reenacted and amended by the act approved the eleventh day of July, 1941, P. L. 361—this particular imposition of a state tax on personal property—those laws are hereby suspended during the continuation of the war effort this nation is now engaged in and for a period of two years thereafter.

As I understand the law, it provides for the suspension of the law relating to the four mills state personal property tax. I have always been against this tax. I think the older members will recall that back through the years I vigorously opposed the four mills state personal property tax, fundamentlly, for the chief reason that it was not just to tax, say, the thrifty people down in Lancaster County to take care of the indolent people, the lazy people in some other county of the state.

Now, I want to be consistent. I am vigorously opposed to this tax and as I stated before, I have always vigorously opposed this tax, I have fought it almost singlehanded on the floor of this Senate and in the councils of the Democratic party, and I am opposed to it still for the same reason.

I want to say that the tax, as the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, has stated, was due on February 15, 1942. I suppose there will not be a whole lot of taxes to be collected for this fiscal year. If we can pass this bill—I do not care how we pass it—pass this bill and abolish the tax, I do not care how we pass it, I do not care when we pass it—but fundamentally I want to get rid of the state personal property tax because it is fundamentally wrong and unsound.

It will not hurt a whole lot now, because the money is in, and if it is not in it will be collectible under the law as it stands today, because, as I read this bill, it becomes effective upon its passage and when signed by the Governor.

Mr. President, politically I am not concerned. No one asked me how I should vote on this bill or any resolution relating to this bill. If there is politics in it, I do not know anything about it, and I do not care; it would not affect me at all, because I fought politicians on this bill back through the years when they wanted it passed, and when I opposed it.

Politically, there is another angle to it. If you repeal this four mills personal property tax, then you can go out, those who are for it, and say to those on relief, well, certain Senators voted to repeal the four mills personal property tax and take money away from agencies that would in turn pay it over to you, so politically there are two sides to the question, but I am not concerned with either of them. I am opposed to this form of taxation, and I would like to see it eliminated, and I do not care how soon.

Now, Mr. President, I want to say a word in response to what the good gentleman from Lehigh said, the Chairman of the Committee that has this bill. He is a man who handles a committee well, he acts promptly and he acts judicially, and I want to say in his defense that he called a meeting almost as soon as he received this bill, and another bill, and he did have these bills discussed, and I want to say to him that my vote will not be in any way against any action that he has taken or any action his committee has taken, because he handles, I repeat, his committee work well.

I vote in this case on the fundamentals, not on rules and not on regulations, but on the vicious foundation of this part of the taxing system. I repeat, the personal property tax is wrong as it applies to the general boundaries of the state, and I have always voted against it, even when it was more popular than it is today, and I shall vote to eliminate it; I do not care in what manner that elimination comes; I welcome it now as I welcomed it back through the years that are passed.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, in order to substantiate the position taken by the Chairman of the State Government Committee, of which I am a member—and I also have the privilege of being a member of the sub-committee studying this bill, I should like to read a letter into the record, first to substantiate his position that a sub-committee has been appointed and is studying this bill, and secondly, the statements made by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Edmonds, and the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Geltz, and also, the gentleman from Washington, Senator Reed, on the other side, that there is a question as to whether or not this bill comes within the scope of the Governor's call, and further, that there is a question as to the constitutionality of the bill.

Therefore, Mr. President, I wish to read a letter received from the Department of Justice, which is dated April 8, 1942.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Department of Justice, Harrisburg, April 8, 1942.

"State Government Committee,
Senate of Pennsyvania,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

"Gentlemen:

"You have asked this department whether House Bill No. 107, which would suspend Section 3, of the Act of June 22, 1935, P. L. 414, as reenacted and amended, for the duration of the War and for a period of two years thereafter, falls within any subject designated in the Proclamations issued by the Governor convening the General Assembly into its current Special Session. Section 3 of the act referred to imposes the State Personal Property Tax.

"Paragraph 1 of the Governor's Supplemental Call designates as a subject for legislative consideration legislation authorizing the suspension or modification of existing laws that interfere with the prosecution of any war in which this nation is or may become engaged. In an attempt to bring the bill within this designated subject the bill contains various whereas clauses to the effect that the payment of the State Personal Property Tax interferes with the prosecution of the War in that it makes it unduly difficult for the taxpayers to pay their Federal taxes and to purchase war bonds and stamps. Notwithstanding this apparent window dressing, we have no hesitancy in advising you that in our opinion this bill, by no stretch of the imagination, can be said to come within the above provision of the Governor's Supplemental Call. It is essential that the revenues of the respective states remain unimpaired in order to enable them to play their proper part in the aid of the Federal Government in the present crisis. Therefore, in our opinion it can not be said that existing revenue measures impede the War effort.

"Moreover, even if House Bill No. 107 could be considered to be within any subject designated by the Governor in his Proclamations convening the General Assembly into Special Session, the bill would create various unconstitutional situations which could throw State finances into a chaotic condition. For example, the bill merely suspends the State Personal Property Tax but leaves the Corporate Loans Tax at the rate of eight mills. This, in our opinion, would create a lack of uniformity in violation of the Uniformity clause of the Constitution. Moreover, this bill would invalidate the State tax on shares of national banks in that money at interest in Pennsylvania would be taxed at a lesser rate than shares of national banks contrary to the Act of Congress which permits us to tax the shares of such banks.

"Likewise, the suspension of this tax would impair the obligation of the contract entered into by the General Assembly in the Tax Anticipation Notes Act whereby revenues of the current biennium were pledged as collateral for the payment of such notes.

Very truly yours,
E. RUSSELL SHOCKLEY,
Deputy Attorney General."

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not want to try to answer all of the things that have been said, but in order to clear up some of the things that were said, I just looked over the list of candidates that have filed in the state, and I can not find my name on the list anywhere, so evidently I am not a candidate or looking for votes in my endeavors to reduce the tax burden in the State of Pennsylvania.

However, you know, just sitting here, a story came to my mind. In ancient times, a very wealthy man had two wives, one was young and the other one was an old wife. Every time he was with the young wife, she would pull out a gray hair to make him look younger, and when he was with the old wife, she pulled out a dark hair to make him look older, and between the two, why, he was bald, and that is the way the people of Pennsylvania are. We want to reduce taxes and we do not have the votes; you do not want to reduce taxes and you have the votes, and between the two of us, the people of Pennsylvania are bald.

I am particularly amused at the around the bush manner of the gentleman from Allegheny in making an attack upon the motion itself. Certainly, I explained to the Senate why I wanted the motion passed. I was fair and told you that if we passed the motion, I intended to try to discharge the committee, but for any member of this Senate to stand here and tell me that this Fascist Rule No. 42 which says, mind you, that if one member of this Senate objects, you can not consider a bill unless it has been in the committee ten days, and yet, by common practice of the majority of this Senate, there has not been a bill on the calendar in this Session that was in a committee ten days—except House bills.

Why, they have taken bills into committee one minute, brought them out the next minute, and they were read for the first time, and your great guardian of the Constitution, Mr. Edmonds, who is so worried that this might be an irregular way of doing things, does he know it is unconstitutional to pass a bill unless copies are on the members' desks? He sat there and voted time after time for first reading bills, and did not even know what they were, did not even know the number.

Mr. Walker wants to know what is going to happen to the money that is already paid in by the wealthy families in his district. Well now, Mr. Walker, we are trying to save them this year's taxes, and if you would have voted for the bill when we had it up last year, you would have saved the money they paid this year, and if you do not vote for the bill this year, you may not be here next year to vote for the one we will put in then.

I want also to remind the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, that when he calls the men who vote for this bill criminals, that he is calling one hundred and eighty members of the House criminals, for fraudulent conversion. One hundred and eighty members of the House voted for this bill, and they are not criminals; they are decent Democrats trying to make the Republican party live up to its promise to cut taxes. The only reason that you will not vote for the bill at this time is not because it has come into the last week of the Session before you could take a look at it, because every man knows the reason the bill was not introduced sooner was because the working committee of the House was trying to work out some solution with the Governor of Pennsylvania on what to do and what not to do with his number one section in the proclamation of the call. They wanted to know which bills were to be taken up and repealed or amended in order that the war effort could be aided, and if any person here thinks it would not aid the war effort to give the people back home additional monies to buy bombers and so forth, why then I do not know what war effort is.

Every state in the union is making some effort at this time to reduce the tax burden on their people, because federal taxes have gone almost beyond the ability to pay.

Every time you get into a hole on that side, you blame the Federal Government; the Federal Government is to blame now for not allowing us to repeal the personal property tax, because it may checkmate some bank stock tax. The banks will get their relief. I am not worried about the bank stock tax or the corporate tax, I am worried about the widows in the State of Pennsylvania who are living upon the small income that is derived from the monies that are taxed by this bill.

You can put up all the arguments you want, regardless of how loud, and I will say to the Senate of Pennsylvania that the worst political maneuver that could befall the Democratic Party would be to allow this bill to go to the Governor's desk, and yet I and every Democrat sincerely is trying to get this bill over there so that the Governor can sign it. Do you think the people of Pennsylvania care whether Achterman put the bill in, or Geltz put the bill in, or Dent put the bill in? All they are interested in is relief in taxes, and for you political minded Senators on the other side, I want to say to you that if you pass this bill the present administration will get the credit from the people of Pennsylvania, and not the sponsor of the bill, but if you do not pass this bill, then you are being dishonest with the people, dishonest with yourselves, and dishonest in your promises to the people of Pennsylvania from the public platforms.

I say to you that a vote to discharge this committee, to be taken if we pass this motion, is a vote to reduce taxes, regardless of how you color the issue.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair understands this is a motion to suspend Rule No. 42.

Mr. DENT. That is correct, Mr. President.

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE BILLS FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced presented for concurrence bills of the House, as follows:

House Bill No. 113, (Senate Bill No. 96), entitled:

An Act creating a joint legislative committee to study partial unemployment as related to unemployment compensation; defining its powers and duties; authorizing the employment of counsel and employes; and making an appropriation.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

House Bill No. 112, (Senate Bill No. 97), entitled:

An Act to amend subsection (a) and to further amend subsection (b) of section nine of the act, approved the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168), entitled "An act to protect the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, officers of the State government, and courts; providing for the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively; declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair; further providing that representatives of a majority of the employes be the exclusive representatives of all the employes; authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections, and certify as to representatives of employes for purposes of collective bargaining; empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice, and providing for a procedure for such cases, including the issuance of a complaint, the conducting of a hearing, and the making of an order; empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order, and providing a procedure for such cases; providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order, and establishing a procedure for such cases; providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court; providing the board with investigatory powers, including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court; providing for service of papers and process of the board; prescribing certain penalties," fixing the rights and standing of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board as a party and as appellant in the courts in matters originating before the board; and defining the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court on appeal.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 67, (House Bill No. 24), entitled:

An Act relating to air raid precautions including blackouts conferring certain powers and duties upon the State Council of Defense local and district Councils of Defense political subdivisions members of certain municipal and volunteer agencies and civilians necessary for the safety defense and protection of civilians and property in the Commonwealth providing for the mobilization coordination and use of certain municipal agencies and volunteer agencies including their personnel and equipment providing for immunity from liability for injury or death to persons or damage to property under certain circumstances and providing penalties

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to.

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, some time ago the Senate passed a bill that is practically identical with House Bill No. 24, and I would like now to very briefly review the situation as it now exists.

In the early days of this Session, a number of the members of the Department of Justice, who were working in collaboration with the State Council of Defense, prepared this bill for passage in the Special Session. This bill was originally drafted, as I have been advised, by the Federal Department of Justice, collaborating with the National Council of Defense, and it was to be a uniform bill to be adopted by all of the states in the union which might be subjected to or need defense of this type.

When it became necessary to have a bill introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature, a bill was presented to the Republican Senate and also to the Democratic House, because our State Council of Defense is a non-partisan group, and in getting this bill passed, they desired to show a non-partisan attitude, and therefore they made obeisance to both major political parties.

The bill which was introduced in the Senate bore my name, merely because I was selected by the Republican Caucus to steer it through the Senate. It came out of committee early, the bill was presented to the Senate, and, after several constructive amendments, passed the Senate and went over to the House. In the course of its passage, and especially after it had passed the Senate, a number of the newspapers in the state, which took a very constructive position in the crystalization of public opinion, wrote editorials commenting favorably on the legislation, but, unfortunately, that delayed passage of the bill, because suddenly there was action in the House and the House bill was put through the House and sent over to the Senate, and then I was advised indirectly that the only thing we could do would be to accept this House bill, so that indirectly or by some stretch of the imagination, some credit or personal aggrandizement might be derived by being the father of this very meritorious legislation.

Mr. President, I think we are going rather far afield when we take that attitude on legislation. Therefore, when this matter was presented to my party Caucus, I immediately suggested to them that we proceed to adopt the House bill, because the major premise is the adoption of the legislation, and whoever sires the thing is absolutely immaterial. The folks back in my district understand what they want would be this air raid defense, and they are not the least bit interested in how the thing is arrived at.

It reminds me somewhat, Mr. President, of the old situation that we got into during the World War, when they told a story about a buck private that ran past a second lieutenant without saluting, and the second lieutenant called him back and made him salute him one hundred times, and after the buck private had saluted the second lieutenant one hundred times, the second lieutenant told the buck private he was dismissed. The buck private still stood there and the second lieutenant said, "what are you waiting for." and the buck private said to the second lieutenant, "it is part of army regulations that an officer shall return a buck private's salute; I saluted you one hundred times, and I am waiting for you to return it one hundred times."

Perhaps, Mr. President, if we salute the House by accepting their bill, perchance they may see the light of reason and occasionally pass a Senate bill that is over in the House, even though it happens to be sired by a Republican.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 84, as follows:

An Act to conserve metal by suspending the provisions of article five of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905) entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety regulating the use of highways and the operation of vehicles tractors street cars trackless trolley omnibuses bicycles pedestrians and the riding of animals upon the highways of the Commonwealth providing for the titling including liens encumbrances and legal claims registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof upon payment of prescribed fees prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue the Department of Highways peace officers mayors burgesses magistrates aldermen justices of the peace the courts and the clerks thereof owners of vehicles and garage keepers providing that records are admissible as evidence imposing upon owners counties cities boroughs incorporated towns townships within the Commonwealth liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles imposing penalties imposing certain costs upon counties providing for the disposition of fines forfeitures fees and miscellaneous receipts making an appropriation and providing for refunds" and its amendments in so far as they require the issuance and use of more than one registration plate

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 In order to make available for war needs many tons of most valuable metal the provisions of article five of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905) entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety regulating the use of highways and the operation of vehicles tractors street cars trackless trolley omnibuses bicycles pedestrians and the riding of animals upon the

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I would just like to state that it is regrettable that there are not enough legislative days remaining in this Special Session of the Legislature to enact this measure into law.

This bill simply empowers the Secretary of Highways and the Secretary of Revenue to suspend laws requiring the use of two license plates on an automobile. It was retroactive, and I think it would have been a wonderful contribution by the motorists of Pennsylvania to donate one tag to the government in order that shells and guns might be manufactured out of that vital material.

I at this time want to express my personal thanks to the members of the Senate, and again say I regret that there are not sufficient legislative days to pass this bill.

And the question recurring?

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 87, as follows:

An Act creating a Joint Legislative Committee for the purpose of investigating and studying plans methods and systems for liberalization of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide benefits for partial unemployment providing for its appointment authorizing the employment of necessary assistance and making an appropriation

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Whereas on the tenth day of February 1942 the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania convened the General Assembly to meet in Extraordinary Session on Tuesday February 17 1942 and by Supplemental Proclamation issued on February 17 1942 included "liberalization of unemployment compensation" in the additional subjects for the consideration of the General Assembly and

Whereas it is desirable to liberalize the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide for the payment of benefits for partial unemployment and

Whereas certain information facts data and statistics on employment and unemployment in Pennsylvania and the systems or plans for payments of benefits for partial unemployment in other states are necessary to adopt a workable equitable and acceptable system for inclusion for the payment of benefits for partial unemployment under the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law

Section 1 A Committee of three senators to be appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and three members of the House to be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives is hereby created whose duty it shall be to gather information facts data and statistics on unemployment and employment in Pennsylvania and the systems in operation in other states providing for the payment of benefits for partial unemployment under their laws for the purpose of determining the most equitable and desirable plan system or provision for the payment of benefits for partial unemployment under the present system and law of unemployment compensation in Pennsylvania and to make a full report of its findings including recommendations and drafts of bills for amending the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to the next regular session of the General Assembly in 1943

Section 2 The said committee shall have the power to request the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation of the Department of Labor and Industry and any department board commission bureau or any other agency of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and their duty shall be to furnish such assistance and cooperation and to provide such information facts data and statistics pertinent to the investigation and study as herein authorized

Section 3 The persons appointed as members of said committee shall meet immediately after appointment and select one of their number to act as chairman and one to act as secretary of the committee The committee may employ any necessary clerks and stenographers or any other assistance as they deem necessary and fix their compensation The members of the committee shall receive no compensation for their services but shall be reimbursed for living and traveling expenses necessarily incurred in the performance of their duties

Section 4 The sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) is hereby specifically appropriated to the said committee for the purpose of paying the expenses of the members and the salaries and traveling expenses of employes and any other necessary expenses incident to the work of said committee

Section 5 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, the other day when this bill was introduced, I opposed it on the ground that a committee was already studying this important subject.

Since that time I have had a discussion and conference with the sponsor of the bill, Mr. Heyburn, as well as others who are interested in this legislation, and we have come to the conclusion that probably, and I sincerely believe, the interests of the State of Pennsylvania would best be served, if the functions of the bill are carried on by those who are appointed on that committee.

I have tried, to the best of my ability and capacity, to do the job in the matter of unemployment compensation studies with the set-up as it is constituted under the Joint State Government Commission. However, it is felt that a separate and distinct non-partisan bi-partisan committe ought to study the most controversial of all the features of unemployment compensation, that of partial payments.

Therefore, Mr. President, I remove my objections to the passage of the bill, with the clear understanding that there shall be a committee of persons interested in the subject, and not a political committee.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 94 (House Bill No. 101), the bill just read, be recommitted to the Committee on Appropriations, for the reason that it carries an appropriation provision.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I desire permission to address the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Washington will proceed.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, if the Chair is through with the Calendar I would like to call from the table at this time a resolution that I presented to the Senate yesterday, aiming at a study of government, for the purpose of locating waste, inefficiency, disintegration and indolence, by creating a committee of three Senators and three members of the House for such purpose, the same committee to study government from this position and report at the 1943 regular session.

RESOLUTION CALLED UP FROM THE TABLE

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I now call up from the table and move that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution, offered by myself yesterday, April 7, 1942.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The resolution was read as follows:

In the Senate, April 8, 1942.

Whereas, The United States is now engaged in what would appear to be a long and devastating world war; and

Whereas, To save the Republic is the solemn desire and sincere purpose of every true American; and

Whereas, The American people are being admonished daily to sacrifice and constantly urged by those in authority to return to the practice of strict economy; and

Whereas, Economy in government is vitally essential to its preservation and should at all times be practiced and particularly during periods of national stress and war; and

Whereas, Waste, inefficiency, indolence, and disintegration are in existence, in various forms and degrees, in almost every branch and department of our government; and

Whereas, To locate and eliminate these evils is the patriotic duty of every loyal citizen, especially those paid servants of the people employed as law makers in these legislative halls; Therefore, To that end, Be it

Resolved, That, if the House of Representative concurs, a Committee, consisting of three Senators, appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, and three members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, be created, to investigate and explore, impartially and fearlessly, all departments, boards, and agencies of the Commonwealth, including, if advisable, Counties, Cities, Boroughs, Townships, and School Districts, for the purpose of ascertaining whether waste, inefficiency, indolence or disintegration are present, and if so, to study ways and means of eradicating and/or correcting the same, and to make report to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth at its regular meeting in January, 1943, with its recommendations.

Such committee shall have the power to compel the appearance of witnesses and the production of books, papers and records, and to issue proper subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, records, and any and all other writings deemed necessary for the fulfillment of the duties prescribed by this resolution.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, will my colleague from Washington be interrogated?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Washington permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. REED. Certainly, Mr. President.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, does my colleague from Washington County realize that by this resolution he gives a committee power to subpoena and compel attendance of witnesses, without any provision for payment of the expenses involved?

Mr. REED. Mr. President, that can be taken care of at the time.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, may I ask my colleague how it can be taken care of?

Mr. REED. Mr. President, such resolutions have been presented many times in the past, and the Governor can see to it that a fund is set aside for such purposes.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I think the purpose of this resolution, without much question, is a good one, and I would be inclined to vote for the resolution, but I am at a loss to understand how the Governor could make expenditures or make an appropriation for the purposes set forth in this resolution without some authority so to do, and I think some of my colleagues on this side of the Senate feel the same way about the resolution, and we would like some knowledge of how it is going to be done.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I have known many cases in the past where we have had committees appointed, with no appropriation, and later on the expenses were taken care of by a fund from which—I do not know where the funds came from—but nevertheless it was handled in that manner.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I would like to say, as I stated before, I am in favor of the purposes of this resolution, but I am afraid if we pass it in its present form it will lead to complications and many difficulties, by the compulsion of witnesses in attendance at hearings at different points, and then, after the hearings have been held and the expense incurred, find out there is not anybody who has authority to pay those expenses, and I am sure my colleague from Washington County would not want to have a resolution passed that would bring about those difficulties.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I am on a committee at the present time to investigate conditions in the hard coal regions, where there was no provision made for the payment of witnesses or expenses, and yet I understood, at the time of the creation of that committee, that funds would be provided to take care of it—I do not know how—but, nevertheless, that was the understanding, and there was no question raised at that time.

The question raised at this time by the gentleman from Allegheny is altogether different from the question raised yesterday. He tried to set forth as a reason for not acting on the resolution at that time that we had a Joint State Government Commission, and I can answer him on that proposition today, that we passed a bill just recently to study another phase of government and nothing was said about the Joint State Government Commission. Now, today, another reason arises. I think the gentleman from Allegheny is trying to set the resolution aside, because it deals with a subject that will require fearless courage in order to get at the things that this resolution would cover. I know it is hard to investigate government, to find out where waste is, where inefficiency dwells. It is not work for politicians, it is work for statesmen, and I know it is difficult, but nevertheless in these times we ought to have the courage to get to the bottom of those things and sort them out, in order that the welfare of the people might be preserved.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I am afraid my colleague from Washington County is just the least bit unjust. He can corroborate the statement I am about to make, if he likes, but just before we started the Calendar, Senator Ealy and I were perusing the resolution of our colleague from Washington County, and we came to the conclusion that we were inclined to think it was a good resolution and had a good purpose, until we came to the end and saw that there was no appropriation, but that there was the power to compel the attendance of witnesses.

I think that just undoes any good there is in the resolution, notwithstanding the fact that my colleague from Washington County has the idea that I have some ulterior purpose or motive in mind in an endeavor to kill this resolution on the floor of the Senate, but I want to assure him that I have no such purpose and if he can answer the questions which I have asked as to how it can be done, I will assure him now that I will vote for the resolution.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I would like to answer that if the gentleman from Allegheny were to ask some of his colleagues how it was done in other cases where the administration wanted an investigation made—I know you do not want this investigation, but the people do want it.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, there is one serious difficulty, it seems to me, about passing a resolution for an investigation. As I understand, the courts have held that while the Legislature is in session a committee may have the right to enforce their subpoenas, but that they would not have that right after adjournment of the Legislature. I am in favor of this investigation, but I am just wondering whether it will accomplish what the Senator from Washington County desires.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, in answer to the gentleman from Somerset, if his administration is in favor of an investigation, it can start under this resolution, by calling in a department head or any person in that department, because they control those appointees and those that are under them, and you can get a start before the regular session of 1943 commences.

Mr. EALY. Would the Senator from Washington be willing to spend two or three months of his time during the remainder of this year to serve on this committee.

Mr. REED. I did not say it would take two or three months. I will state for the information of the gentleman from Somerset that in 1935, when a committee to investigate unemployment relief was created, I served on that committee for months without one cent of compensation, not even my traveling expenses, and under the resolution that was adopted at the 1941 session of this body to investigate conditions in the hard coal regions, I was appointed on that committee and I have never asked any compensation for those services.

Mr. EALY. I understand that committee has not made a report as yet, but I think the gentleman from Washington should be paid for those services.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I will say further, if the gentleman from Somerset will bear me out, when he asked me if I would serve on that committee, he specifically stated there was no money appropriated, but there would be ways open to take care of the expenses, or words to that effect. Is that right?

Mr. EALY. The gentleman from Washington County has asked me a question which seems to require a reply. I feel this Legislature should provide funds for that committee which investigated the riot in the anthracite region. As I understand, the committee has never made a formal report to the Legislature, but when it does I think there should be some money provided by this Legislature to pay the committee. I think it did good work, as far as I know.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President and members of the Senate, because I am heartily in sympathy with the spirit which impels the gentleman from Washington to introduce such a resolution, I hesitate to rise to oppose his resolution for the creation of a new commission, but there are already in existence several commissions assigned to the very function called for in this particular resolution.

I oppose it, first of all, because the Local Government Commission, of which I happen to be a member, is opposed to overlapping of functions, the very thing that will happen in the event this resolution is enacted into law.

No member of the Senate shares a greater portion of my admiration and respect than does the gentleman from Washington. I have a sympathetic understanding of the spirit which motivated him in the introduction of this resolution, not only in the introduction of the resolution but in his action on various bills before the General Assembly. It is most unfortunate, incidentally, that the gentleman has not seen fit to seek re-election to the Senate body.

For profundity of thought and brilliancy of legislative ideas, I think the gentleman from Washington has had few equals during my tenure as a member of the General Assembly.

One summer afternoon in the year 1787 a fellow by the name of James Watts was strolling across a scottish golf field thinking, and suddenly he broke out into a mysterious smile; the result of that smile, my friends, was the invention of the steam engine. Sweating horses and spinning looms gave way to thundering locomotives, the radio, television and the telephone; agricultural centers were supplanted by metropolitan areas with teeming population.

We have come to a change in the necessity for local government structures, we have come to a demand for new and modern ideas in local government, and your Local Government Commission created by an act of the Legislature in 1935 has for its chief function the closing of the gap between old and modern ideas in local government.

I know of no commission which has taken their work so seriously, so energetically, as have the members of the Local Government Commission.

Two weeks ago at a meeting over which I presided, having as our guest the Honorable Leo Achterman, Majority Floor Leader of the House, I said this and I think I can repeat it here today, that just as soon as you step into a meeting of the Local Government Commission, instinctively you shelve your party identity and immediately become a member of that commission. I have never yet heard partisan politics injected into any discussions of the commission. It is hard for me to believe that Senator Stevenson and Senator Mallery, both members of the commission, are Republicans. I have never seen any commission handle so diligently the assignments given to them by the General Assembly. I think any commission, and particularly these governmental agencies created to study local government, to effect economies in the operation of local government, can weld the General Assembly into an instrument attuned not to a legislative funeral march marking the burial of the people's hopes, but rather to an anthem of legislative achievement attuned to their needs and in response to their will, and to that high ideal the members of the Local Government Commission have dedicated themselves.

Mr. President, let me read from the act which originally created the commission, language strangely familiar, because the very same proposals in this bill are contained in the bill introduced by the gentleman from Washington County. I quote from the act of 1935:

> "Whereas, The support of local government has become a financial problem, and ways and means should be devised to lessen the existing and ever-increasing cost of local government which is now mainly a burden on real property, and of creating a more scientific and simplified system."

Continuing, it reads:

> "It shall be the duty of the commission to study and investigate (a) the functions of local government, their proper allocation, and the possibility of eliminating unnecessary functions, and the duplication and overlapping of functions, (b) the cost of local government, and ways and means of reducing this cost and lessening the burden on local taxpayers, (c) the advisability and feasibiliay of increasing the areas or changing the boundaries of local governments; of establishing larger units for administration by consolidation of units by cooperative arrangements between them for the performance of certain functions, or by other means; and generally ways and means of organizing a simple system of local government, and to exercise such other functions as may be deemed necessary to carry into effect the spirit and intent of this act."

Mr. President, in the General Session of 1941 the Local Government Commission introduced twenty-two bills, seven of which were passed by the House and Senate and are now laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We are proud to say that of the seventeen subjects included in the Special Session, four of them were included by Governor James at the request of the Local Government Commission.

We not only invite Senator Reed or any other member of the Senate to attend our meetings, but to give us their ideas on what ought to be done. I am delighted to say that at a meeting held last night we decided that there ought to be something done about the post war period and the inevitable depression which will certainly follow the close of the war, and we propose to start out with the idea of sponsoring legislation, having in mind what may happen after the cessation of hostilities. One of the things mentioned, for example, was the creation of surplus funds in the local governments and a statutory act to prevent local government units from interference with that fund, so that when the war is over there will be a fund in every local government in this Commonwealth to cushion the depression and the unemployment which will necessarily follow.

Again, I am in deep sympathy with the idea of the gentleman from Washington, Senator Reed. Very frankly I have tremendous admiration for him. I often think, when I observe his earnest robust personality, of the saying of the Greeks, that those whom the people love they place in charge of their state. I believe he is conscientious, I believe he is sincere, but I doubt very much whether he is cognizant of the great work done by these commissions. I can not speak for the Joint State Government Commission, although I am more or less familiar with what they have done and what they are attempting to do, but I can and have been directed to speak for the Local Government Commission, which has been in existence since 1935, and which operates every month of the year, during sessions and between the periods of sessions.

Again my admiration for the gentleman from Washington and his sincere convictions make me hesitate to oppose his resolution in the creation of this commission, but I honestly and sincerely feel that what he is attempting to do, what he wants to do, is now being done not only by the Local Government Commission but by the Joint State Government Commission, and for those reasons I shall oppose the creation of a new commission.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, in answer to the gentleman from Lackawanna, if I were seeking local government economy I would not go to his committee; if I had my way I would vote to abolish the same and all other groups that are trying to tell the Legislature what they should do.

I am concerned with economy in government; that is the purpose of the resolution. I can remember before the creation of his committee that the local governments were run by the old-timers back home, and I would leave the regulation of my township or of my school district to some of the property holders back home; let them determine what laws are to be passed in connection with their own local problems rather than some high powered committee sitting here at Harrisburg. I have seen representatives of that committee buzzing around here on the taxpayers' money. They are not interested in what goes on back home; they are interested in themselves.

I am interested in the economy that flows out of this Legislature. I believe there are men in this Legislature who can investigate these various departments of the state and determine where waste lies. where inefficiency exists, where there is disintegration and where there is laziness or indolence. Those are the things I am after, and I believe a committee of this Senate and a committee of the House would be the proper way to bring before this body legislation that will eliminate those evils, and if we can do that, then I say we are helping to win this war, because at this time there ought to be sacrifice in every home, there ought to be sacrifice in every department of government.

My resolution, Mr. President, is aimed in order to bring about such a solution.

The gentleman from Lackawanna says that he is against this type of legislation because there is already a commission appointed. I notice a bill that just passed the Senate, Senate Bill No. 87, creating a Joint Legislative Committee, and he voted for that bill, as did every other member in this Senate. I say to you, Mr. President, that the reason why they do not want this resolution has not yet been given. There are many who do not want such an investigation, but the people want such an investigation in order that we may have economy in government. They are crying for it back home, they are crying for it here, they are crying for it in all parts of the state, and I am willing to be tested on the vote, by the vote on this resolution, and that is the way that we can determine really who are in favor of economy in government and who are against it.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I believe that the best test as to whether or not a man is sincerely interested in economy in government and whether or not he is interested in home rule is not so much what he states but how he in fact votes. I have listened with a great deal of interest and with admiration to what I have heard my colleague from Washington County state with reference to economy in government, with reference to home rule, and then be dumfounded in hearing his vote in opposition to those very matters.

Mr. REED. Will the gentleman from Blair state them?

Mr. MALLERY. At this session of the Legislature the Local Government Commission proposed, believing that, as the Senator has just now stated, the people at home should be enabled to govern themselves, firmly believing in that principle, that the people back home should have the duty of imposing the taxes, should have the right to determine the expenditures of the money so levied. In furtherance of that idea the Local Government Commission proposed a resolution which would affect an amendment to the Constitution which would prohibit the Legislature from fixing salaries of local government employes except those employes on salaries of which the state, at least in part, contributes the money to pay those salaries. I might be mistaken, but my recollection is that when that measure came to a vote in the Senate, the Senator from Washington County voted "no." If I am incorrect, I then humbly apologize.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I will leave it to the members of this Senate whether my general voting here during the time I have been present has been against the people, has been against home rule and against matters that have to do with real local government in the hands of the people at home, or whether it has been on the other side.

I introduced a bill here, and fought it through a committee, to abolish tax collectors, I fought for certain principles relating to the lessening the pay of assessors, and I can enumerate many other instances, and I will leave that question to the record, and also to the memory of those who have here served with me.

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, may we have the resolution re-read?

(The resolution was again read by the Clerk.)

The PRESIDENT. The Chair understands the present status of the resolution is that the sponsor has only called the resolution from the table. There is really nothing before the Senate. In order to dispose of the resolution one way or the other a motion must first be made.

Mr. REED. That is correct, Mr. President.

MOTION TO ADOPT RESOLUTION

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I move that the resolution be adopted.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lackawanna will proceed.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I may be just a trifle confused, but I thought the gentleman from Washington made a motion to have the resolution lifted from the table. I am wondering whether that motion passed.

The PRESIDENT. It did, the way the Chair understands it. The question now is on the motion of the gentleman from Washington, on the adoption of the resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

(After the calling of the roll the following occurred.)

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDENT. The roll will be verified.

The Clerk called the names of those voting in the affrmative as follows:

Barr,	Geltz,	Lanius,	Miller,
Dent,	Haluska,	Letzler,	Reed,
Ealy,	Heyburn,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Edmonds,	Jaspan,	McQuiddy,	Stiefel,
Farrell,

The PRESIDENT. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative vote will stand as verified.

The Clerk called the names of those voting in the negative as follows:

Bartlett,	Homsher,	Scarlett,	Wade,
Carr,	James,	Stevenson,	Walker,
Chapman,	Kephart,	Tallman,	Wilson, H. I.,
Coleman,	Mallery,	Thomas,	Ziesenheim,
Crowe,

The PRESIDENT. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, has the Chair voted?

SENATE AT EASE

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of information.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to ask whether or not at this point the roll has or has not been verified.

The PRESIDENT. The roll has been verified.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire further information: has the result been announced?

The PRESIDENT. It has not.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to ask whether or not the gentleman from Lycoming, Senator Snowden, is recorded as having voted.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is informed by the Clerk that the gentleman from Lycoming is not recorded as having voted.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, my humble opinion is, according to rules and regulations of parliamentary law, in all places where parliamentary procedure is in order, that if there is a tie vote—of course the Chair and the Senate are the masters of their own doings and do as they please—however, the Presiding Officer votes in the Senate of Pennsylvania and the United States Senate, according to Robert's Rules of Order on Parliamentary Law—the President, or the Presiding Officer, votes in all ties except on final passage of an act of the Legislature.

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, if the Chair knows that, let the Chair vote.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny has the floor.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, at the time the Senate went at ease, I was inquiring whether or not a Senator who was in the room, but outside the rail at the time the roll was being called, but who is now inside the rail, and the vote yet not having been announced, whether or not that member of the Senate is entitled to cast a ballot on the question now before the Senate.

RULING BY THE CHAIR

The PRESIDENT. The Chair ruled, during the regular session of 1941, that after a verification of the roll but before announcement of the vote, any Senator who had not voted, but came into the room or was in the Chamber and desired to vote, could vote. If there is present any Senator who wishes to vote he is privileged to do so.

Mr. SNOWDEN. Mr. President, under the circumstances I desire to be recorded as voting "present."

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from Lycoming will be so recorded.

When I was Auditor General, I think, I made the statement that a great game on the Hill was to pass the buck, and now the buck has been passed to the Chair.

In order that the record may be clear, the vote as recorded by the Clerk is:

Yeas—17. Nays—17. Present—1.

as follows:

YEAS—17

Barr,	Geltz,	Lanius,	Miller,
Dent,	Haluska,	Letzler,	Reed,
Ealy,	Heyburn,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Edmonds,	Jaspan,	McQuiddy,	Stiefel,
Farrell,

NAYS—17

Bartlett,	Homsher,	Scarlett,	Wade,
Carr,	James,	Stevenson,	Walker,
Chapman,	Kephart,	Tallman,	Wilson, H. I.,
Coleman,	Mallery,	Thomas,	Ziesenheim,
Crowe,

PRESENT—1

Snowden.

VOTE BY CHAIR

The PRESIDENT. Under the Constitution, in case of a tie vote, the Chair is required to cast the deciding vote and therefore votes "aye".

Lewis, President—aye

Yeas—18. Nays—17. Present—1.

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. STIEFEL, from the Committee on Appropriations reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 96, (House Bill No. 113), entitled:

An Act creating a joint legislative committee to study partial unemployment as related to unemployment compensation defining its powers and duties authorizing the employment of counsel and employes and making an appropriation.

DOCTOR ROBERT L. JOHNSON, PRESIDENT, TEMPLE UNIVERSITY, INTRODUCED TO THE SENATE

The PRESIDENT. The Chair has the pleasure of presenting to the Senate a gentleman who is known to the Chair, and, perhaps, to some of the members of the Senate, Doctor Robert L. Johnson, the new President of Temple University.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, this is indeed a very unexpected pleasure and privilege. I just thought I would drop in, because I love this old place and used to come in often, and then I have quite a few friends here. Now I find myself given an opportunity to say good afternoon and to say to you that Temple University, my new boss, in my judgment is one of the greatest institutions of learning I know anything about. It is a great privilege to work with those ten or eleven thousand young people, and I think they are going to make fine citizens; they are fine young Americans.

We have been very appreciative, those of us down at Temple University who are trying to guide its destinies and build it up so that it will be one of the greatest institutions in America, of the interest, sympathy and encouragement we have had from our friends in Harrisburg. You have been very generous in the past but we have lots of problems ahead, as do all businesses and all concerns, so we do hope you will keep your eyes on us, that you will be proud of us, and that you will go along with us and help us meet some of the problems that lie ahead.

While I am here I should like to tell you how much I appreciate the very great honor that has been conferred upon me recently by your committee in appointing me Chairman of the celebration that is to be held a year from this summer in honor of the two hundredth anniversary of Thomas Jefferson. I shall be very happy indeed to serve as Chairman and will try to do the best job I know how. I understand I will have a very distinguished Committee, and I trust I will handle the matter in a manner which will be a credit to you and to those of you who wanted me to have this very singular honor, the first year I came back to Pennsylvania, the state I really feel is my state, because my ancestors, many of them, came from here. I love Pennsylvania and I am delighted to return.

I am particularly pleased to be here today and meet with you and see some of my old friends here in Harrisburg.

I thank you very much.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 5.30 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

WEDNESDAY, April 8, 1942

The House met at 2 p. m.
The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

Dear God, Thou hast again let us see the light of a new day. As we shall be provided with many good and perfect gifts from Thee, may we remember to acknowledge them with grateful hearts, for we know that many times we have been unworthy children. We ask Thee for the gift of understanding Thy ways and the ability to relate Thy benefits toward us to the affairs of our every-day life. Help us to so live and labor that we shall be a credit to the cause of our Master and friend, Jesus, the Christ, whose name we bear and in whose name we pray. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday, when, on motion of Mr. ELY, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. BAUGHER. RESOLUTION No. 47.

In the House of Representatives, April 7, 1942.

Whereas, One of the vitally important governmental functions of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is the examination, registration and licensure of persons seeking to engage in certain professions and occupations; and

Whereas, The respective boards and commissions, charged by Acts of Assembly with the duty of conducting and supervising such examination, registration and licensure, occupy a position of the highest responsibility and trust in protecting both the members of the general public and also those persons engaged in the professions and occupations concerned; and

Whereas, In certain instances, bribes have been solicited and accepted by employes of such boards, for the purpose of registering or licensing persons who had taken examinations and were waiting qualification under the law to engage in the profession or occupation involved; and

Whereas, Any such corrupt and illegal evasion of the legal safeguards and restrictions governing the practice of certain professions and occupations, seriously endangers the general public health, safety and welfare, as well as destroys the public confidence in the ability of those engaging in these professions and occupations; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker of this House of Representatives appoint a committee, composed of seven members thereof, whose duty it shall be to make a careful, thorough and impartial investigation of the activities of the respective boards and commissions charged by law with the duty of examining, registering and licensing persons desiring to engage in certain professions and occupations, for the purpose of discovering and eliminating any bribery or other illegality in such examination, registration and licensure. It shall be the duty of such committee to make its report to this House of Representatives as soon as possible, and to take any other proper action which it may deem advisable in view of its findings. The investigations and deliberations of such committee may be continued after the end of the present Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly; and be it further

Resolved, That the said committee shall have power to issue subpoenas under the hand and seal of its chairman, requesting and commanding any person or persons to appear before them and to answer such questions touching matters properly being inquired into by the committee, and to produce such books, papers, records and documents as the committee may deem necessary. Such subpoenas may be served upon any person, and shall have the force and effect of subpoenas issued out of the courts of this Commonwealth. Each member of said committee shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the committee. Any person who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to testify before said committee or to produce any books, papers, records or documents shall be subject to the penalties provided by the laws of the Commonwealth in such cases.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

By Mr. SARRAF. RESOLUTION No. 48.

In the House of Representatives, April 7, 1942.

Whereas, It is a matter of common medical knowledge, that the innoculation of children for the prevention of contagious diseases has greatly reduced the spread of such diseases, and minimized the probability of epidemics; and

Whereas, It is not generally known that such innoculations become ineffective after varying periods of time, depending upon the type of innoculation; and

Whereas, Shortages and the consequent rationing of vital food and materials needed for the better protection of the health and safety of the children and the residents of this Commonwealth, during the present emergency, may occasion a lowering of the necessary standards required for adequate health protection, and the consequent epidemics of children's diseases created thereby; and

Whereas, In the prosecution of the present war, any attack suffered in the defense of our country may damage and destroy public utility systems which are vital to the health and sanitation of the residents of this Commonwealth, such damage or destruction having proved to be the forerunner of epidemics of contagious diseases; and

Whereas, Innoculation against such contagious diseases and re-innoculation after certain periods of time would aid in preventing the probability and the spread of such epidemics; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives does hereby request the Department of Public Instruction in cooperation with the Department of Health of this Commonwealth, to educate and make known to the school children of this Commonwealth and their parents, the need for the innoculation and re-innoculation of such children for the purpose of preventing the probability and the spread of epidemics of contagious diseases, particularly in view of the possible curtailment of vital health facilities because of the present emergency, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Secretary of Health.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

MARTINSBURG HIGH SCHOOL CLASS WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair welcomes to the House this afternoon the Senior Class of Martinsburg High School, Blair County, who are the guests of the gentlemen from Blair, Mr. Sollenberger and Mr. George E. Jones.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 109, entitled:

An Act to prohibit during a limited period certain workers for State local and district councils of defense or for certain Federal boards agencies or instrumentalities engaged in defense and war activities from engaging in political activity and providing penalties

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise to make a motion in connection with this bill. In doing so I want to say that the bill's purpose is quite clear to everybody. It was designed to correct certain abuses and evils in our all out efforts for the war.

It has come to my attention that in some of our counties, and particularly in Philadelphia, by design or perhaps by accident, the members of the boards, rationing boards, tire rationing boards and other rationing boards are all Republican, and a number of the air raid wardens —any number of them, an overwhelming number of them are Republican, and some of these air raid stations are set up in Republican ward headquarters.

I don't know, it may have been by accident or it may have been they were the best possible people for the job, but it doesn't look right and it has a very demoralizing effect on the war effort because rumors are going around that unless you are in right with certain political leaders you can't get tires, you can't get this or you can't get that. These things ought not to be. This is not a Republican war or a Democratic war, it is an all out war in behalf of certain decencies without which life would not be worth while, and I am calling to the attention of this House, that they may carry it back to their communities, that this House is opposed to any person, whether he be Democrat or Republican, making political capital out of our war efforts.

I regret, Mr. Speaker, that the bill was hastily drawn, and perhaps in its present shape will work a hardship on some of these communities that are really doing a good job and making impartial efforts to forward the war aims of this country, and I do not want to hurt anybody who is doing a good job in any respect, nor reflect upon those who are sincerely trying to do the fair and square thing in this war effort.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted for further study and possible amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

Section 302 Contributions by Employers not Subject to Section 301 Each employer (as defined in this act) other than employers subject to section three hundred one of this act shall pay for each calendar year beginning with the calendar year one thousand nine hundred thirty-six contributions into the Unemployment Compensation Fund which shall be equal to but not more than the following percentages of total wages paid or payable by the employer for such calendar year

(1) Nine-tenths of one per centum for the calendar year one thousand nine hundred thirty-six

(2) One and eight-tenths per centum for the calendar year one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven and

(3) Two and seven-tenths per centum for the calendar year one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight and each calendar year thereafter

In the event that Title IX of the Social Security Act shall be amended or repealed by the Congress or held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States and for such reason the provisions of Section 301 of this act cannot be administered and the contributions imposed by said section cannot be collected from employers under said section then such employers shall become subject to the payment of contributions under the provisions of this section at the rates herein specified]

(1) Each employer shall pay contributions equal to the following percentages of wages paid or payable by him or it with respect to employment

(a) Nine-tenths per centum with respect to employment occurring during the calendar year 1936

(b) One and eight-tenths per centum with respect to employment occurring during the calendar year 1937

(c) Two and seven-tenths per centum with respect to employment occurring during the calendar years 1938 1939 1940 and 1941

(2) Each employer shall pay contributions equal to two and seven-tenths per centum of wages paid by him during the calendar year 1942 and during each calendar year thereafter with respect to employment occurring after December 31 1941

Section 303 Period and Termination of Contributions (a) Any employer who or which becomes subject to this act during any calendar year shall be subject to and shall pay the contributions required by this act during the whole of such calendar year

(b) Any employer subject to this act shall cease to be so subject [and shall be relieved of the payment of contributions] only upon written application to the department and finding by the department that he has not during the previous calendar year employed any employe (whether or not the same employe) in employment subject to this act for some portion of each of some [twenty] two (2) days each day being in a different week [during the previous or current calendar year] whether or not such weeks are consecutive and that he has not during the part of the current calendar year preceding the filing of his application employed any employe (whether or not the same employe) in employment subject to this act for some portion of each of some two (2) days each day being in a different week whether or not such weeks are consecutive An employer shall be relieved of the payment of contributions for any calendar year in which the department upon application by such employer or upon its own motion shall find that such employer has failed to employ any employe (whether or not the same employe) in employment subject to this act for some portion of each of some two (2) days each day being in a different week whether or not such weeks are consecutive

Section 304 Reports by Employers Assessments Each employer shall file with the department such reports at such times and containing such information as the department shall require for the purpose of ascertaining and paying the contributions required by this act

(a) If any employer fails within the time prescribed by the department to file any report necessary to enable the department to determine the amount of any contribution owing by such employer the department may make an assessment of contributions against such employer of such amount of contributions for which the department believes such employer to be liable together with interest thereon as provided in this act

Within fifteen days after making such assessment the department shall give notice thereof by registered mail to such employer If such employer is dissatisfied with the assessment so made he may petition the department for a reassessment in the manner hereinafter prescribed

(b) Any employer against whom an assessment is made may within fifteen days after receipt of notice thereof petition the department for a re-assessment which petition shall be under oath and shall set forth therein specifically and in detail the grounds and reasons upon which it is claimed that the assessment is erroneous Hearing or hearings on said petition shall be held by the department at such places and at such times as may be determined by rules and regulations of the department and due notice of the time and place of such hearing given by registered mail to such petitioner

(c) Any petitioner dissatisfied with the action of the department on his petition for re-assessment may appeal therefrom to the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County within thirty days after being notified of the action of the department Such appeal to the court shall be by petition verified by oath and shall specify all the objections to such assessment or re-assessment and any objections not specified in the petition shall not be considered by the Court

(d) As to any employer who fails to petition for re assessment or having petitioned after due notice of hearing fails to appear and be heard or in case of a re-assessment to appeal to the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County within the time and in the manner herein provided such assessment or re-assessment of the department shall then become final and the contributions and interest assessed or re-assessed by the department become forthwith due and payable and no defense which might have been determined by the department or in the event of appeal from re-assessment by the court shall be available to any employer in any suit or proceeding brought by the Commonwealth in the name of the fund for the recovery of such contribution based on such assessment or re assessment

(e) In any hearings held by the department in pursuance of the provisions of this section the department is hereby authorized and empowered to examine any person or persons under oath concerning any matters pertaining to the determination of the liability of the employer for contributions under the provisions of this act and to this end may compel the production of books papers and records and compel the attendance of all persons whether as parties or witnesses whom and which the department believes to have or contain knowledge or information material to such determination The conduct of hearings and appeals before the department shall be in accordance with rules of procedure prescribed by the department whether or not such rules conform to common law or rules of evidence or other technical rules of procedure but shall be under supervision of the Attorney General of the Commonwealth

(f) Witness fees and expenses of proceedings involving such assessments or re-assessments and the determination thereof shall be deemed part of the expenses of administering this act and shall be paid from the administration fund Testimony at any hearing before the department held in pursuance of the provisions of this section shall be taken by a reporter but need not be transcribed unless an appeal be taken from a re-assessment made thereon

Section 305 Payment of Contributions Concurrently with each report the employer shall pay to the department the amount of contributions imposed by this act for the period covered by the report but the department may in proper cases upon request made permit an extension of time for the payment of contributions due The amount of the contribution in respect of which an extension is granted shall be paid (with interest at the rate of one-half of one per centum per month) on or before the expiration of the period of extension

Section 306 Fractions of a Cent In the payment of any contributions a fractional part of a cent shall be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half cent or more in which case it shall be increased to one cent

Section 307 Interstate Commerce No employer required by this act to pay contributions shall be relieved from compliance therewith on the ground that he is engaged in interstate commerce or that this act does not distinguish between employes engaged in interstate commerce and those engaged in intrastate commerce

Section 308 Interest on Past Due Contributions Contributions unpaid on the date on which they are due and payable as prescribed by the department shall bear interest at the rate of one per centum per month or fraction of a month from the date they become due until paid

Section 308.1 Contributions to be Liens Entry Thereof All contributions and the interest and penalties thereon due and payable by an employer under the provisions of this act shall be a lien upon the franchises and property both real and personal of the employer liable therefor from the date a lien for such contributions interest and penalties is entered of record in the manner hereinafter provided whenever the franchises or property of an employer is sold at a judicial sale all contributions and the interest and penalties thereon thus entered of record shall first be allowed and paid out of the proceeds of such sale in the same manner and to the same extent that State taxes are paid subject nevertheless to the order of distribution prescribed in Section 310 hereof Provided That the lien hereby created shall not be prior to preexisting duly recorded real estate mortgages The department may at any time transmit to the prothonotaries of the respective counties of the Commonwealth to be by them entered of record certified copies of all liens for unpaid contributions interest and penalties which may now exist or hereafter arise upon which record it shall be lawful for writs of scire facias to issue and be prosecuted to judgment and execution in the same manner as such writs are ordinarily employed

Section 309 Collection of Contributions and Interest If after notice by the department any employer fails neglects or refuses to pay any contributions due or the interest or penalties due thereon the amount due [shall] may be collected by civil action in the name of the Commonwealth Civil actions brought under this section to collect contributions or interest thereon from any employer shall be heard by the court at the earliest possible date and shall be entitled to preference upon the calendar of the court over all other actions except petitions for judicial review under this act and cases arising under The Workmen's Compensation Act of one thousand nine hundred fifteen and its amendments and supplements No court costs shall be imposed on the Commonwealth in any such civil actions Judgments obtained in such civil actions to collect any of the contributions aforesaid shall include interest and penalties as provided in this act

Section 309.1 Compromises Where the department is satisfied (1) that the employer is unable to make payment in full of contributions interest and penalties imposed upon him by the law and (2) that the employer has acted in good faith the secretary is hereby authorized with the approval of the Attorney General and under rules and regulations adopted therefor to compromise any delinquent contribution and delinquent interest and penalties due on any contribution

Section 310 Priorities Under Legal Dissolutions and Distributions In the event of any distribution of an employer's assets pursuant to an order of any court under the laws of this Commonwealth including any receivership assignment for benefit of creditors adjudicated insolvency composition or similar proceeding contributions or installments thereof or interest thereon then or thereafter due shall be paid in full prior to all other claims except taxes claims arising under The Workmen's Compensation Act of one thousand nine hundred fifteen and its amendments and supplements and claims for wages of not more than two hundred and fifty dollars to each claimant earned within six months of the commencement of the proceeding In the event of an employer's adjudication in bankruptcy judicially confirmed extension proposal or composition under the Federal Bankruptcy Act of one thousand eight hundred ninety-eight as amended contributions and interest then or thereafter due shall be entitled to such priority as [is provided in section sixty-four (b) of that act (United States Code Annotated Title XI Section one hundred four (b) as amended)] are now or may hereafter be granted to taxes due a state under the said Federal Bankruptcy Act or its amendments

Section 311 Refunds and Adjustments If not later than [one year] four years from the payment of any contribution or interest thereon an employer shall make application for an adjustment thereof in connection with subsequent contribution payments or if such adjustment cannot be made for a refund thereof and the department shall determine that such contribution or interest or any portion thereof was erroneously collected for any reason whatever [including the failure to employ one or more employes (whether or not the same employe or employes) for some portion of each of some twenty days during the calendar year each day being in a different week for which the contributions were made] the department shall allow such employer to make an adjustment thereof without interest in connection with subsequent contribution payments by him or if such adjustment cannot be made the department shall refund said amount without interest out of moneys to the credit of the Employers' Contribution Account in the Unemployment Compensation Fund for like cause and within the same period an adjustment or refund may be so made on the initiative of the department

Section 312. Reciprocal Agreements The department is hereby authorized to enter into reciprocal arrangements with appropriate and duly authorized agencies of other states or of the Federal Government or both whereby

(a) Services performed by an individual for a single employer for which services are customarily performed in more than one state shall be deemed to be services performed entirely within any one of the states (i) in which any part of such individual's service is performed or (ii) in which such individual has his residence or (iii) in which the employer maintains a place of business provided there is in effect as to such services on election approved by the agency charged with the administration of such state's unemployment compensation law pursuant to which all the services performed by such individual for such employer are deemed to be performed entirely within such state

(b) Potential rights to benefits accumulated under the unemployment compensation laws of one or more states or under one or more such laws of the Federal Government or both may constitute the basis for the payment of benefits through a single appropriate agency under terms which the department finds will be fair and reasonable as to all affected interests and will not result in any substantial loss to the fund

(c) Wages or services upon the basis of which an individual may become entitled to benefits under an unemployment compensation law of another state or of the Federal Government shall be deemed to be wages for employment for the purpose of determining his rights to benefits under this act and wages for employment as defined in this act on the basis of which an individual may become entitled to benefits under this act shall be deemed to be wages or services on the basis of which unemployment compensation under such law of another state or of the Federal Government is payable but no such arrangement shall be entered into unless it contains provisions for reimbursements from the fund for such of the compensation paid under such other law upon the basis of wages for employment as defined in this act as the department finds will be fair and reasonable as to all affected interests and

(d) Contributions due under this act with respect to wages for employment shall for the purpose of section three hundred one of this act be deemed to have been paid to the fund as of the date payment was made as contributions therefor under another state or federal unemployment compensation law but no such arrangement shall be entered into unless it contains provisions for such reimbursement to the fund of such contributions and the actual earnings thereon as the department finds will be fair and reasonable as to all affected interests

Reimbursements paid from the fund pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section shall be deemed to be benefits for all the purposes of this act The department is authorized to make to other state or Federal agencies and to receive from such other state or Federal agencies reimbursements from or to the fund in accordance with arrangements entered into pursuant to this section

The administration of this act and of other state and Federal unemployment compensation and public employment service laws be promoted by cooperation between this State and such other states and the appropriate Federal agencies in exchanging services and making available facilities and information The department is therefore authorized to make such investigations secure and transmit such information make available such services and facilities and exercise such of the other powers provided herein with respect to the administration of this act as he deems necessary or appropriate to facilitate the administration of any such unemployment compensation or public employment service law and in like manner to accept and utilize information services and facilities made available to this State by the agency charged with the administration of any such other unemployment compensation or public employment service law

To the extent permissible under the laws and Constitution of the United States the department is authorized to enter into or cooperate in arrangements whereby facilities and services provided under this act and facilities and services provided under the unemployment compensation law of any foreign government may be utilized for the taking of claims and the payment of benefits under the employment security law of this State or under a similar law of such government

Article IV

Compensation

Section 401 Qualifications Required to Secure Compensation Compensation shall be payable to any employe who is or becomes totally unemployed on or after January first one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight and who

(a) Has within his base year earned wages in employment as defined in this act from employers of not less than [thirteen times his weekly compensation amount] one hundred dollars ($100) except for casual labor

(b) Has registered for work at a designated employment office at such times and in such manner as the department may prescribe

(c) Has made a valid application for benefits with respect to the benefit year for which compensation is claimed and has made a claim for compensation in the proper manner prescribed by the department

(f) In claiming benefits hereunder an employe shall correctly report any days of employment including employment not subject to this act and the days on which he was totally unemployed and shall make such reports in accordance with such regulations as the department shall prescribe

No week shall be counted as a week of total unemployment for the purposes of this subsection (1) unless it occurs within the benefit year which includes the week with respect to which such employe claims compensation Provided That the two weeks immediately preceding a benefit year shall be deemed (for the purpose of this subsection only) to be within such benefit year And provided further That any approved waiting week which is prior to the first day of July one thousand nine hundred forty-two and is within a period of fifty-two weeks immediately preceding the week subsequent to the thirtieth day of June one thousand nine hundred forty-two for which a first compensable claim is filed shall be deemed to be a waiting week with respect to the benefit year in which such first compensable claim is filed or (2) if compensation is payable with respect thereto or (3) unless the individual was eligible for compensation with respect thereto under all other provisions of this section and was not disqualified with respect thereto under section 402 (a) (b) and (d)

Section 402 Ineligibility for Compensation An employe shall be ineligible for compensation or waiting period credit for any week

(a) In which his unemployment is due to failure without good cause either to apply for suitable work [when so directed by the employment office or to accept suitable work when offered to him by the employment office at such time and in such manner as the department may prescribe or by his previous employer In determining whether or not any work is suitable for an individual the department shall consider the degree of risk involved to his health safety and morals his physical fitness and prior training and experience and the distance of the available work from his residence

(b) In which his unemployment is due to voluntarily leaving work except where as a condition of continuing in employment the employe would be required to join or remain a member of a company union or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona fide labor organization or to accept wages hours or conditions of employment not desired by a majority of the employes in the establishment or the occupation or would be denied the right of collective bargaining under generally prevailing conditions or without other good cause

(c) With respect to which or a part of which he has received or is seeking unemployment benefits under an unemployment compensation law of any other state or of the United States Provided That if the appropriate agency of such other state or of the United States finally determines that he is not entitled to such unemployment benefits the disqualification shall not apply

(d) In which the employe's total unemployment is due to a voluntary suspension of work resulting from an industrial dispute but this disqualification shall apply only to the week in which the suspension occurred and for the three consecutive weeks of total unemployment which immediately follow such week

Section 403 Rate and Payment of Weekly Compensation shall be payable at the rate of [fifty] sixty per centum of the employe's full-time weekly wage but the amount shall not be more than [fifteen] eighteen dollars nor less than [seven dollars and fifty cents] eight dollars a week An employe's weekly compensation amount as determined for the first week of his benefit year shall constitute his weekly compensation amount throughout such benefit year Compensation shall be computed to the nearest multiple of [five] fifty cents Compensation shall be paid through employment offices at such times and in such manner as the department may prescribe All accrued benefits due any deceased employe may in the discretion of the department be paid to the surviving spouse children or parents of the deceased without letters testameneary or of administraeion

Section 404 Amount of Compensation The maximum total amount of compensation payable to any eligible employe during any benefit year shall not exceed [one-eighth] one-seventh of his total wages from employers during the first eight out of the last nine completed calendar quarters immediately preceding each week with respect to which compensation is payable (excluding however any completed calendar quarter which occurs prior to January first one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven) or [thirteen] sixteen times his weekly compensation amount whichever is the lesser The department may maintain a separate account for each employe and in such event shall credit his account with all wages earned by him from employers subsequent to January first one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven Compensation paid to an eligible employe shall be charged against amounts credited to such account in the chronological order in which the wages of such individual were earned from employers

Section 405 Duties of Employers Each employer shall post in a conspicuous place or places in his establishment or establishments any printed statement or notice required by the rules and regulations of the department

Section 406 Non-liability of Commonwealth Compensation shall be deemed to be due and payable under this act only to the extent provided in this act and to the extent that moneys are available therefor to the credit of the Unemployment Compensation Fund and neither the Commonwealth the department nor the secretary shall be liable for any amount in excess of such moneys

Section 407 Status Preserved During and After Military or Naval Service Notwithstanding any provision of this act to the contrary the compensation rights of any employe who enters the military or naval service of the United States during any period of war or preparation for defense and is honorably discharged from such service shall become fixed as of the time he enters such service and shall remain in status quo for and during the period of such service and upon being honorably discharged from such service such employe shall be entitled to the same benefit rights under the act to which this is an amendment as he was at the time he entered the service In calculating the base year the base period the benefit year or any period of time under said act all time so spent in the military or naval service of the United States shall be excluded from computation therein

The legislature hereby declares the intent of this section to be that the benefit rights of an employe entering the military or naval service herein described and subsequently receiving an honorable discharge therefrom shall during the period of such service be and remain as they were at the time of entry into service and that upon the termination of such service by honorable discharge the benefit rights of such employe shall be and continue as though uninterrupted by the period of such service

Section 5 Sections five hundred and one five hundred and two five hundred and four five hundred and nine eight hundred and four and five hundred and five of said act are hereby amended to read as follows

Section 501 Initial Determination of Compensation Appeals The department shall promptly examine any application for benefits or claim filed and on the basis of the facts found by it shall determine whether or not the application for benefits or claim [for compensation] is valid [and if valid the week with respect to which compensation shall commence the weekly compensation payable and the maximum duration thereof] The determination of any application for benefits shall include the determination of the first day of the benefit year the weekly benefit rate and the number of benefit weeks payable The claimant and other affected parties shall be promptly notified of the decision and the reasons therefor in writing except that no notification shall be necessary when the department shall approve a claim for a week of total unemployment Unless the claimant or other affected parties files an appeal from such decision with the board within ten calendar days after such notification was delivered to him personally or was mailed to his last known post office address and applies for a hearing such decision of the department shall be final and compensation shall be paid or denied in accordance therewith In the event that an appeal is filed with the board the payment of [compensation shall be withheld pending determination of the claim but when a referee or the board affirms a decision of the department allowing compensation such compensation shall be paid notwithstanding any further appeal which may thereafter be taken] any contested amount of compensation shall be withheld pending determination of the claim but any uncontested amount of compensation allowed in any decision shall be paid notwithstanding any appeal which may thereafter be taken Provided That when a referee or the board affirms a decision of the department allowing compensation such compensation shall be paid notwithstanding any further appeal

Section 502 Decision of Referee Further Appeals and Reviews Where an appeal from the [decision] determination or revised determination as the case may be of the department is taken a referee shall after affording the parties reasonable opportunity for a fair hearing affirm modify or reverse such findings of fact and the [decision] determination or revised determination as the case may be of the department as to him shall appear just and proper The parties shall be duly notified of the referee's decision and the reasons therefor which shall be deemed the final decision of the board unless within ten days after the date of such decision the board acts on its own motion or upon application permits any of the parties to institute a further appeal before the board A memorandum of testimony of any hearing before any referee shall be made and be preserved for a period of two years

Section 504 Powers of Board Over Claims The board shall have power on its own motion or on appeal to remove transfer or review any claim pending before or decided by a referee and in any such case and in cases where a further appeal is allowed by the board from the decision of a referee may affirm modify or reverse the [decision] determination or revised determination as the case may be of the department or referee on the basis of the evidence previously submitted in the case or direct the taking of additional evidence When any claim pending before a referee is removed or transferred to the board the board shall afford the parties reasonable opportunity for a fair hearing The parties shall be duly notified of the board's final decision and the reasons therefor A complete record shall be kept of each case heard before the board All testimony at any hearing before the board whether on appeal or otherwise shall be taken by a reporter but need not be transcribed unless the disputed claim is further appealed

Section 505 Rules of Procedure The manner in which appeals shall be taken the reports thereon required from the department the claimant and employers and the conduct of hearings and appeals shall be in accordance with rules of procedure prescribed by the board whether or not such rules conform to common law or statutory rules of evidence and other technical rules of procedure

When the same or substantially similar evidence is relevant and material to the matter in issue in applications and claims filed by more than one individual or in multiple applications and claims filed by a single individual the same time and place for considering each such application and claim may be fixed hearings thereon jointly conducted a single record of the proceedings made and evidence introduced with respect to any application or claim considered as introduced with respect to all of such applications or claims Provided That in the judgment of the board or referee having jurisdiction of the proceeding such consideration will not be prejudicial to any party

Section 509 Finality of Decisions Any decisions made by the department or any referee or the board shall become final ten days after the date thereof unless appealed from as hereinbefore provided [by] but any decision of the board or of a referee where an appeal has been disallowed by the board shall nevertheless be subject to appeal to the Superior Court after the same has become final

Subject to appeal proceedings and judicial review as provided in this act any right fact or matter in issue which was directly passed upon or necessarily involved in any decision of a referee or the board or the Superior Court and which has become final shall be conclusive for all purposes of this act and shall not be subject to collateral attack as among all affected parties who had notice of such decision Provided however That whenever an appeal involves a question as to whether services were performed by a claimant in employment or for an employer or whether remuneration paid constituted wages a decision thereon shall not be conclusive as to an employing entity's liability for contributions unless the employing entity was given special notice of such issue and of the pendency of the appeal and was afforded a reasonable opportunity by the referee or the board to adduce evidence bearing on such question

Section 804 [Liability to Repay Compensation Unlawfully Received Any person who by reason of the nondisclosure or misrepresentation by him or by another of a material fact (irrespective of whether such nondisclosure or misrepresentation was known or fraudulent) has received any sum as compensation under this act while any conditions for the receipt of compensation imposed by this act were not fulfilled in his case or while he was disqualified from receiving compensation] Recovery and Recoupment of Compensation Any Person who by reason of his fraud has received any sum as compensation under this act to which he was not entitled shall be liable to repay to the Unemployment Compensation Fund to the credit of the Employers' Contribution Account a sum equal to the amount so received by him [and such] Such sum shall be collectible (a) in the manner provided in this act for the collection of past due contributions or (b) by deduction from any future compensation payable to the claimant under this act

Any person who other than by reason of his fraud has received any sum as compensation under this act to which he was not entitled shall not be liable to repay such sum but shall be liable to have such sum deducted from any future compensation payable to him with respect to the benefit year current to or next succeeding the receipt thereof Provided however That no recoupment from future compensation shall be had if such sum was received by such person without fault on his part and such recoupment would be inequitable and unconscionable

The claimant and other affected parties shall be notified in writing of the department's determination to deduct any sum from future compensation under this section and such determination shall be subject to appeal in the manner provided in this act for appeals from determinations of compensation

Section 6 Article VIII of the said Act is hereby amended so as to include therein a new Section to be known as Section 805 and to read as follows

Section 805 For the enforcement of this Act or any rule and regulation issued under the authority thereof the Department is hereby empowered and it shall be its duty to conduct such periodic spot checks and investigations as will disclose with reasonable certainty whether or not compensation benefits have been paid to persons not legally entitled thereto or as will disclose violations of this Act and to take such steps and adopt such means as may reasonably be necessary to enforce the provisions of this Act The conduct of such spot checks and investigations and all legal proceedings arising therefrom shall be under the supervision and direction of the Attorney General of the Commonwealth and the expenses thereof and in connection therewith are hereby declared to be administrative expenses to be paid from the Administrative Fund

Section 7 The provisions of this act shall become effective on the first day of July one thousand nine hundred and forty-two except as otherwise provided herein Provided nevertheless that nothing herein contained shall be taken or construed to relieve any employer from the payment of any contribution penalties and interest imposed by the provisions of the Act or parts of Act to which this Act is an amendment or the rules and regulations issued thereunder in force at the time this Act becomes effective or to affect or terminate any petitions investigations prosecutions legal or otherwise or other proceedings pending under the provisions of any Act or parts of Act in force at the time this Act becomes effective or for the collection or recovery of contributions penalties and interest due or owing under the provisions of any Act or part of Acts or rules and regulations issued thereunder in force at the time this Act becomes effective

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection House Bill No. 98, (Senate Bill No. 64), Printer's No. 48, was passed over at the request of Mr. ACHTERMAN.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 117, entitled:

An Act to amend an act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" by more fully defining amounts payable providing for the payment by the Commonwealth of the salary deductions to the State Employes' Retirement Fund or the Pennsylvania Motor Police Retirement Fund where there are no dependents limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

BILL DROPPED FROM CALENDAR

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, in considering this matter with the gentleman from Berks and some others, while we are of the opinion that there is a necessity to remedy this defect in the law, we are also of the opinion that it does not come within the call, and as the time is such that it can hardly be passed, it will have to go as an amendment to the bill offered by the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Readinger, which I believe is going to conference between the House and the Senate.

I therefore move, Mr. Speaker, that this bill be dropped from the calendar.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 116, entitled:

An Act to promote interstate cooperation for the use conservation protection and equitable diversion of the water resources in the Delaware River Basin between and among the States of Pennsylvania New York and New Jersey for the purpose of meeting prospective needs for domestic and municipal water supply regulating and limiting the use of the waters of the Delaware River and its tributaries and prescribing rules and standards requiring permits from and providing for hearings by the Water and Power Resources Board and for appeals from its decision vesting power in the Water and Power Resources Board to vary or modify the rules and standards under certain conditions and to adopt rules and regulations and further defining its powers and duties requiring notice to the States of New York and New Jersey of all applications for water diversion providing for the filing of stipulations by the Attorney General with the United States Supreme Court and obtaining its approval of water diversions

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 105, (Senate Bill No. 60), entitled:

An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limit the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways of the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of overweight and over-length vehicles in certain cases.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Amendments were offered by Messrs. HOLLAND, BROWN, MIHM and AUKER.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments offered by Messrs. BROWN and MIHM.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, lines 6, 7 and 8, by striking out the following: "without" in line 6, all of line 7, and the words "or oversize permit" in line 8.

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 13, by inserting after the word "defense" the following: "Provided, however, That no such permit shall be issued for any vehicle or combination of vehicles that are not actually engaged in the movement of materials necessary for the prosecution of the war".

They were agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendment offered by Mr. HOLLAND.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 13, by inserting after the word "defense" the following: "Provided, That overweight or oversize permits issued hereunder shall be limited to highways maintained by the Commonwealth, and shall not operate to authorize the use or operation of overweight or oversize vehicles or combinations of vehicles on any street or road maintained in whole or in part by any political subdivision".

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, if the amendments submitted by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Holland, were accepted they would undoubtedly to a large measure defeat what we are endeavoring to do, because it would mean that overweight trucks would not be permitted to operate on anything but state highways.

Many of these trucks of course have to traverse city streets and in many instances possibly township and county roads, and the net result would be that there would only be certain highways upon which these war materials could be transported. It would necessarily mean a delay and perhaps in many instances an impossibility of moving war products, that is materials essential in the war effort.

I, therefore, ask the membership to defeat this particular amendment.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, I would like to support this bill because I realize that in defense we must give up a lot, but at the same time we do not want to confuse and use the word "defense" for a profit motive.

As the bill now reads I must oppose it; I must oppose it from the experience that I have gained in two years as Superintendent of Highways and Sewers in the city of Pittsburgh. The city of Pittsburgh will have to spend millions of dollars of home owners' taxes to permit the trucks to use the streets of Pittsburgh.

I want to point out to you that this does not only apply to streets or the surface of streets but also applies to sewers. In the last six months the city of Pittsburgh had to spend three hundred fifty thousand dollars to rebuild sewers whose collapse was due entirely to the heavy traffic of heavy trucks.

These three hundred fifty thousand dollars will come out of the pockets of every little home owner in the city of Pittsburgh, and if this bill is permitted to pass in its present form it means that the city of Pittsburgh will have to spend many more items of three hundred fifty thousand dollars of real estate taxes to keep their sewers in operation.

Now, there is another problem that I do not think the Trucking Association has taken into consideration. The responsibility for curbs and pavements is the responsibility of the home owner. If a truck,—and it is done every day,—destroys a curb by continuously going over it,—and we in Pittsburgh have narrow streets, that home owner is given a notice by the city of Pittsburgh and is compelled to replace and repair that curb.

Then again, if a truck happens to go over the pavement and causes damage to the pavement, that home owner if an accident occurs immediately after this truck does the harm, is sued for damages if an accident is caused through the fault of the hole in the pavement or damage to the pavement, and the city of Pittsburgh if they have not given sufficient notice to the home owner to repair that pavement, becomes a co-defendant in the suit.

Now, in the city of Pittsburgh,—and when I say the city of Pittsburgh it applies to Philadelphia also, it applies to any other city, the block stone pavements were built with a certain type of base in the older days. This base cannot withstand the present day trucks and if you increase these trucks to fifty thousand pounds, it means that any city must go to the home owner and say to the home owner "Here, we want you to donate for the good of the truck industry in the State of Pennsylvania."

Now, it is unfair to say to the Secretary of Highways that he has the right to give permission for these heavily loaded box car trucks to pass over our street, when the Secretary of Highways and the Motor Vehicle Fund do not give one cent to the city to repair their streets.

My friends, we do not want to go out too far under the word "defense." All of us here are willing to do our part, but we must not confuse defense with the profit motive, and after all, you and I know that the bigger the trucks, the bigger the load, the more profits,—not for the man driving the truck, but for the man who owns the truck. I say to you it is unfair to pass this bill, and if you do pass the other bill that is on the calendar in which you are going to place the cost of civilian defense on the home owner, this session is going down as establishing a record of placing on the backs of every little home owner in the State of Pennsylvania a burden which he or she will be unable to bear.

I ask the Members of the House to go along with me on these amendments because I think they are fair. I have no objection to the roads that are maintained through the Motor Vehicle Fund to permit the use of the large car. None of us have objection, because after all we know that income is coming from the motor vehicle traffic, but I do not think it is fair to expect all the home owners to have three or four or five mills added to their taxes. No city, regardless of its size, and especially in the industrial districts, will be able to go into next year's budget without increasing taxes from three to five mills to maintain roads.

Mr. Speaker, I ask for a roll call.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Holland and Mr. Bentley and were as follows

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments offered by Mr. Auker.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 11, by inserting after the words "Highways" the following: "of the Commonwealth".

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, lines 11 and 12, by striking out the words "of the Commonwealth".

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Blair permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. AUKER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the insertion of the words "of the Commonwealth" is after the words "over the highways" on line 11 on page 2, is that right?

Mr. AUKER. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Is not the affect of this amendment the same as the amendment offered by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Holland?

Mr. AUKER. No, Mr. Speaker, not as I understand it. This merely cures typographical errors.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the error apparently is in lines number eleven and twelve, and where you strike out the words "of the Commonwealth". But by inserting the words "of the Commonwealth" after the words "highways" on line eleven, might not the interpretation there be that that only applies to highways which are maintained by and built by the Commonwealth, as distinguished from municipal roads?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I believe that interpretation could be put on it. I noticed in reading the language of the bill before us, it was the apparent intention of the Members on the other side of the House, and they had the amendments drawn and allowed me the privilege of introducing the amendment.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Monroe permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, has the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman, this bill before him, Senate Bill 60?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. I do, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. And does the gentleman have the amendment before him, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. READINGER IN THE CHAIR

Mr. ACHTERMAN. I do have the amendment, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, it is very simple, if the gentleman will turn to page 2, line 11. The first word is "highways" and after that is to be inserted "of the Commonwealth", so that it would read "upon presentation of an application showing that the movement of such over weight or over size vehicles or combination of vehicles on and over the highways of the Commonwealth as the Secretary may designate."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendment will read "as the Secretary of Highways of the Commonwealth may designate." For the information of the gentleman from Delaware, with the amendment, it will read on line eleven, page two, "as the Secretary of Highways of the Commonwealth may designate is necessary."

Mr. TURNER. No, Mr. Speaker, that is not where it comes in. It comes in after the word "highways" on line eleven. Which "highway" is intended?

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Monroe to yield, and I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Blair permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. AUKER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. May I ask the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, which word "highways" is to be followed by the words "of the Commonwealth"?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, on line eleven, page two of the bill, the first word "highways" is small letters. The second word "highways" is capitalized, that is, it begins with a capital letter. The amendments show the word "Highways" beginning with a capital "H", and I believe that would sufficiently correct the matter.

Mr. TURNER. Well then, Mr. Speaker, the amendment, it seems to me should say "after the word 'Highways' and before the word "may" then there would be no doubt about it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that the point is well taken. The Chair would suggest that an amendment be offered to the amendment.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I think we can clear up two or three things at one time here.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will ask the gentleman to clear up one thing at a time.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, if you will just allow me to point out one thing, the term "the Secretary of Highways" does not seem to me to be the proper designation. He is Secretary of the Department of Highways, and if it is necessary to say "Secretary of Highways of the Commonwealth" then you ought to say "Secretary of the Department of Highways."

The title of the bill designates "the Secretary of the Department of Highways," and the reason I raise the question as to which "highways" this amendment refers to is, if you will refer to the title it says, "upon the highways of the Commonwealth", and if you add "of the Commonwealth" in the bill in the place where this amendment would seem to place it, then it would look as though, following the title it should come after the first "highways", because in designating the Secretary in the title, they designate him properly "Secretary of the Department of Highways", which does not need the words "of the Commonwealth" after it.

Further I would point out,—this may not be exactly in order in the business that is before the House on this amendment,—that the title, it would seem to me, is subject to the same objection I raised on this amendment, because it says, "as are permitted to be operated upon the highways of the Commonwealth".

When we talk about the "highways of the Commonwealth" we talk about what are commonly termed state highways. When we talk about municipalities we talk about streets, roads or highways, so therefore it would appear to me Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman, should pass this bill over and straighten out the amendments.

BILL AND AMENDMENTS LAID ON TABLE

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that Senate Bill No. 60, (House Bill No. 105), Printer's No. 52, together with the amendments be laid on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Bill No. 112, on page 3 of today's calendar, bill on third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 112, as follows:

An Act to amend subsection (a) and to further amend subsection (b) of section nine of the act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168) entitled "An act to protect the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State government and courts providing for the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employes be the exclusive representatives of all the employes authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employes for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a complaint the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any persons aggrieved by such order and establishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board prescribing certain penalties" fixing the rights and standing of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board as a party and as appellant in the courts in matters originating before the board and defining the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court on appeal

Section 1 Subsection (a) of section nine of the act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168) entitled "An act to protect the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State government and courts providing for the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employes be the exclusive representatives of all the employes authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employes for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a complaint the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order and establishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board prescribing certain penalties" and subsection (b) thereof as amended by the act approved the ninth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 293) are hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 9 Judicial Review (a) The board shall have power to petition the court of common pleas of any county wherein the unfair labor practice in question occurred or wherein any person charged with the commission of any unfair labor practice resides or transacts business for the enforcement of such order and for appropriate temporary relief or restraining order and shall certify and file in the court a transcript of the entire record in the proceeding including the pleadings and testimony upon which such order was entered and the findings and order of the board Upon such filing the court shall cause notice thereof to be served upon such person and thereupon shall have jurisdicton of the proceeding and of the question determined thereon and shall have power to grant such temporary relief or restraining order as it deems just and proper and to make and enter upon the pleadings testimony and proceedings set forth in such transcript a decre enforcing modifying the enforcing as so modified or setting aside in whole or in part the order of the board The parties before the court shall be the board and the person charged with the commission of any unfair labor practice No objection that has not been urged before the board its members or agent shall be considered by the court unless the failure or neglect to urge such objection shall be excused because of extraordinary circumstances The findings of the board as to the facts if supported by evidence shall be conclusive If [either] any party shall apply to the court for leave to adduce additional evidence and shall show to the satisfaction of the court that such additional evidence is material and that there were reasonable grounds for the failure to adduce such evidence at the hearing before the board its members or agent the court may order such additional evidence to be taken before the board its members or agent and to be made a part of the transcript The board may modify its findings as to the facts or make new findings by reason of additional evidence so taken and filed and it shall file such modified or new findings which if supported by evidence shall be conclusive and shall file its recommendations if any for the modification or setting aside of its original order The jurisdiction of the court of common pleas shall be exclusive and its judgment and decree shall be final except that the same shall be subject to review by the Supreme Court on appeal by [either party] the board or the person charged with the commission of any unfair labor practice irrespective of the nature of the decree or judgment or the amount involved Such appeal shall be taken and prosecuted in the same manner and form and with the same effect as is provided in other cases of appeal to the Supreme Court and shall not be restricted to questions of jurisdiction and those relating to the regularity of the proceedings and the record so certified shall contain all that was before the court of common pleas

(b) Any person aggrieved by a final order of the board granting or denying in whole or in part the relief sought may obtain a review of such order in the court of common pleas of any county where the unfair labor practice in question was alleged to have been engaged in or wherein such person resides or transacts business by filing in such court a written petition praying that the order of the board be modified or set aside A copy of such petition shall be forthwith served upon the board and the board shall file in the court a transcript of the entire record in the proceeding certified by the board including the pleadings and testimony and order of the board Upon such filing the court shall proceed in the same manner as in the case of an application by the board under subsection (a) and shall have the same exclusive jurisdiction to grant to the board such temporary relief or restraining order as it deems just and proper and in like manner to make and enter a decree enforcing modifying and enforcing as so modified or setting aside in whole or in part the order of the board and the findings of the board as to the facts if supported by substantial and legally credible evidence shall in like manner be conclusive The parties before the court shall be any person aggrieved by a final order of the board as aforesaid and the board In all cases of review to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania by any person aggrieved or by the board under this act the appellant may print a transcript containing an abridgement of the record in narrative form as far as necessary to present the questions for decisions Such printed transcript shall refer to the page of the original transcript and record certified by the board which original transcript shall be filed with the Supreme Court

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, with the permission of the House I would like to make a brief statement concerning the importance of this bill.

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, must the constitutional question as to whether the bill comes within the call of the Governor be raised before agreement to the bill on third reading, or may it be raised afterwards?

The SPEAKER. The bill should not be agreed to on third reading until the question of constitutionality has been decided. The bill has not yet been agreed to on third reading.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of interrogating the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BROWN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown, state to us the reason why he believes this bill to be within the call?

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, in the brief statement that I wanted to put on record I have prepared a paragraph or two on the question as to whether or not the bill is within the call. If the gentleman from Delaware wishes me to answer his question directly, I will do so, but if he will allow me to make this brief statement it will be apparent that we have had that question in mind.

However, Mr. Speaker, I have also incorporated in my statement on the question of whether this bill comes within the call of the Governor several paragraphs as to the importance of this bill, and I am wondering whether the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, will allow me to make the statement concerning the bill in its entirety. It is very short.

Mr. TURNER. I will agree to do so, Mr. Speaker, providing I do not lose my opportunity to raise the constitutional question, if I desire.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I will assure the gentleman that I shall not object to the question of the constitutionality being raised, if he is not satisfied with my statement.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will proceed.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on the 23d day of March, 1942, in the case of Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, Appellant, vs. Heinel Motors Inc., unanimously held that the Board is not a party to proceedings instituted under the Act and therefore had no right to appeal. House Bill No. 112 has been introduced in order to give the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

The first question that presents itself is whether or not the subject matter of House Bill No. 112 is proper legislation for this Special Session or does it violate Article 3, Section 25 of our State Constitution, relative to legislation that properly may come before a Special Session of Legislature.

Apart of the Supplemental Proclamation of the Governor convening this Special Session of Legislature reads as follows: "Legislation authorizing the suspension or modification of existing laws that interfere with the prosecution of any war in which this Nation is, or may become, engaged."

It is our contention that the subject matter of House Bill No. 112 is within the call for the following reasons: 1st. We are dealing with existing law, namely the Act of June 1, 1937 (P. L. 1168). 2nd. It cannot be doubted that labor, and its relationship to the war has a definite bearing upon the prosecution of the war and that the exclusive jurisdiction over labor disputes given to the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board if not properly exercised could interfere with the prosecution of the war. 3rd. The Legislature has the right to establish its own procedure for carrying out proposed legislation coming within the Governor's call. (See Commonwealth ex rel Schnader vs. Liveright et al, 308, Pennsylvania 35: In Re Pittsburgh Petition 217 Pennsylvania 227; Anneberg vs. Roberts 333 Pennsylvania 203.

Believing, therefore, that the subject matter of House Bill No. 112 is within the Governor's call, the next question that presents itself is whether or not House Bill No. 112 is necessary and proper. The Legislature of Pennsylvania in enacting the law setting up the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferred upon it a dual function (a) to sit in judgment as a quasi-judicial board and (b) to exercise exclusive authority as a public administrative agency for the enforcement of the provisions of the act and to institute its own proceedings necessary and appropriate to enforce its orders. This power confers upon the Board a public duty as distinguished from a private undertaking. Under Section 8, Sub-section (a) of the Act. The Board is empowered to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practices as defined under the Act. This power is exclusive and cannot be utilized by any other means or body under Section 8, Sub-section (b). The Board is given exclusive jurisdiction to prevent unfair labor practices. The Board conducts hearings and on its own complaint can make orders granting appropriate relief. Non-compliance with the Board's order may as the Board sees fit be the cause for appeal by the Board to the Court of Common Pleas for the enforcement of its order. See Section 9, Paragraph (a).

It is our contention that if the decision in the Heinel case is allowed to stand the purpose of the Act giving the Board exclusive power to prevent unfair labor practices will be completely nullified and the Board cannot carry out the mandate declaring the admittedly public policy of the act, to wit: "to encourage the practice and procedure of collective bargaining and to protect the exercise by workers of full freedom of association, self-organization, and designation of representation of their own choosing."

It is not our intention to pass upon whether or not the Court was correct in reaching its decision in the Heinel case neither is it our intention to attempt in any manner to criticize our distinguished justices of the Supreme Court. This is a matter solely for the legislature and we quote from the learned decision of the Chief Justice in the instance case "Had the legislature desired to grant the right of appeal to the Board, it could readily have done so. The Language used in our opinion confers no such right."

It, therefore, follows that what the legislature could readily do in 1937, it can readily do today. And we state again that the subject matter of House Bill No. 112 is of such vital importance that the legislature should act favorably in this connection at this Special Session.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

SENATE MESSAGES

AMENDED RESOLUTION CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the amendments to the resolution from the Senate as follows:

In the Senate, March 31, 1942.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur) That this Special Session of the General Assembly adjourn sine die on [Tuesday, April 7, 1942, at 12:00 o'clock noon] Friday, April 10, 1942, at 4:00 p. m.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON HOUSE BILL No. 8

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has insisted upon its amendments, non-concurred in by the House of Representatives, to House Bill No. 8, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two of and to add Sections four and five to the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" by more fully defining amounts payable limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment.

And has appointed Messrs. Tallman, Homsher and Reed, a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representaties (already appointed) on the subject of the differences existing between the two houses in relation to said bill.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON HOUSE BILL No. 68

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has insisted upon its amendments, nonconcurred in by the House of Representatives, to House Bill No. 68, entitled:

An Act to amend section two of the act approved the tenth day of July one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 645) entitled "An act imposing certain requirements on certain hospitals receiving State aid authorizing the withholding of appropriations and imposing duties on the Department of Welfare" by providing that during the present war and six months thereafter funds shall not be withheld from hospitals for violation of such act if the Secretary of Welfare determines that the constant attendance of a licensed physician or resident interne cannot be secured by such hospitals because of the war emergency.

And has appointed Mesrs. Bartlett, Becker and Cox a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (already appointed) on the subject of the differences existing between the two houses in relation to said bill.

BILL SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bill numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor, and the same being correct, the title was publicly read as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 31.

An Act making available the services of recipients of general assistance under certain conditions by permitting them to earn a limited amount of money in work essential to the prosecution of the existing war in which the United States of America is engaged without forfeiting their right to assistance or any part thereof.

Whereupon,

The SPEAKER, in the presence of the House, signed the same.

RESOLUTIONS

HOME TEACHING PROJECT FOR BLIND

Mr. FINNERTY offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 8, 1942.

Among the scourges inflicted upon an individual, the most dismaying and discouraging is blindness. Its depressing effect can, however, be almost wholly removed by special education of the afflicted, and making him competent to resume a position in the field of useful endeavor and resultant satisfaction and self respect.

The attainment of such an end is worthy of the expenditure of public funds even under the most extreme conditions of lack of funds or of the need of funds for emergency purposes.

In keeping with this principle, the Works Project Administration has maintained a home teaching project, which is the only educational opportunity for the adult blind in Pennsylvania, certainly the only one those dependent on pensions can afford.

But it is proposed to discontinue this project on April 30th, as a non-essential government expenditure in war time, thereby leaving hundreds of blind men and women without means of continuing courses that have served to change the whole aspect of their lives; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Pennsylvania House of Representatives hereby protests against any action by the Works Projects Administration looking towards the discontinuance or limitation of its home teaching project for the blind, and respectfully petitions the Works Projects Administration to continue this great humanitarian and practical service to these unfortunates, without curtailment or limitation, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk to Howard Hutton, Director of the Works Projects Administration, at Washington, and to Richard Irvin, its State Administrator for this Commonwealth.

PENNSYLVANIA'S INDUSTRIAL RESOURCES

Mr. GRYSKEWICZ offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 8, 1942.

Whereas, On April 3rd, the Federal Anthracite Commission informed President Roosevelt that the government, in prosecuting the war, had failed to utilize sufficiently the industrial resources of the Pennsylvania hard coal area; and

Whereas, It recommended that the war agencies of the Federal Government give careful consideration to the suitability of this area for the location of the necessary war plants, particularly those for the production of aluminum, zinc, synthetic ammonia, explosives, castings, forgings, armor plate, machine parts, aircraft parts, tank parts and ammunition; and

Whereas, Such steps should be immediately taken in order to rehabilitate this area, as well as to speed up our war effort; be it therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives requests the President of the United States to take immediate action to effectuate all the recommendations possible which are made in the said Federal Anthracite Commission's report; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House forward a copy of this resolution to the President of the United States, so that this matter may receive his immediate consideration.

UNNATURALIZED RESIDENTS OF THE U. S. OF AMERICA

Messrs. MELCHIORRE and D'ORTONA offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 8, 1942.

Whereas, Since our country was so treacherously attacked by blood-thirsty Japan, and its Axis partners declared war upon us, the immigrants from those countries who have not as yet become naturalized are often called "enemy aliens"; and

Whereas, This term with which such persons are branded is frequently both unfair and unfortunate, for, although among the unnaturalized residents in this country there may be dangerous enemies, saboteurs are found even among those whose ancestors came here several generations ago; and

Whereas, Among the Italian aliens in America, there are undoubtedly few enemies of this country, for the thousands of the first generation who have remained unnaturalized did so, not because of hatred for this country, but simply because of their inadequate knowledge of the American language, and their fear of an humiliating failure in appearing before the naturalization examiners for the test; and

Whereas, Large numbers of these Italian aliens were unable to acquaint themselves with the American language, because of their large families and lack of money which deprived them of the time and opportunity of going to school, which reason alone has prevented large numbers of these people from becoming citizens; and

Whereas, Thousands of these unnaturalized men and women have their sons in the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force of the United States, and some of their boys have already sealed with their blood their loyalty to the United States, laying down their lives on the altar of this country; and

Whereas, It would be extremely presumptious to call the unnaturalized parents of such boys enemy aliens; and

Whereas, A new term is now being considered for designating such people, which is "aliens of our enemy nations"; now therefore be it

Resolved, That an even better and more appropriate designation should be given to such persons, namely "unnaturalized residents of the United States of America," which would take away the awful stigma of enemy; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House of Representatives forward a copy of this resolution to the President of the United States of America and to the Attorney General.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 25

Mr. HERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 25, Printer's No. 65.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 11, 1942.

Whereas, The Brotherhood of Railroad Shop Crafts of America, having thousands of members in this Commonwealth, adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, On Sunday, December 7, 1941 there was perpetrated one of the most dastardly crimes ever recorded in history when during the period of supposed friendly and amiable negotiations in Washington, D. C., and even while those negotiations were in progress, the Japanese Government, sinking to the lowest depths among respecting nations of the world, stealthily and without warning, breaking all rules of honor and decency, did attack this Nation and by foul and despicable methods has already spilled American blood;

"And Whereas, Since that time the Japanese have been openly joined in their continued nefarious efforts by the gangster governments of Germany, Italy, and other aggressor nations;

"And Whereas, The Brotherhood of Railroad Shop Crafts of America recognizes that upon the outcome of this present death struggle in which the whole world is now engaged, depends the right of the American people to live as free human beings and in which right labor has a gigantic stake;

"And Whereas, The first thought of every American is now of his Country, the preservation and the maintenance of its ideals, exemplified in its Constitution and the first ten Amendments thereto, recognized as the Bill of Rights;

"And Whereas, The men of this Brotherhood realize that this catastrophe raises its ugly head and strikes directly at our families, our homes, our churches, our schools, our institutions, and that in their defense full offensive war must be waged, and that in waging that war many of our members taking up arms in defense of America will pay the supreme sacrifice, others will return broken in spirit and in body, and that still others who must remain at home will be asked to share, to give and to assume responsibilities growing out of the tragic effects of war;

"Now, Therefore, be it hereby Resolved, That the Brotherhood of Railroad Shop Crafts of America and every member thereof, in all solemnity and with calmness born of deep conviction in the might of America, and in its indestructible determination to fight through to absolute victory, doth hereby offer to the President of the United States, and to the Nation and the people thereof, the full and complete use of all of their combined resources, their facilities, their manpower, and their all so that the inevitable triumph may be attained; that this pledge is hereby given cheerfully without reservation and with full faith and confidence that victory must come to America and the civilized peoples of the world;" and

Whereas, Said resolution represents an ideal pledge of assistance, unity and cooperation that is so vital in our all-out efforts toward victory, and for that reason has been adopted by Congress and spread upon the Congressional Record; therefore be it

Resolved, That this House of Representatives commend the Brotherhood of Railroad Shop Crafts for the loyal and unselfish offer represented by its adoption of the above resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transcribed and transmitted to the Brotherhood of Railroad Shop Crafts.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I only wish to take a minute of the time of the House to speak in favor of this resolution. The Brotherhood of Railroad Shop Crafts of America makes up a large part of my district and I would feel remiss if I did not get up on my feet on an occasion like this and favor the resolution and ask the House Members to vote for it.

The Railroad Shop Crafts of America at the time we got into this war on December seventh were in negotiation for a wage increase. They were asking for more than they got, but being a loyal bunch of Americans, as they were, they immediately gave in on many of their demands, to which I might say, I believe they were entitled in a large measure inasmuch as they only got about eight or ten percent increase in wages when the cost of living had already gone up twenty to twenty-five percent. I might add that I believe this bunch of loyal Americans has shown the way to all other labor unions in this country, inasmuch as they have from the beginning been working forty-eight hours a week without any premium or extra pay, time and a half for overtime and double pay for holidays and Sundays. They have been working that way continuously ever since we got into the war.

I noticed in today's Press that the C.I.O. union in Detroit passed a resolution to the effect that they are willing now to give up their premium for overtime work. I say to you, Mr. Speaker, that the Brotherhood of Railroad Shop Crafts of America is showing the way to all other labor unions in the country. I wish to take this opportunity publicly to express my appreciation and to compliment them for their loyalty, for their stand and for the manner in which they have acted and conducted themselves as a brotherhood and as individual members since we entered the war.

Recently one of the national trustees of this Craft stated in a public hearing here in Harrisburg that they would be very, very willing to have no increase in wages providing a ceiling would be put on the prices for all commodities. That is a very fine stand and I think it would be well for all other labor unions to follow that stand and give up their premiums and bonuses for overtime work, time and a half for overtime work and double time for work on holidays and Sundays. I thank you.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 3

Mr. MELCHIORRE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 3, Printer's No. 67.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 18, 1942.

Whereas, Our Eastern coast is now menaced by enemy submarines who are taking a toll of our shipping in the Atlantic; and

Whereas, The bombing squadrons of the Army and Navy are now engaged in exacting payment from these raiders for their depradations; and

Whereas, An Army flier, Corporal John J. Duffy, of 3908 N. Darien Street, Philadelphia, was recently cited by the United States Army for distinguished service in bombing and probably sinking an enemy submarine during most difficult weather conditions; and

Whereas, The House of Representatives recognizes and honors the heroism and distinguished service of a fellow Pennsylvanian; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives pauses in its deliberations to pay tribute to Corporal John J. Duffy; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to his family conveying the respect and admiration of the House of Representatives for this distinguished citizen of our Commonwealth.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

SENATE MESSAGES

AMENDED SENATE BILL NONCONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has nonconcurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 19.

An Act to protect property and prevent sabotage by prohibiting for a limited period of time certain intentional injuries to and interferences with real and personal property prohibiting certain intentional defects in workmanship limiting the privileges of certain witnesses and providing penalties

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist upon its amendments nonconcurred in by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

AMENDED SENATE BILL NONCONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has nonconcurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 46.

An Act to suspend for a limited time the operation of laws regulating or relating to the movement loading lightering docking and anchorage of vessels carrying or having on board certain explosives insofar as the same relate to the the handling or stowing of small arms ammunition or ammunition which contains the projectile and the explosive in one container or shell to from or in such vessels docking or anchoring in the Delaware River and its navigable tributaries

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist upon its amendments nonconcurred in by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 42

Mr. LONGO. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 42, Printer's No. 66.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 31, 1942.

Whereas The residents of the County of Northampton on March 26, 1942 experienced a horrible tragedy resulting from a dynamite explosion in Sandts Eddy in that county causing the death of 31 persons and

Whereas, The explosion was heard and its force felt for a distance of approximately 72 miles in which radius a schoolhouse was wrecked and thousands of windows broken and

Whereas The operation of quarries is a major industry in the County of Northampton and the continued use of explosives and dynamite is apparently important to the continued operation of said industries and

Whereas This House in noting with sorrow the tragic death of these men and the untold suffering occasioned to their families cannot and will not permit this disastrous incident to pass without exerting every effort to prevent and forestall a recurrance thereof with its horrible consequence of loss of life destruction of property and constant threat to the safety and tranquility of persons employed in this industry and

Whereas For the future protection of these men and their families and for the well being and protection of all the residents of the County of Northampton and of the Commonwealth legislation may be necessary to prevent other incidents of a similar nature therefore be it

Resolved That the Speaker of this House appoint a committee of nine members whose duty it shall be to make a careful and thorough study of the laws of the Commonwealth and all regulations thereunder relating to the transportation storage handling and use of all types of explosives and be it further

Resolved That said committee shall have power to hold public hearings in order to become acquainted with the practices and usages in the matter of explosives in its investigation of this and other explosions and after due consideration to make its report together with recommendations to this House the Secretary of Labor and Industry and to the Chief of the Division of Mines and Quarries

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I am in sympathy with the purpose of the resolution but the difficulty is that this resolution can have no power or effect because under the decision of the Supreme Court no committee or commission appointed by this legislative body to investigate would have any power after the adjournment of this special session. The subject matter is not within the call and I doubt, therefore, that there would be any effect to this resolution except to appoint a committee that would have no power and would have no money.

I suggested the other day and I had hoped the suggestion would have the approval of the gentlemen from Northampton, and that was that a resolution be presented asking the Joint State Government Commission to make the study. You then would have an organization that has the power, you would have an organization or commission that has funds and you would have an opportunity to get the job done. I do not want to oppose the resolution, but I do not like to see my friends from Northampton on a matter in which they are deeply interested pass a useless resolution on a subject of such importance.

Therefore, I would suggest to the gentlemen that they withdraw this resolution and prepare the resolution I suggested and introduce it tomorrow when it can be adopted.

RESOLUTION POSTPONED

Mr. LONGO. Mr. Speaker, I move that the resolution be placed on the postponed calendar.

The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 46

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 46, Printer's No. 68.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 6, 1942.

Whereas The probability of serious damage to gas and water facilities in the City of Philadelphia because of sabotage and air raids creates a menace to the health morals and welfare of the residents thereof and

Whereas It is a matter of common knowledge that many of the gas and water mains and connections in said city are many years old and are even presently in defective and dangerous condition and

Whereas Failure to properly inspect and repair said mains and connections have resulted in main leaks breaks and explosions causing death to innocent residents and serious property damage and

Whereas Notwithstanding such occurrences no systematic effort has been made by the city officials or the lessees of its public works to investigate complaints immediately or to properly repair or replace such defects and

Whereas Constant and systematic inspection replacement and repair of said facilities will minimize the danger and the damage that may be caused particularly by reason of sabotage or as a result of air raids therefore be it

Resolved That by this resolution the House of Representatives in its considered judgment declares it to be for the public good and the general welfare of the residents of the City of Philadelphia to request the Department of Public Works of said city and the lessees of any of its public utilities to make immediate inspections repairs or replacements as may be required and to continue such work systematically to the end that any damage thereto will minimize the resulting danger to the residents of said city and be it further

Resolved That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Acting Mayor of the City of Philadelphia and to the Director of Public Works of said city

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from the postponed calendar by Mr. MELCHIORRE.

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 29, as follows:

An Act relating to air raid precautions and the prevention of sabotage in cities of the first class; creating a Board of Inspection in the Department of Public Works in such cities; imposing powers and duties on such boards and any lessee of water and gas mains owned by such cities, and repealing inconsistent legislation.

BILL DROPPED FROM CALENDAR

Mr. MELCHIORRE. Mr. Speaker, due to the fact that some of the Members of the House feel that House Bill No. 29, Printer's No. 10, is not within the Governor's call and is unconstitutional, and due to the fact that we have passed Resolution No. 46, Printer's No. 68, which satisfies our constitutional gentlemen of the House, I move that House Bill No. 29, be dropped from the calendar.

The motion was agreed to.

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 78.

An Act to amend section six of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand eight hundred ninety-five (P. L. 212), entitled "An act to establish an intermediate court of appeal; regulating its constitution, officers, jurisdiction, powers, practice, and its relation to the Supreme Court and other courts providing for the reports of its decisions the compensation of the judges and other officers and the practice and costs on appeals from its judgments," by making further provision as to the preparation, custody and disposition of plates used in the printing of Superior Court Reports.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend bill, page 4, by adding after the word "Commonwealth" in line 19, the following new section: "Section 2 This act shall not be deemed or construed to amend or repeal the act or any section of the act of May 6 1909 (Pamphlet Laws 433) entitled 'An act fixing the salary of the reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and of his assistant' ".

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

BILLS ON FIRST READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 121, (Senate Bill No. 84), entitled:

An Act to conserve metal by suspending the provisions of article five of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905) entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety regulating the use of highways and the operation of vehicles tractors street cars trackless trolley omnibuses bicycles pedestrians and the riding of animals upon the highways of the Commonwealth providing for the titling including liens encumbrances and legal claims registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof upon payment of prescribed fees prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue the Department of Highways peace officers mayors burgesses magistrates aldermen justices of the peace the courts and the clerks thereof owners of vehicles and garage keepers providing that records are admissible as evidence imposing upon owners counties cities boroughs incorporated towns townships within the Commonwealth liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles imposing penalties imposing certain costs upon counties providing for the disposition of fines forfeitures fees and miscellaneous receipts making an appropriation and providing for refunds" and its amendments in so far as they require the issuance and use of more than one registration plate.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 122, (Senate Bill No. 87), entitled:

An Act creating a Joint Legislative Committee for the purpose of investigating and studying plans methods and systems for liberalization of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide benefits for partial unemployment providing for its appointment authorizing the employment of necessary assistance and making an appropriation.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HEWITT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, a few weeks ago Mr. Stambaugh introduced a bill to this House that would permit the State Department of Highways to authorize the use of some other material on automobiles than rubber, perhaps wooden wheels.

At the time he introduced his bill several Members of the House sort of grinned, thinking it was something that amounted to very little. The lobbyists in the House for the large tire manufacturers, the Goodrich people, the Firestone people and the McCreery Tire and Rubber Company of Indiana, Pennsylvania, paid no attention to the bill, thinking there was no real competition in sight.

I have an article here which I picked up the other day and which I desire to read to the members of the House for their information. This is taken from the Hancock Herald. This paper has not as large a circulation as the Williamsport Grit, but it is a very reliable paper.

The article is as follows:

"Claude Habberstad of Sheep Hill, near Boonton, N. J., demonstrated a set of wooden automobile tires on Route 6 last week. He got the speed up to seventy-five miles an hour on the smooth concrete highway. Vibration increased but not to an annoying degree.

"After the smooth road run Mr. Habberstad, who is a building contractor, tried the tires on a side lane surfaced with small jagged rock. Here he kept the speed down to twenty miles on hour. A small segment of one of the tires chipped off.

"Mr. Habberstad used only front tires for the demonstration. He thinks that his wooden front sets should give a car owner from 12,000 to 15,000 miles on good roads if the speed is held down to thirty or thirty-five miles an hour.

"In the test Mr. Habberstad used a light coupe. The front tires, he thinks, would be efficient on all light cars, trucks and suburban wagons. He doubts whether they would serve as well on rear car wheels because traction wear is harder there.

"Mr. Habberstad has applied for a patent for his wooden tires. They come in four sections to each wheel, each section bolted to the rim. The tires are five-ply, the layers running the long way, not one atop the next, as with rubber."

Mr. Speaker, my idea in informing the Members of this matter is that many of you Members may have campaigns on your hands for reelection, and some of you are short of tires. I would specially recommend to our very likeable Speaker, that he obtain one more front tire, so he can get out of Philadelphia and come up into the Bible Belt and campaign for the office of Lieutenant Governor of this State.

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman from Indiana, the Speaker has just invented a pneumatic cement tire. I am not personally interested, but if any Member want to pass a bill so that the tire may be used, it is O. K. with me.

CONGRATULATORY RESOLUTION

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, Mr. O'Mullen and I desire to offer the following resolution and ask that the Speaker make appropriate remarks in connection therewith.

The SPEAKER. The Speaker is not talking until he sees the resolution.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 8, 1942.

Whereas, It has just been disclosed that a curious alliance exists between three members of the House of Representatives, wherein no cash on the barrel head is involved; and

Whereas, As a result of said alliance one member of the House again became a proud parent and the remaining two members proud god-fathers; and

Whereas, The Honorable Edward and Mrs. Duffy were twice blessed in December, 1941, by the birth of twin girls, Rita Frances Duffy and Ruth Florence Duffy; and

Whereas, The Honorable Francis X. McClanaghan and the Honorable Joseph J. Hersch are god-fathers respectively of the aforesaid twins; and

Whereas, R. F. D. (1) and R. F. D. (2) as well as the Honorable Edward and Mrs. Duffy are now all getting along splendidly; and

Whereas, Both the honorable god-fathers are also holding up admirably under the strain of their new responsibility; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives belatedly congratulates the Honorable Edward Duffy and his wife upon the birth of their twins, and wishes them all good luck and prosperity and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded by the Chief Clerk of this House to the proud parents, conveying thereby the felicitations of the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair wishes to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Duffy. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DUFFY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman tell the House when the twins were born?

Mr. DUFFY. During the regular session, and let that be a warning to you.

The SPEAKER. Was the gentleman working out of the state during the week-ends of the regular session?

Mr. DUFFY. Mr. Speaker, I refuse to answer on the advice of my counsel.

SENATE MESSAGE

RESOLUTION FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate April 8, 1942.

Whereas, the United States is now engaged in what would appear to be a long and devastating world war; and

Whereas, to save the Republic is the solemn desire and sincere purpose of every true American; and

Whereas, The American people are being admonished daily to sacrifice and constantly urged by those in authority to return to the practice of strict economy; and

Whereas, economy in government is vitally essential to its preservation and should at all times be practiced and particularly during periods of national stress and war; and

Whereas, waste, inefficiency, indolence, and disintegration are in existence, in various forms and degrees, in almost every branch and department of our government; and

Whereas, to locate and eliminate these evils is the patriotic duty of every loyal citizen, especially those paid servants of the people employed as law makers in these legislative halls; Therefore, To that end, Be it

Resolved, that, if the House of Representatives concurs, a Committee, consisting of three Senators, appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, and three Members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, be created, to investigate and explore, impartially and fearlessly, all departments, boards, and agencies of the Commonwealth, including, if advisable, Counties, Cities, Boroughs, Townships and School Districts, for the purpose of ascertaining whether waste, inefficiency, indolence or disintegration are present, and if so, to study ways and means of eradicating and/or correcting the same, and to make report to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth at its regular meeting in January, 1943, with its recommendations.

Such Committee shall have the power to compel the appearance of witnesses and the production of books, papers and records, and to issue proper subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, records, and any and all other writings deemed necessary for the fulfillment of the duties prescribed by this resolution.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

RESOLUTION

PRINTING HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 50

Mr. MELCHIORRE offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 8, 1942.

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives be directed to have printed five thousand copies of Resolution No. 50 adopted by the House on Wednesday, April 8, 1942, so that copies of the aforesaid resolution may be available for the use of the members of the House.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Extraordinary Session of 1942.

Vol. 26. HARRISBURG, PA., THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1942. No. 26.

SENATE

THURSDAY, April 9, 1942

The Senate met at 2:00 o'clock, p. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, offered the following prayer:

Thou God of nations under whose protecting aegis we as a nation have lived and prospered these many years, now in the day of our trial, as did our fathers in their testing times, may we turn and put our trust in Thee. "If God be for us who can be against us?"

Long ago men were told in Thy Word, that "Not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit" victory would come. It is that Spirit in the souls of men that will overcome and destroy the forces of darkness now seeking the destruction of the things we count most precious in our civilization and religion. "Take not Thy Holy Spirit from us."

We do not believe that men and machines alone can win this war, but we do believe that men and machines, with God, can. Teach us to prove our faith by our works. Our prayers will be sacrilegious if we do not.

To our President and Governor give the Spirit of wisdom; to all in our armies the Spirit of courage and power; to each and all of us the Spirit of sacrifice, and to God the glory. Amen!

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. CRIDER and Mr. MILLER, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

Whereupon,

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the presence of the Senate signed the same.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE OPERATION OF SHAMOKIN STATE HOSPITAL

Mr. DEITRICK. Mr. President, the Senate Committee to investigate the operation of the Shamokin State Hospital at Shamokin, Pennsylvania, was created by Resolution No. 36, passed March 10, 1941.

Pursuant to this resolution, the Honorable Charles H. Ealy, President Pro Tempore, appointed as members of that committee:

George A. Deitrick, Northumberland County
Leroy E. Chapman, Warren County
J. Albert Reed, Washington County

The committee organized on the same date and elected Dr. George A. Deitrick, as chairman.

We have the honor to submit herewith the following report, pursuant to instructions contained in Senate Resolution, upon observations and investigations made, and from testimony taken.

I will not go into the report, because anybody that might be interested will have an opportunity to read, either in the Journal or from some other source, the things that are of interest to them.

It is not my nature to apologize for actions and attitudes in advance, and I wish it understood that in the present instance I am neither apologizing nor attempting to tone down my remarks on what I conscientiously believe to be a situation vitally affecting not only my home district, but the welfare of all state hospitals.

As Chairman of a committee named from this body last year, to investigate conditions at the Shamokin State Hospital, after a newspaper expose, which revealed a former convict as a member of the Board of Trustees of the institution, and numerous instances of favoritism, political chicanery and other instances of management detrimental to the public interest, I duly prepared a report upon the result of the committee's interrogation of officials and employes, together with other investigations.

I want to take this opportunity to speak as the son of a hard coal miner; as a citizen of the region served by the Shamokin State Hospital; as a physician directly interested in the physical welfare of this particular community; as the State Senator, the logical and elected representative of the people who are directly benefitted by this most necessary hospital. We want our hospital and for us to keep it we feel this the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania should get the most value for every dollar expended. The State is helping us and we want to help the State. We want to keep the Shamokin Hospital safe for patients whether they have money or whether they have none. We want the poor man and the poor woman to get the best nursing, the best medical and the best surgical attention it is possible for them to get. We want the man and the woman who is able to pay to get the best they can for their money. We want them to be satisfied, but we must not forget that the poor man has no choice, so, should the emergency arise, he can go to this hospital with a feeling that he is going to get real "Honest to God" medical and surgical attention. If the man with money does not like one hospital, one surgeon or one medical man, he can go to another. He does not have to go to the Shamokin Hospital or any other Hospital, he can pick out the surgeon or hospital he chooses. It should not be necessary for anyone to be beguiled or tempted by politicians, whether they be Republicans or Democrats, by offers of charity, by the cancellation of hospital bills, either in part or their entirety.

Let the poor man go to the hospital knowing it is not going to cost him one penny, and let him come away with a feeling that our beloved Commonwealth has seen fit to take care of him, or his wife or his children; that he is indebted to our State Government and not to his ward committeeman or to his county chairman, whether he be Democrat or Republican. Let the man feel that, in his adversity, his Government and not a political henchman has been and is his friend.

As a Senator designated as an Independent, I fear that my conclusions and findings are either classed as not worth-while or as those from one who is prejudiced. In my own opinion the findings are worth-while, and I trust that each one of you and as many others who are interested will read and digest the contents of the report. As far as the prejudice is concerned, I can truthfuly say I bear none, and as evidence thereof I assure you that this report was either dictated or written practically in its entirety by one of the other members of the appointed investigating committee.

That report, which is as complete and as conclusive as it could be made, notwithstanding the reluctance in some quarters to give the committee full and accurate information, has been held in obeyance with the profound feeling that perhaps something would be done about the Shamokin situation and the situation confronting other state hospitals. We have waited patiently for the anticipated developments and now as the Special Session draws towards its conclusion, we are convinced that nothing has been done and will not be done, under the circumstances, to right these conditions.

I want it clearly understood, however, in my opinion, this report is submitted only in the best interest of my district and for the best interests of the other districts served by state hospitals. Had there been an inclination on the part of the committee to be vindictive in the matter, it would have been a simple matter to have made these disclosures months ago. But, I repeat, we understood remedial steps were to be taken, and these have definitely not materialized, nor is there even the slightest assurance that they will materialize.

With only those thoughts and motives in mind, I hereby submit the report of the committee.

Mr. President, I regret that one of the members of the Committee saw fit not to sign the report, but it is signed by the other two members of the originally appointed Committee.

With only those thoughts and motives in mind, Mr. President, I hereby submit the following report.

The PRESIDENT. If there is no objection, the report will be spread upon the Journal.

The report is as follows:

To the Honorable Members of the Senate of Pennsylvania:

The Senate Committee to investigate the operation of the Shamokin State Hospital at Shamokin, Pennsylvania, was created by Resolution No. 36, passed March 10, 1941, and which reads as follows.

SENATE RESOLUTION

By Mr. Deitrick. Legislative Journal page 612.

COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE OPERATION OF SHAMOKIN STATE HOSPITAL

In the Senate, March 10, 1941.

Whereas, The appointment of Charles Petrovich of Kulpmont by the Governor as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Shamokin State Hospital has resulted in State-wide criticism; and

Whereas, The public disclosure of the record of this appointee has aroused public indignation and reflected upon the Hospital and its management; and

Whereas, This Senate should have definite knowledge of the personnel and management of institutions supported by the State; therefore be it

Resolved, That a committee composed of three members of the Senate shall be appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate to investigate the present personnel of the Shamokin State Hospital, the management and conduct of the business of the said Hospital, and its financial transactions, and report to the Senate at the earliest possible time."

Pursuant to this Resolution, Honorable Charles H. Ealy, President Pro Tempore, appointed as members of the Committee, the following:

George A. Deitrick, Northumberland County
Leroy E. Chapman, Warren County
J. Albert Reed, Washington County

The Committee organized on the same date and elected Dr. George A. Deitrick, as Chairman.

We have the honor to submit herewith the following report, pursuant to instructions contained in said Resolution, upon observations and investigations made, and from testimony taken.

The Senate Committee held hearings at the Hospital on the following dates, viz. March 20, 1941, and April 23, 1941. Certain witnesses were heard in hearings at the Capitol in Harrisburg, all of which were conducted at no expense to the Commonwealth.

We desire firstly to point out the laxity in the handling of accounting and accounting methods at the Hospital, the supervision of which is under the Revenue Department, as follows:

In examining the credit reports showing the financial status of patients, numerous credit reports were found not signed by patient or by person responsible for this information. There were also credit reports which contained no information as to the ability of the patient to pay, which were already classified and not signed by the Revenue Agent. Most of the cases examined had been discharged from the Hospital before their records were examined.

On page 2 of the Auditor General's Report for year ending May 31, 1940, the Auditors made comment on this same condition, so evidently nothing has been done to correct this situation. The cases investigated by the Committee were all admissions after May 31, 1940.

At no time has the Recorder of Deeds or the Prothonotary's office been called upon to vertify patient's statements as to liens, etc., against their property.

The case history files of many patients were examined and we found admission sheets marked as patient having been admitted as ward patient, but the nurse's bedside record showed that patient was admitted to private room. The classification of Revenue Agent was "Free" and nothing was charged. When the Revenue Agent and Miss Schlotmann, Acting Superintendent were questioned concerning this condition, they both stated that patients had been put in private rooms owing to crowded condition of wards. In checking In-Patients Records on the date these patients were admitted, instances were found where Hospital was crowded, but in most instances, such was not the case, but in no case examined did we find that a patient was moved from private room back to ward. The rule governing cases being put in rooms owing to crowded condition of wards is that the Revenue Agent, upon finding a ward patient in a private room, shall procure from one of the Hospital Doctors, a card stating the patient was put in the room on his order, due to crowded conditions or to seriousness of the case. None of the present staff of doctors have ever been requested to furnish such card by the Revenue Agent or his clerk. In checking the rates charged patients admitted under the above conditions, it was found that some of them had been charged the ward rate or classified as "Free" patients. Identical cases were charged different rates for the same operation.

The custom at this Hospital in computing the Hospital Days for In-Patients, does not seem correct, because the first ten days of a new-born child is used in the whole total of Hospital Days, when the average cost per day per patient is computed, but is not shown in the free-patient days total, but again is used in the grand total hospital days. Where these baby days can be used to an advantage, they are shown, but where they would be a disadvantage, they are not used. In the eight months under review, there is a difference of 4228 free days.

In the Out-Patient or Dispensary Department, very little effort is made to collect for services rendered.

The Daily Report of In-Patients is not very satisfactory, inasmuch as only the whole total is shown, when to be of any use a breakdown should be made showing number of patients in the different wards and private rooms. This would show whether it was necessary to move free patients to private rooms owing to wards being overcrowded.

The private rooms, not being numbered, the records only show "admitted to private room," but inasmuch as private room rates vary, no check can be made as to whether proper charge has been made for any particular room.

The same condition exists in regard to free service as stated on page 3 of the last Auditor General's Report. At the time of our investigation, Miss Stank stated that free service amounted to 95%.

It is our belief that if an earnest effort was made to collect all charges at this Hospital, this percentage could be reduced to at least 60% of free service.

There has been no write-off of accounts receivable during the present Revenue Agent's term of office. This now amounts to more than $30,000 and is a fictitious asset, as not more than 20% is collectible. This write-off was recommended on page 12 of the last Auditor General's Report.

There are present State employees owing accounts at this Hospital.

As a spot check of outstanding accounts is supposed to be made by the State Auditor, we did not do anything in this respect.

By reason of prior acquaintance by a majority of this Committee with Dr. Grone, the former Chief Surgeon, we have knowledge of his personally performing every ordinary operation which a general hospital would be called upon to perform, including:

Gynecological (Pelvic) Surgery
Gastro-intestinal Surgery
Gall Bladder Surgery
Kidney and Bladder Surgery
Common Brain Surgery

Dr. Simmonds, the present surgeon, performs appendectomy and herniotomy operations.

At the present time the more serious operations are performed by surgeons of the Geisinger and Ashland State Hospitals.

The Dietician, Miss Mabel Buckman, we found to be very efficient but have since learned that she has resigned during the last two weeks.

The former Superintendent, Miss Schabinger was efficient, having had the respect and cooperation of a large part of the community.

The present Acting Superintendent does not appear qualified for the position she is holding and does not carry full-hearted community support. She has not had prior supervisory experience, nor has she taken any post-graduate work in recent years, not even since graduation.

We also find that the present Supervisor of the Operating Room, Miss Elizabeth Kelly is the cause of much dissension, both within and without the hospital.

We further believe this hospital is conducted for political profit and aggrandizement and has been over a period of time, by those in charge under prior and present administrations.

Having interviewed a number of witnesses who are outstanding citizens of the community, we are of the opinion that the above is true.

The Hospital is well equipped as a medical and surgical institution. A member of the American College of Surgeons and American Hospital Association.

It is needed asset to the community, serving a humanitarian need.

In order to obtain more and a fair ratio of community support, we recommend that the present Board of Trustees be not approved, and a new board appointed, consisting of outstanding citizens, who could remedy existing conditions, build up the staff of employees to a higher degree of efficiency and loyalty, thereby affecting a saving to the tax-payers and the Commonwealth.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE DEITRICK,
Chairman,
J. ALBERT REED.

RE-REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. STEVENSON, from the Committee on Appropriations, re-reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 94, (House Bill No. 101), entitled:

An Act to amend the appropriation to the Department of Military Affairs in section two of the act approved the sixteenth day of June one thousand nine hundred and forty-one (Appropriation Act No. 12-A) entitled "An act to provide for the ordinary expenses of the Executive Legislative and Judicial Departments of the Commonwealth interest on the public debt and the support of the public schools for two years beginning June first one thousand nine hundred and forty-one and for the payment of bills incurred and remaining unpaid at the close of the fiscal year ending May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred and forty-one" by providing specifically for the expenses of the State Council of Defense for the maintenance of a nautical school.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON HOUSE BILL No. 8

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I am directed by the Committee of Conference on the part of the Senate to make a report on House Bill No. 8, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600), entitled "Status of Public Officers and Employes in Military Service in Time of War or Contemplated War Act," by more fully defining amounts payable.

The PRESIDENT. The report will lie over for printing.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. JAMES from the Committee on Executive Nominations reported with a favorable recommendation the following nominations, made by His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth:

APPOINTMENT AS MEMBER OF THE UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION BOARD OF REVIEW

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, April 8, 1942.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate Harry A. Englehart, 322 Sugar Street, Ebensburg, Cambria County, for appointment as a member of the Unemployment Compensation Board of Review, until July 1, 1947, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified, vice P. Stephen Stahlnecker, resigned.

ARTHUR H. JAMES.

APPOINTMENT AS MEMBER OF THE STATE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, March 9, 1942.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate the following persons for appointment as members of the State Civil Service Commission:

John A. M. McCarthy, 931 North 50th Street, Philadelphia, Philadelphia County, for the term of two years, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified.

Mrs. Ruth Pennell, Mifflintown, Juniata County, for the term of four years, and until her successor shall have been appointed and qualified.

Robert Hall Craig, 3621 Sharon Street, Paxtang, Harrisburg, Dauphin County, for the term of six years, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified.

ARTHUR H. JAMES.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

By unanimous consent,

A motion was made by Mr. JAMES and Mr. MILLER,

That Rule 38, which requires nominations made by the Governor, to lie on the table one day be dispensed with, and the Senate do now resolve itself into Executive Session, for the purpose of acting upon all the nominations collectively, reported at to-day's session.

Which was agreed to.

Whereupon,

A motion was made by Mr. JAMES and Mr. MILLER,

That the Senate do advise and consent to the nominations reported.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—41

Barr,	DiSilvestro,	Kephart,	Snowden,
Bartlett,	Edmonds,	Lanius,	Stevenson,
Becker,	Farrell,	Letzler,	Tallman,
Carr,	Frey,	Mallery,	Thomas,

Crider,	Homsher,	Miller,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	James,	Reed,	Wilson, T. B.,
Deitrick,	Jaspan,	Ruth,	Ziesenheim,
Dent,

NAYS—0

Two-thirds of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Governor be informed accordingly.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I move that the Executive Session do now rise.

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 80, (House Bill No. 76), entitled:

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section one of the act, approved the eighth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 737), entitled "A supplement to an act, entitled 'An act to establish a Board of Commissioners of Navigation for the River Delaware and its navigable tributaries; regulating their jurisdiction over ships, vessels, and boats, and wharves, piers, bulkheads, docks, slips, and basins; and exempting cities of the first class from certain of its provisions; and making an appropriation therefor.' approved the eighth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred seven; authorizing and directing the commissioners to provide and maintain a nautical school for the education and training of pupils from the various counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the science and practice of navigation; and making an appropriation for two years from the first day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, towards its maintenance," and its amendments, in so far as they require, the furnishing of accommodations on board a proper vessel for the nautical school, when no such vessel is available and imposing upon the State Council of Defense the duty of furnishing other accommodations.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to amend section 2 page 3 line 15 by adding after the word "commission" the following: "Provided that no person assigned by the federal government or any agency thereof to said nautical school as an instructor shall be considered such a state employee or officer as is entitled to any of the benefits provided by the Act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred and seventeen (P. L. 600) and its amendments."

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The amendment was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading, as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That said bill as amended be printed for the use of the Senate.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, may I say just a word with reference to this amendment? We have had reports that in times past retired Naval Officers have been assigned as instructors to this school and in time of war their services may be for a very short time, two or three months, when they may be recalled again, and if they are recalled they are still entitled to the benefits of the Act of 1917, whereby they are entitled to be paid half of their civilian pay from the state.

The object of this amendment is to provide that if they are assigned by the Federal Government for the purpose of instruction, they shall not be considered eligible under the benefits of the Act of Assembly which were intended for employes of the state.

MOTION TO PROCEED WITH SECOND READING CALENDAR

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the second reading Calendar.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 96, (House Bill No. 113), entitled:

An Act creating a joint legislative committee to study partial unemployment as related to unemployment compensation; defining its powers and duties; authorizing the employment of counsel and employes; and making an appropriation.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 97, (House Bill No. 112), entitled:

An Act to amend subsection (a) and to further amend subsection (b) of section nine of the act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168) entitled "An act to protect the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State government and courts providing for the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employes be the exclusive representatives of all the employes authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employes for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a complaint the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order and establishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board prescribing certain penalties" fixing the rights and standing of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board as a party and as appellant in the courts in matters originating before the board and defining the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court on appeal

And said bill having been read at length the second time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, with reference to Senate Bill No. 97, which is House Bill No. 112, I should like to debate the matter, and at the suggestion of some of my colleagues, to save time tomorrow, I would like to say on second reading what I would otherwise say on third reading tomorrow, and that is that I am opposed to this bill for two very definite reasons. In the first place, it is not included under the Governor's call, and while I have seen a memorandum framed by the sponsor of the bill, Mr. Homer S. Brown, in which he argues that it is under the Governor's call, it seems to me that what he argues is so broad that it would bring anything under the Governor's call, by the same line of argument.

Mr. President, I have great respect for Mr. Brown; I have followed his legislation with care, and I think in the main his legislation has been very thoughtfully prepared, but in his argument that this is under the Governor's call, it seems to me he is passing far beyond the limits of good reasoning, and therefore, I can not accept his conclusion.

This bill proposes to give to the State Labor Relations Board a right to take appeals to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. There is nothing about labor legislation or anything connected with it in the Governor's call, or in the supplement to the Governor's call, and therefore I feel that this bill is ill advised at the present time.

In the second place, the object of this bill is to reverse a decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, filed March 23, 1942, an opinion by Chief Justice Schaffer, in the case of Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, appellant, versus Heinel Motors, Inc., which was an appeal by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board from the decree of the Court below, setting aside an order of the Board which directed appellee to reinstate two of its employes and to pay them back wages.

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board has a perfect right to decide a case, it is a quasi-judicial body, and it can take an appeal to the Court of Common Pleas; but the other side can take an appeal as well. When it comes to the Supreme Court, the appeal there is left to the parties to the case, and the parties to the case in a situation of this kind would be the employes and the employer; they are the real parties to the case, and not the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board.

I have here a copy of the opinion of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, and there is one paragraph in it which strikes me as being exceedingly wise, so wise that I do not want to see it overturned in the Legislature. It says there:

"Such a tribunal as the Labor Relations Board, quasi-judicial in character, intended to be impartial, given the power to hear and initially determine and adjudge, should not be able to convert itself into a litigant and become the partisan advocate of one or the other of the parties whose cause it has heard. This would tend to destroy its quasi-judicial character and its impartiality. Furthermore, to convert it into a party litigant would be to run counter to Pennsylvanias customs and traditions. Since Penn's Frame of Government for the Commonwealth first established government by written limitations, (subsequently in large measure carried into all our constitutions) it has been fundamental with us that judicial tribunals and quasi-judicial ones, should be limited to hear and decide, not to espouse any party's cause at any stage of proceedings. For the Board to become a litigant is repugnant to the traditional common law heritage of judicial detachment and freedom from interest. We believe that had the legislature intended to give the right of appeal to the Board, it would not have referred to it as a 'party'."

Mr. President, I think that it is all extremely wise, and it is in direct line with applied understanding of legal development that has taken place in Pennsylvania. It is perfectly true that we can by an Act of Assembly override this decision of the Supreme Court, but is it wise for us to do so? There are, I suppose, an infinite number of boards and commissions that decide questions for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Do we want them all to have the right of appeal, and then have the feeling that when they do appeal they necessarily espouse one side or the other? Look at the positions in the caption of this case, "Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, appellant, versus Heinel Motors, Inc."

I know nothing about the merits of that case, but I would say that if I were Heinel Motors, Inc., I would say I would have to go into the Supreme Court with two strikes against me, because there is the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, appellant. In other words, they become a decisive factor in the case, a party litigant, rather than a judicial body deciding a controversy between two groups.

This bill sponsored by Mr. Homer S. Brown was introduced, I think, on April 6th. The calendar shows that today's date is April 9th. The bill had very quick passage through the House, and so far as I know, it is having equally quick passage through the Senate. It does not seem to me that it lies within the dignity of this body to reverse a decision of the Supreme Court on four days' consideration, particularly when the decision of the Supreme Court is based upon sound and fundamental policy as Justice Schaffer outlined.

For that reason I ask, Mr. President, that the clerk be directed to take a slow vote on this question as to whether or not this bill pass second reading, so that those who agree with me might have the opportunity to record themselves in the negative.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I shall also appreciate the opportunity of having a slow vote on this bill. I am somewhat reluctant, as is the gentleman from Montgomery, to discuss the bill on second reading, but I understand that the purpose of debate at this time is to save time tomorrow and that is a refreshing thing in the Senate, and I think we ought to cooperate with the gentleman.

I would like to save time today, but I would like to point out to the gentleman from Montgomery that as he knows, we have argued this thing in Caucus, and I do not think there will be a meeting of minds between the gentleman from Montgomery and those of us who feel that this bill should be enacted into a statute.

Mr. President, there are a number of boards and commissions that have from time to time been established in the Commonwealth for the purpose of discharging certain responsibilities laid upon them. Some time ago, about twelve or fifteen years ago, when the then Governor of Pennsylvania attempted to eliminate one of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commissioners, or, as it was then called, the Public Service Commission, the question of the standing of such a board or commission was challenged in the Supreme Court, and at that time the Public Service Commission was listed as an arm of the Legislature, and since that time it has been functioning back of that definition and very successfully maneuvering back of that definition ever since.

The Labor Relations Board is the only branch of its type that does not have the peculiar rights and opportunities resting upon it as are given to these other boards and commissions.

We have attempted, in the time that has been allotted to us since this bill arrived in the Senate, to absorb Justice Schaffer's opinion and try to correlate it with the act as it exists, and it comes with some trepidation, Mr. President, to attempt to point out to the members of this body, so many of them being practitioners of law, where we, in the Lindbergh sense, a country lawyer, differ with the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, but there are one or two places in Justice Schaffer's opinion where I can not quite follow the thread of his very brilliant argument.

There is no doubt in my mind that if the roll was called there would be more lawyers voting in favor of Justice Schaffer's opinion than would vote in favor of my opinion, first, because they have more confidence in Justice Schaffer than they have in me, they have more confidence in his legal ability and knowledge, and perhaps they agree with his law, but, Mr. President, the peculiar situation in which the Labor Relations Board find itself under this somewhat straddling interpretation by the Supreme Court is this, that in the Court of Common Pleas the Labor Relations Board can be the appellant or the appellee, they are a party to the case, and the employer or the employe whose case for the moment they might be espousing loses his or its individual identity, and the parties that are referred to time after time throughout the act, include the Labor Relations Board and/or the respondent, and never once do the actual parties whose grievance is being adjudicated, never do they work themselves back into the picture.

Mr. President, this board has the right to become appellee or appellant, or petitioner or respondent, in a Court of Common Pleas, say of Dauphin County. Then under the interpretation of Justice Schaffer's decision, as I interpret it, Justice Schaffer then says they can not become the appellee in the Appellate Court. He says it is perfectly all right for them to be a party as I understand it, in the Common Pleas Court in that case, but they can not be a party, either as appellee or appellant in the Appellate Court and they are the only board or commission denied that right.

In the instance of which I speak, before the Supreme Court or before the Appellate Court, they may be representing thousands of employes, they may be representing one hundred and fifty employers who are gathered together in a group, and it is impossible for those thousands or those hundreds of litigants to file individual appeals to seek individual relief, to appear individually on the record, as Justice Schaffer's opinion would force them to do, and therefore, the Labor Relations Board, in order to clarify perhaps that section of the statute, is obliged to file this appeal, not to vindicate, as it were, the Labor Relation Board, not to be the judge and the jury and the prosecutor, as would be intimated by Justice Schaffer's opinion, but in order to carry out the responsibility of seeing that the act as promulgated functions properly to carry out the responsibility of representing these employers and these employes, the Board by its very nature should be given this right. There is no doubt in my mind that when the Labor Relations Act was originally passed, the Legislature fully intended that the Labor Relations Board should have the same right on appeal, for example, as the Public Utility Commission has.

It may well be argued that the Public Utility Commission, as Justice Schaffer so adroitly points out, is a rate making body and therefore that sets them apart and distinguishes them from the Labor Relations Board, but, Mr. President, the Public Utility Commission also has the right to be an appellant in the Superior Court and as appellant in the Supreme Court, in an ordinary trucking application, where some little trucker with two vehicles makes an application for a certificate to operate between points "A" and "B", and if the Commission turns him down and the trucker appeals to the Superior Court, the trucker is the appellant and the Commission is the appellee, and the Commission very violently moves in there and defends its position. It represents, perhaps, protesting truckers or protesting rail carriers who are trying to point out that this application is not necessary, and if the Superior Court decides the case in favor of the trucker and reserves the Public Utility Commission, then, under the statute, the Public Utility Commission has the right to become an appellant, and frequently does become an appellant in the Supreme Court.

They are not representing the Commonwealth when they do that, they are representing protesting public utilities, be they truckers, be they railroads, be they electric companies or water companies, they are the appellant taking the place of individuals or of companies, and they are attempting by doing that to carry out the provisions of the law that were placed upon them.

I say, Mr. President, that is a good thing, because frequently technical, absorbing portions of the statute that need clarification or interpretation are thus enabled to be placed before the courts by some body which has the interest and the money and the facilities to carry the appeal to that higher body.

I find no quarrel with the position of the Public Utility Commission in those matters, because they are doing a just and equitable thing; but the fault that I find, Mr. President, is that suddenly one of our very valuable governmental agencies should be deprived of that very right.

Justice Schaffer, in his opinion, hints that this thing that is being done by Mr. Homer Brown's bill is the thing that the Legislature should do, because he points out very specifically that if the Legislature desired to have the Labor Relations Board become an appellant in the Appellate Courts they would have said so. Whether or not they did say so is a moot question. Justice Schaffer believes they did not: as I say, we believe the Legislature did, but in order to eliminate that cloud of suspicion that might be thrown on a judicial interpretation of a legislative act, Representative Brown's bill has been introduced, and I think we should pass it on second reading today and then pass it finally tomorrow.

The merit of the bill is this that it will once and for all place the Labor Relations Board on the same level as other branches, boards or governmental agencies that are now in existence, and secondly, it will give very valuable aid, solace and protection to the employer and employe alike, who do not feel that they are financially able or have the facilities to carry on a case where justice might be deeply involved.

I apologize to the gentleman from Montgomery and the Senate for arguing on this bill on second reading, but I feel that has been precipitated by the unique position we find ourselves in. I would urge my colleagues to see that this bill not only passes second reading, but passes third reading and final passage tomorrow, because this will correct what has suddenly become a very grave situation in the routine bureaucratic practice of law.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I do not wish to defend the constitutionality of this bill or whether it is within the Governor's call or not. Obviously, that was a debatable question before the Supreme Court or a decision would not have been necessary, but since there was a debatable question, the question was, what did the Legislature intend, and it seems to me that by passing this bill we can express our intention regardless of whether the matter is within the Governor's call or not.

There is a section in this bill that deals with judicial review of labor disputes, and it is divided into two parts. In the first instance, if the Labor Relations Board hears a petition by a union or a group of laborers against an employer, because of unfair labor practice and the Board issues an order against the employer and the employer does not obey the order, the Labor Relations Board can go into court and ask the court as petitioner, in a case in which the employer is respondent, to enforce its order.

It seems to me it is obvious that the parties to that proceeding before the court are the Labor Relations Board, petitioner, and the employer as respondent. There are no other parties, and there are no other parties contemplated by this section of the act. The employes who first brought the proceeding before the Labor Relations Board are not parties, except as they are represented through the Labor Relations Board to enforce its order. That is half of that section.

The other part of the section is that the party aggrieved, if it be the employer, or if the unfair labor practice is an unfair practice by labor, or a union, they can go to a County Court and appeal from the Board's order. In that proceeding the employer or the union, whichever may be the aggrieved party, is the petitioner, and the Labor Relations Board is the respondent. They are the parties, and the person or party that is not aggrieved, or whatever you want to call him, is not really a party to the litigation. In order to get into the Dauphin County Court here, or whatever court of Common Pleas it might happen to be, they would have to intervene.

There is no process under which an appeal can be taken by an intervenor in that case and therefore an intervening board which really has an interest is just out of luck, for no appeal can be taken, and that is what this decision of the Supreme Court amounts to, when they deny the Labor Relations Board the right to appeal.

For that reason, Mr. President, it seems to me this bill should be passed to clarify this situation, and to give the Labor Relations Board the right of appeal similar to that right as is now held by the Public Utility Commission, the Milk Control Commission, and several other commissions of this Commonwealth.

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, by arrangement this bill is being discussed on second reading as though it were being considered upon third reading, therefore the merits of this bill come fairly before the Senate at this time. Perhaps the vote that will be taken on second reading will decide whether the bill passes finally or not.

I am one of the Senators who oppose passage of this bill, primarily because it is not included in the call, and secondly, because the underlying principle that is put forth in this bill is wrong, and because the bill that is introduced was clearly to upset, to override, a decision of the Supreme Court which was rendered in this state on March 23, 1942; this bill was introduced within a very few days afterwards, just to undo the work of the Supreme Court. I do feel that it is unfair for any group or those championing any group to try to further their cause as candidates or to embarrass the executive, or to embarrass the Supreme Court, or to take sides between labor and employers, to bring a matter upon such short notice before the Senate of Pennsylvania, to see whether we shall accept it or not.

As one of the older men who have served in the Legislature, I want to say to you that for years and years I have noticed an increasing tendency to govern by commissions. We have commissions for this and we have commissions for that, and every one of these commissions think, because it has been created to fill a necessity, if you please, that that creation carries with it the powers to make rules indefinitely and in all directions, very much exceeding the intentions of those who prepared the bill, and there is not a lawyer on the floor of this Senate that will undertake to deny the assertion that I make, that nearly every one of the commissions, no matter how good its intentions have been, have been trying to exceed the authority that was intended to be given to them, and that they have been very, very jealous in the administration of their acts which they are carrying out.

I only need call your attention to just one commission. We had a commission that was created about the year 1916, after the passage of the workmen's compensation act. That commission was known as the Workmen's Compensation Board, and the three original members of that board immediately set a day to have those who were interested come before them to argue upon a very large set of rules and regulations, and, if you please, an extension of powers beyond the act.

I ask you to go back, those of you attorneys that can go back, to that time and consider the arguments that were made before the Workmen's Compensation Board and consider the test cases that were carried through, to show and to prove that the Supreme Court had to upset some of those rules.

It is a very fortunate thing that we have a Supreme Court in Pennsylvania, and, of course, it is a very popular thing, when a decision is not in accordance with the wishes of those who want to have it some other way, that you immediately come into a session of the Legislature and present a bill to change the law. The Supreme Court is wrong in its decision in the first instance, they say it is wrong, and that is because the act is not clear, and therefore we will come back with an amendment to make it clear, and it comes from the House and it comes very quickly after the Supreme Court's decision, and it comes in here, and not a single Senator will say that it is clear, over and above board included in the Governor's call. There are those who will say he will veto it, of course, he will veto it if we pass it, and therefore he should be given that opportunity, he should have to assume the responsibility, but if this Senate sends this bill to the Governor, putting its stamp of approval on it for the purpose of embarrassing the Governor, they will have done a wrong thing, they will have done a thing that will not be a credit to the Senate. If these Senators vote for this bill to help them temporarily in a cause which they feel that they represent when they are running for reelection to the Senate or, in even running for reelection to the House, they will have done a wrong thing.

It does seem to me that somebody should rise in meeting and call attention to the fact that a number of propositions which have been brought forth here extend way beyond the call, it does seem to me that somebody in authority, somebody who could be really looked up to, should say it is time to go home, somebody who would say, why do you do all of these things?

There are several propositions here for which we have no explanations, no reasons, no bills furnished, and we were held here week after week, day after day, without any set rules and without any set plans, and without any definite time as to when we shall adjourn. It does seem too bad that an old person should have to rise on the floor of the Senate and say words which some younger men may criticize; it does seem too bad that the Senate must place itself in a position to go back home and have people say, how, when and where did you get those ideas, have you no spine to vote with the Constitution any more, have you no respect for the Supreme Court, have you no ideas at all as to what is right and wrong as between these questions that are raised here?

I say this question is here wrongfully I do not mean to say that this is a labor bill, or the contrary; I do not mean to say that somebody is bidding for labor votes, or the contrary; but if it be so, then it is a condition that should not exist.

While I am on my feet, I want to make this assertion, I want to make this statement, let it apply to any matter of legislation, on this bill or any other, let it apply wherever you will, let it be brought out in the nominations for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor or any others at this time, let it be continued on over to the fall election, if you please, if any candidate or any Senator or any member takes the idea that he should appeal to a group either in favor of labor or in favor of employers, so called, or capital or whatever you please, at a time like this, it is an error of judgment, it is an error contrary to the times.

While I am on my feet, I wonder how many of you realize the conditions, the gravity of the situation? We are here and have been here for weeks splitting hairs, because we can not agree. That is only natural. The House is of one political faith and the Senate is of another political faith, but remember this, those of you who can go nearly back to the Civil War and remember about it, I want to say to this Senate, while you are splitting hairs today, I want to say to you in all seriousness and solemnity that very few of you seem to realize the gravity of the situation.

Mr. President, I want to make a public statement, I want to make this as a prediction, I want to say to this Senate that this government is bankrupt; I want to say to this Senate that within two years the most serious things are bound to happen; I want to say to this Senate that even the Republic itself trembles in the balance. No government, if you please, I do not care what form it is, can be called permanent when millions and billions and all that are being expended, and this government can not stand it. To quibble here, to try to get advantage for any group, to take any position other than a neutral position, is wrong.

Suppose you are practicing law out in the country as I have done for almost fifty years, and suppose a plaintiff comes before a justice of the peace and has his attorney, and suppose the defendant has his attorney, and suppose judgment is rendered and an appeal is taken to the Court of Common Pleas and so on, and it involves a question of law, would you expect a justice of the peace to go before a court and carry through an appeal for one side or the other? That is the principle that I am complaining about. Should you give any of these commissions the power to go on up to the higher courts to maintain what the rights of the appellant are? No, not to maintain the rights of the appellant, or to assert the fact that I have made no mistake, or to assert the fact that the rules that I have established and promulgated are correct, or to assert the fact that the powers that were vested in me are the powers that I am going to use to the end, and I will not have them curtailed.

I say this, we have to have commissions, but far be it from me ever to uphold anybody to write rules and regulations and decisions, if you please, and try to follow them through, taking sides and action in cases of appellants. When those boards would take an appeal right up, they do not necessarily have to consult with the appellant at all; the real appellant may not agree to go on, the real appellant may be satisfied that the other side was right. The dignity of the commission must be upheld, and if it is not upheld by the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court is wrong, first, and second only, while the Supreme Court has authority, you are going to change the act so they can not possibly decide against you.

It is the idea that the bill is improperly before us and is being acted upon too hastily; it is the idea that the things that Senator Edmonds has said are true and right; it is the idea there should not be any political motive for anybody at a time like this, in the matter of candidacy; it is the idea there is too much of a hurry; for those reasons I do not care what the rest do, they can do just as they want, but I for one am going to vote "no."

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, on this question, shall the bill pass second reading, I ask that there be a roll call—I have already asked that there be a slow roll call—so we may have a chance to note how the votes of the Senators are recorded.

I want to say very frankly, Mr. President, I have had a full opportunity to state my point of view and I have stated it, and by that point of view I stand.

The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, have referred to various rate-making commissions, which have a right of appeal in their own names because they are rate-making commissions and commissions which represent the Legislature. There is a fundamental rule of law which applies to those cases because rate-making is a legislative function. Where the Legislature creates a commission and that commission fixes rates, the Legislature gives the power, but these are executive commissions or administrative commissions, and if all of the administrative commissions, every licensing board, the Board of Employment and all that sort of thing, if they can all take appeals in their own names, it seems to me it would be a tremendously cumbersome result for legislation and litigation in Pennsylvania.

I like the statement of Chief Justice Schaffer; I think his statement is very clear, that a quasi-judicial body ought not to be able to convert itself into a party litigant, and it is because of that point of view that I shall vote "no" on this bill on second reading, and ask my colleagues who agree with me to vote likewise.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I understand quite a number of our colleagues will vote to pass this bill, and I feel also there have been some unfair insinuations made on the floor as to the possible reason for a number of our colleagues voting in favor of the bill.

I intend to vote in favor of the bill. I do not mind saying very frankly that when the idea was first proposed to me I said I was absolutely opposed to the bill. I also made that statement to the president of the State Labor Board, because I had a misunderstanding of the situation; I understood that the Public Utility Commission was only able to take appeals in connection with rate cases, but that is not so. As the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, has pointed out, the Public Utility Commission is able to take an appeal in a case involving an application for a certificate by a private individual.

It seems to me that if there is any support for the contention that this bureaucratic form of government should not be continued, that these boards should not have a right of appeal, then an approach should be made to this problem involving not only the State Labor Relations Board but all such boards, and if it is wrong for one it is wrong for all, and if there is a feeling here that the system is wrong, then I think it is only proper that an immediate study be started to see what sort of a system can be set up to eventually eliminate this bureaucratic system which unquestionably has been creeping into both the State and Federal Government.

I do not believe by voting in favor of this bill that we are upsetting a decision of the Supreme Court. I feel, if one reads the provisions of the State Labor Relations Act, he must come to the conclusion that it was intended by the Legislature that the State Labor Relations Board have the power to take appeals.

If the Legislature left out a word or in some other way did not amply set forth what was its intention, the Supreme Court is proper then in suggesting that the Legislature correct that mistake, and I think by voting in favor of this bill the Legislature is correcting the mistake, if any, in the bill that was passed heretofore.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I think it is about time for a layman to get up and say a few words on this bill.

I have not as yet seen the brief prepared by Representative Brown, in which he said this was within the Governor's call, but I have a great respect for Homer Brown. I think in the House, as the members of the House will also tell you, there is not a more informed representative on constitutional law, and therefore I will abide by his decision, that this is within the call.

The gentleman from Jefferson, Senator Wilson has said that the underlying principle of this amendment is wrong. I have read, I will say very hurriedly, Justice Schaffer's opinion, and it very clearly states that if the Legislature wants to grant this power to the State Labor Relations Board, they should do it.

Therefore I am going to ask my colleagues on this side to vote for this amendment.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Montgomery permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EDMONDS. With pleasure, Mr. President.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I desire to ask the gentleman from Montgomery, in a case where a union would proceed against an employer for an unfair labor practice before the Board, and the Board would find in favor of the union, and the employer would petition the Court or take an appeal to the County Court, which would be captioned "Employer versus Board," and the Court should decide in favor of the employer, how the union could possibly protect its rights or how the Board could possibly protect the rights of the union.

Mr. EDMONDS. Why, Mr. President, an individual member of the union could take an appeal.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I would like to ask the Senator from Montgomery whether an intervenor has a right to appeal; did the gentleman from Montgomery ever hear of the right of an intervenor to appeal to the Appellate Court.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, the employe is an active party in the case and, being an active party in the case, according to the decision of Justice Schaffer, he has the right of appeal.

Mr. KEPHART. I would like to ask the Senator from Montgomery to point out to me where in this act an employe under that situation becomes an active party in the litigation. I find no such provision in the law.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, the difficulty is that I do not have the law on my desk at the moment, but I have the opinion of Justice Schaffer and the opinion indictates very clearly—perhaps I had better quote from the opinion—: "The jurisdiction of the court of common pleas shall be conclusive, and its judgment and decree shall be final, except that the same shall be subject to review by the Supreme Court on appeal by either party, irrespective of the nature of the decree or judgment or the amount involved." Then it says "It is contended that 'either party?' does not embrace the Board, and thereafter the opinion goes on to state that "either party" does not embrace the Board, the Board itself, being a quasi-judicial body, but either party can take an appeal.

Mr. KEPHART. It does not say an employe is a party, however, nor does the act so state, and I can find nothing that would give an employe the right to be a party. In Dauphin County he would have difficulty even in intervening.

Mr. EDMONDS. Neither does it state that the Dutch have taken Holland, but it does say either party can take an appeal. That is what the act says.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, the act says either party may take an appeal and then rules one of the parties out.

Mr. EDMONDS. That is assuming a quasi-judicial body is a party. Judge Schaffer stated they were not, and I agree with the judge.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not want to discuss the legal angles of this question. I just want to ask the members of the Senate to consider the bill before us, in the matter of its fairness to persons who are interested in the matter of labor relations. For a good many years in Pennsylvania there has been a fight for a Labor Relations Board and since its inception I would say it has functioned rather successfully in the State of Pennsylvania and has done some outstanding work. I have not always agreed with its decisions. However, I think in the main it has done a good job.

You come along now and say the Labor Relations Board can hand down decisions all right, but the Court of Common Pleas can supersede the decisions of the Labor Relations Board in the matter of labor relations. I say that because from the learned gentleman from Montgomery we hear if an organization or a union, or if the employes are not organized in a plant, and they have some sort of a situation come up where they must appeal before the Labor Relations Board and the Labor Relations Board hands down a decision in favor of three or four thousand employes—as it did in the case of the Weirton Steel Company, which, however, was a Federal Relations Board case; however, it could just as well happen in the State of Pennsylvania under the State Labor Relations Board—do you mean to say that three or four thousand employes have to individually appear in court and appeal a decision of the Common Pleas Court?

Is it the idea behind the decision of the Supreme Court that the way to take away from labor this one great body that has been created for them is to put into the hands of the Common Pleas Courts of Pennsylvania a power that was never intended by the Legislature? If so, we would have put it into the act. Justice Schaffer himself in his opinion says that if the Legislature wants this board to have this power and feels that is what they intended—at least that is the way I read it—they can give it to them. How are you to give it to them if you vote to give them that power, with somebody saying if you do, you do not believe in constitutional law?

The Federal Relations Board has the right of appeal and if it did not have the right of appeal the Weirton case would have been closed long ago and Weirton Steel would have had to pay back twelve million dollars. As it was they had the opportunity to present their case to a higher court.

I believe that the Legislature intended that the Labor Relations Board should act in all cases pertaining to labor relations, and whether the labor unions or the individual laborer or the employer is in the wrong or in the right, whatever decision the Labor Relations Board makes, it ought to be in a position to defend that decision before any court in the state.

Mr. MALLERY. In the argument in support of the bill there was a statement made that a vote for the bill was a reflection on the Supreme Court. In view of the fact that I intend to vote for this bill, Mr. President, I wish to state that by so doing I do not cast any reflection upon the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court, I believe, decided the case according to what in its best judgment, it determined what the law is, and it certainly is within the rights of the Legislature to clarify the law. That is the orderly way of bringing about a change, that is the proper way, and in casting my vote for this bill I certainly do not deem it any reflection upon the Supreme Court.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, as a lawyer I am firmly convinced that this bill does not come within the purpose or the agenda of the call and, therefore, I do not think I should shirk my responsibility and place it upon the Governor to veto the bill, and so I will vote "no".

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—27

Barr,	Deitrick,	Letzler,	Stevenson,
Bartlett,	Dent,	Mallery,	Tallman,
Carr,	Farrell,	McGinnis,	Wade,
Cavalcante,	Geltz,	McQuiddy,	Walker,
Coleman,	Haluska,	Miller,	Watkins,
Cox,	Kephart,	Reed,	Ziesenheim,
Crowe,	Lanius,	Ruth,

NAYS—11

Becker,	Edmonds,	James,	Wilson, H. I.,
Chapman,	Heyburn,	Snowden,	Wilson, T. B.,
Crider,	Homsher,	Thomas,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

HOUSE MESSAGE

HOUSE INSISTS UPON ITS AMENDMENTS NON-CONCURRED IN BY THE SENATE TO SENATE BILL No. 65

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented communication from the House of Representatives informing the Senate that the House insists upon its amendments non-concurred in by the Senate to Senate Bill No. 65, entitled:

An Act to amend section twenty-one as amended, of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen (P. L. 900), entitled "An act to provide for the immediate registration of all births and deaths throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by means of certificates of births and deaths, and burial or removal permits; requiring prompt returns to the Central Bureau of Vital Statistics, as required to be established by the State Department of Health; and, in order to secure prompt and faithful registration of births, marriages, deaths, and diseases of practitioners of medicine, and surgery, or midwives, nurses, and undertakers, and of all persons whose occupation is deemed to be of importance in obtaining complete registration of births, deaths, marriages, and diseases throughout the State, as provided in section ten of an act, entitled 'An act creating the Department of Health and defining its powers and duties,' approved the twenty-seventh day of April, nineteen hundred and five, and providing penalties for violations of this act," by further regulating the giving of certified copies of birth certificates to soldiers, sailors and marines and war nurses.

SENATE INSISTS UPON ITS NON-CONCURRENCE IN AMENDMENTS BY THE HOUSE TO SENATE BILL No. 65 AND THAT A COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE BE APPOINTED

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate insists upon its non-concurrence in the amendments made by the House to Senate Bill No. 65.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. The President Pro Tempore appoints Messrs. Miller, Mallery and Coleman to be said committee on the part of the Senate, and it is directed that the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 4:45 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

SUBSTITUTION OF SENATE CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL No. 46

The PRESIDENT. By reason of the absence of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Stiefel, the President Pro Tempore of the Senate requests the Chair to announce the appointment of the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Cox, as a conferee on the part of the Senate to consider the differences in connection with Senate Bill No. 46, in substitution for the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Stiefel.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE APPOINTS COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL No. 65

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, informed the Senate that the House has appointed Messrs. Heatherington, Yester and Van Allsburg as a Committee of Conference to confer with a similar committee of Conference to confer with a similar committee of the Senate (already appointed) to consider the differences existing between the two houses in relation to Senate Bill No. 65.

HOUSE APPOINTS COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL No. 41

He also informed the Senate that the House has appointed Messrs. R. Cohen, O'Neill and Walter E. Rose as a Committee of Conference to confer with a similar committee of the Senate (already appointed) to consider the differences existing between the two houses in relation to Senate Bill No. 41.

MOTION TO PROCEED WITH THIRD READING BILLS ON CALENDAR

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed with the consideration of third reading bills on the Calendar, beginning with page 2, Senate Bill No. 89.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 89, (House Bill No. 57), on third reading, entitled:

An Act authorizing the secretary of the board of health in the various cities of the third class throughout the Commonwealth, during the continuation of the present war and for six months thereafter, to search and issue certified copies of birth and death records maintained by such cities after the State-wide system for registering vital statistics was established; requiring that such birth and death records be made available to the secretary of the board of health for the purposes of this act; and authorizing the respective city councils to prescribe fees for such services.

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 90, (House Bill No. 58), entitled:

An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies with the approval of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings as a temporary emergency war measure for a limited period of time to adopt certain rules and regulations governing purchases and contracts of the Department of Property and Supplies on behalf of the Commonwealth and with like approval to make and alter purchases and contracts pursuant thereto and suspending certain statutory provisions inconsistent with such rules and regulations

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to Amend, Title, page 1, by striking out lines 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "To suspend existing laws providing for and requiring certain contracts or purchases made by the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof to be made with and from the lowest responsible bidder after notice by advertisement insofar as they apply to certain contracts and purchases and regulating the letting of contracts and the making of purchases by political subdivisions." Amend page 1, by striking out all of lines 13, 14, 15, and 16; Amend page 2, by striking out all of the Whereas clauses on page 2; Amend Section 1, page 2, lines 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11, by striking out all of said lines; Amend, Section 1, page 3, by striking out all of lines 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Section 1. In order to expedite the making of contracts and purchases by the State Government and its political subdivisions which are necessary to further the defense efforts thereof the provisions of any Acts of Assembly providing for and requiring certain contracts or purchases made by the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof to be made with and from the lowest responsible bidder after notice thereof by advertisement in a newspaper are hereby suspended during the continuance of the war in which the United States is now engaged insofar as such laws apply to contracts or purchases involving supplies and materials which are being rationed or sales of which are being directly or indirectly controlled by the Federal Government or any of its agencies Before any such supplies and materials shall be purchased or contract let therefor by any political subdivision under the provisions of this act the legislative body of the political subdivision shall pass a motion by a majority vote of all its members stating that an emergency exists requiring immediate action and that the contract proposed to be let or the purchase proposed to be made involves materials and supplies which are being rationed or the sale of which is being directly or indirectly controlled by the federal government or any of its agencies; Amend Section 2, page 3, by striking out all of lines 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment and shall remain in force during the period in which the United States of America is engaged in war and for six months thereafter"; Amend Section 3, pages 3 and 4 by striking out all of said section; Amend Section 4, page 4, by striking out all of said section.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The amendments were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading, as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That said bill as amended be printed for the use of the Senate.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 91, (House Bill No. 69), as follows:

An Act to further amend section two of the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" by providing for the payment into the School Employes' Retirement Fund of certain amounts of the salaries or wages of certain officers or employes under certain circumstances

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same without amendments.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 92, (House Bill No. 71), as follows:

A Supplement to the act approved the eighteenth day of July one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 1043) entitled "An act establishing a public school employes' retirement system and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonwealth and contributing employes defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner of payments therefrom and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds imposing powers and duties upon boards having the employment of public school employes exempting annuities allowances returns benefits and rights from taxation and judicial process and providing penalties" defining the rights and obligations of certain members of the School Employes' Retirement Association engaged in active military service

Section 1 Definitions The following words and phrases as used in this act unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context shall have the following meanings

(1) "The act to which this is a supplement" shall mean the act approved the eighteenth day of July one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 1043) entitled "An act establishing a public school employes' retirement system and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonwealth and contributing employes defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner of payments therefrom and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds imposing powers and duties upon boards having the employment of public school employes exempting annuities allowances returns benefits and rights from taxation and judicial process and providing penalties" and all amendments thereto passed finally before the effective date of this act

(2) "Employe" shall mean any person who is an employe as defined in the act to which this is a supplement and whose salary or compensation is paid directly by the Commonwealth

(3) "Salary deductions" shall mean the amount certified by the Public School Employes' Retirement Board and either (a) deducted from the salary of a contributor to the School Employes' Retirement Fund and paid by the treasurer of each employer into the fund created by the act to which this is a supplement through the Department of Revenue under the provisions of section seven of said act or (b) deducted from any grant-in-aid subsidy or benefit payable or paid by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to an employe or his dependent or dependents while in active military service as defined in this act and paid into the Retirement Fund by the State Treasurer through the Department of Revenue

(4) "Board" shall mean the Public School Employes' Retirement Board created by the act to which this is a supplement

(5) "Active military service" shall mean full time service in the armed forces of the United States under a requisition from or by executive order of the President of the United States or in the armed forces organized for the defense of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by the authority of this Commonwealth

Section 2 An employe who enters into active military service may elect to continue to pay into the School Employes' Retirement Fund his salary deductions on the basis of his salary on the date of his entry into such active military service Such election shall be in writing on the form prescribed by the board and it shall be filed with the board within thirty (30) days after the effective date of this act or within thirty (30) days after the member's induction into active military service By such election an employe shall authorize and direct the State Treasurer to pay into the School Employes' Retirement Fund an amount certified to the State Treasurer by the board as the member's salary deduction The State Treasurer shall deduct such amount from any monies payable to such employe or his dependent or dependents under the provisions of the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" or under any act of assembly extending the benefits of said act to employes or providing for the payment of grant-in-aid or subsidies to an employe while in active military service or under any law now in force or hereafter enacted and the State Treasurer shall pay the amount so deducted into the fund created by the act to which this is a supplement

Section 3 An employe who does not elect to pay into the School Employes' Retirement Fund during the period of his active military service an amount equal to his salary deductions may during the period of such active military service and for a further period of forty (40) days after completion of such active military service pay into the School Employes' Retirement fund an amount which shall be equal to the salary deductions multiplied by the number of the semi-monthly periods during which he or she was absent from State employment or State service in active military service to the credit of the annuity savings account in such manner as may be agreed upon by the employe and the board but in no event shall such payments be made in installments less than sufficient to pay such amount by the time the member attains superannuation retirement age

Section 4 An employe who complies with the provisions of section two or section three of this act shall after such election be classified by the board as an employe in active military service and shall thereafter during such active military service and for a period of forty (40) days after the completion of such active military service be entitled to all benefits to which he or she may be entitled upon the date of entry into active military service under the provisions of the act to which this is a supplement as fully as though such employe continued to be in the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania at the salary such employe had been receiving on the date of his or her entry into active military service Provided however That such employe shall not have the right to retire upon disability under the provisions of section thirteen of the act to which this is a supplement except as hereinafter provided If such member returns to the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth within a period of forty (40) days after such active military service the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall certify such member as an employe with active military service

Section 5 An employe who does not file with the board an election to pay his salary deductions into the School Employes' Retirement Fund as provided in section two of this act shall be classified as a nonpaying member in active military service of the School Employes' Retirement Association until he shall return to the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth or until such member complies with section three of this act in the manner provided or for the period of such active military service and for forty (40) days after the completion of such active military service Such member shall enjoy all the benefits to which the member was entitled on the date of entry into active military service under any law of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating to the School Employes' Retirement Association and the School Employes' Retirement Fund Provided however That such member shall not have the right to retire upon disability under the provisions of section thirteen of the act to which this is a supplement except as hereinafter provided If such member returns to the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth within a period of forty (40) days after such active military service the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall certify such member as an employe with active military service

Section 6 An employe who shall have withdrawn from actual State employment or actual State service for active military service may after his or her return to actual State employment or actual State service but not later than forty (40) days after the completion of such active military service request the board for a physical and medical examination At a time and place within the Commonwealth and by an examiner or examiners to be designated by the board the applicant shall appear for and submit to such examination If the examiner or examiners shall find as a fact that such employe is free from physical or mental incapacity which renders him or is likely to render him incapable of performing the duties of his employment the examiner or examiners shall so certify to the board whereupon the board shall classify the applicant as a member free from active military service disability and thereupon such member shall become entitled to enjoy all the benefits to which the member was entitled under the act to which this is a supplement on the date of entry into active military service If the examiner or examiners shall find as a fact that such employе is physically or mentally incapacitated for the performance of the duties of the employment which he had when last in the actual employ and service of the Commonwealth the examiner or examiners shall certify to the board the nature and degree of such physical or mental incapacity or disability whereupon the board shall classify the applicant as a member with active military service disability and thereupon such member may elect to accept the benefit of the provisions of section twelve of the act to which this is a supplement or the benefit of section eight of this act or the benefits of the act to which this is a supplement without disability rights and shall be classified by the board as employe without disability rights Such employe shall enjoy all the rights incident to membership in the Retirement System except the right to retire for disability or upon disability and to receive a disability retirement allowance Such member's salary deduction shall be reduced accordingly Such election shall be in writing in form prescribed by the board and shall be filed with the board not later than fifty (50) days after the completion of such active military service

Section 7 The form and content of the examination and certificate required by section six of this act shall be prescribed by the board with the advice of the board's actuary and a physician or psychiatrist to be by the board employed for that purpose

Section 8 All employes who shall have been engaged in active military service and who shall have returned to State employment or service without examination or certification as required by sections six and seven of this act shall be classified by the board as employes without disability rights Such employe shall enjoy all the rights incident to membership in the Retirement System except the right to retire for disability or upon disability and to receive a disability retirement allowance Such member's salary deduction shall be reduced accordingly.

Section 9 The amount by which the salary deduction of an employe without disability rights to be paid into the fund shall be reduced shall be determined by the board in accordance with tables to be prepared and certified by the actuary

Section 10 The provisions and benefits of this act shall be applied and extended to all employes who were members of the School Employes' Retirement System on October fifteenth one thousand nine hundred forty

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

THURSDAY, April 9, 1942

The House met at 2 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) IN THE CHAIR

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

Dear Lord and Master of us all and of all mankind, we would follow in Thy footsteps and take our place among those who are going about doing good. May we, of this House of Representatives, ask not for fame or fortune, but only for the grace of living helpfully and serving unselfishly. We would convert our blessings into blessed ministries in order that we might leave the world better and nobler than we found it. Toward this end we ask Thy spiritual guidance, in the name of Christ. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday, when, on motion of Mr. BAUGHER, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. WEISS and MAXWELL.

RESOLUTION No. 49.

In the House of Representatives, April 8, 1942.

Whereas, Soldiers returning from the last war underwent extreme hardship and privation because of the failure of private industry to reabsorb those who risk their lives in defense of their country; and

Whereas, As a result of the present war, many wage earners are being inducted into the Army, so that their families here will suffer a severe loss of income, and will, therefore, have new hardships thrust upon them; and

Whereas, An enlightened labor policy by the employers of the Commonwealth, in giving preference in employment to those members of families whose sons or fathers have been inducted or have enlisted in our armed forces, would greatly reduce the difficulties of such families; be it therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives appeals to the employers of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to give preference in employment to those citizens of our Commonwealth whose sons, daughters or fathers have entered our armed forces; and be it further

Resolved, That the employers of Pennsylvania give immediate preference to those who left to serve for their country at the termination of the present hostilities.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

PETITIONS AND COMMUNICATIONS

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following petitions and communications which were read by the Clerk.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection House Bill No. 44, (Senate Bill No. 21), Printer's No. 70, was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Mr. WILLIAMS IN THE CHAIR

BILLS ON THIRD READING

BILLS PASSED OVER

There being no objection House Bill No. 37, (Senate Bill No. 35), Printer's No. 62; House Bill No. 116, Printer's No. 62; and House Bill No. 105, (Senate Bill No. 60), Printer's No. 69 were passed over at the request of the SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 42

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. Speaker I desire to call up House Resolution No. 42, Printer's No. 66.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 31, 1942.

Whereas, The residents of the County of Northampton on March 26, 1942, experienced a horrible tragedy, resulting from a dynamite explosion in Sandts Eddy in that county, causing the death of 31 persons; and

Whereas, The explosion was heard and its force felt for a distance of approximately 72 miles, in which radius a schoolhouse was wrecked, and thousands of windows broken; and

Whereas, The operation of quarries is a major industry in the County of Northampton, and the continued use of explosives and dynamite is apparently important to the continued operation of said industries; and

Whereas, This House in noting with sorrow the tragic death of these men and the untold suffering occasioned to their families cannot and will not permit this disastrous incident to pass without exerting every effort to prevent and forestall a recurrence thereof, with its horrible consequence of loss of life, destruction of property, and constant threat to the safety and tranquility of persons employed in this industry; and

Whereas, For the future protection of these men and their families and for the well being and protection of all the residents of the County of Northampton and of the Commonwealth legislation may be necessary to prevent other incidents of a similar nature; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker of this House, appoint a committee of nine members, whose duty it shall be to make a careful and thorough study of the laws of the Commonwealth and all regulations thereunder relating to the transportation storage, handling and use of all types of explosives; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee shall have power to hold public hearings in order to become acquainted with the practices and usages in the matter of explosives in its investigation of this and other explosions, and after due consideration to make its report, together with recommendations to this House, the Secretary of Labor and Industry and to the Chief of the Division of Mines and Quarries.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Messrs. WOODRING and LONGO. Mr. Speaker we desire to offer the following amendments.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend first resolution, page 2, lines 1 and 2, by striking out the words "Speaker of this House appoint a committee of nine members whose duty it shall be to" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Joint State Government Commission shall".

Amend second resolution, page 2, lines 7 to 10, by striking out the following "committee shall have power to" in line 7, all of lines 8 and 9, and the words "its investigation of this and other explosions and" in line 10, and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "commission shall".

Amend second resolution, page 2, line 11, by striking out the word "to".

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I have not had the opportunity to speak to the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Woodring, but I would like to ask whether or not a House Resolution could bind the Joint State Government Commission, an agency created by a joint act of the House and Senate.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, perhaps I can help solve that question for the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Woodring by answering the gentleman from Allegheny, that I do not believe it can bind, but I certainly believe that the Joint State Government Commission under its present leadership would certainly listen to the resolution by the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Woodring, and the Commission itself can by its own voluntary action accept responsibility. We did that after the 1939 Session; a lot of resolutions were passed here asking the Commission and directing the Commission to make certain studies, and the Commission picked them up and went on with them.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the resolution as amended?

It was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution will lie over for printing.

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED SENATE BILL NONCONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has nonconcurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 65.

An Act to amend section twenty-one as amended, of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen (P. L. 900), entitled "An act to provide for the immediate registration of all births and deaths throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by means of certificates of births and deaths, and burial or removal permits; requiring prompt returns to the Central Bureau of Vital Statistics, as required to be established by the State Department of Health; and, in order to secure prompt and faithful registration of births, marriages, deaths, and diseases of practitioners of medicine, and surgery, or midwives, nurses, and undertakers, and of all persons whose occupation is deemed to be of importance in obtaining complete registration of births, deaths, marriages, and diseases throughout the State, as provided in section ten of an act, entitled 'An act creating the Department of Health and defining its powers and duties,' approved the twenty-seventh day of April, nineteen hundred and five, and providing penalties for violations of this act," by further regulating the giving of certified copies of birth certificates to soldiers, sailors and marines and war nurses.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist upon its amendments nonconcurred in by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) IN THE CHAIR

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Williams, for presiding.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Mr. NAGEL asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order, House Bill No. 94, (Senate Bill No. 49), Printer's No. 37, bill on second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 94, (Senate Bill No. 49), entitled:

An Act suspending for a limited time all laws of the Commonwealth requiring the registration of trailers insofar as they require the registration of certain wagons or agricultural machinery drawn by a motor driven vehicle for certain purposes.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. NORMAN WOOD and NAGEL offered the following amendments:

Amend sec. 1, page 1, lines 1 to 10, by striking out all of said lines, both inclusive.

Amend sec. 1, page 2, lines 1 and 2, by striking out both of said lines, and inserting in lieu thereof

"Section 1. In order to make more transportation facilities available for war needs and to encourage the farmers of this Commonwealth to increase the production of farm products necessary for the feeding of our soldiers and our civilian population during the present war emergency, any machinery used exclusively for agricultural purposes, and any wagon, while being used for the purpose of transporting the agricultural products of the owner thereof, or returning from such transportation, may be drawn by a tractor or motor vehicle upon the highways of this Commonwealth, without such machinery or wagon being registered with the Department of Revenue as required by existing law.

"Section 2 The Secretary of Revenue is hereby authorized to suspend all provisions of the act approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," and of the act approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, (P. L. 1005), entitled "An act relating to and regulating tractors and trailers and their operation; providing for their registration, and the licensing of certain operators by the Department of Revenue upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of tractors and trailers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, and townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of tractors and trailers; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation; and providing for refunds," and all other acts and parts of acts in so far as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this act.

"Section 3. The provisions of this act shall be in full force and effect until six months after the termination of the war in which the United States is now engaged."

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The title was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the title?

Messrs. NORMAN WOOD and NAGEL offered the following amendment:

Amend title, page 1, lines 1 to 5 of title, by striking out all of said lines, both inclusive, and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Authorizing, in certain cases, the drawing of agricultural machinery and wagons on the highways in this Commonwealth by tractors and motor vehicles without such machinery or wagons being registered, and the temporary suspension of existing laws requiring the registration thereof".

It was agreed to.

The title was agreed to as amended.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Mr. POLEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order House Bill No. 44, (Senate Bill No. 21), Printer's No. 70, bill on second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 44, (Senate Bill No. 21), entitled:

An Act authorizing certain political subdivisions to make appropriations for the payment of expenses of local or district councils of defense within said political subdivisions and for the protection or preparation for the protection of the health, welfare and safety of the civilian population of said political subdivision during emergencies resulting from air raids, blackouts or sabotage; regulating the manner of payment of expenses or local and district councils of defense; authorizing such political subdivisions to borrow money under certain conditions for such purposes providing for the repayment thereof and ratifying confirming and validating appropriations heretofore made for said purposes

The first section was read and agreed to.

The second section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. POLEN offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 2, page 2, line 23, by striking out the word "may" and inserting in lieu thereof: "shall".

It was agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The third section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. POLEN offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 3, page 3, line 18, by inserting after the word "subdivision" the following: "In each case the said officer or officers shall have the same power to approve or disapprove the same as they have in case of warrants for ordinary expenses of the political subdivision, and no warrant or order for the payment thereof shall be issued without such approval."

Amend Sec. 3, page 8, by inserting between lines 11 and 12, the following: "(e) No purchase or purchases shall be made, no contract entered into, and no expenses incurred by any defense council which involves the payment of more than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) out of the treasury of any second class township, unless the proposed expenditure has been approved in writing by the township supervisors. If any purchase or contract is made, or other expenses incurred contrary to the provisions of this subsection, the township shall not be responsible for the payment thereof, but the person acting for the defense council in such transaction shall be personally liable for such payment."

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The fourth, fifth and sixth sections and title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. SARGE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, this is the first and I think the only time that I will take the floor of the House in this special session. On Tuesday of this week the Chaplain of our House prayed in a manner that warmed the cockles of my heart, and in a manner as only the Chaplain of our House can pray. I was particularly impressed when he said; "God give us men a time like this demands, strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands. Men whom the lust of office cannot kill, men whom the spoils of office cannot buy. Tall men, suncrown'd and kind, who live above the fog in public duty and in private thinking."

Mr. Speaker, as he completed his prayer I had a feeling of elation on being a Member of a House composed of two hundred and eight gentlemen such as we have in this House. I felt that at a time like this when the world is in the crisis that it is, when there is a cry for national unity, I felt glad that I could look into the faces of many of my colleagues in this House on both sides of the House and feel that they were my friends, and hold no feeling of malice towards them.

But later on that same day I was rudely shocked by a speech that was read on the floor of this House by Representative Rosenfeld of Philadelphia, and I wish to refer only to two sentences of that speech, and I quote from that speech, in which he said "Governor James acts with the honesty of a European peace pact and the sportsmanship of a Jap. He has taken a lesson from Pearl Harbor and improved on its treachery."

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I rise in humble protest that language of that kind, excoriating the Governor of this Commonwealth, should be made a part of the record of this great body, and I assure you I make this protestation without any feeling of malice or rancor or anger against anybody, but I certainly do regret that any such utterances should be made on the floor of this House.

I say to you, gentlemen, that I have no interest in the controversy that seems to have arisen between the Governor and Mr. Rosenfeld. I do not care what your views are or what mine are on this particular controversy, but I say to you that I just feel that such remarks should not be made about a public official in Pennsylvania. I say to you, and I hope that I say this with sincere honesty, without any qualification, if a Republican colleague of mine should get up on the floor of the House and make such degratory remarks about the Speaker of this House or anybody, any other Democratic official in high office, I certainly hope that I would have the sense and the Americanism and the patriotism to get up and defend that.

Mr. Speaker, at a recent dinner given for the Minority Floor Leader of this House you heard a Democrat from Virginia openly and publicly make the statement that the Governor of this Commonwealth had cooperated with the Federal Government in its request for unity and cooperation in our war effort to a greater degree than any Governor of any other state in the Union.

Gentlemen, in closing I want to say to you I care not what your political opinions are, I care not how much you may differ with the political opinions of our Governor, but I want to submit to you briefly that I regret that such statements were made on the floor of this House, and I further submit to you that the Governor of Pennsylvania is an American patriot. Thank you.

RESOLUTIONS

INDUCTION OF SELECTEES INTO SERVICE

Messrs. BOWER and HOLLAND offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 9, 1942.

Whereas, The selective service authorities have inaugurated a plan whereby selectees are inducted into service on the same day that they are given their final physical examinations; and

Whereas, This plan compels selectees to leave their homes in the morning prepared to go to camp; and

Whereas, Since more than one-third of such selectees are subsequently rejected as a result of physical defects, great embarrassment is caused to such rejected selectees through their having to apply for reinstatement in their former employment, and through their returning after farewell parties have been held and goodbys have been said to friends and relatives; and

Whereas, Certain selective service boards have proposed a more workable plan for induction whereby—(a) the selectee be sworn into service immediately on passing his final physical examination; and (b) the selectee be given ten days within which to arrange his personal and business affairs before leaving for induction centers; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly favors the adoption of this more practical plan for induction of selectees into the armed forces; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House transmit a copy of this resolution to Brigadier-General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, Washington, D. C.

NEGRO RESERVISTS IN MARINE CORPS AND COAST GUARD

Mr. JEFFERSON offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 9, 1942.

Whereas, Since December 8, 1941, this Nation has been engaged in a life and death struggle against a coalition of foreign powers; and

Whereas, The future of this country, and the fate of democracy itself, depends upon our eventual victory in this battle; and

Whereas, The successful prosecution of the present war demands that our people be completely united, and that neither man power nor machines be allowed to remain idle; and

Whereas, There has, in the past, been a failure to utilize fully the great reserve of man power available in our large and loyal negro population, and this failure has had a tendency to delay the war effort and to create certain racial misunderstandings; and

Whereas, The United States Navy Department, recognizing the foregoing considerations, has now adopted a policy whereby Negro volunteers will be accepted as reservists in the Navy Marine Corps and Coast Guard, and will eventually be assigned to man certain war ships and will be given the same ratings and pay as White enlisted men; and

Whereas, This cordial spirit of experimentation to make the maximum use of Negroes, as their capacities and abilities are developed after enlistment, will not only increase the available man power for our naval forces, but will foster and encourage a feeling of cooperation and unity among Negroes throughout the Nation; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, commends the United States Navy Department for its new and laudable policy toward the enlistment of Negroes, and further suggests that the potential benefits to be derived from this new policy and experimentation will be greatly increased if the present tentative plans to commission Negroes as officers in the naval forces are put into effect as soon as their training and capabilities warrant; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox, and to the President, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 47

Mr. BAUGHER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 47, Printer's No. 73.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 7, 1942.

Whereas, One of the vitally important governmental functions of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is the examination registration and licensure of persons seeking to engage in certain professions and occupations and

Whereas, The respective boards and commissions charged by Acts of Assembly with the duty of conducting and supervising such examination registration and licensure occupy a position of the highest responsibility and trust in protecting both the members of the general public and also those persons engaged in the professions and occupations concerned and

Whereas, In certain instances bribes have been solicited and accepted by employes of such boards for the purpose of registering or licensing persons who had taken examinations and were waiting qualification under the law to engage in the profession or occupation involved and

Whereas, Any such corrupt and illegal evasion of the legal safeguards and restrictions governing the practice of certain professions and occupations seriously endangers the general public health safety and welfare as well as destroys the public confidence in the ability of those engaging in these professions and occupations now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission shall make a careful thorough and impartial investigation of the activities of the respective boards and commissions charged by law with the duty of examining registering and licensing persons desiring to engage in certain professions and occupations for the purpose of discovering and eliminating any bribery or other illegality in such examination registration and licensure It shall be the duty of such commission to make its report to this House of Representatives as soon as possible and to take any other proper action which it may deem advisable in view of its findings The investigations and deliberations of such commission may be continued after the end of the present Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly and be it further

Resolved, That the said commission shall have power to issue subpoenas under the hand and seal of its chairman requesting and commanding any person or persons to appear before them and to answer such questions touching matters properly being inquired into by the committee and to produce such books papers records and documents as the commission may deem necessary Such subpoenas may be served upon any person and shall have the force and effect of subpoenas issued out of the courts of this Commonwealth Each member of said commission shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the commission Any person who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to testify before said commission or to produce any books papers records or documents shall be subject to the penalties provided by the laws of the Commonwealth in such cases

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Monroe permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, has this resolution been amended as stated by the gentleman from Monroe in the meeting yesterday?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. That is correct, it has been, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Referring it to the Joint State Government Commission, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. That is right.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

RESOLUTION

Mr. McINTOSH offered a resolution which was laid over for printing under the Rules.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON HOUSE BILL No. 8

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker I desire to offer the report of the Committee of Conference on House Bill No. 8.

The SPEAKER. The report will lie over for printing under the rules.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I listened with great interest to the remarks of the gentleman from Lebanon, Mr. Sarge, and I can assure him that as he feels I feel likewise that the controversy to which he made reference should have sunk to so low a level.

However, there was something else that the gentleman said that I want to elaborate on. It was a statement of a Virginia Democrat that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania had been given such a high degree of praise and that the Governor had been given such high praise for being a very cooperative person and this being a very cooperative state in the war emergency.

I had in mind one subject particularly on which I think this Commonwealth and both Houses of the legislature and the Governor have not shown any inclination to cooperate with the federal government. That is a subject that was brought to the attention of the American public over a month ago by the President of the United States. After the public was able to digest very carefully the rubber shortage and the necessity for conserving rubber and the necessity for conserving gasoline, the President then called upon the nation to make a speed limit of forty miles per hour.

I well remember, Mr. Speaker, four years ago or five years ago when the question of raising the limit to fifty miles per hour was up we had such a furious controversy, and the consensus of opinion was that we should never raise the speed limit above forty miles an hour. Now, a national emergency arises and we find it is expedient to make this reduction to forty miles an hour. At least we have been asked to do it, but I have a complaint to make with reference to both the House, the Senate and the Governor. I have the complaint to make that we did not take the initiative and introduce a measure to reduce the speed limit to forty miles an hour. I find a great deal of fault with the Governor because as in the past and presently he has shown no quality of leadership, and he has made no demand that this House or this Senate take action upon such a proposal. I think we were lax in our duty in not doing it and I think that the Governor of the State, as the chief head of the state government, should have done something about it or he should have insisted that we take some action.

However, we are now in the closing days of the Special Session called mostly as a war purpose proposition, and yet we find that the House and the Senate have not done a thing to enact legislation to put the state and the people of the Commonwealth on notice that forty miles an hour was a safe speed, a sane speed and a saving speed.

I think that we should examine our own actions very carefully and I think we should condemn ourselves for not having taken the time or the trouble or had the foresight to have done something in time to have gone along with the President on this important matter.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I am particularly interested in the statement of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen. He must have either read our minds over here on this side or he must have gotten a little message from one of those birdies that told him what we have been busy about in this corner in the last fifteen or twenty minutes—the very subject upon which the gentleman has just spoken. I did not know that he could add to his other qualifications that of mind reading or a sort of presentiment of things that are going to happen.

In the first place let me say to you this, that I disagree with the gentleman from Philadelphia when he says that the Governor should have taken the leadership in insisting upon this House doing something. One of the things the Governor and I have been in very hearty accord on since he was elected in 1938 was the fact that the executive should not force himself upon legislative bodies to insist upon anything. We are a coordinate branch of the government, the responsibility lies with us and if we do not perform our duty we have no right to blame anybody else.

There is a bill in the Senate, in which the speed limit is reduced to forty miles an hour and I thought it was rather unwise. There may be necessity for raising the speed limit, but if you fix it hard and fast now, if we find between now and 1943 we want to raise the speed limit, we would be in bad shape. That is one of the things the Governor had in mind when he proposed emergency powers for the Governor. The legislature disagreed with him on that issue. Therefore, you can hardly blame him if he is not able to handle the matter, which is one of the matters that seems to me will require emergency powers to be granted to somebody to suspend laws at times.

However, the feeling in the Senate, as I am advised, is this, that it might be unwise to absolutely fix by law the speed limit at forty miles per hour. I think if the gentleman from Philadelphia is so concerned about it and he can get his Democratic colleagues to go along we might pass a resolution saying to the Governor if he reduces the speed limit to forty miles an hour the Legislature will back him up in such instances where he deems it wise and necessary to reduce the speed limit, but on the other hand to make it a hard and fast rule seems to me to be very unwise. Mr. Speaker, I can say legislatively that I can see no way around it except to give the power to the Governor to reduce the speed limit or to change it within limits of maybe fifty miles or whatever ceiling you place on the speed limit for the use of the automobiles on the highways.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. RUSH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, coming from a city on the Delaware River where there is quite a bit of shipping, where there are a number of ships sailing, I am particularly interested in some of the citizens of the city of Chester as well as the rest of the Commonwealth and nation. We have many men from Chester who have lost their lives in the last few months by submarine warfare carried on along the Atlantic coast. Many men ship from the city of Chester on oil tankers, cargo ships, and in a good many instances these ships are not armed in any way. They are absolutely helpless against submarines which are plying the waters off the Atlantic coast. As I say a number of those men have been killed, many lives have been lost and in a good many instances the submarine after sinking the ship has machine gunned the life boats and has killed those sailors. They were absolutely helpless.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer a resolution and ask for its immediate consideration.

RESOLUTION

HEROES OF THE SEA

Mr. RUSH offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 9, 1942.

Whereas, The treacherous axis allies have been plying an undersea attack in waters off the Atlantic coast for the past months; and

Whereas, Our newspapers have carried numerous accounts of the heroism and martyrdom of the civilian seamen who have been aboard torpedoed tankers, freight or passenger carrying ships; and

Whereas, These men just as those in our military forces, have risked their lives in the service of this country and have undergone tribulations which try men's souls with the fortitude and courage of our forefathers; be it therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives pause in its deliberations to pay tribute to these unsung heroes of the sea, and to express to them or to their survivors the great thanks of the citizens of this Commonwealth for their inspired efforts in this time of holocaust.

The SPEAKER. Will the Members please rise and remain standing until seated by the Speaker in tribute to our armed forces pursuant to the resolution just adopted.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 48

Mr. SARRAF. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 48, Printer's No. 70.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 7, 1942.

Whereas, It is a matter of common medical knowledge that the inoculation of children for the prevention of contagious diseases has greatly reduced the spread of such diseases and minimized the probability of epidemics; and

Whereas, It is not generaly known that such inoculation become ineffective after varying periods of time depending upon the type of inoculation; and

Whereas, Shortages and the consequent rationing of vital food and materials needed for the better protection of the health and safety of the children and the residents of this Commonwealth during the present emergency may occasion a lowering of the necessary standards required for adequate health protection and the consequent epidemics of children's diseases created thereby; and

Whereas, In the prosecution of the present war any attack suffered in the defense of our country may damage and destroy public utility systems which are vital to the health and sanitation of the residents of this Commonwealth such damage or destruction having proved to be the forerunner of epidemics of contagious diseases; and

Whereas, Inoculation against such contagious diseases and reinoculation after certain periods of time would aid in preventing the probability and the spread of such epidemics; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives does hereby request the Department of Public Instruction in cooperation with the Department of Health of this Commonwealth to educate and make known to the school children of this Commonwealth and their parents the need for the inoculation and reinoculation of such children for the purpose of preventing the probability and the spread of epidemics of contagious diseases particularly in view of the possible curtailment of vital health facilities because of the present emergency; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Secretary of Health.

On the question,
Will the House adopt the resolution?
It was adopted.

RESOLUTION

STREET CAR AND BUS FARES

Messrs. LEONARD and BAKER offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 9, 1942.

Whereas, The serious rubber shortage resulting from the present war has caused many persons to resort to other modes of transportation than their own automobiles; and

Whereas, The use of street cars and buses in the City of Pittsburgh and in many other localities of the Commonwealth has increased so suddenly and so greatly that the capacities of such modes of transportation have been exceeded; and

Whereas, Any plan whereby the number of passengers using buses and street cars at certain peak periods could be evenly distributed would be of great benefit; and

Whereas, The adoption of a reduced bus or street car fare for certain slack hours would undoubtedly serve to persuade large numbers of shoppers and other casual passengers to do their traveling upon street cars and buses during such slack periods, therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the General Assembly that the Public Utility Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be requested to fix reduced street car and bus fares to be in effect during cering certain slack hours as a means of distributing more evenly the street car and bus travel in the City of Pittsburgh or in any other locality where the public transportation facilities have become overburdened to such an extent that the authorities involved feel it necessary to seek such reduced rates; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the members of the Public Utility Commission.

SENATE MESSAGE

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL No. 41

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate insists on its concurrence in the amendments made and insisted upon by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill No. 41, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the fifth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six (P. L. 2897, 1937) entitled, "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies, with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis, requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons, providing procedure and administrative details for the determination, payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation, providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies, creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties," changing the provisions thereof and the rights, obligations and procedure thereunder.

And has appointed Messrs. Heyburn, Becker and McQuiddy a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such committee) on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL No. 41

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist upon its amendments nonconcurred in by the Senate and that a Committee of Conference be appointed.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints as a Committee of Conference Messrs. REUBEN E. COHEN, O'NEIL and WALTER E. ROSE.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, in the absence of Mr. Rose, who asked for leave of absence today, and who I understand is away if it is necessary for that Committee to meet in the early part of the day, he will be back later, —but as the matter stands now, we will have to make a substitution for Mr. Rose, and I would ask that the gentleman from Lebanon, Mr. Sarge, be substituted.

The SPEAKER. The Chair withdraws his appointment to the Committee of Conference on the part of the House of the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rose, if there is no objection, and the Chair hears none, appoints in his place the gentleman from Lebanon, Mr. SARGE.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

BILLS SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bills numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor, and the same being correct, the titles were publicly read as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 26.

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article eight, section eleven, of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

SENATE BILL No. 42.

An Act to suspend and modify existing laws providing for and requiring the use of plates or tags as evidence of registration of any vehicle or payment of any license or registration fee or compliance with any other legal requirement insofar as such laws require the use of plates or tags manufactured of metal or the display on plates or tags of the year number for which issued and by authorizing the use of other material in whole or in part.

Whereupon,
The SPEAKER, in the presence of the House, signed the same.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. McINTOSH. RESOLUTION No. 51.

In the House of Representatives, April 9, 1942.

Whereas, It is the duty of the Department of Health and the Bureau of Vital Statistics, under the provisions of the acts, approved the 7th day of June, 1915, P. L. 900, and the 9th day of April, 1929, P. L. 177, to supply certified copies of the birth records maintained by the Department of Health upon payment of the prescribed fees; and

Whereas, During recent years, persons requesting certified copies of their birth records have experienced great difficulty and delay in securing them with reasonable promptness; and

Whereas, A committee of this House of Representatives, appointed May 28th, 1941, conducted an investigation into the apparent inability of the Department of Health and Bureau of Vital Statistics to perform properly their duties in this respect; and

Whereas, The entrance of our country into war, following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7th, 1941, with the consequent necessity for an increase in our armed forces and for closer supervision over enemy aliens, has greatly increased the demand upon the Department of Health and Bureau of Vital Statistics for birth certificates; and

Whereas, Regardless of the aforementioned investigation and the greatly increased importance for the prompt issuance of birth certificates, the difficulty in promptly securing such birth certificates has not been eliminated; and

Whereas, The measure of promptness in the issuance of birth certificates more than ever directly affects defense industries and the prosecution of the war; now therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the General Assembly, That the Joint State Government Commission, under the powers and duties conferred on it by Act of Assembly, is hereby dircted to make a study of the functions and procedures of the Bureau of Vital Statistics to the end that appropriate remedies may be inaugurated which will expedite the work of the bureau; and be it further

Resolved, That the Department of Health, Bureau of Vital Statistics and any other department or person shall promptly furnish the Joint State Government Commission any information which said Commission deems pertinent to this study; and be it also further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission shall make a report of this study, with recommendations, at the earliest possible date, to the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to the Secretary of Health of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to the Chief of the Bureau of Vital Statistics, and also that such report and recommendations shall be made to this House at the next session of the General Assembly.

Referred to the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation.

RECESS

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair is about to declare a recess until 4:30 p. m. Is ther objection? The Chair hears none and a recess is declared.

AFTER RECESS

The House reconvened at 4:30 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON HOUSE BILL No. 68

Mr. SARRAF. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the report of the Committee of Conference on House Bill No. 68.

The SPEAKER. The report will lie over for printing under the rules.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I asked for leave of absence, if necessary, from today's session. I was home and took care of the part that was necessary and I am back now for the Session. I would like to relinquish my right to any further leave of absence. I would like to check in and if possible I would like a room with running hot water.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman desire a three dollar and a half or a five dollar room,

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I will take what I get.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will check in.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTION ON HOUSE BILL No. 41

The SPEAKER. For the information of the Members of the House Senate Bill No. 41, Printer's No. 68, is still on the Speaker's desk. This is the unemployment compensation bill. Due to the absence of the gentleman from Cambria this morning, at Mr. Turner's request the Chair appointed to the Conference Committee the gentlemen from Lebanon, Mr. Sarge. If there is no objection the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Walter E. Rose, will be appointed to the conference committee on the part of the House to take the place of Mr. Sarge. The Chair hears no objection and the appointment is made.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Amend Sec. 5, page 3, line 27, by inserting after the word "city's" the following: "or county's".

Amend Sec. 5, page 4, line 3, by inserting after the word "city" the following: "or county".

Amend Sec. 5, page 4, line 4, by inserting after the word "city's" the following: "or county's".

Amend Sec. 5, page 4, line 4, by inserting after the word "city" the following: "or county".

Amend Sec. 5, page 4, line 6, by inserting after the word "city's" the following: "or county's".

Amend Sec. 5, page 4, line 9, by inserting after the word "city" the following: "or county".

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended lie over for printing.

CONGRATULATORY RESOLUTION

Messrs. OWENS and CHERVENAK offered a resolution which was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 9, 1942.

The Honorable Albert L. O'Connor, a member of this House, was born on a farm in Jenners Township, Somerset County, where the maple sugar comes from, on April 8, 1893, the son of John R. and Magdalena (Grasser) O'Connor.

Through modesty on the part of the gentleman from Cambria County, his birth was allowed to pass by this House unnoticed. However, by a happy coincidence his colleagues from the Second District of Cambria County, all who range in the same age group, take this occasion to call to the attention of the House the natal anniversary of our colleague.

Popularly known as "Al" back in Cambria County, Assemblyman O'Connor attended the Jenners Township grade school, later attending St. Francis College, Loretto, where he was graduated with a degree of A. B., taught school at the age of seventeen and later was admitted to the bar of Cambria County. A member of this House for four terms, Mr. O'Connor likewise has taken an active part in county politics.

Since we missed his natal day therefore let it be now

Resolved, That on this belated occasion of his birthday his fellow members of the House extend to the Honorable Albert L. O'Connor their heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a great many more such days; and be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be presented by the Chief Clerk to Mr. O'Connor.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. O'Connor.

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, and Members of the House, I desire to express my sincere appreciation to you for passing this resolution and I also desire to thank my colleagues for getting awake twenty-four hours late.

Before leaving home Monday I said to my good wife that I could not let this Special Session pass without taking the floor and speaking on some worthy subject. However, I did not think at that time that it would be about my own anniversary. I wish that the Members of the House would take, not their last look, but one good look at me and they will see what the proper use of Somerset County maple syrup will do and produce.

I have had the pleasure and privilege of spending most of my anniversaries in this House since I celebrated my fortieth anniversary here, and inasmuch as my good friends and worthy colleagues and I have no opposition at the Primaries, I hope and feel confident that we will be here next year when we will have the Golden Jubilee.

The SPEAKER. For information of the Members the old gentleman and I are the same age.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 105, (Senate Bill No. 60), as follows:

An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limits the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of over weight and over length vehicles in the actual transportation of materials and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1. In order to facilitate and expedite the movement and transportation over the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth of materials articles and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war in which the United States is now engaged and to remove any legal impediment that might interfere therewith the Secretary of the Department of Highways in his discretion is hereby authorized to issue for such periods as deemed advisable a permit or permits in writing to the owner or owners of vehicles or combinations of vehicles for the use and operation of overweight or oversized vehicles or combinations of vehicles on such routes over the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth as the Secretary of the Department of Highways may designate upon presentation of an application showing that such movement of overweight or oversized vehicles or combinations of vehicles is necessary in the interests of national defense Provided however That no such permit shall be issued for any vehicle or combinations of vehicles that are not actually engaged in the movement of materials necessary for the prosecution of the war.

Section 2. The provisions of this act shall remain in force only during the continuance of any war in which the United States is now engaged and for a period of sixty days thereafter.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

Ordered, That the Clerk return it to the Senate with information that the House has passed it with amendments in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

REASONS FOR VOTE

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER filed the following reasons for his vote:

I have voted "yes" for Senate Bill No. 60 because I strongly feel that this measure will aid our present war effort. Transportation facilities are heavily burdened and the future holds forth no prospect of a lightening of the load but on the contrary it is most probable that the load will increase. Accordingly, I feel that trucks and other methods of transportation should be allowed to carry larger burdens, within the bounds of safety, with the hope and a fervent prayer that by so doing, our nation's ultimate glorious victory will be hastened.

RESOLUTION

LOWER MERION TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL TEAM CONGRATULATED

Mr. CADWALADER offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 8, 1942.

Whereas, The Lower Merion Township High School has again triumphed over all its opponents in the realm of sports by again being crowned the championship high school basketball team in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; and

Whereas, The citizens of Montgomery County are proud of the achievements of this high school in both the scholastic and athletic domains; and

Whereas, The House of Representatives is among the first to recognize the outstanding achievements of any educational institution in the State School System, be it therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives congratulates the members of the winning basketball team of the Lower Merion Township High School, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the Principal of the high school.

SENATE MESSAGE

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL No. 65

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate insists on its nonconcurrence in the amendments made and insisted upon by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill No. 65, entitled:

An Act to amend section twenty-one as amended of the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred and fifteen (Pamphlet Laws nine hundred) entitled "An act to provide for the immediate registration of all births and deaths throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by means of certificates of births and deaths and burial or removal permits requiring prompt returns to the Central Bureau of Vital Statistics as required to be established by the State Department of Health and in order to secure prompt and faithful registration of births marriages deaths and diseases of practitioners of medicine and surgery or midwives nurses and undertakers and of all persons whose occupation is deemed to be of importance in obtaining complete registration of births deaths marriages and diseases throughout the State as provided in section ten of an act entitled 'An act creating the Department of Health and defining its powers and duties' approved the twenty-seventh day of April nineteen hundred and five and providing penalties for violations of this act" by further regulating the giving of certified copies of birth certificates to soldiers sailors and marines and war nurses.

And has appointed Messrs. Miller, Mallory and Coleman a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such committee) on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL No. 65

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist on its amendments nonconcurred in by the Senate and that a Committee of Conference be appointed.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints as a Committee of Conference Messrs. HEATHERINGTON, YESTER and VANALLSBURG.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Mr. ACHTERMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order House Bill No. 98, (Senate Bill No. 64), Printer's No. 48, on page 1 of today's calendar, bill on second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 98, (Senate Bill No. 64), entitled:

A Supplement to the act approved March eleventh, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, entitled "An act to provide for the expenses of the Extraordinary Session of the Legislature assembled February seventeenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two in pursuance of the proclamation of the Governor of the Commonwealth dated February tenth, one thousand nine hundred forty-two, and the supplement thereto."

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. ACHTERMAN offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1, page 3, by inserting after line 6, the following: "For the payment of the mileage of the officers and employes of the House of Representatives, the sum of seven hundred dollars ($700)."

Amend Sec. 1, page 3, by inserting after line 6, the following:

To the President Pro Tempore of the Senate

For the payment of contingent expenses, including clerical, stenographic, traveling and discretionary charges of the President Pro Tempore during the balance of the year one thousand nine hundred forty-two, the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) or as much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended by him for investigating and studying plans, methods and systems for liberalization of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide benefits for partial unemployment.

To the Speaker of the House of Representatives

For the payment of contingent expenses, including clerical, stenographic, traveling and discretionary charges of the Speaker of the House of Representatives during the balance of the year one thousand nine hundred forty-two, the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) or as much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended by him for investigating and studying plans, methods and systems for liberalization of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide benefits for partial unemployment.

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. ACHTERMAN asked and obtained permission for the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation to meet during the session of the House.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. NAGEL, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, House Resolution No. 51.

Mr. SHAFFER, from the Select Committee on Special Session Legislation, reported as committed, Senate Concurrent Resolution Serial No. 108.

SENATE MESSAGE

RESOLUTION FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, April 8, 1942.

Whereas, The United States is now engaged in what would appear to be a long and devastating world war; and

Whereas, To save the Republic is the solemn desire and sincere purpose of every true American; and

Whereas, The American people are being admonished daily to sacrifice and constantly urged by those in authority to return to the practice of strict economy; and

Whereas, Economy in government is vitally essential to its preservation and should at all times be practiced and particularly during periods of national stress and war; and

Whereas, Waste, inefficiency, indolence, and disintegration are in existence, in various forms and degrees, in almost every branch and department of our government; and

Whereas, To locate and eliminate these evils is the patriotic duty of every loyal citizen, especially those paid servants of the people employed as law makers in these legislative halls; therefore, to that end, be it

Resolved, That, if the House of Representatives concurs, a Committee, consisting of three Senators, appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, and three Members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, be created, to investigate and explore, impartially and fearlessly, all departments, boards, and agencies of the Commonwealth, including, if advisable, Counties, Cities, Boroughs, Townships, and School Districts, for the purpose of ascertaining whether waste, inefficiency, indolence or disintegration are present, and if so, to study ways and means of eradicating and/or correcting the same, and to make report to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth at its regular meeting in January 1943, with its recommendations.

Such Committee shall have the power to compel the appearance of witnesses and the production of books, papers and records, and to issue proper subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, records, and any and all other writings deemed necessary for the fulfillment of the duties prescribed by this resolution.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

RESOLUTION

Messrs. HAINES and CADWALADER offered a resolution which was referred to the Committee on Rules.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. CADWALADER and HAINES.

RESOLUTION No. 52.

In the House of Representatives, April 9, 1942.

Whereas, The membership of the House patiently sits through the reading of resolutions, some good and some otherwise; and

Whereas, In past sessions resolutions have been introduced asking the Governor to submit the names of all married women on the State payroll, to endorse egg festivals, to register all lobbyists, to proclaim the three hundred and sixty-five days of the year, exclusive of leap years, as somebody's day, respectively, and to congratulate a member on having a birthday, a sweetheart, a wife, or an heir (of course, this could not refer to the same member during the same session); and

Whereas, Such resolutions, while important, are nevertheless, slightly onerous; be it therefore

Resolved, That the Rules of the House be amended so that all resolutions, except those of condolence, be accepted only after a filing fee of five dollars has been paid to the Chief Clerk of the House; and be it further

Resolved, That the said fees so collected be held in trust by the Chief Clerk of the House until the close of the session, at which time the fund so realized shall be distributed to the Red Cross.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Mr. SHAFFER asked and obtained unanimous consent to have four sponsors on a condolence resolution.

Messrs. SHAFFER, GOODWIN, HEATHERINGTON and MORAN offered a resolution which was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 9, 1942.

Whereas, The House has learned with profound sorrow of the passing of Peter C. Yester, an uncle of the Hon. William J. Yester, a member of this House, at his home in McKeesport, Pennsylvania; and

Whereas, Peter C. Yester devoted his life to improving the civic affairs of his community; and

Whereas, He enjoyed a splendid reputation as a business man in his community, where for a period of over fifty years he was engaged in the vocation of jeweler and optician, be it therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives pauses in its deliberations to pay tribute to the memory of this distinguished citizen of this Commonwealth; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the Family of the deceased, thereby conveying the membership's profound sympathy for them in their great bereavement.

SENATE MESSAGES

HOUSE BILLS CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bills from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 69.

An Act to further amend section two of the act approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600), entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes, employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service, or by any department, bureau, commission, or office thereof, or by any county, municipality, township, or school district, shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment, enrollment, or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof, in time of war or contemplated war; prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy; directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives, children, or parents, and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum, be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents; authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes, respectively, and providing for the compensation of such substitutes," by providing for the payment into the School Employes' Retirement Fund of certain amounts of the salaries or wages of certain officers or employes under certain circumstances.

HOUSE BILL No. 71.

A Supplement to the act, approved the eighteenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 1043), entitled "An act establishing a public school employes' retirement system, and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof; establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonwealth and contributing employes, defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner of payments therefrom, and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds; imposing powers and duties upon boards having the employment of public school employes; exempting annuities, allowances, returns, benefits, and rights from taxation and judicial process; and providing penalties," defining the rights and obligations of certain members of the School Employes' Retirement Association engaged in active military service.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

AMENDED SENATE BILL NONCONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has nonconcurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 60.

An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limits the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of over weight and over length vehicles in the actual transportation of materials and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL No. 60

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist on its amendments nonconcurred in by the Senate and that a Committee of Conference be appointed.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints as a Committee of Conference Messrs. McCLANAGHAN, BAUGHER and MUIR.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

SENATE MESSAGE

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL No. 46

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate insists on its nonconcurrence in the amendments made and insisted upon by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill No. 46, entitled:

An Act to suspend for a limited time the operation of laws regulating or relating to the movement loading lightering docking and anchorage of vessels carrying or having on board certain explosives insofar as the same relate to the handling or stowing of small arms ammunition or ammunition which contains the projectile and the explosive in one container or shell to from or in such vessels docking or anchoring in the Delaware River and its navigable tributaries.

And has appointed Messrs. Senator Cox in lieu of Senator Stiefel, on the committee of conference to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representatives on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Stream Pollution Study Committee will hold a hearing with Dr. Stewart, Secretary of the Board of Health and Mr. Stewart, Secretary of Forests and Waters on Friday, April 10, 1942 at 10:30 a. m. in the Old House Caucus Room (third floor).

ADJOURNMENT

The motion was agreed to, and (at 6:40 p. m.) the House adjourned.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Extraordinary Session of 1942.

Vol. 26. HARRISBURG, PA., FRIDAY, APRIL 10, 1942. No. 27.

SENATE

FRIDAY, April 10, 1942

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock p. m. E.W.T.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

In the absence of the Chaplain, the Rev. FRANK W. RUTH, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, Our Heavenly Father, as we come to the close of this session, we thank Thee for the opportunity which Thou hast given to us to render service. We pray that Thou wilt bless the good that we have done and forgive what we have done amiss.

As we return to our homes and to our usual occupations, we know there are going to be many opportunities to serve. We pray that Thou wilt give us the courage and the faith that we may serve our fellow men in the spirit of the poet who said:

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road
Where the race of men go by
The men who are good and the men who are bad
As good and as bad as I.
I would not sit in the scorner's seat
Nor hurl the cynic's ban.
Let me live in a house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man."

So we commit ourselves into Thy hands and we ask Thee to guide us. Use us to bring glory to Thy name and honor to the people of our state. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. JAMES and Mr. GELTZ, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL No. 65

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I am directed by the Committee of Conference to make a report on Senate Bill No. 65, entitled:

An Act to amend section twenty-one as amended, of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen (P. L. 900), entitled "An act to provide for the immediate registration of all births and deaths throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by means of certificates of births and deaths, and burial or removal permits; requiring prompt returns to the Central Bureau of Vital Statistics, as required to be established by the State Department of Health; and, in order to secure prompt and faithful registration of births, marriages, deaths, and diseases of practioners of medicine, and surgery, or midwives, nurses, and undertakers, and of all persons whose occupation is deemed to be of importance in obtaining complete registration of births, deaths, marriages, and diseases throughout the State, as provided in section ten of an act, entitled 'An act creating the Department of Health and defining its powers and duties,' approved the twenty-seventh day of April, nineteen hundred and five, and providing penalties for violations of this act," by further regulating the giving of certified copies of birth certificates to soldiers, sailors and marines and war nurses.

The PRESIDENT. The report will lie over for printing.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL No. 46

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, on behalf of the conferees on Senate Bill No. 46, relating to explosives, I present the report of the Conference Committee which is unanimous.

I want to call the attention of the Senators to the fact that this report was signed last night and has been printed, and in printing, Number 73, I am sorry to say two lines were left out by the printer, and that correction will have to be made in a reprinting.

The report on Senate Bill No. 46, entitled:

An Act to suspend for a limited time the operation of laws regulating or relating to the movement loading lightering docking and anchorage of vessels carrying or having on board certain explosive insofar as the same relate to the handling or stowing of small arms ammunition or ammunition which contains the projectile and the explosive in one container or shell to from or in such vessel docking or anchoring in the Delaware River and its navigable tributaries.

The PRESIDENT. The report will lie over for printing.

COMMITTEE TO NOTIFY THE GOVERNOR THAT THE SENATE IS READY TO ADJOURN SINE DIE

Mr. MILLER offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, April 10, 1942

Resolved, That a Committee of three members of the Senate, be appointed to wait upon his Excellency, the Governor, and inform him that the Senate is now ready to adjourn sine die, and inquire if he has any further communications to make.

COMMITTEE TO NOTIFY THE HOUSE THAT THE SENATE IS READY TO ADJOURN SINE DIE

Mr. MALLERY offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, April 10, 1942

Resolved, That a Committee of two Senators be appointed to notify the House of Representatives that the Senate is now ready to adjourn sine die.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, I rise on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will proceed.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, George Sand, the famous author, is quoted as saying in Consuello, "I am only man, and breathe and live for man." Ralph Waldo Emerson is quoted as saying: "Great men live so that greater men may come."

So I characterize Albert Reed, our Senator from Washington County, Pennsylvania. Senator Reed is ready to leave the political arena, after having served eight years in the Senate. It is our loss and I must express my deep regrets. During my acquaintance with him, he has exhibited traits unusual in men attached to the political game; he has demonstrated strength of character and sincerity of purpose. His character and his sincerity of purpose have been as constant as the rising and the setting of the sun. He is honest, intelligent, courageous. Often in fighting for a principle he has relegated politics to the ash heap. No one could ever impugn or attack his motives, his integrity or honesty. In fighting for a principle, he has fought in the true American way, clean and hard, and always above the belt, and in fighting he has shown other traits, uncommon to the average man, namely, consideration and understanding.

Albert Reed, you have been true blue and as time goes on we will keenly feel your loss as a Senator. You have performed an excellent job; keep up the good work in other fields. I sincerely hope that sooner or later you will return to the political arena; we need men of your caliber.

Gentlemen, I could go on extolling his virtues, but you know him, you understand him. If ever there was a man, he is one. Yes, he has been true to his conscience, true to you, and above all, true to his country.

Apropos of his public character, I conclude with the words of John G. Holland.

GIVE US MEN

"God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands,
Men whom the love of office can not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office can not buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking!
Tall men, sun crowned who live above a fog
In public duty, and in private thinking—
For while the rabble with their thumb-worn creeds
Their large professions and their little deeds,
Mingle in selfish strife, lo! Freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land and waiting justice sleeps!"

Albert Reed, we wish you Godspeed.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I am very glad to join in the tribute to the gentleman from Washington, Senator Reed, that has been given by the Senator from Philadelphia, and I would like to be understood as underwriting all that the gentleman from Philadelphia has said with reference to the character and ideals that the Senator from Washington has brought into his work.

There is another of our colleagues, Mr. President, to whom we say good-bye; He has been called by the people of his community for another service, and because of that other service, he will no longer be with us.

Senator Robert M. Miller, of Luzerne County, has been a member of this Senate for four years. We have all enjoyed him as a colleague, we have found him a man of honor, we have found him a man of precision, in the study he has made of legislation, and in certain branches of military work he has rendered a distinct service to this Commonwealth, which we are glad now to acknowledge.

On this side of the House, we felt it was appropriate that Senator Miller should carry into his new duties something which would commemorate the friendships he has formed in this Senate. Therefore, on behalf of the Senators, I have the pleasure of presenting to him this wrist watch. This does not mean necessarily that he needs this watch in order to fulfill his engagements, but I remind him of a story. After the Civil War, when General Lee was discussing General Grant, who was the opponent that finally defeated him, General Lee made the remark that of all the generals he has faced, Grant was the only one who had the art of making his battles meet scheduled time.

So I say to you, Senator Miller, this wrist watch is presented to you with the regard, respect, and affection of your colleagues in the Senate, with the sincere hope that all of the battles in which you are engaged may keep to their scheduled time.

Good luck to you.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, my distinguished colleague from Montgomery County, and fellow Senators, I wish to express my most heart felt appreciation of the kind remarks just rendered by Senator Edmonds, because I know they are sincere.

It is sometimes regrettable that in one's life he is called upon to make a decision, and such was my lot. When I was proposed as a candidate for county controller in Luzerne County, I thought and pondered over the point as to whether or not I would stand to run, feeling quite definite that if it were my desire to again aspire to be privileged to serve in this august body that I could have done so, but after due consideration I made a decision which has made it impossible for me to return.

I want to say, Mr. President, that I have enjoyed my experience here. I have been privileged to be a member of many organizations, I have attended school, prep school and college, I have served in the armed forces and I have met a great many people, but this group with whom I have been privileged to serve for the past four years will stand out in my mind as the greatest group of individuals it has ever been my pleasure to have been associated with, and I shall cherish the friendships I have made here for years to come.

I want to thank my colleagues for this fine gift and say that as I wear it with pride, that every tick of this watch will remind me of the splendid associations I have enjoyed here in the Senate.

I thank you.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE SENATE

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a brief statement.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Montgomery will proceed.

Mr. EDMONDS. During past sessions of the Senate, I have always felt that it was a mistake for members of the Senate to express their opinions too freely concerning national questions and national issues, and sometimes I have felt that we spend more time upon them than we did upon state matters.

I want to say, however, that personally I have reached this conclusion, which is a conclusion that is forced upon me by the disaster to the American Army in the Philippine Islands, that the time has now come when men who have opinions on this subject should express those opinions in any form they can.

I want to quote the words of Woodrow Wilson, who was the last war president of the United States. When some one said to him people of the opposing party ought not to criticize you, you represent the nation, Woodrow Wilson replied by saying, we do not need less criticism in time of war but more; it is to be hoped that the criticism will be constructive, but better unfair attack than indifference.

To that opinion of Woodrow Wilson, Mr. President, I subscribe, and if it shall please the people of Montgomery County to send me back again to this Senate, then, Mr. President, I want to give fair notice of the fact that there are certain questions relating to national life on which we of the Senate have a right to express ourselves and I hope we will do it.

I have in my hand here a copy of the Atlantic Monthly for April, the first article in which is entitled "Team work in Washington," written by Wayne Coy, who occupies a prominent position under the President in Washington, and who is a well known advocate of the New Deal. I quote from the first paragraph of his article, that this is the best administration that has ever lost a great war, and it seems to me the facts he gives in his article justify the thought that attention should be directed to certain matters and certain questions in which there is a lack of team work at the present time. He directs attention to the fact that while the Dutch East Indies, Port of Soerabaga was under attack by the Japanese an American vessel arrived, and when that American vessel arrived the people there thought with great joy they were getting relief from America, but it turned out that vessel was carrying thousands of empty beer bottles which had previously been ordered and for which the permit and shipping arrangements for their export had been made months before the war broke out in the Far East.

The lack of teamwork which allowed that American vessel to be used for that kind of purpose, when there is need of American vessels to carry relief to American armies, is to my mind an illustration of the fact that there is chaos in certain departments in Washington, and I merely want to say now to my friends of the Senate that if I shall be returned to this body, it will seem to me to be only my duty to direct the attention of the Senators to certain attributes of federal legislation and federal administration which are not helping us to win the war, and in order that we may win the war, which is the first effort of us all, we have a right to criticize and to make that criticism as forceful as we can.

I think I will not quote another story that I heard concerning Washington, but I will comment very frankly concerning certain things that are being recommended to us at this time relating to national affairs—I refer particularly to a bill that has been referred to committee providing for the cession of certain ground in Delaware County for the purpose of erecting a forge. That ground, it ceded to the Federal Government in order to make its use possible by the Federal Government, is free from taxation in this state, but the cession of that land, or giving it away, would not only make a hole in the lines of our counties, but put us in a position where after the war is over we would find ourselves seriously handicapped.

On the question as to what may happen to that land, I call attention of the Senators to the fact that years ago there was a mint in Philadelphia at Juniper and Chestnut Streets, and that mint was on ground ceded by the state to the United States Government, and then the United States Government decided that it wanted another mint at Seventeenth and Spring Garden Streets. They bought the ground for it and announced that the site at Juniper and Chestnut Streets, one of the most valuable sites in Philadelphia, was for sale; eventually a group was organized to buy it, and they bought it for one million dollars; they paid down one hundred thousand dollars and made a contract whereby they were to pay one hundred thousand dollars a year for nine years, title to remain in the government as security; and the result was that for nine years no taxes could be collected from that valuable site, although it was not used by the Federal Government during that time, but was just awaiting completion of the sale. The Supreme Court decided it was legal.

That is just illustrative of the difficulty that comes to us if we give our land too freely into the control of the Federal Government, and if any of the gentlemen on the other side want to ask me who profited by that transaction, it will be a pleasure to tell them it was George H. Earle, Jr., and the four hundred thousand dollars that he got out of the City of Philadelphia by avoiding paying taxes on that site is part of the fortune that is now being administered by his successor. We do not want that to again happen in Pennsylvania.

We know very well that the Federal Government has secured thousands of acres of land in this state—I think you will find it is about thirteen thousand acres, timber land—secured for the purpose of reenforcing the paper supply. I do not want to see that land ceded to the Federal Government so that it may be taken out of the taxing control of the local government when the time comes that the necessity is over.

As these questions arise, affecting ourselves, personally as I learn about them, I expect to bring them to the attention of the Senate. It seems to me that the time has passed for us to be close-mouthed on questions relating to the policy of the national government; the time has come when everyone truly democratic must unite in order to put out his best in order that the country may win, and if we have made a bad start in the Philippine Islands, let us hope that is another Bull Run that will be followed a little bit later on with an Appomattox.

HOUSE MESSAGE

HOUSE INSISTS UPON ITS AMENDMENTS NON-CONCURRED IN BY THE SENATE TO SENATE BILL No. 60 AND APPOINTS COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented communication from the House of Representatives informing the Senate that the House insists upon its amendments non-concurred in by the Senate to Senate Bill No. 60, entitled:

An Act to modify existing law of the the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limit the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways of the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of over-weight and over-length vehicles in certain cases.

and has appointed Messrs. McClanahan, Baugher and Muir as a Committee of Conference to confer with a similar committee of the Senate (if the Senate shall appoint such committee) to consider the differences existing between the two houses in relation to said bill.

SENATE INSISTS UPON ITS NON-CONCURRENCE IN AMENDMENTS BY THE HOUSE TO SENATE BILL No. 60 AND APPOINTS COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate insists upon its non-concurrence in the amendments made by the House to Senate Bill No. 60, and that a committee of Conference be appointed on the part of the Senate.

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. The President Pro Tempore appoints Messrs. Wade, Snowden and Barr to be said committee on the part of the Senate, and that the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

INTRODUCTION TO THE SENATE OF LIEUTENANT SAM LUMPKIN, SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE, STATE OF MISSISSIPPI

The PRESIDENT. The Chair has the honor and the privilege to present to the Senate Lieutenant Sam Lumpkin, Speaker of the House of the State of Mississippi. Lieutenant Lumpkin.

Lieutenant Lumpkin. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I am happy indeed to have the honor and the opportunity to visit the great historical State of Pennsylvania. In all of my travels, I do not believe that I have ever been in a State House more beautiful than the one you have in Pennsylvania.

In the 1940 Session of the Mississippi Legislature, I undertook to model some Mississippi legislation from some Pennsylvania legislation, by introducing a conservation law which was modeled from the Pennsylvania set up, but that bill put too much oil and gas and fish together, and patronage and economy, and therefore the boys defeated it.

I think I will tell this story—I know you are busy and this is your last day, and I certainly will not take up your time, but I would like to tell this story which happened to be in my first session as Presiding Officer of the House in Mississippi.

A very distinguished old gentleman was a member for his first term; He sat quietly at his desk, he had never lit a cigar nor a cigarette nor a pipe, never picked up a newspaper to read, he had never made a motion, he had never made a speech, he never made one iota of noise, the quietest old gentleman I have ever known in my life, and you know, a Presiding Officer certainly has respect for that kind of a man, and so, during one of the closing days of the session there was up for consideration the adoption of a conference report, and it was very bitter. You know, down in Mississippi, way back in about 1861, 1862, or 1863, somewhere around there, somebody thought that it was unwise to have two political parties, and so they just abolished the Republican Party down in Mississippi, but we have just as much fun as with two parties, because the Democrats divide up into factions and fight just as hard. So, members of the Senate, this was a very strenuous day, and fifteen or twenty members of the House were clamoring for the floor, hollering, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speaker, and it was a very precarious situation, and this old gentleman, who had never made a motion, who had never uttered a word, arose and stretched out his arms and both hands. I immediately recognized him, saying "The gentleman from Tishamingo will be recognized," and it surprised the membership so much that silence came over the House, and the old gentleman said, "Mr. Speaker, I never riz for recognition, I riz for recreation."

I am going to have the honor of being in the State of Pennsylvania for a short while. Our House Session just closed three weeks ago and that is when I became a soldier.

I am very happy to have had the privilege and the pleasure of visiting with you.

Thank you very much.

The PRESIDENT. Mr. Speaker, I think the Senate of Pennsylvania has one over the House of Representatives in Mississippi. You say you only have one party, and that is the Democratic party with a number of factions, Well, we have a Republican Party, and we have a Democratic Party, both with a lot of factions.

I am glad to hear you say that Mississippi took a leaf out of the book of Pennsylvania and tried to follow our conservation program. I think Pennsylvania should take a leaf out of the Mississippi program and the programs of all the Southern states, in retaining in public office the good minds of the Legislature, whether they be in the House or in the Senate.

I had experience in Washington, being Secretary of the Congress, for quite a number of years, and I found that the Democratic members of the House and the Senate from the South, because of their long tenure, and their ability to make contacts in Washington, really were more successful in getting things even from an administration of a different faith than those who were only in and out every two years, so therefore I hope all of you gentlemen will be returned on both sides.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 1:30 o'clock, p m.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE BILL No. 84

The Clerk of the House of Represntatives being introduced, returned to the Senate, Senate Bill No. 84, entitled:

An Act to conserve metal by suspending the provisions of article five of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," and its amendments, in so far as they require the issuance and use of more than one registration plate.

with the information that the House has passed the same without amendments.

HOUSE ADOPTS REPORT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON HOUSE BILL No. 8

He also informed the Senate that the House has adopted the report of the Conference Committee on House Bill No. 8, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600), entitled "Status of Public Officers and Employes in Military Service in Time of War or contemplated War Act," by more fully defining amounts payable.

SENATE ADOPTS CONFERENCE COMMITTEE REPORT ON HOUSE BILL No. 8

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the Conference Committee Report on House Bill No. 8.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

SUSPENSION OF RULE 21

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that Rule 21, which requires Conference Committee Reports to be noted on the Calendar, be in this case dispensed with, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Report of the Committee of Conference made by the House to the foregoing bill.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The report was read as follows:

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON HOUSE BILL No. 8

To the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives

We, the undersigned Committee of Conference on the part of the Senate and House of Representatives for the purpose of considering House Bill No. 8, entitled: "An Act to further amend section two of and to add Sections four and five to the act approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred seventeen (Pamphlet Laws 600), entitled 'An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county, municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment, enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war; * * *' by more fully defining amounts payable, limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment."

Respectfully submit the following bill as our report:

O. J. TALLMAN,
J. ALBERT REED,
FRED'K L. HOMSHER,
(Committee on the part of the Senate)

ALBERT S. READINGER,
FRED MARKS,
ARTHUR P. BRETHERICK,
(Committee on the part of the House of Representatives)

An Act to further amend section two of and to add Sections four and five to the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (Pamphlet Laws 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" by more fully defining amounts payable limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Section two of the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" as amended by the act approved the twenty-fifth day of June one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 207) is hereby further amended to read as follows

SENATE BILL No. 89 ON THIRD READING CALLED UP

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I now call up Senate Bill No. 89, on third reading, page 2 of the Calendar.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 89, (House Bill No. 57), entitled:

An Act authorizing the secretary of the board of health in the various cities of the third class throughout the Commonwealth during the continuation of the present war and for six months thereafter to search and issue certified copies of birth and death records maintained by such cities after the State-wide system for registering vital statistics was established requiring that such birth and death records be made available to the secretary of the board of health for the purposes of this act and authorizing the respective city councils to prescribe fees for such services.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I am about to make a motion relative to this bill, but before doing so I wish to make a few remarks upon the subject of birth certificates which is a very important subject.

A birth certificate, to be effective and legal, must receive the approval of the Federal Bureau of Statistics. During the last session, with the aid of the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Cavalcante, we prepared very carefully a bill, which took weeks to prepare, in order to meet the approval of this bureau at Washington.

As you all know, all men who are employed in defense plants for the Federal government, working on war material, must receive birth certificates, and in order that such a birth certificate may be approved, it must be legal. This is a bill that does not conform with those requirements.

There has been a bottleneck in the Department of Vital Statistics at Harrisburg. That bottleneck has been greatly relieved of late, equipment has been furnished, and I understand that beginning just last week mail is opened the same day it is received, the first time since this order was issued by the Federal Government relative to birth certificates.

This bill is analogous or similar to a bill in the State of Connecticut.

We all remember reading a short time ago how an ordinary newspaper man from New York, who had never previously been in Connecticut, obtained a birth certificate in Connecticut merely by paying two dollars, and I am afraid with the enactment of this bill there might be a great possibility of fraud in the issuing of these birth certificates.

In that connection I cite Purden's Pennsylvania Statutes, as follows:

"534. Vital Statistics. The Department of Health shall have the power, and its duty shall be:

"(1) To establish such districts for the registration of vital statistics, and appoint such registrars, deputies, and sub-registrars, as may be necessary, properly to obtain, collect, compile and preserve the statistics which the department is required to obtain, collect, compile and preserve. All local registrars, deputies, and sub-registrars, appointed under this section, shall perform such duties as shall be required of them by the department, and shall receive such compensation as may now or hereafter be fixed by law."

So you can see the Department of Health has this power and that it is the duty of the Department to establish such bureaus wherever feasible, which would be legal and comply with the requirements of the Federal Bureau of Vital Statistics.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 89, (House Bill No. 57), on third reading be recommitted to the Committee on Public Health.

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to speak on the motion just made by the distinguished Senator from Warren, Dr. Chapman, and I would like to call the attention of the Senate to this portion of the act which is now before us for consideration. In many of the industrial areas of Pennsylvania we have experienced a great deal of serious difficulty in the procurement of adequate information to enable the Department of Public Health to issue birth certificates. All the members of the Senate who come from industrial areas, or who have industrial areas in their senatorial districts, have experienced this difficulty, and in many instances the heartaches that go with it, and it has been stated repeatedly off the record and officially on the floor of this Senate that the procurement or the non-procurement of a birth certificate is, in the eyes of many of our constituents, a lot more important than any of the legislation which has been before us for consideration, and many of the good folks back home measure your statesmanship qualities and your ability on your enthusiasm in getting birth certificates out of the Bureau of Vital Statistics here in Harrisburg. There is not one of us who publicly and privately has not muttered into our beards concerning this department, and the wrath that we have called down on the head of the innocent Director of that bureau has certainly been plenteous.

In some of the cities of the third class, which are directly affected by this bill, there were provisions made at times to continue to keep a copy of the records of the births and the deaths in that particular municipality. They have doctors' certificates which are just as comprehensive as the doctors' certificates which are on file over here in the Department of Vital Statistics.

In a city of the third class, which happens to be in my senatorial district, we have over fifty thousand complete accurate birth records which could be made available to the many employes of the vast industries that are in and about the City of McKeesport. In Allegheny County we have long considered that we were the very heart of the industrial war being carried on at this time, and in Allegheny County I would say the Forty-fourth Senatorial District is the very heart of the industrial war that is being carried on there in Allegheny County, and the City of McKeesport is indeed the arsenal of Allegheny County in the preparation of war materials. Thousands and thousands of the citizens of this municipality and of the townships or the contiguous boroughs to McKeesport are working in those vast industries, and it has become the rule that in order to continue employment, you must procure a birth certificate. Inside of a few hours, and for the payment of a small fee, the records that are available in the Department of Health in the City of McKeesport could be made available to that employe and his employment could be continued or perhaps started, if he could have access to those records.

If we send this bill back, of course, to the Committee on Public Health, it will be a very sick patient and it will die within the course of the day, and that we all know full well.

I say to you in all seriousness that the dangers that might be incurred by the passage of this bill are not any more so than the dangers that are encountered in getting a birth certificate from the Department of Vital Statistics.

There has been some suggestion made that perhaps by payment of a small fee someone who is not entitled to a birth certificate could procure one, but may I say, Mr. President, that there would be less danger of inaccurate information emanating from the records of one of these cities of the third class than there would be from the inescapable hodgepodge incident to giving into the Bureau of Vital Statistics to secure a birth certificate.

Those of us who have made a visit over there have been appalled at the disorder that exists over there. They have filing cabinets stacked in the hallways, there is not a desk available that is not jammed with many money orders, checks and applications for birth certificates, and a heterogeneous assortment of affidavits once used as supporting data for applications for birth certificates is scattered far and wide throughout that bureau. How in heaven's name they ever work it out will always be a mystery to those of us who come from rural districts and who do not understand big city ways, but the danger that you might be able to forge an affidavit and get your certificate from the Secretary of the Board of Health in the City of McKeesport is not any greater than the danger that something might go awry in the Bureau of Vital Statistics, and in the name of those who are needing these birth affidavits, in the hope that we might be able to relieve slightly the pressure that is being placed upon employment, upon employer and upon personnel, this bill was introduced in the House, and I say to my colleagues, do not send this bill back to committee to be killed; if you do not have faith in the merits of this bill, defeat it on its merits, but let us not deny these employes the right to continue their employment by a subterfuge.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I have two objections to this bill. In the first place, I do not understand why we spent so much time setting up a procedure last session for the purpose of enabling those who are entitled to birth certificates to get them from a central body under proper safe guarding measures—we were very much concerned about the fact that people going into defense jobs should be people who are reliable, and who would in no way sabotage the defense effort.

Looking at this bill, first of all, one of the first reasons I find fault with, is that it applies only to third class cities. If this jam occurs, if this inability to get certificates today is occurring, it does not occur only in third class cities, it occurs in first and second class cities as well. I know many of our people in Philadelphia have the same difficulty as they have elsewhere throughout he state.

Looking at this provision of the bill, it states that the Secretary of the Board of Health—I assume it means the Secretary of the Board of Health of a third class city although it does not say so—may issue a certificate if he has a record, but he may go further; the Secretary of the Board of Health is authorized to make correction in such birth or death records, whenever upon the submission of satisfactory evidence and affidavits such corrections are found to be necessary and proper. Corrections to records upon evidence satisfactory to whom? To the clerk? What kind of evidence? What kind of safeguarding do you call that? If we were so much agitated over the safety of defense workers and over avoiding sabotage in the defense industries, what will this do? It strikes me, just because there happens to be an emergency where somebody may not get a job, that is not sufficient excuse to offset the danger that somebody may get a job that will create sabotage that we will all regret. It seems to me if there is an emergency of this kind, before you upset legislation that we have passed and before you create dangers of this kind, you ought to be very careful and very slow about it.

This bill has no right to be here as it is, unless, first of all, it were an amendment to the main act. If this was intended for relief, it should be general relief, it should not be confined to the so-called rural district of Pittsburgh. Philadelphia is just as industrial as Pittsburgh, and it seems to me this is class legislation in a dangerous way, and I am going to vote for this motion to send it back, and if it does not go back, I am going to vote against the bill for those reasons.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, may I ask one of the Senators who is more informed than myself if it is not true that the Federal Government has refused to recognize certificates that were issued legally in the State of Connecticut, and if that be so, and if that were to apply to this particular bill, then what good is the bill?

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I have listened with considerable interest to the remarks of my colleague from Allegheny County, Mr. Walker, with regard to the conditions that exist in the Bureau of Vital Statistics, and may I say that, personally, I have had difficulty with but one application. In the course of my endeavors I went to the Bureau of Vital Statistics just a few days ago, and in company with Mr. Dorning, who has been assigned to that duty out of the Highway Department, made a personal tour of inspection of the entire set-up there. I was amazed to find the improvement in conditions which has been made under his direction, and I am confident that if given just a little more time, we are going to see the effectiveness of the workings of a man of business in that connection.

Mr. Dorning has had considerable experience along that line of work, and the way he is rearranging the forces there, and has rearranged them, has changed the working conditions of the forces entirely. There is a different feeling among the people that work there at the present time, and I am confident if we just let this thing alone as this session closes, by recommitting this bill, that the Bureau of Vital Statistics will come through, and we will have certificates issued from there that will be worthy of having.

Mr. President, the bill which is before us, it seems to me, provides a sham certificate, for which somebody might pay two, three or ten dollars, and then awake to the fact that they have no certificate or anything whatsoever as far as defense industry is concerned.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, the fault is not with the bill that was passed, but with the certificates themselves. Names have been misspelled. Very frequently doctors are very much in a hurry; I know I myself frequently am in that position and instead of Mary I may put down May or vice versa, and the real difficulty at the present time is in deciphering various names on these birth certificates, and that is the bottleneck.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I understand that the Army and the Navy of the United States accept these certificates and the mills accept them.

We do know there is a bottleneck here in Harrisburg on these certificates, and if this bill will help industry and help getting jobs for men in the third class cities, it ought to be passed.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would just like to say two things, first, it is the good doctor's contention that the records are illegible, but that, of course, was beyond the concept of the drafter of the legislation. I appreciate the fact that there is where a lot of the bottleneck comes from, that doctors do not make out the original birth certificates so that they can be read by the ordinary human being, and that is also true of doctors' prescriptions. Secondly, I would like to say that my visit to the Department of Vital Statistics, as suggested by the gentleman from Butler, Senator Carr, was not made with the Chief of Staff, Mr. Dorning; I made it in company with other members of this Senate, who were also seeking some help in getting birth certificates, and we went around from door to door, all by ourselves, and what we saw, as I have said before, was a beautiful state of confusion.

I appreciate the fact that eventually Mr. Dorning will work it out, because I have confidence in his ability, and I am not criticizing the Bureau of Vital Statistics, because I appreciate the tremendous burden placed upon it. Senator Carr suggested that in a few weeks they will have it worked out, but in a few hours we will have departed and gone to our respective homes and then we are once more confronted with the problem of attempting to get these birth certificates by correspondence, and those of us who have been trying to get them by personal contact will appreciate how redoubled will be our difficulties during the weeks that this thing is being straightened out, and all the time Mr. Dorning is installing this marvelous efficiency that will come about, the employables in those industrial areas will be standing around waiting for birth certificates so they can go to work. Not so long ago somebody stated "too little, too late," and that is just the same kind of thing we are running into with birth certificates.

Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator McGinnis, is entirely right, that if this is going to help just a little in accelerating the placing of men in employment, I think we should give this bill serious consideration. The idea that there could be skullduggery merely because the director of the Bureau of Health in a third class city has the opportunity to issue birth certificates, becomes a ghost just like Banco's ghost in the background, but the idea there might be skullduggery perhaps by some innocent clerk over in the Bureau of Vital Statistics is immediately wiped out of our minds because the state, like caesar's wife, is above suspicion.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, like my colleague from Allegheny, Senator Walker, I agree that my worthy colleague from Allegheny, Senator McGinnis, is right, but, in a difficult way. I am going to vote for this motion to recommit. Senator McGinnis, I think, gave us one of the best arguments why this bill should be recommitted and not passed, when he said that he understands the mills will accept birth certificates of this kind.

Mr. President, we all have the same difficulties in our districts, in connection with birth certificates, and I think if we look at it in a fair-minded way we can appreciate why we are having difficulties, because the applications they have in that department were absolutely undreamed of and unheard of ever before. However, because of these difficulties, I can see no reason why we should open the door to the greatest dangers that ever could befall us or ever could befall a nation. We have working in many of our plants and our mills in dangerous occupations, thousands upon thousands of Pennsylvania workmen, and to pass a bill of this kind, Mr. President, that would open the door and permit to come in and work with those decent, honest Pennsylvania working men, saboteurs and individuals who want to ruin our country and ruin our plants, is something that we certainly should not permit. If we were to pass this bill, allowing secretaries of health in the various third class cities, or clerks under them, to make whatever corrections they think should be made, then birth certificates in Pennsylvania would not be worth the paper on which they are written, and for that reason I am urging my colleagues to vote to recommit this bill.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I believe that the issuance of birth certificates in the Department of Health is just as slow as it was during the regular session. We had the same arguments advanced at that time that if we just gave it a little more time it would work itself out.

I am of this opinion, if we can get a good birth certificate, a good birth record or a good death record from the Secretary of Health in any third class city, I say that will be much easier and much more convenient for the people than to require them to spend much time in traveling to Harrisburg. That is a very cumbersome procedure. I can not see why we can not get a good record in a third class city. If my people in the city of Washington can go to the Board of Health and get a proper certificate or a proper record, I say it is much better, much more convenient, much easier than requiring those people to come to Harrisburg or to send someone to Harrisburg to get a certificate for them.

I believe that the local authorities in third class cities are in a better position to run down the record of a birth or a death than the people at Harrisburg. The people at Harrisburg are handling thousands of records, and the authorities in third class cities would be handling just a comparatively few records, and I think that the record there would be just as good as the record that you would obtain in Harrisburg.

Mr. President, I can hardly agree with some of the gentlemen who have stated that a record obtained under this bill would not be received outside by some of the other authorities.

There is a provision in this bill which I think takes care of that situation, which reads as follows: "Any certified copy of a birth or death record furnished under the provisions of this act shall be afforded the same recognition as a birth or death certificate duly issued by the Department of Health of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It shall be prima facie evidence of all matters therein contained and shall be admissible in all judicial proceedings."

Will not this alleviate a lot of the presure that is now found in the Department of Vital Statistics? If it does, then I think a bill of this nature should be enacted and later on, perhaps, we can enact a similar bill to take care of other cities, or perhaps to take care of townships or the other various sub-divisions of the Commonwealth, so that every last person living back in one of the remote sections of the state can get a birth certificate at home, without going to all the trouble and all the expense and all the inconvenience that he now must run into by getting it through the authorities at Harrisburg.

Mr. President, believing that it will do a lot to alleviate the pressure now existing at Harrisburg, I will vote against recommitting the bill and will vote for the passage of the bill for those reasons.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I want to confess that this afternoon I have heard here on the floor of this Senate the first real sound argument for or against a bill. It is very unpleasant to think that we had to wait until the close of this session before we settled down to discussing the merits or demerits of a bill without passion, sensibly, with the desire to accomplish a good purpose.

Mr. President, I am not altogether at odds with the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Reed, on the section of the act that he read, but I still want to point out this, that we have now on the statute books of this state a law which reads practically the same, the very same way, relative to the records kept by bona fide ecclesiastical bodies. That act provides that the records of bona fide ecclesiastical bodies, shall be prima facie evidence as to all matters therein contained, and shall be admissible in all judicial proceedings.

I do not think there is a single member of this Senate who has yet gone to the Bureau of Vital Statistics with a properly drawn up and certified baptismal record of a bona fide ecclesiastical organization in this state, in which the Bureau of Vital Statistics has refused to accept the contents of that baptismal record as prima facie evidence of its contents, and proceeded to record the birth as stated in that baptismal record but now the Bureau of ital Statistics itself has refused to honor a statute of this Commonwealth containing a provision of that kind, without having refused to accept the birth records of bona fide ecclesiastical bodies, and what right do we have to ask any other state or any state agency in the United States of America to accept a birth certificate issued under the provisions of this act?

The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, cited the statement of his colleague from the same county, Mr. McGinnis, as proof why we should not deliberate honestly on this bill and send it back to committee. I say to you, Mr. President, that the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, has made a statement here that has greatly impressed me and that is this, that the mere possession of a birth certificate is a guarantee against the commission of sabotage in the war industries of this nation. Mr. President, talking as sincerely as I can, I believe that notion is absolutely untenable, unsound, that is, the proposition that only people who have birth certificates can be loyal and good working men and women in the war industries of America.

Mr. President, if that were true, imagine the millions of men and women of foreign birth who are today naturalized citizens who can not show a birth certificate, yet they are engaged in nearly every coal mine in our land, you find them engaged in every steel mill, you find them engaged in practically every shop in the United States in which war work is being done, and are we to believe that those millions of naturalized citizens, naturalized aliens, who can not show a birth certificate that they were born here in America, that they can not be loyal workers in the war industries of America?

So, Mr. President, I tell you that his motion, this idea, that the mere posession of a birth certificate will insure the loyalty of a worker in a war industry does not hold true at all and is not sound.

I fought that same notion with Dr. Chapman, the gentleman from Warren, in the last session, that what we vere trying to do was to make it possible for those who were born here to have their births registered, if they were not registered, and that the mere possession of a birth certificate had nothing to do with the war effort or naturalization or anything else.

Then, Mr. President, I have also heard here today criticism concerning the bottleneck in the Bureau of Vital Statistics. Well, there is a bottleneck there, I agree with that, and that bottleneck is caused because of some poor judgment in many of the rules and regulations over there. Here is one instance: I make an application for a certified copy of my birth certificate; in that application I state my name the date of my birth the place of my birth, the name of my father, the name of my mother, the doctor who attended at birth. To that I attach a dollar, it goes to the Bureau of Vital Statistics, and in a short time I receive from them a certified copy of the birth certificate. That certificate contains the date of my birth correctly, the place where I was born, the name of my father correctly, the name of my mother correctly, and the name of the doctor correctly, but lo and behold, it only has my last name and not my first name. Yet they send it to me and say, this is your birth registration.

I say to them, why send me a certificate like that; you have taken my dollar, you know that registration represents my birth; why do you not put on there my first name before you send it to me? They will not do that, but they clutter the office up with more red tape, they will give you a bundle of affidavits and send you back home and tell you to gather up all the school records you can, leters from here and affidavits from there, and why, in the name of common sense, should I be required to do that, when they have already given my a birth certificate and say, this is yours, it contains everything, it says it is your certificate? Why not put my name on it without creating that bottleneck?

Then, Mr. President, there is still this to say about the whole situation in this state: the reports that we get from the Department of Public Assistance show that the relief roll has been reduced tremendously throughout the state, yet in spite of that, if you look at the administrative costs, if you go through the Department of Public Assistance offices here in Harrisburg, you will still see there the same amount of employes being paid the same amount of money, while down in the Bureau of Vital Statistics, those poor employes are swamped, they are unable to keep up with their work, while there is this squandering, waste, indolence and idleness in the other department. That could have been corrected a long time ago, if a lot of those clerks from the Department of Public Assistance would have been shifted over to the Department of Health to take care of this bottleneck that has existed for nearly two years. That is just simply another instance of that inefficiency, that waste that the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Reed, brought to the attention of this body another day of this week.

Mr. President, I am satisfied that this bill, although it may want to accomplish a laudable purpose, nevertheless would add confusion to the already muddled situation that we have. I am not going to vote to send it back to committee, because I have the courage of my convictions to vote against the bill here on the floor of the Senate, and I have been always opposed to sending a bill back to committee when it is here on the floor of the Senate. We can vote against it and get rid of it, and permit every person to vote as he might think fit on the bill.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I am not going to add much to this argument, I am only going to say this: last year the members of this Senate voted for a bill to allow Orphan's Court Judges to name any Tom, Dick or Harry, that might be a member of the profession of law or the Bar, to sit in and hand out birth certificates, for all persons born prior to 1906, and all you need is to know the attorney pretty well or the Orphan's Court judge.

I said then that it would create a racket, and I say now that it has created a racket. One attorney in my county received in less than three months, six thousand dollars, paid at the rate of seven dollars for every birth certificate that his clerk handed out to some person who came in. Since that time, we have elected a new Orphan's Court judge, and he has cut it down to two dollars per certificate, and it only takes about five minutes to perform the work.

Mr. President, you talk about saboteurs, and I would say that there are more chances of finding saboteurs in that group whose ages would have them born prior to 1906, than you would in the group that was born after 1906. It is more difficult to trace birth records prior to 1906, because records were not kept in all communities.

All this bill allows is for a third class city Board of Health Director to give a certificate, when that certificate is upon the birth records of that community, and yet you voted for a bill last year that allows some lawyer, who is not an elective public official, to give a birth certificate without any previous records whatsoever. He can go out and give a birth certificate to anybody, so long as he is satisfied that person is a person who is representing himself correctly.

I say this bill will definitely be a help in the defense industries, it will be a definite help because of the so-called bottleneck here in Harrisburg. Everyone of us has had constituents come down here, and they have stayed three or four days trying to get birth certificates, and as far as the last names, the first names or the middle names are concerned, I know of one particular family group, with four children applying for birth certificates, and all four children had their names spelled differently, and they were all attended by the same doctor.

Those things cause a lot of trouble for the director of that department, and he has my sympathy and not my criticism. I do not see how he can possibly do the work that is alloted to him, with the amount of help he has to perform the work with, or with the system that he has at his command. What they need over there, and I think anybody that knows anything about business administration knows they need to make up more copies of the records. If more than one person wants to look at the file over there, there is only one file, and I do not care how many persons line up at the window, you can only get certificates as fast as they can look at the same file, and this would be a definite help in those communities where they have the records. In my district of Westmoreland, I have five third class cities and where they have birth records, there is certainly no harm if a person has worked in a steel mill for two or five years and needs a certificate, there is no harm in that man going to the Director of Public Health of that community and getting a certified copy of the record that now appears upon the books.

Talk about saboteurs and decentralization, why, you passed the worst possible bill last year when you allowed some attorney to get a political gravy job at seven dollars a head to hand out birth certificates, and now you will not allow a community that has birth certificates upon its records to issue a record.

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Washington County, Mr. Reed.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Washington permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. REED. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. President, I would like to ask the Senator from Washington County if he can name the third class city that would qualify under this bill.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, in answer to the gentleman from Clinton, I have not studied the bill from that angle, but if there are any third class cities in the state that keep such records, then I can see no reason why those records should not be certified as this bill provides. It would make it much easier for a person in a third class city to go to the Department of Health and get a certified copy of the record kept there, than it would be to take the time to come to Harrisburg.

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. President, for the information of the gentleman from Washington, a survey has shown that there are only two cities in Pennsylvania, possibly three, that would qualify, which have kept continuous records; McKeesport is one, Williamsport is another, and possibly Erie. No other cities in the Commonwealth could avail themselves of the provisions of this bill.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, those are cities of some size, and if they keep these records and can issue certificates under this statute, then I say that will help that much to relieve the congestion at Harrisburg and will make it much more convenient for the people in those three cities, and that fact will not change my opinion one bit on the merits of this bill.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will proceed.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I understand a vote in the affirmative will be a vote to recommit the bill, is that correct?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion to recommit Senate Bill No. 89, (House Bill No. 67), to the Commitee on Public Health?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz.

HOUSE MESSAGES

COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE WASTE AND INEFFICIENCY

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced informed the Senate that the House has concurred in resolution from the Senate as follows:

In the Senate, April 8, 1942.

Whereas, The United States is now engaged in what would appear to be a long and devastating world war; and

Whereas, To save the Republic is the solemn desire and sincere purpose of every true American; and

Whereas, The American people are being admonished daily to sacrifice and constantly urged by those in authority to return to the practice of strict economy; and

Whereas, Economy in government is vitally essential to its preservation and should at all times be practiced and particularly during periods of national stress and war; and

Whereas, Waste, inefficiency, indolence, and disintegration are in existence, in various forms and degrees, in almost every branch and department of our government; and

Whereas, To locate and eliminate these evils is the patriotic duty of every loyal citizen, especially those paid servants of the people employed as law makers in these legislative halls; Therefore, To that end, Be it

Resolved, That, if the House of Representative concurs, a Committee, consisting of three Senators, appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, and three members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, be created, to investigate and explore, impartially and fearlessly, all departments, boards, and agencies of the Commonwealth, including, if advisable, Counties, Cities, Boroughs, Townships, and School Districts, for the purpose of ascertaining whether waste, inefficiency, indolence or disintegration are present, and if so, to study ways and means of eradicating and/or correcting the same, and to make report to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth at its regular meeting in January, 1943, with its recommendations.

Such committee shall have the power to compel the appearance of witnesses and the production of books, papers and records, and to issue proper subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, records, and any and all other writings deemed necessary for the fulfillment of the duties prescribed by this resolution.

COMPENSATION AND MILEAGE FOR HOUSE AND SENATE EMPLOYES

He also presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives, which was twice read:

In the House of Representatives, April 10, 1942.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the State Treasurer be and is hereby authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each Member of the General Assembly, the compensation and mileage to and from their homes at the rate of five cents a mile circular for each week a Member was in actual attendance at the sessions of the Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly, (convened in session on call of the Governor February 17th, 1942), by virtue of the provisions of the Act of Assembly approved the tenth day of May, 1927, P. L. 880;

Resolved, That the State Treasurer be and is hereby authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each employe of the Senate and House of Representatives, the salary or per diem compensation and mileage to their homes at the rate of five cents per mile circular, to which they are entitled under law for an Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly by virtue of the provisions of the Acts of Assembly under which they are elected or appointed.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to present an amendment to the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution as amended as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 10, 1942.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the State Treasurer be and is hereby authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each Member of the General Assembly, the compensation and mileage to and from their homes at the rate of five cents a mile circular for each week a Member was in actual attendance at the sessions of the Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly, (convened in session on call of the Governor February 17th, 1942), by virtue of the provisions of the Act of Assembly approved the tenth day of May, 1927, P. L. 880;

Resolved, That the State Treasurer be and is hereby authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each employe of the Senate and House of Representatives, the salary or per diem compensation and mileage to their homes at the rate of [five] ten cents per mile circular, to which they are enttiled under law for an Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly by virtue of the provisions of the Acts of Assembly under which they are elected or appointed.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution as amended?

SENATE ADOPTS RESOLUTION AS AMENDED

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adopt the resolution as amended.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives that the Senate has passed the resolution with amendment in which the concurrence of the House is requested.

POST-WAR PLANNING COMMISSION

He also presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives which was twice read as follows and referred to the Committee on Public Health.

Whereas, The war production program is calling for extraordinary productive effort involving major adjustments in the productive organization of Pennsylvania manufacturing, mining, and agricultural industry, to meet the demand for essential military and civilian goods and services, and

Whereas, Future major adjustments must be made when the extraordinary requirement of the war effort is terminated, and

Whereas, This situation involves radical shifts in employment for a large sector of Pennsylvania's population, with the danger of large scale unemployment in the post-war period, and

Whereas, The current and the postwar situation require emergency research, publicity, and field promotional efforts to assist the citizens in the conservation and the wide use of their resources and the ultimate use of existing production resources in order to minimize unwise labor migration, plant closing, and the attendant suffering and privation that follow post-war readjustments, therefore be it

Resolved, If the Senate concur, that a Post-War Planning Commission be created, to be composed of fourteen members, and consisting of the Secretary of Commerce; Director of the State Planning Board of the Department of Commerce; the Secretary of Agriculture; the Secretary of Labor and Industry; the Secretary of Forests and Waters; the Speaker of the House of Representatives; and the President Pro Tempore of the Senate; two Members of the House of Representatives and one citizen, appointed by the Speaker of the House; two Members of the Senate and one citizen appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate; two citizens appointed by the Governor, for the purpose of making special studies and performing research pertinent to the extraordinary economic adjustment with which the Commonwealth is now confronted, and which will be intensified greatly by the demands of the post-war period, and to disseminate the results thereof in terms of both public works and private productive enterprise suitable to the needs of the people and their fullest possible employment in the various industrial and agricultural areas of the Commonwealth; and

Be It Further Resolved, That a report shall be made to the regular session of the General Assembly of 1943, setting forth the full results of its studies, with recommendations as to remedial measures or necessary legislation, including an itemized program of public works in the order of priority of need and usefulness in providing employment in subsequent periods of diminished industrial activity, as well as the development of industrial opportunity through the full use of State products and bi-products, and methods for increasing opportunities for commerce in the products produced in this Commonwealth, both by manufacturers and agriculture.

Whereupon,

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis), in the presence of the Senate signed the same.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. MILLER. In order to take advantage of this slight lull, Mr. President, I ask permission to address the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Luzerne may proceed.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, on Wednesday last, at the time Senate Bill No. 84 was considered on third reading and final passage, I stated that it was to be regretted that there were not enough legislative days remaining in this Special Session to enact this bill into legislation.

I happily was informed by my illustrious colleague, Senator Ealy, who dashed to my side and said that there were still enough legislative days, and after the members of this body saw fit to vote favorably on the bill, I immediately went to the House, and through the influence, I will say, of several friends, had the bill reported out of the select committee.

Mr. President, today I was certainly gratified to learn that the House of Representatives had passed by a vote of 180 to 0, Senate Bill No. 84, authorizing the Secretary of Revenue and the Secretary of Highways to suspend the law requiring the use of two registration plates on each motor vehicle, and to use one instead, thereby making available vital war materials in the form of steel that could be used in the manufacture of guns and shells.

The measure, as I understand, is now in the hands of the Governor for his action. I sincerely trust that the Governor of this Commonwealth will see fit to enact this measure into law, and that the Secretary of Revenue and the Secretary of Highways will suspend the present law and request all motor car owners to return one license plate.

This is the time for all out war; this is the time to have every automobile owner return one of the tags to be made into guns and shells to help win this all out war.

You, my colleagues, have supported this bill, which will greatly aid in the defeat of the Japs and Hitler. The return of one tag will not harm anyone, as there is no need for two; one is enough. Let us place the weights of tons of this most valuable metal around the necks of Hirohito and Hitler, and let there be no mistake, Uncle Sam needs every bit of material in this war. Let us do our part in keeping them flying. I know every automobile owner will be pleased, as his contribution, to comply and deliver up one of his tags. The American Legion of the Department of Pennsylvania in the respective communities will, I know, assume the collection, as they have willingly done in the collection of discarded license tags, in the event the present law is suspended.

SENATE ADOPTS REPORT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL No. 65

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the Conference Committee Report on Senate Bill No. 65, Printer's No. 78.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

SUSPENSION OF RULE 21

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that Rule 21, which req[illegible] Conference Committee Reports to be noted on the Calendar, be in this case dispensed with, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Report of the Committee of Conference made by the House to the foregoing bill.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The report was read as follows:

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Delaware will proceed.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I desire to inquire the Printer's number of copy of Senate Bill No. 41 now in possession of the Chair, and which I understand the Chair is about to sign. I make that inquiry in view of the fact there were so many printings of this bill.

The PRESIDENT. The Printer's number is 38.

BILLS SIGNED

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) announced that the Chief Clerk having reported that the following bills had passed both houses of the General Assembly and the same being correct, the titles were publicly read as follows:

Senate Bill No. 41, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the fifth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six (P. L. 2897, 1937), entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies, with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis, requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons, providing procedure and administrative details for the determination, payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation, providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies, creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties," changing the provisions thereof and the rights, obligations and procedure thereunder.

Whereupon,

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the presence of the Senate signed the same.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess for fifteen minutes.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON HOUSE BILL No. 58 DISCHARGED

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I desire to report on behalf of the Senate conferrees on House Bill 58, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies, with the approval of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings to adopt certain rules and regulations governing purchases, sales and contracts of the Department of Property and Supplies on behalf of the Commonwealth during the continuation of the present war, and for six months thereafter, and suspending certain statutory provisions inconsistent with such rules and regulations.

And state that the conferrees are unable to agree and I therefore move that the committee be discharged.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—30

Bartlett,	Farrell,	Mallery,	Tallman,
Becker,	Geltz,	McGinnis,	Thomas,
Carr,	Heyburn,	Miller,	Wade,

Edmonds,	Letzler,

NAYS—8

Barr,	Cox,	Haluska,	McQuiddy,
Coleman,	Dent,	McCreesh,	Stiefel,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask permission to address the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland may proceed.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, before we finally pull the curtain down, on my own behalf, and I believe I speak also for the members of the Senate on the Democratic side, who have been in the minority since the Presiding Officer has been in the Chair, I would like to say to the members of the Senate that in my young life, I have had occasion to be in many meeting halls of all descriptions and I have yet to spend an hour in debate where I carried any personal feelings beyond the debate, although at times it has been my unhappy lot to find the Presiding Officer take deliberate sides, and by his action caused not only myself but many others on the floor embarrassment and discomfiture.

I believe the Senate of Pennsylvania has been most fortunate during the past three and one-half years, in having the present Lieutenant-Governor in the Chair, for as he said yesterday, we in Pennsylvania have a Democratic and a Republican Party, each divided into factions. I could go a little further and say since Haluska has announced his party, that we are divided into fractions.

Mr. President, it is always an unhappy occasion to have to say farewell, no matter if you agree or do not agree with the fellow that is alongside of you, and when it comes to the time that you know you are no longer going to serve with him, you get a little bit soft and feel a lump come up in your throat, and you feel a little—oh I do not know—just sort of something like the fellow that has kis. his wife goodbye in the morning, and is not sure will be there when he comes back—I mean will be back.

I am thinking now, as I speak, of Bob Miller of Luzerne. I have not voted the same as he has on more than a dozen occasions in all of the years I have been here I suppose, but I knew Bob was only doing what the Republican Caucus told him to do, the same as I was doing what I told the Democratic Caucus to do. We are going to miss Bob here—I mean that in all seriousness—and we are also going to miss a fellow like Al Reed, substantial straight-forward and straight-shooting, honest and honorable and Ed Frey from Pittsburgh, men like that, who have come here and given of their time to, I believe, the least appreciated job in the whole State of Pennsylvania, and then again, some of us feel that we may be sad next year when we do not have John Walker with us again.

Mr. President, in all seriousness, I think that John has done the best job he could under the circumstances.

There are fellows over on this side who have had personal disputes with Tony Cavalcante, and they feel if Tony gets a pretty good drubbing out there this time they will not feel too bad, but we will miss Tony.

Mr. President, there are some things that we try to do honestly, and there is one thing I want to do honestly and seriously, I want to say to the Presiding Officer of this Senate; when you first came here as Presiding Officer, I came in and I thought I was about the best parliamentarian and was going to tell you what to do, but you know, it did not take me long to learn that you were President of the Senate and I was only a Senator. You have never taken advantage of the fact that you could, by your position, take sides; you have treated the Democrats in this Senate of Pennsylvania—you have treated them—that is all I can say—to the nice fish fry that we had with you at York last year. I have heard you addressed as the "providing" officer of the Senate.

The newspaper men gather around here night after night looking for a story, and it is difficult for them to distinguish between a good story and a bad one, because they know whatever they write has to agree with what the publisher back home, the owner, thinks they ought to write, and instead of coming here, he sends them down here to get stories, but where are they going to get a story here?

One of the members of the press once said to me, not long ago, he said, I understand you are a former newspaperman, and I said, yes; he said, why did you not stay in the business? I said, I will tell you the truth about the matter, I could not get big advertisers, because I always had an opinion.

Kermit McFarland once told me I ought to go out to Pittsburgh to a show and I did, the Gridiron Show—this if for the information of the press—and they had a sketch in this show and in this sketch the city editor of one of the newspapers was telling the copyright man just what the paper's makeup ought to be, and they got a telephone call from Kauffman's in Pittsburgh. Kauffman said, what is the matter with you, you are predicting rain tomorrow? The editor said, that is what the weatherman says. Then he said, yes, but I got a big sale, and so the editor said, O. K., tear up the copy—fair weather and sunshine all day, and that is what happens here in the Senate, but it is not fair weather and sunshine with the President of the Senate. We are only sorry, sir, that the Republican Party could not get together, be harmonious and go along and sponsor a real honest-to-goodness Democrat for Governor.

REPORT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL No. 60

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I am directed by the Committee of Conference on Senate Bill No. 60, to submit the following report:

SUSPENSION OF RULE 21

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I move that Rule 21, which requires Conference Committee reports to be noted on the Calendar, be in this case dispensed with, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Report of the Committee of Conference made by the House to the foregoing bill.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The report was read as follows:

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL No. 60

To the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives:

We, the undersigned, Committee of Conference on the part of the Senate and House of Representatives for the purpose of considering Senate Bill No. 60, entitled: An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limits the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of over weight and over length vehicles in the actual transportation of materials and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war

Respectfully submit the following bill as our report:

GEORGE N. WADE,
JOHN G. SNOWDEN,
JOSEPH M. BARR,
(Committee on the part of the Senate).

FRANCIS X. McCLANAGHAN,
GEORGE L. BAUGHER,
W. W. MUIR,
(Committee on the part of the House of Representatives).

An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limits the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of Highways to issue permits for the use of over weight and over length vehicles in certain cases

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 In order to facilitate and expedite the movement and transportation over the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth of materials articles and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war in which the United States is now engaged and to remove any legal impediment that might interfere therewith the Secretary of Highways in his discretion is hereby authorized to issue for such period as deemed advisable a permit or permits in writing to the owner or owners of vehicles or combinations of vehicles for the use and operation of the same on such routes on the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth of over weight or over size vehicles or combinations of vehicles transporting materials articles and commodities used in the prosecution of the present war without the payment of any fee for such over weight or over-size permit upon presentation of an application showing that the movement of such over weight or oversize vehicles or combinations of vehicles on and over the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth as the Secretary of Highways may designate is necessary in the interests of national defense Provided that the foregoing provisions shall not otherwise be construed to limit the power of the Secretary of Highways to issue special hauling permits for the use and operation of over-weight or over-size vehicles in the manner now prescribed by law

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall remain in force only during the continuance of any war in which the United States is now engaged and for a period of sixty days thereafter

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the report?

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, what is the number of that bill.

The PRESIDENT. Senate Bill No. 60.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, is that Senate Bill No. 60, a plain 60, or sixty at sixty?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, what is the printer's number of the bill finally submitted.

The PRESIDENT. Printer's No. 79. The Chair is advised that a copy of the report has been placed on each member's desk.

Mr. WADE. Before consideration of the report, I should like to make a few brief remarks regarding it.

This Conference Committee, as you know, has met repeatedly during the day trying to reach an agreement on this bill. As you know, this is a bill commonly known as a permit bill and there is a great deal of difference of opinion. As a matter of fact, we have tried hard to draw this bill so that it will accomplish the purpose and at the same time meet the likes and dislikes of the individual members. It is not a partisan bill, neither is the controversy one between the House and the Senate; it is a matter of trying to satisfy the different likes and dislikes of the individual members, some of whom have constituents representing different modes of transportation, such as the canal system, airplane and freight, horses and wagons, Conestoga wagons.

However, the report of the Committee of Conference, as it now is submitted, is not to me a very satisfactory one. As a matter of fact, we have visited back and forth with the members of the House, and I believe that we do have a bill—not the one that appears on the Conference Report—that would be satisfactory to the majority of the members of this Senate.

However, because of the impatience of the House, it is not going to be our privilege to consider it in that form but I would like, Mr. President, if I may, to present to the official reporter this copy of that bill, as we have approved it, at least, a number of the members of the Senate

An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limits the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of Highways to issue permits for the use of over weight and over length vehicles in certain cases

Section 1. In order to facilitate and expedite the movement and transportation over the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth of materials articles and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war in which the United States is now engaged and to remove any legal impediment that might interfere therewith the Secretary of Highways in his discretion is hereby authorized to issue, for such period as deemed advisable, a permit or permits in writing to the owner or owners of vehicles or combinations of vehicles when duly licensed for the use and operation of the same, on such routes on the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth, of over weight or over size vehicles or combinations of vehicles effective when exclusively transporting materials articles and commodities to be used in the prosecution of the present war, without the payment of any fee for such over weight or over-size permit, upon presentation of an application showing that the movement of such over weight or over size vehicles or combinations of vehicles on and over the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth as the Secretary of Highways may designate is necessary in the interests of national defense, Provided that the foregoing provisions shall not otherwise be construed to limit the power of the Secretary of Highways to issue special hauling permits for the use and operation of over-weight or over-size vehicles in the manner now prescribed by law.

Section 2. Penalty. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall, upon summary conviction before a magistrate, be sentenced to pay a fine of twenty-five ($25.00) and costs of prosecution, and, in default of the payment thereof, shall undergo imprisonment for not more than ten (10) days.

Section 3. The provisions of this act shall remain in force only during the continuance of any war in which the United States is now engaged and for a period of sixty days thereafter

In its present form, as we consider this report, I should not be disappointed at all if many of the members, as a matter of fact, if the majority of the members, would not approve it.

And the question recurring.

Will the Senate agree to the Conference Report?

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I rise on a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of information.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, do I understand we are about to act on the report of the Committee of Conference on Senate Bill No. 60?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to Conference Report?

During the calling of the roll the following occurred:

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDENT. The roll will be so verified.

The Clerk called the names of those voting in the affirmative as follows:

Barr,	Haluska,	McGinnis,	Stevenson,
Coleman,	Heyburn,	McQuiddy,	Stiefel,
Cox,	Jaspan,	Miller,	Tallman,
Dent,	Kephart,	Scarlett,	Wade,
DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Snowden,	Walker,
			Watkins,

The PRESIDENT. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative vote will stand as verified.

The Clerk called the names of those voting in the negative as follows:

Becker,	Ealy,	Homsher,	Reed,
Carr,	Edmonds,	James,	Thomas,
Cavalcante,	Farrell,	Letzler,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crider,	Geltz,	Mallery,	Wilson, T. B.,

The PRESIDENT. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative vote will stand as verified.

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—21

Barr,	Heyburn,	McQuiddy,	Stiefel,
Coleman,	Jaspan,	Miller,	Tallman,
Cox,	Kephart,	Scarlett,	Wade,
Dent,	McCreesh,	Snowden,	Walker,
DiSilvestro,	McGinnis,	Stevenson,	Watkins,
Haluska,

NAYS—16

Becker,	Ealy,	Homsher,	Reed,
Carr,	Edmonds,	James,	Thomas,
Cavalcante,	Farrell,	Letzler,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crider,	Geltz,	Mallery,	Wilson, T. B.,

Less than a constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the negative.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO NOTIFY THE HOUSE THAT THE SENATE IS READY TO ADJOURN SINE DIE

The PRESIDENT. The President Pro Tempore appoints as members of the committee to notify the House that the Senate is ready to adjourn sine die, the Senator from Blair, Mr. Mallery and the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. DiSilvestro.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO NOTIFY GOVERNOR THAT THE SENATE IS READY TO ADJOURN SINE DIE

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is requested by the President Pro Tempore to announce appointment of the Senator from Luzerne, Mr. Miller, the Senator from Jefferson, Mr. Henry I. Wilson and the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. McCreesh, as members of the committee on behalf of the Senate to notify His Excellency, the Governor, that the Senate is now ready to adjourn and to inquire if he has any further communications to address to the Senate.

The Committee will proceed to carry out its instructions.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON THE PART OF THE SENATE TO NOTIFY THE HOUSE THAT THE SENATE IS READY TO ADJOURN

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, the Committee on the part of the Senate, appointed to inform the House that the Senate is ready to adjourn sine die, has performed that duty.

The PRESIDENT. The committee is discharged with the thanks of the Senate.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of information.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I would like to know who the members of the Committee on the part of the Senate talked to in the House.

The PRESIDENT. The Committee reported that they visited the House Chamber and found they were not in session and so reported to the Senate, and the Committee was discharged with the thanks of the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I would like to have their report read aloud by the reporter.

The PRESIDENT. Does the gentleman mean the stenographic report?

Mr. BARR. That is correct, Mr. President.

(Report of the committee repeated as follows):

"Mr. MALLERY. The Committee on the part of the Senate, appointed to inform the House that the Senate is ready to adjourn sine die, has performed that duty."

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I still do not follow their report. To whom did they talk in the House?

The PRESIDENT. The Senator should address his inquiry to a member of the Committee. The Chair can not answer the interrogation of the gentleman from Allegheny.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the Senator from Blair, Mr. Mallery.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Blair permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MALLERY. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I would like to ask the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Mallery, who you addressed when you went to the Hall of the House?

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, the Committee addressed the Chair.

Mr. BARR. I would like to further interrogate the gentleman from Blair.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny may proceed.

Mr. BARR. I would like to know, Mr. President, who was presiding in the Chair.

Mr. MALLERY. The Chair was bare, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. Are there any further remarks?

Mr. BARR. No, Mr. President, that is enough.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I rise on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Butler will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, in order that the time we are wasting may not be entirely wasted on this fine assemblage, I would like to read a rhyme that I wrote at the request of a member of the House a few days ago, who asked me if I could briefly sum up the Special Session.

The PRESIDENT. If there is no objection, the Senator from Butler may proceed.

Mr. CARR:

SPECIAL SESSION

Let's dilly dally and shilly shally,
Let's rant and rave and roar,
Let's save the State,
Let's all orate,
Let's rant and rave some more,
Let's not adjourn, each take his turn,
Let's make a great big show,
Let's fool the folk, let's laugh and joke,
Let's spend a lot more dough,
Let's fool the voters, the far remoters,
And make them think we're wise;
Let's keep her going; our hot air blowing,
Until the darn thing dies.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I arise on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lehigh may proceed.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, while we are delaying I desire to make an observation before we adjourn, to this effect only:

There has been levity about the matter of what has taken place here tonight, and I merely wish to observe that with all the sincerity of purpose with which this session of the Legislature was called, it seems to me that the precipitant action of the House tonight and what has occurred in this last day of the session, is a matter that all persons ought to mark very seriously in their minds, not only the members of the Legislature, but the people throughout the state.

There was a great deal of debate, there was a great deal of serious and honest discussion about a bill which was proposed to be passed at this session of the Legislature giving the Governor, or the State Council of Defense, certain war powers, and it seems to me that there is not a man on the floor of this Senate, nor any serious thinking member of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, who should not mark in his mind this night as being one of the reasons why democracy is failing, because it seems to me we have not met that issue; it seems to me we have not met the duties that have been placed upon us by the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania with the thing that has happened here in these dying moments of the session.

Mr. President, I only trust that the members of both political parties will mark in their minds that the thing that has happened here today is the wrong kind of a thing for the preservation of what men are giving their lives for.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF CLERK ON COMPARING BILLS

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, on behalf of the Chief Clerk, I desire to report having compared and found correct bills numbered and entitled as follows as having passed both branches of the Legislature and signed by the presiding officers thereof:

Senate Bill No. 16, entitled:

An Act to provide relief in cases where fiduciaries are in military service authorizing the court to appoint a substituted fiduciary pro tem in such cases or to allow the remaining fiduciaries to act authorizing security to be entered by and compensation paid to such substituted fiduciaries pro tem and regulating the powers and liabilities of the fiduciary in military service and of the substituted fiduciary pro tem.

Senate Bill No. 19, entited:

An Act to protect property and prevent sabotage by prohibiting, for a limited period of time, certain intentional injuries to, and interferences with, real and personal property; prohibiting certain intentional defects in workmanship; limiting the privileges of certain witnesses, and providing penalties.

Senate Bill No. 21, entitled:

An Act authorizing certain political subdivisions to make appropriations for the payment of expenses of local or district councils of defense within said political subdivisions and for the protection or preparation for the protection of the health welfare and safety of the civilian population of said political subdivision during emergencies resulting from air raids blackouts or sabotage regulating the manner of payment of expenses of local and district councils of defense authorizing such political subdivisions to levy taxes and borrow money under certain conditions

REPORT OF COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO NOTIFY GOVERNOR SENATE IS READY TO ADJOURN SINE DIE

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, the Committee directed by the Senate to wait upon the Governor, to notify him that the Senate is ready to adjourn sine die, and ask if he has any further communications, has performed its duty.

The Governor has accepted the report and advises that there are no further communications.

The PRESIDENT. The Committee is discharged with the thanks of the Senate.

ADJOURNMENT SINE DIE

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I now call for the Order of the Day.

The PRESIDENT. The Order of the Day having been called and this being the day and hour fixed by concurrent resolution for final adjournment, and the hour of four o'clock, p. m. having arrived, the Chair hereby declares this Extraordinary Session of 1942 of the Senate of Pennsylvania adjourned sine die.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

FRIDAY, April 10, 1942

The House met at 11 a. m.
The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

Our Heavenly Father, as we come to the last day of this Extraordinary Session, we pause to thank Thee for Thy goodness toward each one of us. We know that changes have been wrought in the lives of the men assembled within this House of Representatives—some have lost loved ones, new friends have been made, boys have left home in the service of their country, yea, Lord we are not only a bit older but perhaps a bit wiser. May each man feel that he has worked well, that he has lived clean, that he has been a worthy servant of the people of Pennsylvania.

While, our Father, there are those who shall leave the political arena, may they never forget the pleasant events that have helped them to appreciate the true meaning of friendship. For those who seek re-election, or attain toward a higher office, we would ask that in all their campaigning, they may remember that although success may not crown their every effort, that they never cease to serve Thee.

Give us Victory as a Nation. As individuals, realizing we travel this way but once, may each one of us say:

"You to the left and I to the right
For the ways of men must sever—
And it well may be for a day and a night,
And it well may be forever.
But whether we meet or whether we part
For our ways are past our knowing,
A pledge from the heart to its fellow heart
On the ways we all are going."

O God, Our Father, in the words of Tiny Tim, "God Bless Us Every One." Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday, when, on motion of Mr. NUNEMACHER, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

RESOLUTION

THANKING CHAPLAIN

Messrs. ELLWOOD B. WELSH and WILLIAMS offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and unanimously adopted by a rising vote:

In the House of Representatives, April 10, 1942.

Whereas, It has always been the custom of this House to open its daily sessions with a prayer by the Chaplain thereof; and

Whereas, It is heartening, particularly in these troubled times, to know that Almighty God is giving us aid and strength in our serious deliberations; and

Whereas, The Reverend Donald McFall, our official Chaplain, has since his appointment, offered us each day divine blessings with fervor, zeal, understanding and with every indication of deep reflection and serious preparation; therefore be it

Resolved, That this House hereby acknowledges and compliments its official Chaplain, the Rev. Donald McFall, for his unfailing attention to duty, his appropriate choice of subject, his skillful blending of logic and common sense, and for the comprehensive manner in which he has presented enduring Biblical and Divine truth; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be submitted to the Rev. Donald McFall as a token of the sincere appreciation of this House for his fine service.

HONORABLE SAM LUMPKIN INTRODUCED

The SPEAKER. The House is indeed highly honored this morning with the presence of the Honorable Samuel Lumpkin, Speaker of the House of Representatives of the great state of Mississippi. Lieutenant Lumpkin has a splendid record as a lawyer and a statesman and we know he will distinguish himself as a soldier.

The Chair appoints the gentlemen from Philadelphia, Mr. Monks; the majority leader, Mr. Achterman, and the minority leader, Mr. Turner, to escort Lieutenant Lumpkin to the rostrum.

The Chair takes pleasure in presenting to the members Lieutenant Lumpkin, Speaker of the House of Representatives of the State of Mississippi.

REMARKS BY HONORABLE SAM LUMPKIN

Hon. SAM LUMPKIN, Speaker of the House of Representatives of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker and members of the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, I want to assure you, my friends, that it is indeed a privilege and a pleasure to have this honor and this opportunity of saying a few words to you this morning.

I have never visited any state house so beautiful as the one you have in this historic state of Pennsylvania. It was my privilege and my pleasure during the session of 1940 to attempt to model some of Mississippi's legislation after the legislation of the state of Pennsylvania, namely your conservation laws. That bill probably combined too many fish, too much oil, too much patronage and too much economy, and therefore, the membership of the House defeated the measure.

I might tell you this little incident of what happened to me in my first session as Speaker of the Mississippi House of Representatives. I was a little bit out of place, being only thirty years of age when I was elected, and the first session was very stormy.

You remember several years ago, about 1861, 1862, 1863, somewhere around there, the Democrats got together and decided we would not have a Republican party in Mississippi and so we passed a law against them. So everybody in Mississippi that holds a public office is a Democrat, but we divided up among ourselves and we have just as much fun as if we had two parties. We have factions instead of parties. The primary ends it all in Mississippi. But during this session in 1934, which was a particularly stormy, very strenuous and long session, there was a certain gentleman from away back in the north-eastern section of Mississippi who remained in his seat all the time; he never rose to make a motion, he never uttered one word, he never made any commotion whatsoever; the quietest old gentleman I believe I have ever known in my life. He just sat there and always paid strict and close attention to the proceedings.

One day when fifteen or twenty members were on the floor yelling "Mr. Speaker," this old gentleman from Tishamingo rose and stretched out his hand.

I said "The gentleman from Tishamingo is recognized." It surprised the membership so much that everybody got quiet and everybody sat down.. The gentleman said, "Mr. Speaker, I never riz for recognition, I riz for recreation."

Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, I know this is your last day, you are busy and I am happy to have had this privilege of visiting with you. I wish you God speed.

BILLS SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bills numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor, and the same being correct, the titles were publicly read as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 69.

An Act to further amend section two of the act approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. CONFERENCE COMMITTEE REPORT ON HOUSE BILL No. 8

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up the report of the Committee of Conference on House Bill No. 8, Printer's No. 74.

The report was read by the Clerk as follows:

To the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives

We, the undersigned, Committee of Conference on the part of the Senate and House of Representatives for the purpose of considering House Bill No. 8, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two of and to add Sections four and five to the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600), entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war; * * *" by more fully defining amounts payable, limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment."

Respectfully submit the following bill as our report:

O. J. Tallman,
J. Albert Reed,
Fred'k L. Homsher,
(Committee on the part of the Senate.)

Albert S. Readinger,
Fred Marks,
Arthur P. Bretherick,
(Committee on the part of the House of Representatives.)

An Act to further amend section two of the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties therefore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" by more fully defining amounts payable limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Section two of the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 600) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" as amended by the act approved the twenty-fifth day of June one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 207) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 2 Any said officer or employe so enlisting enrolling or drafted and having a dependent or dependents as aforesaid may at the time of his enlistment enrollment or draft or immediately therafter file with the head or chief of the department bureau commission or office in which he is employed a statement in writing executed under oath setting forth the fact and date of his enlistment enrollment or draft his intention to retain his said office or employment and to resume the duties thereof after the expiration of his service in the military or naval service or any branch or unit thereof and the names and addresses of his dependent wife children and [dependent] parent or parents if any such he have and requesting and directing that one-half of the salary or wages of his said office or employment not exceeding two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars per annum shall be paid during his service in the military or naval service or any branch or unit thereof as follows

If he is a member of the State Employes' Retirement Association or the Pennsylvania Motor Police Retirement System he may direct the State Treasurer to pay into the State Employes' Retirement Fund an amount certified to the State Treasurer by the State Employes' Retirement Board in a manner now or hereafter provided by law The balance thereof if he have a dependent wife to his wife for her use and that of his children if he have dependent children and no wife then to such person as he may designate for the use and benefit of his children If he have a dependent parent or parents then he shall direct such sum as he has theretofore been accustomed to contribute to their support to be paid to them and the amount payable to his wife or children if any he have shall be proportionately decreased If he have no dependent wife or children he may direct [the entire one-half of his said salary or wages not exceeding two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars per annum to be paid to his dependent parent or parents if any such he have] such sums as he has heretofore been accustomed to contribute to his dependent parent or parents to be paid to such parent or parents and no more all sums so directed to be paid shall be paid to the Commonwealth agency and/or the person designated in the same proportional instalments as nearly as may be as the salary or wages of such person were theretofore paid to him Provided however That the amount of benefits paid under the provisions of this act shall in no case exceed an amount which added to the aggregate amount paid to such officer or employe by the United States as compensation dependency allowances if any and when such officer or employe is quartered with the aforesaid dependent allowances for rentals and subsistence provided in money or facilities totals more than the salary or wages paid to such officer or employe by the Commonwealth or by any county municipality township or school district within the Commonwealth at the time of his entry into such military or naval service and Provided further That no benefits under this act shall be paid to any dependent or dependents as herein defined in excess of such sum or sums as such officer or employe has been paying such dependent or dependents under order of a court of competent jurisdiction Provided That the benefits payable hereunder shall be computed solely upon such portion of the salary or wages of such employes as is paid by the Commonwealth county municipality or township and not upon any portion thereof which is derived from funds contributed to the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof by the Government of the United States or any agency thereof Provided further That if the Government of the United States or any agency thereof at any time makes provision for the payment of contributions or benefits to the dependents of such employes such contributions or benefits shall be payable to such dependents but no payments by the Commonwealth or any political subdivision when added to the contribution made by the Government of the United States or any agency thereof shall exceed in the aggregate the payments permitted by this act With such statement he shall also file powers of attorney authorizing the Commonwealth agency and/or the proper dependents to receive their proportion of said salary or wages as aforesaid

Section 2 Said act is hereby amended by adding the following new sections

Section 4 The amounts payable under this act shall cease to be payable to the dependent or dependents of any such officer or employe who voluntarily continues in the military or naval service or any branch or unit thereof after the termination of the period of war or contemplated war during which he entered the service

Section 5 No such officer or employe who is separated from the service by undesirable bad conduct or dishonorable discharge shall be permitted to resume his said office or employment after separation from the service in such manner

Section 3 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE REPORT ON HOUSE BILL No. 68

Mr. SARRAF. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up the report of the Committee of Conference on House Bill No. 68, Printer's No. 76.

The report was read by the Clerk as follows:

To the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives:

We, the undersigned, Committee of Conference on the part of the Senate and House of Representatives for the purpose of considering House Bill No. 68, entitled:

An Act to amend section two of the act approved the tenth day of July one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 645), entitled "An act imposing certain requirements on certain hospitals receiving State aid authorizing the withholding of appropriations and imposing duties on the Department of Welfare" by providing that during the present war and six months thereafter funds shall not be withheld from hospitals for violation of such act if the Secretary of Welfare determines that the constant attendance of licensed physician or resident interne cannot be secured by such hospitals because of the war emergency.

Respectfully submit the following bill as our report:

Charles A. P. Bartlett,
Clarence D. Becker,
John Fremont Cox,
(Committee on the part of the Senate.)

George J. Sarraf,
W. W. Serrill,
(Committee on the part of the House of Representatives.)

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 42

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 42, Printers No. 75.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 31, 1942.

Whereas, The residents of the County of Northampton on March 26, 1942, experienced a horrible tragedy, resulting from a dynamite explosion in Sandts Eddy in that county, causing the death of 31 persons; and

Whereas, The explosion was heard and its force felt for a distance of approximately 72 miles, in which radius a schoolhouse was wrecked, and thousands of windows broken; and

Whereas, The operation of quarries is a major industry in the County of Northampton, and the continued use of explosives and dynamite is apparently important to the continued operation of said industries; and

Whereas, This House in noting with sorrow the tragic death of these men and the untold suffering occasioned to their families cannot and will not permit this disastrous incident to pass without exerting every effort to prevent and forestall a recurrance thereof, with its horrible consequence of loss of life, destruction of property, and constant threat to the safety and tranquility of persons employed in this industry; and

Whereas, For the future protection of these men and their families and for the well being and protection of all the residents of the County of Northampton and of the Commonwealth, legislation may be necessary to prevent other incidents of a similar nature; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission shall make a careful and thorough study of the laws of the Commonwealth and all regulations thereunder relating to the transportation storage handling and use of all types of explosives and be it further.

Resolved, That said commission shall after due consideration make its report together with recommendations to this House the Secretary of Labor and Industry and to the Chief of the Division of Mines and Quarries

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 23

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 23, Printer's No. 69.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 10, 1942.

Whereas, On the 1st day of February in the year 1865, the 38th Congress of the United States of America adopted, and President Abraham Lincoln signed, a Joint Resolution proposing the 13th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, whereby slavery and involuntary servitude were forever abolished within the United States; and

Whereas, The proposing of this Constitutional Amendment to the Legislature of the several States marked one of the most enlightened and far-reaching steps in the history of our Democratic form of Government; and

Whereas, The ultimate abolition of slavery and involuntary servitude effected by the adoption of this Constitutional Amendment was of inestimable benefit in welding our people into a strong and unified Nation; and

Whereas, There has now been introduced into the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, a Joint Resolution (No. 267), requesting President Franklin D. Roosevelt to proclaim February 1st as "National Freedom Day," and to invite the people of the United States to observe that day with appropriate ceremonies and thanksgiving; be it therefore

Resolved, That this House of Representatives hereby memorializes Congress to adopt the aforesaid Joint Resolution as a most fitting and appropriate recognition of the great significance of February 1st; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be mailed to all Congressmen and Senators representing the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, urging them to use their fullest efforts to effect the adoption of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution,

It was adopted.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 51

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 51, Printer's No. 77.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 9, 1942.

Whereas, It is the duty of the Department of Health and the Bureau of Vital Statistics under the provisions of the acts approved the 7th day of June 1915 P. L. 900 and the 9th day of April 1929 P. L. 177 to supply certified copies of the birth records maintained by the Department of Health upon payment of the prescribed fees and

Whereas, During recent years persons requesting certified copies of their birth records have experienced great difficulty and delay in securing them with reasonable promptness and

Whereas, A committee of this House of Representatives appointed May 28 1941 conducted an investigation into the apparent inability of the Department of Health and Bureau of Vital Statistics to perform properly their duties in this respect and

Whereas, The entrance of our country into war following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7 1941 with the consequent necessity for an increase in our armed forces and for closer supervision over enemy aliens has greatly increased the demand upon the Department of Health and Bureau of Vital Statistics for birth certificates and

Whereas, Regardless of the aforementioned investigation and the greatly increased importance for the prompt issuance of birth certificates the difficulty in promptly securing such birth certificates has not been eliminated and

Whereas, The measure of promptness in the issuance of birth certificates more than ever directly affects defense industries and the prosecution of the war now therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the General Assembly That the Joint State Government Commission under the powers and duties conferred on it by Act of Assembly is hereby directed to make a study of the functions and procedures of the Bureau of Vital Statistics to the end that appropriate remedies may be inaugurated which will expedite the work of the bureau and be it further

Resolved, That the Department of Health Bureau of Vital Statistics and any other department or person shall promptly furnish the Joint State Government Commission any information which said Commission deems pertinent to this study and be it also further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission shall make a report of this study with recommendations at the earliest possible date to the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the Secretary of Health of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the Chief of the Bureau of Vital Statistics and also that such report and recommendations shall be made to this House at the next session of the General Assembly

On the question,
Will the House adopt the resolution?
It was adopted.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The SPEAKER. The Chair requests diligent cooperation in the attendance at the session today, and especially requests the Members to be present promptly when the House reconvenes after recess. We have a number of important bills yet to be acted upon, and if the membership will be present in the House we feel reasonably certain that the business of the session will be completed by four o'clock.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 43

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 43, Printer's No. 71.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 1, 1942.

Lincoln University, located forty miles from Philadelphia, is a liberal arts college for Negro men, with an enrollment of 367. It is an old established institution which has carried on its work for more than eighty years. Among its graduates have been some of the most prominent leaders of the Negro race. Many of its alumni now occupy responsible positions in public life. It is the only liberal arts college for Negroes in the northeastern area of the United States.

The University owns 275 acres in the most beautiful part of southeastern rural Pennsylvania. It is State aided, receiving biennial appropriations from the State of Pennsylvania. During the last war, Lincoln University had a student army training corps, which, in 1918, received a high official rating; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania hereby respectfully petitions the War Department of the United States Government to install a Reserve Officers Training Corps at Lincoln University, in Chester County, Pennsylvania, for the training of students to become officers in the United States Army; and be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of War of the United States, and to each senator and member from this Commonwealth in the Congress of the United States.

On the question,
Will the House adopt the resolution?
It was adopted.

PRESENTATION

The SPEAKER. As a mark of esteem and respect, Dave, (Henry Davis Turrell) the membership of this House presents to you this little token on your way to camp.

SENATE MESSAGE

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL No. 60

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate insists on its concurrence in the amendments made and insisted upon by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill No. 60, entitled:

An Act to modify existing law of the Commonwealth regulating the operation of motor driven vehicles which limits the gross weight or length of such vehicles as are permitted to be operated upon the highways roads and streets within the Commonwealth by authorizing the Secretary of the Department of Highways to issue permits for the use of over weight and over length vehicles in the actual transportation of materials and commodities necessary in the prosecution of the war

And has appointed Messrs. Wade, Snowden and Barr a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (already appointed) on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL No. 65

Mr. YESTER presented the report of the Committee of Conference on the part of the House on Senate Bill No. 65.

The SPEAKER. This being a Senate Bill the report will be printed by the Senate, and placed in the files of the Members of the House.

RECESS

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair is about to declare a recess until 2 p. m. Is there objection? The Chair hears none and a recess is declared.

AFTER RECESS

The House reconvened at 2 p. m.
The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 98, (Senate Bill No. 64), as follows:

NAYS—0

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return it to the Senate with information that the House has passed it with amendments in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HAINES asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday I made a few remarks in regard to resolutions that were not essential in my own personal opinion, and since yesterday I have received some information, some figures which might be interesting and which I will introduce this afternoon for the record.

I will not ask that my remarks be expunged from the record as I did yesterday afternoon, in order to save printing costs, but a summary of my remarks has been given to me by the Joint State Government Commission, which is at the present studying the cost of printing in the state of Pennsylvania.

"A committee of the Joint State Government Commission, and its staff, which is making a study of printing costs, has already revealed some very interesting information concerning the cost of printing resolutions, especially in the History.

"Inasmuch as a resolution is reprinted each week in the History, it causes the cost to mount tremendously. The average resolution is given a half page in the History. The printing cost for Histories is $6.12 per page per week, or $3.06 per half-page. This means that for each week that a resolution is printed in the History, from the week of introduction to the close of the Session, there is a repetition of this $3.06 printing cost. During the 1941 Session, there were 26 issues of the History, which means that some resolutions cost approximately $80.00 for printing in the History alone. Of the 270 resolutions introduced in the House in the 1941 Session, approximately 130 were either condolence or congratulatory resolutions. It can, therefore, readily be seen that when a member stands up and offers a resolution concerning somebody's birthday or congratulating a basketball team, he may be waiving as much as $80.00 in his hand in attempting to attract the attention of the Speaker. The above cost of $80.00 does not include whatever additional costs are incurred in printing such resolutions in the Legislative Journal."

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, is there any way by which we can ascertain the exact cost of the remarks just made by the gentleman from Centre, Mr. Haines?

The SPEAKER. The Chair refers that question to the accounting department.

Mr. HAINES. Mr. Speaker, if you will ascertain the exact cost I will be very glad to reimburse the state for the remarks I have just made.

Mr. BRETHERICK. At time and one half for over time, that will cost one hundred and twenty-five dollars. If the gentleman from Centre County will contribute Sixty Dollars to the coffers of the state I think we might be able to pass a resolution in favor of the gentleman from Centre.

While I am on my feet, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a word about this basketball team from Montgomery County. Those boos came from the Western part of the state, because the team from Montgomery County, probably got into a bad habit from their standpoint because of their being overwhelmed by a rather majestic score every time they played this team. I would like to say that this Lower Merion basket ball team is something to behold. That is thirty-two dollars worth, gentlemen.

The SPEAKER. You are only up to twenty-eight dollars so far.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, in order to reach the thirty-two dollar figure I want to say too that they probably have the best high school basketball coach in the whole of Pennsylvania. I realize that some of my colleagues back in Delaware County feel that that is blasphemy with them.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman now is among the sixty-four dollar questions.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I am awfully sorry, but there is nothing I can do except to take it.

The SPEAKER. Take it or leave it?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Take it, Mr. Speaker.

THANKS EXTENDED TO HOUSE

The SPEAKER. The Speaker's Page at this time wants to thank the Members for their kind offer of remembrance this morning.

HENRY DAVIS TURRELL. Mr. Speaker, members and fellow employes of the House, the generous gift which was presented to me this morning was so unexpected that I was speechless. I do want you to know it was deeply appreciated and also how much I have enjoyed my work and association with you all this session.

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. BRETH asked and obtained permission for the Committee on Stream Pollution to meet during the session of the House.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. ACHTERMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order House Bill No. 37 (Senate Bill No. 35), Printer's No. 76 on page 1 of today's calendar, bill on final passage.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration of House Bill No. 37, (Senate Bill No. 35), as follows:

An Act authorizing the Department of Highways to construct replace or repair bridges in cities of the third class whether such bridges are owned and maintained by such cities or by the counties in which located which form connecting links on State highways necessary for National defense in cases where Federal funds and city or county funds are available for such purposes and authorizing the Secretary of Highways to enter into agreements with the proper Federal authorities and the authorities of cities of the third class or counties covering the construction replacement or repair of such bridges and making an appropriation

Section 1 Whenever Federal emergency funds and city or county funds are available therefor the Department of Highways is hereby authorized to construct replace or repair bridges in cities of the third class whether such bridges are owned and maintained by such cities or by the counties in which located which bridges form connecting links on State highways which have been or may be designated by any Federal agency or department as essential to National defense No such bridge shall be constructed repaired or rebuilt without the consent of the public authorities responsible by law for the maintenance of such bridge

Section 2 The cost and expense of the construction replacement or repair of such bridges shall be paid in whole or in part from Federal emergency funds made available for such purpose and where sufficient Federal emergency funds are not available to pay the entire cost of such construction replacement or repair the city in which such bridge is located or the county in case the bridge is owned and maintained by it shall provide and pay the balance thereof Except as hereinafter specifically provided in this act no construction replacement or repair costs or property damages shall be paid out of the Motor License Fund or out of any Federal aid appropriations made to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by the Federal government for the construction of State highways and bridges

Section 3 Any damage sustained by reason of the condemnation of property for the construction replacement or repair of such bridges shall be paid by the city or county wherein such bridge is located or the city or county shall provide for the payment of such damages and shall enact any ordinance necessary to effect the condemnation of property for such construction replacement or repair

Section 4 The Department of Highways shall have authority to advertise and receive bids for any project undertaken under the provisions of this act and to make and carry out contracts and to do every other act necessary to carry out any project undertaken hereunder and is hereby authorized to make the necessary surveys and prepare the necessary plans specifications and estimates for such project and to furnish such employes as may be necessary to provide supervision inspection and preparation of estimates for payment the costs incident thereto to be paid out of moneys in the Motor License Fund Whenever the Federal government has approved such project and has indicated that it will reimburse the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in full for its expenditures therefor from Federal funds other than Federal aid appropriations made to the Commonwealth for the construction of State highways and bridges the Department of Highways may also pay construction replacement and repair costs out of the Motor License Fund in anticipation of such reimbursement by the Federal government

Section 5 The Secretary of Highways is hereby authorized to enter into agreements with the proper Federal authorities and with the authorities of cities of the third class and with the authorities of counties covering the construction replacement or repair of bridges as authorized by this act Any city or county with which such an agreement is made shall agree therein to pay to the State Treasurer before any contract is awarded as herein provided a sum stated and agreed upon in such agreement as the city's or county's share of the cost and said sum or sums when so paid shall be deposited by the State Treasurer in a special account in the Motor License Fund from which special account payments on the contract shall be made on proper requisition of the Department of Highways If the initial amount deposited by any city or county is insufficient to pay the city's or county's share of any project the city or county shall make such additional deposits as may be necessary to pay the city's or county's total share of the cost and any balance remaining in such special account after payment of the final moneys to the contractor shall be repaid to the city or county upon proper requisition of the Department of Highways

Section 6 If any bridge to be constructed replaced or repaired under the provisions of this act crosses the tracks of a public utility the Department of Highways shall institute proceedings to secure the requisite approval of the Public Utility Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

Section 7 The moneys in the Motor License Fund including moneys standing to the credit of the special account in the Motor License Fund created by this act are hereby appropriated to the Department of Highways for the purposes set forth in this act

Section 8 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL ON THIRD READING

Mr. ACHTERMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order House Bill No. 44 (Senate Bill No. 21), Printer's No. 71 on page three of today's calender, bills on third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 44, (Senate Bill No. 21), as follows:

An Act authorizing certain political subdivisions to make appropriations for the payment of expenses of local or district councils of defense within said political subdivisions and for the protection or preparation for the protection of the health welfare and safety of the civilian population of said political subdivision during emergencies resulting from air raids blackouts or sabotage regulatng the manner of payment of expenses of local and district councils of defense authorizing such political subdivisions to borrow money under certain conditions for such purposes providing for the repayment thereof and ratifying confirming and validating appropriations heretofore made for said purposes

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1. Definitions The following words and phrases used in this act shall have the meanings ascribed to them in this section

"Political subdivisions" shall mean any county city borough incorporated town and township

"Local and district councils of defense shall mean those established pursuant to the act approved the nineteenth day of March one thousand nine hundred and forty-one (P. L. 6) entitled "An act relating to national and state defense providing for the establishment of a state council of defense and for local and district councils of defense prescribing the powers and duties thereof and making appropriations therefor"

Section 2. Every political subdivision shall have the power to make appropriations in the manner provided by law for making appropriations for the ordinary expenses of such political subdivisions for the payment of expenses of local and district councils of defense and for protection and preparation for the protection of the health welfare and safety of the civilian population of the said political subdivision during emergencies resulting from air raids blackouts or sabotage A political subdivision in making such appropriations shall specify the amounts and purposes for which the moneys so appropriated may be used by such councils of defense or other agency to or for which such appropriation may be made

Section 3. (a) Where the jurisdiction of the local or district council of defense is coterminus with the political subdivision making an appropriation for the payment of the expenses of the local or district council of defense such local or district council of defense shall be an agency board or commission of the political subdivision subject to all of the laws governing the making of contracts or purchases the employment of persons or otherwise incurring financial obligations which apply to the political subdivision All bills or claims to be paid from any appropriation made pursuant to this act after first being approved by the local or district council of defense or an appropriate officer thereof designated for the purpose shall be paid from the treasury of the political subdivision only upon the warrant or order of the officer or officers of such political subdivision designated by law to approve or countersign warrants or orders for the payment of the ordinary expenses of such political subdivision and shall be subject to audit in the same manner as other financial transactions of such political subdivision In each case the said officer or officers shall have the same power to approve or disapprove the same as they have in case of warrants for ordinary expenses of the political subdivisions and no warrant or order for the payment thereof shall be issued without such approval Any gift or grant of money made to the local or district council of defense or to the political subdivision for the payment of expenses incurred or to be incurred by or for the local or district council of defense shall be deposited in the treasury of the political subdivision and shall be appropriated by the political subdivision for the purpose for which such gift or grant was made and any bills or claims to be paid from such gift or grant shall be paid in the manner herein provided for the payment of other bills and claims against such political subdivision

(b) Where a local or district council of defense has jurisdiction in an area including all or parts of more than one political subdivision which does not include the whole area of any county the political subdivisions all or part of which lie within the jurisdiction of such local or district council of defense shall before paying any expenses of such local or district council of defense enter into an agreement designating one of said political subdivisions as the agent of each of them for the purpose of paying the expenses of the local or district council of defense The agreement shall also set forth the proportionate share of the expenses of the local or district council of defense to be paid by each political subdivision party to said agreement and an estimate of the amount required to be appropriated by each of them for the purpose of paying such expenses The agreement shall be effective when approved by the corporate authorities of each of said political subdivisions by a majority vote and each of said subdivisions shall thereupon make an appropriation pursuant to section two of this act sufficient to pay its share of the expenses of the local or district council of defense All bills and claims for expenses incurred by or for the local or district council of defense shall thereafter be paid in the first instance by the political subdivision named as agent in the aforesaid agreement in the manner provided in paragraph (a) of this section as though the local or district council of defense were co-terminus with such political subdivision and the local or district council of defense shall be subject to all of the laws governing the making of contracts or purchases the employment of persons or otherwise incurring financial obligations which apply to such political subdivision The political subdivision designated as agent shall not later than the fifteenth day of each month submit an itemized account of the expenses of the local or district council of defense paid by it during the preceding calendar month to each of the other political subdivisions party to the said agreement together with a request for reimbursement of the proportionate share of such expenses agreed to be paid by each of such other political subdivisions Each political subdivision so requested to make reimbursement shall do so within thirty days after such request from the appropriation made for the payment of the expenses of the local or district council of defense and in the event of failure to do so mandamus shall lie to compel the officers of such political subdivision to pay the agreed upon proportionate share of the proper expenses of the local or district council of defense out of the first moneys thereafter in the treasury of such political subdivision and not previously pledged to any other purpose provided that no political subdivision shall be compelled to pay for any one year an amount greater than the amount estimated in the agreement as its proportionate share The books and records of the political subdivision designated as agent in the agreement shall at all reasonable times be open to inspection by any authorized agent of each other political subdivision party to the agreement and by any taxpayer who by law is entitled to inspect the books or accounts of any political subdivision party to the agreement Nothing in this paragraph shall be deemed to limit the power of any political subdivision to appropriate and pay out for the expenses of the local or district council of defense an amount greater than that set forth in the agreement herein required provided that all such payments shall be made through the treasury of the political subdivision designated as agent in such agreement in the manner herein required Any payments made by any political subdivision to the political subdivision named as agent in the agreement for reimbursement for the payment of the expenses of the local or district council of defense shall be credited by such agent political subdivision to the appropriation made by it for the payment of the expenses of the local and district council of defense and shall be available for the payment of future expenses of the local or district council of defense without further appropriation or action by such agent political subdivision Any gift or grant of money made to or for the local or district council of defense shall if made to a political subdivision be deposited in its treasury and be appropriated by it for the purpose for which such gift or grant was made and such political subdivision shall notify the political subdivision named as agent in the agreement of such appropriation and the purpose for which it is available If such gift or grant of money is made to the local or district council of defense it shall be deposited in the treasury of the political subdivision named as agent in the agreement and shall be appropriated by such political subdivision for the purpose for which such gift or grant was made provided however that any expenditure made by such agent political subdivision from any gift or grant deposited in its treasury or reimbursed from any gift or grant deposited in the treasury of any other political subdivision shall not be included in computing the reimbursement requested from any other political subdivision under the agreement

(c) Where the local or district council of defense has jurisdiction in an area including the whole area of one or more counties which is not co-terminus with any one county before paying any expenses of the local or district council of defense the counties all or part of which lie within the jurisdiction of the local or district council of defense shall enter into an agreement in the manner and form provided in paragraph (b) of this section and with like effect and no other political subdivision lying within the jurisdiction of the local or district council of defense shall be a party to such agreement For the purposes of this paragraph the city and county of Philadelphia shall be a county and the city of Philadelphia shall act for such city and county

(d) Nothing in this or any other section of this act shall be deemed to limit the power of any political subdivision to appropriate money for the purpose of paying the expenses of a local or district council of defense having jurisdiction both within and without the political subdivision even though an appropriation has been or is to be made to another local or district council of defense co-terminus with or having jurisdiction within such political subdivision provided that any payments on account of such appropriation shall be made pursuant to an agreement as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) hereof or in the form of a gift or grant to the political subdivision responsible in the first instance for the payment of bills and claims against the local or district council of defense for the payment of the expenses of which such appropriation was made

(e) No purchase or purchases shall be made no contract entered into and no expenses incurred by any defense council which involves the payment of more than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) out of the treasury of any second class township unless the proposed expenditure has been approved in writing by the township supervisors If any purchase or contract is made or other expenses incurred contrary to the provisions of this subsection the township shall not be responsible for the payment thereof but the person acting for the defense council in such transaction shall be personally liable for such payment

Section 4. Any political subdivision during the fiscal year one thousand nine hundred forty-two may borrow a sum or sums of money necessary for the purposes authorized by this act by the issuance and sale of bonds or notes in the manner provided in the Municipal Borrowing law approved June twenty-fifth one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 159) Such bonds or notes shall mature within one year from the date of issue

Section 5 All appropriations and expenditures heretofore made by political subdivisions to local or district councils of defense or for the purposes specified in Section 2 of this act are hereby ratified confirmed and validated

Section 6 This act shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment and shall remain in effect so long as a state of war exists between the United States and any foreign country and six months after such state of war ceases to exist

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

RESOLUTION

SALARIES AND MILEAGE OF MEMBERS

Mr. ACHTERMAN offered a resolution which was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 10, 1942.

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That the State Treasurer be and is hereby authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each Member of the General Assembly, the compensation and mileage to and from their homes at the rate of five cents a mile circular for each week a Member was in actual attendance at the sessions of the Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly, (convened in session on call of the Governor February 17, 1942), by virtue of the provisions of the Act of Assembly approved the tenth day of May, 1927, P. L. 880;

Resolved, That the State Treasurer be and is hereby authorized to pay upon warrant of the Auditor General to each employe of the Senate and House of Representatives, the salary or per diem compensation and mileage to their homes at the rate of five cents per mile circular, to which they are entitled under law for an Extraordinary Session of the General Assembly by virtue of the provisions of the Acts of Assembly under which they are elected or appointed.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Mr. ACHTERMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order House Bill No. 122 (Senate Bill No. 87), Printer's No. 64, on page 2 of today's calendar, bills on third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 122, (Senate Bill No. 87), entitled:

An Act creating a Joint Legislative Committee for the purpose of investigating and studying plans methods and systems for liberalization of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law to provide benefits for partial unemployment providing for its appointment authorizing the employment of necessary assistance and making an appropriation

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL DROPPED FROM CALENDAR

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be dropped from the calendar.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Monroe permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, is this bill to be dropped only because of the general appropriation carried, or is the gentleman going to add it to the bill in the Senate?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. No, Mr. Speaker, our House bill is similar to Senate Bill No. 87 and it has been passed by the Senate, I think with amendments, which makes it conform with Senate Bill No. 87.

At the same time, the Senate concurred in all amendments to these supplemental appropriations bill and the present thought is to submit both appropriations to the Governor and he of course will veto one and very likely sign the other.

Mr. TURNER. Is that under the agreement, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. That is our understanding with the Senate, yes, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, in the closing hours of this Session it seems to me that we ought to give some consideration to the problems that not only are going to face the state during this next two years, but also those great problems that will face us at the end of the war.

There has been a tremendous amount of talk, a lot of things have been written about post-war programs, and while a great deal has been written and a great deal has been said, very little has been done toward the creation of a plan. Without planning now we cannot hope to meet the problems that will come from the readjustment of industry, the dislocation of labor, the changes in the demands upon agriculture. If this State is to exist, as I see it, and be free from a burden of unemployment that goes beyond anything that we knew in the dark days in the last ten years, we will have to make plans now that will in some way, immediately upon the cessation of war and the stopping of the manufacturing of war materials, find work for our people, to reduce the unemployment load as much as it is possible to do.

In that matter there are not only lessons to be learned from the past ten years in dealing with unemployment and relief, but there are also lessons that we must learn about the need of finding new uses for the products of Pennsylvania, ways in which our industries may be turned back quickly to peace time production, new methods and materials for agriculture, new uses for materials that are grown on the farms. Perhaps we will have to do some work to produce new kinds of products in Pennsylvania on our farms.

We have built up some wonderful industries in the last few years in Pennsylvania in our agricultural counties because of the peculiar circumstances and because of the peculiar conditions of the soil in those communities, and as I have studied the matter since the Session of 1941 it seems to me that there lies a great field for the government of Pennsylvania to study in the next few years.

Maybe we can find new products to be produced if we change the soil conditions, possibly by the use of fertilizers or a new system of growing products on the farm, new products that we have not been accustomed to producing in the past.

If we are to do this job we cannot wait until the end of the war—and no one knows when that will come—but now we can study gradually the needs, we can make the blue prints while there is time, and if the time is long and we complete the blue prints, they can be put away and can then be taken out of the pigeon hole. The Session of 1943 will be on us before we know it. In another nine months this Legislature will be in regular session.

Maybe there are things in that nine months that we in the ensuing Session of 1943 can take up and put into effect that will lay the basic ground work for the plan of post-war Pennsylvania.

Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the following resolution—I apologize to the gentleman from Monroe, I will send a copy of the resolution to him, because I am going to ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

RESOLUTION

POST-WAR PLANNING COMMISSION

Mr. TURNER offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 10, 1942.

Whereas, The war production program is calling for extra ordinary productive effort involving major adjustments in the productive organization of Pennsylvania manufacturing, mining, and agricultural industry, to meet the demand for essential military and civilian goods and services, and

Whereas, Future major adjustments must be made when the extraordinary requirement of the war effort is terminated, and

Whereas, This situation involves radical shifts in employment for a large sector of Pennsylvania's population, with the danger of large scale unemployment in the post-war period, and

Whereas, The current and the post-war situation require emergency research, publicity, and field promotional efforts to assist the citizens in the conservation and the wise use of their resources and the ultimate use of existing production resources in order to minimize unwise labor migration, plant closing, and the attendant suffering and privation that follow post-war readjustments, therefore be it

Resolved, If the Senate concur, that a Post-War Planning Commission be created, to be composed of fourteen members, and consisting of the Secretary of Commerce; Director of the State Planning Board of the Department of Commerce; the Secretary of Agriculture; the Secretary of Labor and Industry; the Secretary of Forests and Waters; the Speaker of the House of Representatives; the President Pro Tempore of the Senate; two Members of the House of Representatives and one citizen, appointed by the Speaker of the House; two Members of the Senate and one citizen appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate; two citizens appointed by the Governor, for the purpose of making special studies and performing research pertinent to the extraordinary economic adjustment with which the Commonwealth is now confronted, and which will be intensified greatly by the demands of the post-war period, and to disseminate the results thereof in terms of both public works and private productive enterprise suitable to the needs of the people and their fullest possible employment in the various industrial and agricultural areas of the Commonwealth; and

Be it further resolved, That a report shall be made to the regular session of the General Assembly of 1943, setting forth the full results of its studies, with recommendations as to remedial measures or necessary legislation, including an itemized program of public works in the order of priority of need and usefulness in providing employment in subsequent periods of diminished industrial activity, as well as the development of industrial opportunity through the full use of State products and bi-products, and methods for increasing opportunities for commerce in the products produced in this Commonwealth, both by manufacturers and agriculture.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. BRETH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, knowing the great interest of the members of the House of Representatives in pure streams and the importance of the subject which the stream pollution study committee of the House has been studying, and the fact that under the law, a Committee approved by this House dies when the House adjourns sine die, and believing that the Committee, not as a House Committee but as a Committee of interested members, will still receive the support and cooperation of the various departments, boards and commissions of the Commonwealth, as well as of Sportsmen groups and officials of different municipalities, I, as Chairman of the Committee, have asked the members to divide themselves into groups in the nature of Sub-Committees for the continuation of our report and study, with the hope that at least by the next session of the Legislature, some definite and constructive recommendations may be made.

I want to also take this opportunity of thanking the various officials of the Commonwealth and others who have cooperated up to this time. Also the members of the committee for the work they have done in furthering the work of the committee.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Beaver, Mr. Nagel, for yielding but I desired to make a statement right after that of Mr. Breth because it pertains to the same subject. I want to assure the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Breth that the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin will be pleased to cooperate in this work and give all assistance to his Committee during the time he is making this study.

I agree with him, I think it is most important; I think it is a fine work that can be undertaken as the members here familiarize themselves with the conditions and help the program. It also is one of the things that will contribute to the post-war program of employment, because just now the municipalities in their water supply and sewage treatment systems are rather stymied in getting materials on account of war priorities, and this is one of the things that can help take up the slack and help us tremendously.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. NAGEL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I readily yielded to my good friend from Delaware, Mr. Turner, and as I expect to address the House for a moment or two, I do not intend to attack the resolution he has introduced.

I am very glad that we have members in this House, who are giving some thought to our great state and to our great nation. I don't know but I sometimes wonder whether I realize as fully as I ought to the great responsibility that is resting upon me as a citizen of our state and as a representative of this great Commonwealth in doing my part in the reconstruction that will of necessity follow this war.

We are now in the dark days of this war. We are in this war, as we were in our Revolutionary times at the battle of Bunker Hill, and those dark days at Chancellorsville and other battles in our Civil War.

But we need not despair, we need not be discouraged, because we have always won, the United States flag has always come out victorious, and we are going to win this time if we as citizens of our great nation do our part.

I notice and observe some of the things that we ought to do that we are not doing. We are not awake, apparently, to the situation. I like to stroll through graveyards and see the markings on these old stones and then hunt up the old soldiers that have fought in the Civil War, and I take my hat off and I bow my head in reverence before them.

But I am going to state that we have some graveyards in our state that I do not like to see as I drive over the roads throughout this Commonwealth. I see acres and acres of car graveyards where automobiles have been junked, while our great nation is needing and begging and pleading for scrap iron in order that we may win this war.

I might say that it is our duty as citizens that every one who has this scrap material should sell it and put it on the market in order to help win this war.

We are now in a great struggle, but I am afraid that the struggle that will follow after this war will be more strenuous than that which we have now. We are facing a change in our Government, and I am not an advocate either of Fascism or Communism—I hope that will not come, but that we will preserve our democracy. I hope our government will emerge from this war a great democracy in which the people will rule, a democracy of the people, by the people and for the people.

We ought to lay upon ourselves this task of singling out some particular thing in our world that we as individuals can do to bring this about, and I might call to the attention of this as yet unborn committee that may be appointed as a result of this resolution, I hope there is one thing that they will not forget, and that is the agriculture of our state; this has been neglected.

I might stand here and talk to you for an hour and tell you some of the hardships that the farmer has undergone in past years, and not only in recent years have farmers come to me with tears flowing down their cheeks, stating they could not keep the sheriff off any longer.

I remember two and half years ago when a man came to me and showed me his milk check which showed a net price of seventy-one cents per hundred pounds of milk, and that means forty-six quarts. He said "I can't half feed my cows for that."

We must make it easier for the common man, the laborer and the farmer to make a living, and we must make it doubly difficult for the big man who has accumulated millions to ever repeat that process in the future.

Think of this National Dairy Corporation that has so handicapped the farmer and has so bound him down in the price of his milk that he has nothing to save! That corporation started in 1923, and at the end of 1940 its assets were one hundred ninety-nine million dollars. They got that through the great gap between the man who produces this milk by the sweat of his brow, working sixteen hours a day and the man who sits on the swivel chair planning how he can get more of this world's goods. That spread is too wide, we must narrow it down. We must close this great gulf that lies between the consumer and the producer. I am glad that a move of this kind has been made, and I hope I will have the courage to do my part and do my bit in preserving our democracy and making it better. I thank you.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ACHTERMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, when we passed Senate Bill 21, I intended to make a few remarks concerning that bill, and it is for that purpose I now arise.

Senate Bill 21, as we passed it, endeavors to permit the municipalities of Pennsylvania to contribute, or to meet the expense of the various civilian defense councils in the state of Pennsylvania. It is our position and was our position that Senate Bill 21 does not to any great extent change the present existing law, that possibly the only thing it does of any great moment is to clarify some uncertainty that exists in certain legal minds at the present time.

It is our position and has been our position that all the various classes of cities in Pennsylvania already under their police powers possess the power and the ability to meet the expense of the various civilian defense councils, that the same applies to the counties, the boroughs and townships of the first class. There is some doubt whether townships of the second class have that power, that is, to cover the entire field, but that they have the power in relation to the matter of fighting fires there can be no doubt.

I secured, Mr. Speaker, from the Legislative Reference Bureau, a legal opinion on the subject, and I am going to ask that that legal opinion be incorporated as part of my remarks, so that it will appear that the only thing we are doing is that we are giving the second class townships the right, and in addition to that, we are permitting municipalities to join in meeting the expense of the civilian defense council where that council serves more than one municipality.

Beyond that we feel Senate Bill 21 is doing nothing more than the present existing law already permits.

May I make, in addition to that, this remark, Mr. Speaker, it is our position, the majority of this House, that certain expenses of the civilian defense council should not be borne by local communities. We gravely doubt if under the call as we received it we would be in a position to amend Senate Bill 21 to place upon the state of Pennsylvania expenses that we feel should rightly be borne by the state.

As examples of those instances may I say that we had in mind the expense that would be incurred in having a control center. Control centers are not needed in most of the communities, but only in those communities known as target areas, that is, communities that have factories that are of grave importance to the war effort.

Then again we had in mind what is contemplated at the present time and is not a fact at the moment, which is the organization of men who will be armed for the purpose of purely local defense.

Organizations of that kind will be needed in certain areas. The benefit, although local in nature, will flow throughout the entire state. In other words, the areas that will not be affected and will not need it will benefit because of their interest in the factories in the areas involved. We feel in those instances where the benefit flows through the entire state it is the primary duty of the state of Pennsylvania to meet such expenses, and we trust and we believe that the coming session of the legislature will see that that particular phase of the expense will be borne by the state of Pennsylvania and not be placed upon the local communities as it is now.

LEGISLATIVE REFERENCE BUREAU

Harrisburg, Pa., 7 April, 1942.

Hon. Leo A. Achterman,
House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Mr. Achterman:

Counties

It is my opinion that counties may appropriate money for various defense purposes by reason of the provisions of Section 447 of the County Code of 1929, P. L. 1278, which authorizes the appropriation of monies for the protection of the health, cleanliness, convenience, comfort and safety of the people of the county.

Boroughs

I believe boroughs may appropriate money and hire necessary employes for defense purposes under certain powers given in the Borough Code of 1927, P. L. 519, which provide as follows:

Section 1006, Clause VII, authorizes the council to appoint such officers as it shall deem necessary.

Section 1201, Clause XVII, authorizes the making of regulations necessary for the safety of the borough; Clause XVIII authorizes regulations deemed proper relative to the cause and management of fires and the prevention thereof; Clause XIX authorizes the purchase of fire apparatus and supplies.

Townships—First Class

I am convinced townships of the first class may appropriate money and hire employes for defense purposes under the following powers given by Section 1502 of the Act of 1931, P. L. 1206:

Clause (1) gives commissioners power to adopt resolutions and ordinances . . . generally regulating the affairs of the township. Clause III, to create any office, position or department which may be deemed necessary for the good government and interests of the township, and fix the compensation of persons appointed thereto. Clause XVI to make regulations, as may be deemed proper, relative to the cause and management of fires and the prevention thereof; to take measures for the extinguishment of fires, either by making annual appropriations towards the maintenance of fire companies or in such other manner as said board of commissioners may deem proper; to ordain rules and regulations for the government of such fire companies and their officers, and to regulate the method to be followed in the extinguishment of fires; to purchase and maintain apparatus for the extinguishment of fires, and to make rules and regulations for the management of same.

Townships—Second Class

The powers of townships of the second class are not as broad as those of the other political subdivisions, and there is some doubt how far they can go in spending money for defense purposes:

The Act of 1933, P. L. 103, Sections 514 and 516 authorize the supervisors to hire and fix the compensation of a road superintendent and laborers for the maintenance and repair of roads, bridges and culverts. Section 702, Clause IV, authorizes them to appropriate monies to fire companies located therein to secure fire protection for the inhabitants of the township. To enter into contracts with the proper authorities of near or adjacent cities, boroughs or townships, or fire departments, fire companies, or fire company therein, for the furnishing to such townships of fire protection by the fire department, fire departments, fire companies, or fire company of such cities, boroughs, or townships, and to make appropriations therefor: Provided, That such contracts before being entered into by township supervisors shall be first approved by the township auditors. (Amended by Act of July 15, 1935, P. L. 1016).

It seems to me duties could be given to persons hired for fire protection and road maintenance under the above provisions, which would help a defense program very materially.

Cities

There can be no doubt that cities have sufficient power to spend money and hire additional employes for defense purposes.

Sincerely,
HERBERT B. COHEN,
Director

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I listened with much interest to the statement by the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman, in reference to Senate Bill 21. With the legal conclusions at which the gentleman from Monroe arrived I have been in accord, if the expenditures were made by the municipalities in the ordinary processes of their legislative bodies' actions upon purchases and the authorization of payment of the same, but two things confront me with which I have been concerned and I hoped that this bill, if necessary, would be amended to meet them.

In the first place, in the first blush of the excitement following Pearl Harbor many of our municipalities, especially those along the Delaware River, where we have a great concentration of industries, rushed into expenditures for civilian defense, prompted partly by the national organization, sometimes by the army, sometimes by the civilian defense authorities and sometimes by the urging of the people within the community itself. I presume that our community is no exception to the spirit that existed in the other communities in the State. But I do know that immediately there were quite a number of meetings held which were attended sometimes by as high as two thousand people who gathered to offer their services as air raid wardens or to do whatever they could in the interest of civilian defense. There was a persistent demand upon our local officials to do something to defend the communities from what then seemed to be perhaps imminent danger of either a token raid or of sabotage that would create great destruction to our industries and to our closely populated sections.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, these public officials were met with this public demand within the community, and they were met with the demand by the army and the navy and by civilian defense to make appropriations and to expend money in the interest of national defense. Many solicitors of many municipalities were doubtful, and many of the solicitors of our counties were doubtful of the legality of such expenditure. Nevertheless they were guided by what they thought was the urgency of the occasion and went ahead and made the expenditure. I think we should have protected them in this Session and validated their acts. It is very easy for some disgruntled taxpayer or some one in the community who is not in sympathy with the powers that be in the community or the officials of the community, some one who has a private grudge, to take them into court and ask that they be surcharged for the expenditure. These communities were brought face to face with the determination as to whether or not those expenditures were legal. By reason of the wide difference of opinion among attorneys for many of our municipalities and our counties there has arisen a problem which no one knows how the courts might determine. Therefore, in the protection of those officials who honestly were doing something that they believed was their patriotic duty, and their duty to the people of the community, I believe we should have validated those expenditures.

In the second place I can see no harm in passing the act, even if we believe they already have the power, there being this difference among lawyers as to whether it is legal to make these expenditures and I can see no reason why we should not pass the bill in order that we might relieve the minds of the officials and in order that we might close the question once and for all.

With reference to the question as to whether or not we shall give the power to make appropriations directly to the Council of Defense, I believe there is quite a broad question of policy there to which we can give careful consideration, I am sure, in the 1943 session, but as far as the question of taxation is concerned I believe that there may come a time in the session of 1943 when you will find it necessary to give the municipalities some power to tax. On the other hand, I think for the present we could have omitted that from the bill and still have given something that was necessary.

Mr. Speaker, with the proposition of the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman, that the state should make some appropriation by which the municipalities that might bear the brunt of any attack would be protected—and I am not speaking of attack from the outside but of attacks from saboteurs and from what are commonly termed fifth columnists in this country. I have talked with some of the high officials who are charged with the responsibility of conducting the war activities in our area, and I want to say to you that they are more afraid of sabotage than they are of foreign invasion or raids of any kind. The fact that there has not been any sabotage committed as yet is not any indication that when the time may be ripe, when our enemies may consider the time to be ripe, we will not have some catastrophe or some destruction of some of our vital industries that will startle us. I say it is necessary for us to consider that the day may come, whether it be by foreign invasion or by local invasion, when we will have great destruction of property and life within the Commonwealth, and particularly in the great industrial areas of the state, and the burden that will be cast upon the local communities will be too great in many instances for the local communities to bear.

I like the spirit of the gentleman from Monroe when he said to me a few days ago, "I do not think that this is likely to happen in my community, we are away from the great industrial centers, but I believe the responsibility lies upon all the people to take some of the burden from those centers where it is likely to happen."

Down on the Delaware, if you started an airplane from the Bay and come up the Delaware, if you dropped a bomb every foot of the way along the shore, you would be sure to hit some industry. When you get into the densely populated sections of Philadelphia you will not only have loss of life and property but you will have destruction of municipal facilities such as light plants or water works. The destruction of many of those facilities in many of our municipalities would create a great burden because they are unable to borrow money. They will have to find some way to obtain money quickly because they cannot wait for an election to determine whether they can issue bonds. If the water works were destroyed they would have to find some source of raising money, they would have to get money immediately, hundreds of thousands and possibly millions of dollars. That is a responsibility I think the Legislature should assume, a responsibility that I think Pennsylvania should assume and we should do it and prepare for such a contingency.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HOLLAND asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have refrained from taking the floor of this House during this session because on the first day of the session I was very much impressed by the patriotic address made by the Governor and I felt that it was up to all of us to show our patriotism and avoid injecting any subject or any discussion into this session that might be termed political. But I cannot continue to take that stand.

I have heard the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, and the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman, speak regarding the bill we have just passed. I had intended speaking on the bill because if ever a bill was passed that the boys in the Army call "one hundred percent bunk," that was the bill. That bill is a mockery to the people of Pennsylvania. That bill does nothing to help civilian defense. All that bill does is to validate monies that have been expended. It says to the municipality, "If you have not reached your bonded indebtedness, you can borrow money and next year you can go to the people and increase real estate taxes."

Mr. Speaker, the newspapers throughout the state have been jibing the legislators for not doing anything in eight weeks. The reason the legislators of this House were not able to give the people of Pennsylvania real civilian defense lies on the shoulders of Governor James. Governor James so worded his call that every legislator in this House had his hands tied. Although the Governor made a patriotic speech of cooperation with the federal government, just like Scrooge, he wanted to keep all of his money so that when his term expires he will have a surplus. That money should be used now to protect the industries of the state of Pennsylvania. These poor people back home who own their own homes are the ones who are going to have to pay. These men and women who own homes in communities engaged in making war materials will have to dig down in their pockets to protect themselves. I want here to say that I am disappointed in Governor James because I believed he was sincere when he made his speech and said he wanted to do all he could to win this war, cooperate with the federal government, and so forth. In fact, I left that night feeling he was a great patriotic governor. I will leave here today or tomorrow feeling as usual that it was words, mere words.

SENATE MESSAGES

SENATE ADOPTS CONFERENCE COMMITTEE REPORT ON HOUSE BILL No. 8

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has adopted the report of the Committee of Conference on the subject of the difference existing between the two Houses on House Bill numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 8.

An Act to further amend section two of and to add Sections four and five to the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 660) entitled "An act providing that appointive officers and employes employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its civil service or by any department bureau commission or office thereof or by any county municipality township or school district shall not be deemed or held to have resigned or abandoned their offices or employments by reason of enlistment enrollment or draft in the military or naval service of the United States or any branch or unit thereof in time of war or contemplated war prohibiting the removal from their offices or employments of such officers and employes during the period of their service in the Army or Navy directing that one-half of the salaries or wages of such officers or employes as have dependent wives children or parents and not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum be paid during the term of their service in the Army or Navy to such dependents authorizing the employment during said term of substitutes to perform the duties theretofore performed by such officers or employes respectively and providing for the compensation of such substitutes" by more fully defining amounts payable limiting the time such amounts are payable and limiting the conditions of resumption of office or employment.

SENATE ADOPTS CONFERENCE COMMITTEE REPORT ON HOUSE BILL No. 68

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has adopted the report of the Committee of Conference on the subject of the difference existing between the two Houses on House Bill numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 68.

An Act to amend section two of the act approved the tenth day of July one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 645) entitled "An act imposing certain requirements on certain hospitals receiving State aid authorizing the withholding of appropriations and imposing duties on the Department of Welfare" by providing that during the present war and six months thereafter funds shall not be withheld from hospitals for violation of such act if the Secretary of Welfare determines that the constant attendance of a licensed physician or resident interne cannot be secured by such hospitals because of the war emergency

HOUSE BILL CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 101.

An Act to amend the appropriation to the Department of Military Affairs in section two of the act, approved the sixteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one (Appropriation Act No. 12-A), entitled "An act to provide for the ordinary expenses of the Executive, Legislative and Judicial Departments of the Commonwealth, interest on the public debt, and the support of the public schools for two years beginning June first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, and for the payment of bills incurred and remaining unpaid at the close of the fiscal year ending May thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one," by providing specifically for the expenses of the State Council of Defense for the maintenance of a nautical school.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 58.

An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies with the approval of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings as a temporary emergency war measure for a limited period of time to adopt certain rules and regulations governing purchases and contracts of the Department of Property and Supplies on behalf of the Commonwealth and with like approval to make and alter purchases and contracts pursuant thereto and suspending certain statutory provisions inconsistent with such rules and regulations

With the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend title, page 1, by striking out the entire title as follows: "An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies with the approval of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings as a temporary emergency war measure for a limited period of time to adopt certain rules and regulations governing purchases and contracts of the Department of Property and Supplies on behalf of the Commonwealth and with like approval to make and alter purchases and contracts pursuant thereto and suspending certain statutory provisions inconsistent with such rules and regulations" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "To suspend existing laws providing for and requiring certain contracts or purchases made by the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof to be made with and from the lowest responsible bidder after notice by advertisement insofar as they apply to certain contracts and purchases and regulating the letting of contracts and the making of purchases by political subdivisions".

Amend bill, by striking out the whereas clauses on page 1 and 2 as follows: "Whereas The existence of a state of war between the United States of America and various foreign countries has necessitated the rationing of many materials or the establishment of priority ratings on such materials and

Whereas The economic disruption resulting from the speedy turnover of a large portion of American industries to war production has required and will further require the fixing of prices in many fields and

Whereas Unexpected and unforseeable labor and material shortages are hampering the activities of many corporations and individuals upon which the Commonwealth must rely for supplies materials or services and

Whereas The foregoing and other circumstances arising out of our prosecution of the present war frequently operate to render the present statutory procedure which must be followed in supplying the State Government with materials and facilities unduly slow and inefficient or even completely inadequate therefore".

Amend Section 1, pages 2 and 3, by striking out the entire section as follows: "Section 1 During the period the United States of America is at war with any foreign country and for six months thereafter but in no event longer than three months after the General Assembly convenes in regular session in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-three the Department of Property and Supplies after first securing the approval of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings may adopt appropriate rules and regulations governing the letting and performance of public contracts entered into by it eliminating the requirement for advertising and competitive bidding in the purchase of property and materials changing or modifying any specifications or schedules relative to the performance of such contracts or otherwise governing the activities of that department in furnishing materials supplies or facilities to the Commonwealth or any of the departments boards and commissions thereof", and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Section 1 In order to expedite the making of contracts and purchases by the State Government and its political subdivisions which are necessary to further the defense efforts thereof the provisions of any Acts of Assembly providing for and requiring certain contracts or purchases made by the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof to be made with and from the lowest responsible bidder after notice thereof by advertisement

Amend Section 2, page 3, by striking out the entire section as follows: "Section 2 It shall be the duty of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings in passing upon proposed rules and regulations submitted by the Department of Property and Supplies relative to the letting and performance of public contracts entered into by that department to take whatever action with respect thereto as may be deemed necessary to continue the efficient operation of the State Government and best protect the interests of the Commonwealth

The Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings in approving any such rules and regulations shall fix the periods for which such rules and regulations may continue and shall of its own motion discontinue any rules or regulations previously allowed if it appears that the need therefor has ceased", and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Section 2 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment and shall remain in force during the period in which the United States of America is engaged in war and for six months thereafter".

Amend Section 3, pages 3 and 4 by striking out the entire section as follows: "Section 3 No contract shall be entered into by the department, and no purchase of any property or materials shall be made by it, nor shall the department change or modify any specifications or schedules relative to the performance of any contract, nor furnish any materials, supplies or facilities to the Commonwealth or any of the departments, boards and commissions thereof, under or pursuant to any rule or regulation adopted under the provisions of this act unless and until the same shall have been approved by the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings".

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House nonconcur in the amendments made by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 76.

An Act suspending and modifying for the period of the present war and for a time thereafter the provisions of section one of the act, approved the eighth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 737), entitled "A supplement to an act, entitled 'An act to establish a Board of Commissioners of Navigation for the River Delaware and its navigable tributaries; regulating their jurisdiction over ships, vessels, and boats, and wharves, piers, bulkheads, docks, slips, and basins; and exempting cities of the first class from certain of its provisions; and making an appropriation therefor,' approved the eighth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven; authorizing and directing the commissioners to provide and maintain a nautical school for the education and training of pupils from the various counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the science and practice of naviagation; and making an appropriation for two years from the first day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, towards its maintenance," and its amendments, in so far as they require, the furnishing of accommodations on board a proper vessel for the nautical school, when no such vessel is available and imposing upon the State Council of Defense the duty of furnishing other accommodations.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend section 2, page 3, line 15, by inserting after the word "commission" the following: "Provided that no person assigned by the federal government or any agency thereof to said nautical school as an instructor shall be considered such a state employe or officer as is entitled to any of the benefits provided by the Act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred and seventeen (Pamphlet Laws 600) and its amendments".

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

SENATE ADOPTS CONFERENCE COMMITTEE REPORT ON SENATE BILL No. 19

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has adopted the report of the Committee of Conference on the subject of the difference existing between the two Houses on Senate Bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 19.

An Act to protect property and prevent sabotage by prohibiting, for a limited period of time, certain intentional injuries to, and interferences with, real and personal property; prohibiting certain intentional defects in workmanship; limiting the privileges of certain witnesses, prohibiting certain entries upon real property and waters authorizing the closing of highways or the regulation or restriction of travel thereon conferring powers on the Water and Power Resources Board and providing penalties

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Montgomery will state his question of information.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, has the conference report on Senate Bill No. 19 been called up for consideration by this House?

The SPEAKER. The Senate has informed the House that it has adopted the report of the Committee of Conference on Senate Bill 19, Printers No. 74. The procedure now is to call up the report in the House.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL No. 19

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up the report of the Committee of Conference on Senate Bill No. 19, Printer's No. 74.

The report was read by the Clerk as follows:

To the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives:

We, the undersigned, Committee of Conference on the part of the Senate and House of Representatives for the purpose of considering Senate Bill No. 19, entitled: "An Act to protect property and prevent sabotage by prohibiting for a limited period of time certain intentional injuries to and interferences with real and personal property prohibiting certain intentional defects in workmanship limiting the privileges of certain witnesses and providing penalties."

Respectfully submit the following bill as our report:

George B. Stevenson,
Montgomery F. Crowe,
Frank W. Ruth,
(Committee on the Part of the Senate.)

Albert S. Readinger,
James E. Lovett,
Chas. H. Brunner, Jr.,
(Committee on the part of the House of Representatives.)

An Act to protect property and prevent sabotage by prohibiting for a limited period of time certain intentional injuries to and interferences with real and personal property prohibiting certain intentional defects in workmanship limiting the privileges of certain witnesses prohibiting certain entries upon real property and waters authorizing the closing of highways or the regulation or restriction of travel thereon conferring powers on the Water and Power Resources Board and providing penalties

On the question,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I am going to take up very little time to make what I think will be a final statement on this measure.

This bill as it appears before you now for final passage is a very good measure in my opinion. There are several important sections which have been reinstated which both clarify the existing law and also create new safeguards which will be in effect on our statute books during the present war. It represents what can be done in a legislative way when proponents and opponents get together and use reason and show interest in the welfare of this state and its citizens in settling a legislative problem.

I feel as though I would be remiss were I not to take this opportunity to thank the representatives of labor for their cooperation and fair treatment of this measure during the final consideration of it in the conference committee and during the final passage of the same.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL No. 46

Mr. MELCHIORRE presented the report of the Committee of Conference on the part of the House on Senate Bill No. 46.

The SPEAKER. This being a Senate Bill the report will be printed by the Senate, and placed in the files of the Members of the House.

RESOLUTION

THANKING OFFICERS OF HOUSE

Messrs. WILLIAMS and ELLWOOD B. WELSH offered a resolution which was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 10, 1942.

Whereas, The membership of the House were agreeably surprised to find on their desks during this session flags of this Country and of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, During the Special Session, the Chief Clerk's Office maintained its great tradition of personal service and courtesy to the members of the House; be it therefore Resolved, That the House of Representatives thanks Thomas J. Callahan, Chief Clerk of the House, Dennis J. Mulvihill, Secretary of the House, and Mrs. Justine Cohen for the innumerable services and courtesies that they have extended to the members during this Special Session.

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN IN THE CHAIR

RESOLUTION

TRIBUTE TO U. OF P. HOSPITAL SURGEON

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 10, 1942.

Whereas, It is a practice in the House of Representatives to pay tribute to the distinguished citizens of this Commonwealth; and

Whereas, One of our citizens has recently become preeminent, particularly in the field of surgery; and

Whereas, Dr. I. S. Ravdin of the University of Pennsylvania Hospital has been one of the foremost surgeons in the United States; and

Whereas, His presence at Pearl Harbor at the time of the treacherous attack of this island outpost by the Japanese saved countless lives of our wounded soldiers by his use of sulfanilamide; and

Whereas, His research into the use of the "sulfa" drugs has resulted in the amazing benefit which the practical application of these drugs has had in preventing secondary infections and deaths from the dreaded diseases of pneumonia and blood stream infections; be it therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives pays tribute to Dr. I. S. Ravdin for his great achievements in the field of surgery and medicine, and be it further Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House transmit a copy of this resolution to Dr. I. S. Ravdin at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

THE SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) IN THE CHAIR

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, for presiding.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Mr. YESTER offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 10, 1942.

Whereas, The House of Representatives has learned with deep sorrow of the passing of Private M. Wallace Flegal, 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Flegal of McKeesport, who met his death while serving in our armed forces in the Panama Canal Zone; and

Whereas, Private M. Wallace Flegal come from a family who had devotedly served under the flag of our country, with his father having participated in the Spanish-American War and his brother Clifford now in our armed forces by virtue of an enlistment; and

Whereas, Private Flegal was one of the thousands of our distinguished sons, who after the treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor enlisted in our armed forces so that they might put a stop to this unwarranted aggression; and

Whereas, As a result of his death Mrs. Flegal will become the first Gold Star Mother in the City of McKeesport; be it therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives pauses in its deliberation to pay tribute to the memory of one of the sons of Pennsylvania who gave his life in the service of his country, as well as to pay their respects to Mrs. Flegal for having carried on the great tradition of American motherhood; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House be directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the family of the deceased, conveying the profound sympathy of the membership of the House for them in their great bereavement.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. BROWN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker at this Special Session of the Legislature House Bill 62, introduced by the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Boney, and Senate Bill 85, introduced by the Senator from Montgomery, Senator Edmonds, were almost identical pieces of legislation; with the exception that House Bill 62 contained several items not contained in Senate Bill 85. These bills were introduced as temporary war measures and had to deal with the question of our schools. House Bill 62 was referred to a sub-committee of which I was the Chairman. On that committee was the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Cohen, and the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Winner. The sub-committee reported unanimously its disapproval of House Bill 62.

After this action on House Bill 62, which was sustained by the Select Committee, Senate Bill 85 was given to me for study. I reported to the majority floor leader, the Chairman of the Select Committee, that the Senate Bill was almost identical with House Bill 62 and for that reason it was not taken up for discussion.

In view of the fact that the matter is of grave importance to the schools of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and in view of the further fact that very little attention has been given to the matter by the House because the bills were not before the House, I have the consent of the majority floor leader to introduce into the record my remarks as to why these bills were not before the House, and I ask consent of the House to extend my remarks on the record.

EXTENDED REMARKS OF Mr. BROWN

House Bill 62, introduced in this Special Session by the Honorable John L. Boney, an act prescribing temporary war measures with respect to certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth; giving the right to the board of school directors of any school district, the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the State Council of Defense to determine how many days the schools of the various school districts of the Commonwealth shall remain in session, with certain limitations; the right to divide the school year into semesters or divisions; the right to determine the number of days per year the schools of the various school districts shall remain in session; the right to close the schools or accelerate the period of promotion and graduation of the pupils; the right to adjust the assignment or reassignment of teachers in such fields, subjects, schedules and semesters, or other periods of work and in such schools as their preparation, experience and certification may qualify them to perform; the right to employ teachers not citizens of the United States, with certain limitations; and the right to grant farm and domestic employment permits to pupils who have attained the age of fourteen years, was submitted as a temporary war measure.

Senate Bill 85 introduced in the Senate by Senator Franklin Spencer Edmonds and Senator T. B. Wilson and which passed the Senate, was a similar bill with the exception that it was limited to the question of keeping the schools in session and the closing of the schools; the adjustment of the assignment and reassignment of teachers and the granting of farm and domestic employment permits to pupils who have reached the age of fourteen years.

As the result of study, it is my opinion that the wide latitude now given to those in authority to meet the provisions of the bill, under certain conditions, is sufficient to cover most of the provisions contained in both House Bill 62 and Senate Bill 85. The unlimited power and authority given under both bills to the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the State Council of Defense would be a radical departure from the basic principles of our democratic form of government in that the Legislature, the law-making body of the State, would be completely surrendering its sovereign power to legislate in the fields covered by House Bill 62 and Senate Bill 85.

It is our contention that this power should only be surrendered when the need for such legislation has been proven. In this connection it must be noted that some thirty or forty organizations whose judgment and experience in school legislation cannot be questioned, registered vigorous protests against these two pieces of legislation above referred to. Among these organizations protesting were.

Philadelphia Federation of Teachers, Local 3 AFT
Erie Teachers Federation
York Federation of Trade Unions
State College Teachers Assn.
Pittsburgh Central Labor Union
Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers
Pennsylvania Federation of Teachers
Labor's Non-Partisan League of Penna.
Philadelphia Federation of Teachers
York County Federation of Teachers
Meadville Central Labor Union
Meadville Federation of Teachers
Secondary School Teachers Assn.
Public Education and Child Labor Assn. of Pennsylvania
Erie Teachers Federation
Pennsylvania State Teachers League

Erie Central Labor Union and many other organizations of a similar nature. As a matter of fact, a representative of the Department of Public Instruction of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania stated for the record at a hearing before the sub-committee, that three provisions of House Bill 62 are not necessary at this time. At this same hearing an official of the Pennsylvania State Education Association advised the committee that the Executive Board of the Pennsylvania State Education Association desired no action on House Bill 62 although we were later informed that this organization did go on record as being favorable to Senate Bill 85. This was the only endorsement received by me, as Chairman of the Sub-Committee, favoring passage of either of the bills already referred to.

In view of the foregoing, together with the fact that the Special Session, because of the time of adjournment could not thoroughly go into the subject matter of the bills and the fact of the vast importance in connection therewith, together with the fact that the school term will soon be closing, it is my opinion that House Bill 62 and Senate Bill 85 should not be passed.

BILL SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bill numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor and the same being correct, the title was publicly read as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 84.

An Act to conserve metal by suspending the provisions of article five of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P.
